HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Bilious complaints and irregularities of the system, produced by depraved or over-abundant bile, can always be corrected by a few doses of these inestimable Pills, which are everywhere admired for their rare combination of mildness and power; for though they conquer with ease and rapidity the most obstinate disease, they never weaken the stomach or necessitate any interruption of ordinary duties or amusement. On the contrary, they increase the appetite, strengthen the organs of digestion, give increased energy and life to all the animal functions, and fit both hand and brain for fresh exertions. The sick and enfeebled may by a single trial speedily discover what a happy revolution these Pills have the power to effect in the human system.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port extend to the 21st April; the French mail from London March 1, due April 18, had not arrived, owing to the Messageries steamer Ava having sustained damage in collision with the steamer Rona. The following summary is from the North China Herald:—

It appears that difficulties with natives regarding the Woosung-road are not yet at an end. Messrs. Farnham and Co. have lately been employed in laying the foundations for the bridge over the Yangtsze-poo, but were interrupted in their operations by the villagers, who had some grievance concerning the taking up of their land. Two policemen were sent down to protect the workmen and materials, but affairs wearing a very quiet aspect, one of these has left. With a view to explain the intentions of foreigners and remove any misapprehension from the minds of the country people, the Mixed Court Magistrate, Mr. Coryell, Mr. Blethen and Mr. Haas proceeded to the spot, and assured the objectors that as the land required was taken, all claims for compensation would be satisfied, in accordance with the arrangements made by the Taoutai. Having done all they could to soothe the popular feeling the magistrate and those with him returned to Shanghai, under the impression that the villagers were satisfied; but no sooner had they left than the interference was resumed, and dirt was flung at the policeman. The policeman remonstrated in vain, and as one woman became more troublesome he endeavoured to restrain her. The villagers, however, flung stones, and struck him with bamboos, and after a short struggle, in which he had to use his baton to defend himself, he beat a retreat to Farnham and Co.'s premises, refraining from using the revolver and sword with which he was furnished. Information having been sent to the station, five armed policemen were sent down by the steam launch; but the villagers only waited till the boat came in sight, and then made their escape further inland, or concealed themselves in the neighbourhood. After the single policeman had left, the timber for the bridge was looted and carried off, but the police party found most of it secreted in one of the houses, about three hundred yards from the creek. Search was also made for the ringleaders in the disturbance, and about eight people were captured, including both male and female rioters. Several of these were brought up at the Mixed Court, and, after a preliminary investigation, the more guilty in the affair were sent into the city.

The Peking Gazette contains a full translation of the Emperor's edicts regarding the approaching marriage. They add little however, to information previously published. We hear that Prince Kung has officially intimated to the Foreign Ministers that Ho-ching, now acting Governor General of the Two Kiang, has also been appointed acting Minister Superintendent of Trade for the Southern Ports. The Gazette discloses a very pretty bit of blundering, or squeezing, near Jehol. So far as we can make out the case, certain waste lands on the outskirts of the Imperial hunting ground were given to the Bannermen for cultivation, on the understanding that they should eventually revert to the Crown. The time for that reversion seems to have arrived, and officials have been sent down to reclaim them and to allot other waste land. The old tenants very naturally objected to be turned out; and the officials of course took the opportunity to squeeze, besides using injudicious violence. Altogether a small insurrection seems to have deen excited. The Gazette of March 17 contains a memorial from the Viceroy of Szchuen reporting the existence of great distress in that province Last year seems to have been a disastrous one in many parts of China. Chihli, Szechuen, and Kwantung all suffered from excessive rain and consequent floods. In the present case an appropriation of Tls. 200,000 is ordered, and the neighbouring provinces are to be called on to send rice into Szechuen.

Several heavy thunderstorms passed over Shanghai on the 13th April. The first passed directly over the settlement. The lightning struck the tower of the Union Chapel in Shantung road, but fortunately did no damage beyond breaking open a venetian shutter and scattering some plaster. The Chinese excited themselves greatly over this incident, and were divided between a belief that Joss was angry with something that went on in the building struck, and an impression that it was Trinity Church which had had a hole knocked in the roof specially to let out the black devil who has haunted it ever since the autumn of 1870. Another flash struck a godown at the back of Messrs. Russell and Co.'s hong. One of the telegraph wires running past the Borneo Company's premises was broken, and one of the iron posts on the Woosung road knocked over. Among the natives it is rumoured that a Chinaman was killed near Hongkew, and various similar reports concerning foreigners have been current, but we have not been able to verify any of them.

The Asiatic Society met on the 17th April, when a paper by Mr. Watters, on the "Life and Works of Han-yu or Han Wen-kung" was read by the President, C. W. Goodwin, Esq., Messrs. T. Fergusson, Chefoo, and J. P. Munro-Fraser were elected non-resident members of the Society, and H. Maignan and George Shearer, M D., Kewkiang, proposed for election.

The annual general meeting of subscribers to the library has been held, the Rev. C. H. Butcher in the chair. The report and accounts showed that the revenue had not met the expenditure (including London account to 31st December) by Tls. 75.26, requiring the committee to trench on the reserve fund to that amount. The number of subscribers now on the books is about 150. The report and accounts were passed; and the Rev. Mr. Butcher, Messrs. Cordier, Mullins, Kaye, McLellan and Pagn appointed committee for the year.

The prospectus of the Shanghai and Hongkew Tramway's Company has been issued. The object of the company is the laying of a line of tramway between the City East Gate and the lower limits of Hongkew. The proposed capital is Tls. 120,000, in 1,200 shares of Tls. 100 each, with power to increase to Tls. 200,000.

There is an amended scheme for furnishing Shanghai with a theatre to replace the old Lyceum. The estimated cost is Tls. 21,250, to be provided by debentures of Tls. 25 each for Tls. 18,000 and assistance from the Recreation Fund. The scheme seems feasible and the capital very moderate; and as the Insurance Offices promise to take the risk, debenture holders would, pending the drawing of their scrip, be safe to get their capital back in case of such a catastrophe as befell the old building.

The Spring Rifle Meeting of the S.V.C. has passed off very successfully. The shooting shows an improvement on former meetings; the number of enties stand about the same.

The Shanghai Hsien has issued a proclamation calling on the people to bury their dead, and not leave them exposed on the open ground as at present. Persons too poor to bear the expense of burial can apply to the Tung-jen Charity for help. The practice of burning the dead is strongly reprobated.

The Soonkiong and Shanghai Tax Office has issued a notification that the rice tax will be reduced on and after the 17th April.

The Newchwang Light-vessel arrived in safety at her station on the 15th of March, and was made fast to her old moorings. The light was exhibited on the 21st March.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this opportunity are to the 27th April, or only two days later, owing to the change of monsoon. The Overland China Mail has the following items:—

We hear that the indefatigable Fatshanites have revived the project of burning the new London Mission Chapel. A handbill was put out on Monday morning, stating that it is arranged to demolish the chapel on the 8th of the next Chinese month, and inviting all sympathising with that object to be present on the occasion. As far as is known at present, the handbill would not seem to represent any large or serious measure of ill-will. Should trouble arise again when the summer heat has awakened and vivified the latent energy of the Chinese blood, it is to be hoped that our venerable and time-honoured friend, Consul Robertson, will be as prompt and decisive in his measures as the gentleman in charge of our interests during the disturbances of last summer. Fears have been expressed lest such should not be the case.

The discovery, lately recorded, that the Great Northern Telegraph Company's cable had been wilfully cut, is a matter that calls for public and emphatic notice. The ordinary dangers attendant upon the maintenance of submarine communication are sufficient to cause grave anxiety to the superintendents of the lines without the additional element of malicious damage. We cannot admit that the injury thus inflicted is a question for the company interested only. It resembles, in the interest it possesses for the public generally, the damage caused by those wretched villains who endeavour to upset a railway train or in any other way peril the lives of the public by attempting to destroy the property of individuals. The amount of harm that such a villainous project may succeed in inflicting is, even in the case of telegraphic communication, almost beyond estimation.

IN CHANCERY.

The Acting Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. Toller, appeared to make an application on behalf of Mr. Francis Chomley, a large shareholder in the China Straits Steam Navigation Company, (Limited), to have the Company wound up, as it was a losing concern. The A.A.G. said the Company was formed on the 14th February, 1870, with a proposed capital of $500,000, in 5,000 shares of $100 each, for the purpose of carrying on a line of traffic between Singapore and the Coast Ports of China. According to the Memorandum of Association, such was the intention of the Company. But it turned out that only 1,777 shares had been taken up, consequently the Company was abortive, and it was found impossible to go on with the business. While this was the state of things the directors took upon themselves to commence business without consulting the shareholders, and the result was that only one steamer had been purchased or hired, and great loss accrued to the shareholders. It was, moreover, contemplated by one of the Arcles of Association that the company should not commence business unless there were 3,500 shares taken up, as no extraordinary meeting could take place unless there were shareholders present to represent that number of shares. There being only 1,777 shares subscribed for, comprising only a few shareholders, no extraordinary meeting had been convened, and the directors again took upon themselves to remove the head office from Hong Kong to Singapore. thus virtually dissolving the company and placing it out of the jurisdiction of the Court in which it had been registered. Mr. Chomley had paid up two calls of his shares, leaving $50 dollars a share unpaid; he was anxious that he should be relieved from further responsibility, and to have the company wound up, so that the assets would be divided amongst the shareholders. The Acting Attorney-General cited several cases in support of his contention.

After hearing Mr. Drummond's reply, his lordship suggested that a resolution should be passed, voluntarily winding up the company, and that the value of Mr. Chomley's shares be referred to two merchants.

On the loss of the steamer Rona the following appears:—

The Shipping List of the 17th contains a letter from an English passenger by the Ava, who makes the following remarks:—As to what happened after the collision, when the captain of the Rona had, with marvellous good fortune, been fortunately lodged on board the Ava by a lucky fall—I can only say that the Rona's boats were not half full, that no attempt at a volunteer rescue of their comrades was made by the captain or any of the other survivors Their demands on the French captain to lower boats, after their own were abandoned and allowed to drift away, were incessant, without any volunteering to man or command them. The position of the Ava, with a large number of passengers and a heavy crew, was extremely doubtful, and when the captain of the Ava consented to let one of the boats go, after seeing that the Rona's officers had utterly abandoned their own, a volunteer French crew, with one solitary man from the Rona, instantly and quietly embarked, alas! too late to reach the ill-fated vessel, which almost immediately foundered with the unfortunates left by their brother officers and fellow passengers who had made their way to the Ava in half-loaded boats. The letter concludes with some very strong remarks about the "ex parte statement" published by the Shipping List. Until the investigation takes place there will, we presume, be little chance of arriving at the truth.

BORNEO.

The Sarawak Gazette has the following on Brunei:—The accounts we have received from Brunei reveal a more lamentable state of anarchy and oppression than we had believed to be possible. Those of our readers who have noticed the statements and incidental allusions which have frequently appeared in these columns, would have been prepared to hear that immense difficulties were thrown in the way of all foreign traders entering the Sultan's Territory, but probably few had estimated these at their proper value.

We now hear, in the confessions of miserable poverty and degradation, in the expressed desire of active traders to enter the Brunei rivers, in their acknowledgment that the risk they would have to face alone deters them, what a system of Government like that sanctioned and protected in the Sultan's kingdom has produced. The picture which has been presented to us of an aged prince, devoting the last years of his life to the unscrupulous pursuit of wealth, which is not likely to be of the smallest benefit to any but himself and his favourites; ruled by his petty rajahs, whose first aim is their own aggrandisement; and ruling his thousands of subjects by their means alone is not one to be admired or respected; and whatever personal virtues or political considerations may have led others to undertake the championship of such a potentate, it is time, in the name of justice and civilisation, to call for the overthrow, or at least for the modification, of such a system.

The question is not whether this Rajah or that should be supreme on the coasts of Borneo, nor even whether the revenues and resources of its rivers should pass through the hands of a better or a worse Government, but whether an oppressed people, willing to progress, should be allowed to do so, and whether the riches of great and accessible districts, whose inhabitants have neither the heart nor the opportunity to develop and export their wealth, should remain unprofitable and unused, or should be suffered to flow into markets where a ready demand and an ample remuneration await those who can supply them.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates are one day later only, to the morning of the 5th May. The outward mail of the 5th April was expected. On the proposed annexation of Labuan, for which place Governor Ord had left, the Observer says:—There is an old and time honoured saying, "Let well alone;" now Labuan appears to be doing well, and progressing in the required direction, and is likely with proper management to do much better as it goes on with such a rich and productive island as Borneo at its back. If we are to believe Mr. Pope Hennessy, it is self reliant, and self sustaining, and its progress towards future and ultimate prosperity appears to be as certain as that of any other colony on the face of the globe. Then why hamper its operations, and darken its prospects, and lessen its value as a self sustained colony, by making it dependent upon and subsidiary to Singapore? How has the system answered in Penang, a much nearer and more consistent connection, or dependency of Singapore than Labuan? Why the leading colonists of Penang have been repeatedly clamouring for a break up of the connection, so far as to allow them self government, and the control of their own finances. They might certainly have done better than they have done, if they had been left to themselves to sink or swim, on the strength of their own resources.

The following news came by the last steamer from Labuan:—

The Spanish three-masted schooner Maria Lopez left for Manila, the cargo of the steamer Luzon having been transferred into her. The Luzon was put up to public sale, and brought $10,050. In a few days she will leave for Singapore. Sooloo still continues to be strictly blockaded by the Spanish forces from the Philippines. Regarding the above blockade, it cannot but have a material effect in depressing the trade of Labuan, both in imports and exports.

The Straits Times says:—

The colony has just now at command such an amount of engineering talent that the public works ought not to suffer through the absence of Major McNair, the Colonial Engineer. There is the Assistant Engineer, Captain Innes, now acting in Major McNair's place, the two Deputies, Lieut. Satterthwaite and Mr. Sheppard, and two corporals of the Royal Engineers—not to mention H.E. the Governor, who, being a colonel of the Royal Engineers, is able to assist them on occasion with his advice. It would be hardly fair to the public if with all this staff employed current public works should get on no faster or be no better attended to than when there was only the Colonial and the Assistant Engineer to carry them out.

H.M.S. Zebra left the harbour on a cruise to the eastward; she will, we learn, go to Labuan, and before her return will visit Batavia. She will probably be absent a month or six weeks.

Salangore is again disturbed by troubles, occasioned through the interference of Syed Masahoor, one of Rajah Mahdie's followers, who has made his appearance with an armed force near the stockades of Tunku dia Oodin, the governor appointed by the Sultan. This is doubtless through the machinations of Mahdie himself, who has been for some time past endeavouring to raise a force and procure arms and ammunition in various places,—Perak, Siak, Singapore, &c.,—and who is now, we believe, a state prisoner in Johore. The colonial steamer Pluto has but recently returned from a visit to Salangore and Laroot,—the Chinese population of the latter place being still in a very unsettled condition, and, is, we hear, to return to both places in a few days. It is to be hoped this Government will be permitted to maintain order in these States, in order to protect the trade of these Settlements from the interruptions caused by the constant recurrence of petty wars between contending rajahs, and the anarchy, and piracy consequent upon such a state of affairs.

The arrival of steamers via the Suez Canal have been the Agamemnon, from Liverpool, on the 27th, and Canton, from London, on April 30, and Tchihatchoff, from Odessa, on May 3. The departures have been the Priam, on the 1st, and Glenroy the 3rd, both for London.

CEYLON.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Our new Governor is gaining golden opinions. From the moment he landed the whole populace have received him with such demonstrations of joy as if all were persuaded that he is to be a most popular Governor. He has been met with addresses wherever he went, and his replies to all classes who have addressed him have been couched in cheerful, hopeful, straightforward language, not constrained or distant, as many a Governor could not help being at first on arrival among a new people in a new country, and with everything around and about him new and strange. No, he met the people on all hands as if he wished to be considered one of them, to feel with and for them; to make their interest his interest; and asked them, in fact, to take him into their confidence, and to believe that in their welfare and prosperity his happiness would consist. Such a thorough throwing off of all reserve, and such a desire to benefit the country he has come to govern, cannot fail to make him a most popular, as he evidently intends to be a most active Governor. From the moment he landed he has busied himself in seeing things for himself. All the public institutions at Colombo and Kandy were minutely examined. He has made a sea voyage round half of the island, inspecting Jaffna and the Northern Province. Now he has landed at Batticaloa, where he has inspected the great irrigation work and is now traversing the Great Batticaloa and Badulla Road—the greatest work undertaken by his great predecessor.

If he can find a good harbour at the Batticaloa terminus and will push the road to completion soon, he will confer an enormous boon on the planters of Badulla and Madoolsema—as there will thus be opened to them for the first time an outlet which will place them on a par with the most favoured districts. An outlet, too, for the rice, fish, and salt from the Eastern Province into the interior will be provided, and our sea and land industries be largely and beneficially developed. To this end the Right Hon. W. H. Gregory will do well to devote a large share of his attention. The road to Batticaloa once opened throughout, connecting the sea on the east coast with the sea on the west—the harbour and breakwater at Colombo constructed, and the Paumben Channel made navigable—Ceylon will hold no mean place among the colonies of the British Crown.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The Piece Goods Market had remained steady, dealers continuing to make purchases for immediate requirements, fearing that the heavy stocks would shortly affect prices. Business had again been chiefly confined to Grey Cottons. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. closed weak at Tls. 1.76 to 1.78; 8¼ lbs. sold at a decline of 2 candareens, the demand being inactive; 2¾ lbs. quoted a candareen lower, Tls. 2.70 to 2.95 per piece. White Shirtings: In small request, 800 pieces realised weaker rates. T-Cloths: Common 6 lbs. lower, but best qualities unchanged; 7 lbs. showed a decline of 1 to 2 candareens on all grades; in 8 lbs. former values repeated, little having been done. Woollens and Worsteds: Prices firm for all descriptions. Camlets: Improving. Scarlet Spanish Stripes: Quoted higher. Long Ells: Neglected. Metals.—Lead: 5 candareens lower, and weak at Tls. 4.90 to 4.95 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—There was a very dull and inactive market for all classes of manufactures. Holders had not in any way pressed sales; indeed, most of them were holding on firmly to their stocks, and awaiting the expected demand and hoped-for rise in value. But, in the face of recent advices from the outports, few merchants had come forward at the asked prices, and the business had been purely retail, the small transactions entered into establishing a slight concession to buyers.

HONG KONG.—There is again no change to report in the market. Some inclination had been shown by dealers to make purchases, but the prices offered were lower than holders were disposed to accept, and transactions had, consequently, been very limited in extent.

MANILA.—The market had been extremely quiet, and business had been very limited. Importers held their stocks very firmly and a considerable advance had, as a rule, been obtained on the sales; dealers, however, showed little anxiety to buy, and stocks of many articles in the provinces were still large. It was expected that if supplies continued to come forward on the existing limited scale there would be a steady gradual advance in values, but as yet sales to any extent were not practicable at the higher rates asked by importers.

SINGAPORE.—The market for Piece Goods had been dull, and sales had been on a small scale only, at previous rates. 39 in. Grey Shirtings 8¼ lb. had been in fair inquiry at $2.62½ to 2.65, and sales had been effected, principally at the higher quotation; 7 lb. quiet at $2.22½; and 6 lb. in moderate request at $1.97½ to 2.02½. 45 in. 9 lb. nominal, at $2.95 to 2.00. 32 in. Grey T-Cloths, 6 lb., $1.70 to 1.72½; 5 lb., $1.40 to 1.42½; 7 lb., $1.90 to 1.92½. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells, 12 lb., wanted at $7½ to 8; Lastings no inquiry; Figured Orleans in good request, and sold at 22c. Scarlet Spanish Stripes in small supply and moderate inquiry at 75c. to 80c. Metals: Iron in fair inquiry, and firmly held for higher rates; Govan Flat Bar, $3.85; Nailrods, $4; Swedish Flat Bar, $4.15 to 4.25; Copper Sheathing, $30; Yellow Metal, $25½ to 26; Pig Lead, common, $5.85; L.B., $6.25.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—No settlements had been reported and no information of a reliable nature had been published regarding the new crop. Black.—Stock 230 chests. Green.—A small chop of Common Shanghai packed was said to have been purchased at Tls. 25½. Stock 700 half-chests Shanghai packed.

CANTON.—There had been settlements of a few hundred boxes new Season's Canton District Congou at Tls. 23 to 27. A few musters of Scented Orange Pekoes had been shown, but such were evidently made up in the hope of eliciting the ideas of likely buyers, as the leaf had not been purchased for such quantities as they were reported to represent. It is rumoured, however, that some impatient operator had settled about 2,000 boxes, at Tls. 27 to 30, for shipment within a week, and already orders had gone into the growing districts for large supplies of leaf suitable for manipulation into this description. Samples of Scented Congou were expected to be shown in the course of a few days.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Latest telegrams from London brought unsatisfactory news of the market, quoting No. 3 Tsatlees 28s., Red Peacocks 25s. Indeed, Canton Silks seem now to have the preference over Shanghai, owing to the high cost and mixed quality of the latter this season. It was hoped, however, that the Chinese would be made aware of the fact, and give more attention to the preparation of their Silks next season. The season may be considered closed, the only arrivals being Szechuens, transhipped from Hankow. The unsold stock was estimated at barely 200 bales, chiefly faulty and odd parcels.

CANTON.—The season of 1871-1872 was considered to have closed; the total export to Europe had been 13,326 bales, viz., 11,634 bales from Canton, and 1,692 bales from Hong Kong and Macao. Of these 9,767 bales went on to London, 3,539 bales to France, and 20 bales to Milan. Latest reports regarding the first crop of the new season are favourable as to quality, but the quantity was not expected to be large. The weather continued unusually dry for the time of year, and it was consequently feared that a supply of leaves would fail.

LITERATURE.

—o—

Redlands; or, Home Temper. By Harriette Bowra. London: HODDER AND STOUGHTON.—It is evident that the public appetite for the "sensational" style of novel-writing initiated by "Guy Livingstone," "Ouida," and Miss Braddon has been cloyed by the simple process of over-feeding. Readers of romance have had their fill since the authors we have named, with other disciples of the same school, made their debut in the literary world of murder, forgery, and breaches of the seventh commandment, heroes, stalwart, muscular, but unintellectual; heroines, golden-haired, fascinating, but immoral. But the novel founded on these delightful themes no longer retains its hold upon the reading public, and even its originators are seeking popularity in other fields—as witness Miss Braddon's last work, a domestic story, embellished with graphic "word-pictures" of Anglo-Indian society and manners. Of a similar character is the two volume novellette now before us. As its title implies, it is essentially a story of home, the passions and impulses good or bad which agitate the little world which exists in every household. We regret that the limits of our space prevent our giving an analysis of the plot. The authoress—whose name will not be unfamiliar to our readers—possesses a graceful and fluent style, and her pages, both descriptive or conversational, are pleasant reading, while here and there may be found passages which give evidence of deep thought and strong feeling well directed. On the whole we have no hesitation in saying that the work will be perused with pleasure by all except those whose ideal of an interesting novel is a florid rechauffe of the Newgate Calendar.

ARRIVAL OF THE BURMESE EMBASSY.

The members of the Burmese Embassy, sixteen in number, arrived at Dover on the 4th inst. in the steam yacht Tyeska Yeen Byan, belonging to the King of Burmah. An immense crowd assembled on the Admiralty Pier in the expectation of seeing the distinguished visitors land; but, to the disappointment of everybody, it was found that the yacht, when it had steamed to within 300 or 400 yards of the landing stage, where every preparation short of an official reception had been made for the disembarkation of their Excellencies, instead of steaming alongside, threw out two or three warps, which were straightway made fast to one of the buoys facing the pier. Communication was soon opened between the vessel and the shore, and it was ascertained that the Ambassadors did not intend to land, but would pass the night on shipboard. The yacht is a shapely though not remarkably handsome craft of about 400 tons burden, and she is to take half-a-dozen guns on board in London before she leaves England. She carries at her main the Burmese flag, a crimson peacock on a white ground, and a British ensign at the stern. She is commanded by an Englishman (Capt. Brown), and her other officers are English, but the crew, which number about eighty, are Hindoos and Burmese. The Ambassadors are the bearers of costly presents from the King, and it is said that among them is a magnificent bracelet intended for Queen Victoria, the gold of which weighs no less than seven pounds. The Embassy will, during their three months' visit to England, visit Birmingham, Manchester, Leeds, Sheffield, and other important manufacturing places.

The names of the Ambassadors are Mengyee Maha Saythoo Kenwoon Mengyee, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary; Macha Meulah Kyoden Taden Woondonk, Minister of State, second grade, and Attaché to the Embassy; Meulha Zayathoo Seraydangyee, Secretary to the Embassy; and Mr. Edmund Jones, Agent to the King of Burmah.

On the 5th inst. the Ambassadors landed, and were officially received by the Municipality of Dover. The Town Clerk presented an address from the Mayor and the burgesses of the town, welcoming the Ambassadors to England. Afterwards the Embassy left the pier in four carriages drawn by pairs of greys, and were shown over the Castle. The Ambassadors arrived in London yesterday, and will remain at the Grosvenor Hotel during their stay in the metropolis.

H.M.S. Ocean arrived on the 5th at Plymouth, from the China station, after an absence of nearly six years from England. She left Singapore Dec. 24 last, and had heavy gales off the Cape, rolling 35 to 40 degs. The health of the ship generally throughout the commission has been remarkably good, only two officers and six men having died of sickness and three men from accident. Of the latter W. Cooper, leading stoker, fell into the engines and was killed on the 12th of April, the other two were seamen, who lost their lives by falling from aloft. One of them very nearly killed Capt. Hewett, having struck him severely on the shoulder in falling. The Ocean has on board, including supernumeraries, 691 officers and men. During the voyage home she was 1,387 hours under steam and sail combined, during which she ran 7,644 knots, she was under steam alone 696 hours, making 3,287 knots, and was under sail only 692 hours, when she logged 2,570 knots, giving an average speed per hour of 4·86 knots for the whole voyage; the entire distance traversed by the ship since she was recommissioned being 23,000 miles. The ship, after inspection by the commander-in-chief, will have her powder taken out, and will be removed to the harbour at Devonport to be dismantled and paid off.

The United States Government are about arranging with the American Trading Company of Borneo for a site for a naval station to be located within the company's concession on the north end of Borneo, and a commissioner is shortly to be despatched to select the place and complete the final settlements.

Commander George Parsons has been appointed commander of H.M.S. Rinaldo, on the China Station, in the place of Commander Robinson, promoted.

ROBERT JAMES FOREST, ESQ., late of Shanghai, has been called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 6.

A very painful impression has been made by a telegram, which states that the steamer Prins van Oranje, belonging to the Company Nederland, has been towed to Aden, at a cost of £1,000, with a broken screw. This news arrived on the day that the shareholders met in the capital to hear something about the result of the operations of the first year. It is superfluous to state that the report was not satisfactory. In the prospectus a dividend of at least 16 per cent. was anticipated, but for the first year there is no dividend at all, while the balance shows a deficit of about 140,000 guilders. This loss was principally due to the unfortunate burning of the steamer Willem III., but, notwithstanding that the first voyage of the second steamer has resulted in a loss of f.9,104.02½, the managers have reason to believe that the following voyages will be satisfactory—of course, if the steamers do not meet with such casualties as this one now reported. In the course of this year the company will increase their number of steamers by four, viz., one of 966 lasts, and three of 1,134 lasts and engines of 400-horse power. At the meeting a discussion arose upon the revision of the statutes, and there was a difference of opinion as to the advisability of having one director instead of three, but in the end the meeting decided that three directors were necessary. It was further decided that the directors should not be obliged to give up their own private business when they are appointed, although several shareholders were desirous that they should do so and give their whole time to the affairs of the company. It was decided that no dividends shall be paid upon coupons presented for payment more than five years after they fell due. Prince Henry of the Netherlands was elected honorary president. I heartily hope that the second year's operation will give more favourable results. I hear that a pamphlet will shortly be published by a passenger by the steamer Prins Hendrik, complaining of bad arrangements and ill-treatment on board that vessel.

You will remember some months ago I stated that spurious bills were in circulation in Amsterdam to an important extent, but that the assertion was contradicted. Since, however, it has been proved to be quite true, as one of the operators has been arrested and condemned to imprisonment; and I now find from the annual report of the Netherland's Bank that this establishment discounted seventy-seven false bills issued by three persons, by which it lost a sum of f.78,124.18. Upon the whole this year has not been favourable for the Bank. The net profit, exclusive of the 5 per cent. dividend to be paid on the shares, has been f.1,719,151.80, against f.2,885,528.99 in 1870.

EXTRACTS FROM DE BEAUVOIR'S YEDO, PEKING, &c.

THE EXECUTION GROUND AT PEKING.—Here the dust is laid with blood. We turn away hastily from a group of condemned men whose eyes are being bound before a shed, where Monsieur de Peking cuts off heads with one blow of his sword. This officer—the busiest and hardest worked in the Empire—is there now in his official capacity. The passers-by do not seem at all impressed by the sight which makes us fly, but continue their walk quietly. We are told that when there is no official performances under this shed a common butcher replaces the functionary, and exposes joints of beef and mutton for sale on the spot still wet with human blood. A little further on we receive ocular demonstrations of the fact that the heads of the decapitated are exposed in the open street. On the earth, still marked with red stains, we see seven little stands, each supporting a wicker cage; six men's heads, and one woman's, recently cut off, are enclosed in them, with a sentence written on a little bit of paper fastened to the hideous display of bleeding nerves and muscles of the neck. A strong look of suffering is marked on their ghastly faces, with eyes still open, gaping mouths, and red-stained hair. One of our interpreters reads the cause of execution, "Justice has punished theft." Burial is long in coming for these mutilated remains, which are destined to serve as an example to evil-doers. If I had not seen it three several times I could not believe in the wretched fate that befals the head of a criminal; but on the famous bridge known as the "Beggars' Bridge"—a magnificent erection of marble—assemble daily to beg for charity several hundred miserable creatures, half naked, leprous, diseased, and blind. They are in such a state of starvation that they take the decomposing heads from the wicker cages, salt them, and eat them.

VISIT TO PRINCE KUNG.—We rode on horseback, booted and spurred, through a muddy thaw to the Yamen of Foreign Affairs, where a picket of native cavalry salutes the Duc de Penthievre. We give our horses to grooms, dressed in sky blue, wearing black velvet boots, and find ourselves before three red-buttoned dignitaries in fox-skin jackets, with official hats covered with red silk fringe and adorned with a long plume of peacock's feathers, pearl grey silk robes with gold buttons, and white satin boots. It would take a table of logarithms to calculate the number of regular mechanical bows made in the courtyard. We bow, you bow, they bow, till you wonder when etiquette will allow you to raise your head. Besides, in China you must always give a little forced laugh in saying good morning, with oh's and ah's in a crescendo scale. At last the three great mandarins led us by a series of little foot planks and twisted bridges, round kiosks with paper walls, and we find ourselves in the presence of his Imperial Highness, whose face is intelligent and his reception most gracious. We again spend about a quarter of an hour in reception bows, but we kept our hats on our heads—to do otherwise would be a great breach of politeness. A sojourn of ten weeks in China has accustomed us to Celestial good manners. And I assure you that you would have taken us all for descendants of fire, so skilful are we in drawing our closed hands within our sleeves, then with much gravity and ceremony raising them joined together to our foreheads, so well do we know how to make a show of hilarity, and, finally, so cleverly, do we manœuvre our chopsticks. Meanwhile, as Mr. Brown, First Secretary of Legation, was translating the compliments of the Regent to the Duc de Penthievre, and vice versa, the tables were being covered as if by enchantment with hundreds of saucers of crackled china and little enamel jars the size of a thimble, all filled with chopped up sticky messes, green, pink, and blue, with red juicy sweetmeats, with fruits, spices, meat, &c. Having regard to the awkwardness of the barbarians, the Celestial potentates had pompously provided knives and forks, but we made it a point of honour to use the chop sticks, which pleased them. The Duc de Penthievre was on the Regent's right hand, Fauvel on his left. I had the happiness of being seated between the Minister of Commerce and the Minister of Public Instruction. You cannot imagine how gracious they were pleased to be; at one moment I had more than twenty different viands at once on my plate, and I confess to having tasted pretty nearly all the hundred and fifty sweet dishes ranged upon the table. All would have gone off admirably if the chaplain had not made a point of trying to make me laugh by murmuring something ridiculous every time that the excellent Minister of Public Instruction, with extreme politeness, put into my very mouth with his chop stick quarters of oranges dipped in sugar, while the Minister of Commerce, rivalling him in good will, insinuated between my teeth on the left side slices of ham preserved in ginger. "That old gentleman will poison you," our amiable companion of the race of Nangkao repeated each time. Without any allusion from us to our disaster, the Minister of the Interior brought the conversation gradually round to the difficulties of travelling, and, seeing that we pretended to ignore the attack made upon us by the people under his jurisdiction, he overwhelmed us with apologies with a courtesy which will make us forget everything.

EXTRACTS FROM LORD ELGIN'S CORRESPONDENCE.

ON THE DEFEAT AT THE PEIHO.—SHANGHAI, JULY 1, 1860.—Frederick (his brother, Sir F. Bruce), partly from generosity of character, and partly from sympathy with the admiral and admiration of his valour, abstained from stating in his own justification all the circumstances of the unfortunate affair at the Peiho last year. Moreover, his policy at the mouth of the Peiho was one which required success to justify it in the eyes of persons at a distance. After the failure, no matter by whose fault, he could not have escaped invidious criticism however clear might have been his demonstration that for that failure he was not directly or indirectly responsible. Therefore I think it probable that the result will prove that in following the dictates of his own generous nature he adopted the course which in the long run will be found to have been the wisest. I do not like to speak too confidently of the future. Of course their victory of last year has increased the self-confidence of the Chinese Government, and rendered it more arrogant in its tone. Nevertheless I am of opinion that the result will prove that I estimated correctly their power of resistance; that we have spent in our armaments against them three times as much as was necessary, and that if we have difficulties to encounter they are likely to be due, not to the strength of the enemy, but to the cumbrous preparation of ourselves and allies, the loss of time, and hazards of climate, and other embarrassments which we are creating for ourselves. My last remark to Lord Palmerston was that I would rather march on Peking with 5,000 men than 25,000.

VISIT TO MANILA.—I have just got rid of my uniform, in which I thought it proper to attire myself, in order to receive all the officers, naval and military, who came at nine o'clock to pay their respects. I had strolled out much earlier, incognito, and wandered into several churches. They abound here, as do monks of all orders. The decorations seemed tinselly enough, but there was the Catholic ritual, with its sublime suggestions and trivial forms, repeating itself under the equator in the extreme East as it repeats itself at Paris or Madrid, and under arctic or antarctic circles. And here as there, at those early morning services were a few solitary women assisting, some of them commonplace looking enough, but others no doubt with a load of troubles to deposit at the altar, or in the ear of the monk in the box, heavy enough to furnish the burden of many such romances as those which thrill the public sensibilities in our days. After all, when the horrors which have brought about the result are past and forgotten, there is something gained by that truculent Spanish system which forces the faith upon all who come within its reach. "Faistoi chretiennuer ou jet arra chelame," as Charlemagne (not a Spaniard by the way, so there my illustration halts) said to his heathen enemies. There is something I say gained by it when the origin is forgotten, because the bond of a common creed does do a little towards drawing these different races together. They are not separated from each other by the impassable barrier of mutual contempt, suspicion and antipathy which alienates us from the unhappy natives in those lands where we settle ourselves among inferior orders of men. An administrative net of a not very flexible nature encloses all and keeps each member of the body politic pretty closely to the post allotted to him; but the belief in a common humanity drawn perhaps rather from the traditions of the early than from the practice of the modern Church, run like a silken thread through the iron tissue. One feels a little softened and sublimated when one passes from Hong Kong, where the devil is worshipped in his naked deformity, to this place, where he displays at least some of the feathers which he wore before he fell. So you must pardon me if my letter reflects in some measure the phase through which my mind is passing.

VISIT TO JAVA.—Altogether I was very much interested by Java. As I have said, it is ruled entirely for the interest of the governing race; no attempt is made to raise the natives. I believe that the missionaries are not allowed to visit the interior. I asked about schools, and ascertained that in the province of which the regency of Buitong forms a part, and which contains some 600,000 inhabitants, there were five, not, I suspect, much attended. It was clear from the tone of the officials that there was no wish to educate the natives. There is a kind of forced labour; they pay a tithe of the produce of their rice fields, and are obliged (in certain districts) to plant coffee and to sell the produce at a rate fixed by the Government, in others to work on sugar estates, and in all to make roads. Nevertheless, I am not satisfied that they are unhappy, or that the system can be called a failure. In those districts which I visited there was no appearance of their being overworked, and I was assured that on the sugar estates the proprietors have no power of punishing those who do not work; that rests with the officials exclusively to do so. The tone of the officials on the subject is that no punishment is necessary, because, although they are lazy that if they had the choice they would never do anything, they do not make any difficulty about working when they are told to do so. Economically it is a success; the fertility of the island is very great, so that the labour of the natives leaves a large surplus after their own subsistence is provided for. There are twenty provinces, in each of which the chief officer is the president, a Dutchman, but the native chief regent has the more direct relations with the people, arranges about their labour, &c.; the Dutch officials look after him and see that he does not abuse his power.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN SHANGHAI.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Twenty-seven years ago—that is, in 1845—Divine services were held on Sunday mornings at the British Consulate, Shanghai (then within the walls of the Chinese city), and also on shipboard, as occasion offered, the missionaries of all denominations taking charge in turn of these services. The Roman Catholics had little chapels for Chinese converts scattered all over the country, generally quite unnoticeable, being constructed as a part of some peasant's dwelling. There was also a rendezvous for the priests and a school in the S.E. suburb of the city; and at Sicawey there was the beginning of an establishment of a more general character.

Dr. Lockhart had a small dispensary also in the S.E. suburb, though nearer the City wall, and here Dr. Medhurst used to preach in Chinese, holding meetings also in his own hired house. Such were the beginnings of public religious work and worship about three years after the signing of the Treaty of Nankin. But progress was rapid—that is, comparatively. Missionaries and teachers came from all quarters, schools were commenced, chapels built, hospitals provided, societies established, and the general outline of religious operations filled up very much after the manner to which we have been accustomed at home. It would be impossible to trace this progress with any regard to brevity. I must leap over the interval, and give you the last results as they are now before us.

First in order of time come the Roman Catholics. They have now a very large cathedral near the bank of the river, south of the City; also, within the City walls, an old Temple restored to them by the Chinese Government and now refitted as a church and school with students. The establishment at Sicawey has grown to very large dimensions, including a nunnery, schools, and I know not what departments of their very extensive operations in this Province. Besides these, there is church a for foreigners (chiefly Portuguese) in the French "Concession"—so called; the Lazaristes have an establishment with a resident procureur. The number of Roman Catholic priests hereabouts is large, though constantly varying; and there are ten Sisters of Charity connected with the hospital for foreigners, seamen, and others.

The Church of England is represented by a Consular Chaplain, who officiates in a large, massive red-brick church; and by a missionary of the Church Missionary Society who has a foreign-built chapel within the city, and a preaching-place elsewhere. The Seamens' Church at Pootung is a sort of link between English and American Episcopalians, the original trust-deed providing that the services there might be according to the usage of either the English or American Churches. Our American brethren (Episcopalians) have a large mission church for Chinese exclusively, near the middle of the walled city, also a mission chapel at Hong Kew where, in addition to Chinese services, an American congregation assembles on Sundays, night and morning; one of the missionaries acts as pastor, and is supported in part by his own countrymen, who are residents here in good number.

The American Church mission has also a boys' school (it formerly had one for girls also), and several vernacular day-schools, besides a new chapel some little distance in the country. The American Presbyterians have four missionaries, three churches, two schools, and an admirable printing establishment. The American Baptists, one missionary, one church, a small chapel, and a day-school. The American Methodists have two missionaries, two chapels, and three schools.

Now we return to the English community again—the Presbyterian and Congregational element of which unite with their Nonconformist friends of other nationalities in the maintenance of a union chapel, which supports a minister of its own, and also sustains a female missionary to Chinese women and girls; thus blending their work with the London Missionary Society, which has two missionaries, three Chapels, and several day-schools. Moreover, the general agent for China of the Bible Society has his head-quarters here.

There remain to be noticed some institutions which have become localised now, though all owe their origin (as do the Churches) to the efforts first made by those troublesome people who are always getting themselves and others into difficulty, the missionaries.

The dispensary commenced by Dr. Lockhart has grown to be a Hospital for the Chinese, with its own premises, board of trustees, annual meeting, &c. A similar hospital at Hong Kew has sprung up under the shadow of the American Episcopalian Mission, and both are sustained by local contributions. So is also the Shanghai Female School Society, to which has lately been bequeathed a school-house and grounds, outside the west gate of the city.

The Anglo-Chinese school for educating Chinese youths in the English language is supported in part from local funds, and in part by the English Church Missionary Society. There is also an Eurasian school for half-castes, with a good new building provided for it; and there are four small private schools, of different grades, for children of foreign nationalities, chiefly English and American, a few Portuguese mingling with them. Very recently an eye infirmary has been established; the building having been provided from funds left by a blind Chinese girl, who had been taken to England for education by Mrs. Gutzlaff, who afterwards returned here; she supported herself, in good part, for many years, by teaching her own countrymen how to read English! I have not mentioned in detail a considerable number of smaller dispensaries and day schools, all of which are doing good in a quiet way; nor yet the fact that every winter a refuge is provided for the poor and destitute who, in an over-populated country like this, are sure to be found in great numbers suffering in a way that Christian people cannot bear to see without making some effort to relieve them; hence the foreigners of Shanghai provide during four winter months a shelter for the homeless, clothes and food for the aged and children, and (especially) work for the able-bodied among the Chinese poor.

Now you need hardly be reminded that Shanghai has two names, "The Model Settlement" and "A Sink of Iniquity." With regard to the latter, whilst it cannot be denied that Shanghai shares, with all large communities called Christian, the opprobium of exhibiting some truly odious features which are disgraceful to any form of civilization, it must be remembered that much of the "iniquity" which flows to this place, as to a "Sink," flows from the countries where enlightenment abounds, and progress is the order of the day, and moral purity should have its home if anywhere on earth. Notwithstanding which it is lamentably true that England, America, France, Australia, California, Germany, Canada, have all sent us here specimens of evil-doers, which it makes one's heart ache to contemplate, but they have also sent us true-hearted men and women who do something to check the evil thus exported hither, and to make matters better than they would be if let alone to the unchecked operation of evil influences, both those which are indigenous here and those which come from abroad.

Let me recapitulate:—3 Roman Catholic Churches, 1 English, 1 American, and 1 Seamen's Church, 1 Union Chapel, 12 Mission Churches and Chapels, 2 Hospitals and many Dispensaries, 1 Eye Infirmary, 1 Anglo-Chinese and 1 Eurasian School, 7 Mission Schools, 4 private ones for European children, and several vernacular for Chinese, 1 Local Bible Society, 1 Refuge for the Chinese Poor, and 1 Branch of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, 1 Institution for the Blind.

Now it is idle, and worse than idle, to ignore the importance of such an offshoot of the enterprise of Western nations transplanted to the shores of the Far East; neither ought the good to be "evil spoken of," which the residents themselves are endeavouring to cherish and sustain. When the capital of China is transferred (as it should be and may be) from Peking to Chin-kiang, then Shanghai will be appreciated perforce.—Yours truly,

E. W. S.

Shanghai, April 2, 1872.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of this Company was held on the 6th inst. P. D. Hadow, Esq., in the chair.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the policy pursued by the Board in disposing of vessels no longer suited for the altered state of the traffic had proved successful. He was glad to say also that the new ships had proved very satisfactory. He read extracts from a letter from the captain of the Peshawur, reporting the admirable qualities of that vessel in the cyclone off Madras. Notwithstanding the additions to the Company's fleet no call for increased capital would be necessary. The increase in the cost of coal and seamen's wages would tend to increase the expenses. In regard to the late strike at Southampton, he was glad to say it had been arranged satisfactorily. Mr. Sutherland had successfully negotiated with the Italian Government for the transfer of the work and the subsidy of the company now running between Brindisi and Alexandria, known as Palmer's line. The subsidy of £19,000 was not so much as the removal of opposition. With the new arrangement of landing goods at Venice they expected great advantages to follow. He could not help noticing the tact and ability shown by Mr. Sutherland in settling this difficult matter. In regard to the Suez Canal he regretted that the large increase proposed by the Canal Company in their tariff would prohibit them from using it at present, except for the passage of vessels requiring repairs, &c. As an illustration of how it would work, he said that last year they paid for transit of goods through Egypt £65,000; the cost by the Canal would have been £80,000, and by the new scale £120,000. He would conclude by moving the adoption of the report.

Admiral Coffin, a shareholder, seconded its adoption, and asked if the Adriatico Orientale Company (Palmer's) would take shares in the P. and O., to which the Chairman replied in the negative.

Mr. Mackenzie, of the firm of Mackenzie, Trinder, and Co., solicitors, said, that although he was a young shareholder, he believed he represented the views of many others; he was not satisfied with the dividend of 6 per cent. per annum, considering that the company had a monopoly. It was very far below the Cunard and other companies, and the reason was partly owing to the expensive management. He disapproved of managing directors; the board of directors should be sufficient, and the various managers of departments should be responsible to them. With the system of managing directors, who were, of course, constantly in the office, the board were too apt to be led by these gentlemen, and pass the measures they recommended. He must oppose the election of Mr. Sutherland as a managing director on principle. He also thought that the coal and building contracts should be put up for public competition. He would advise the payment of the directors on a scale according to the dividends. He was surprised that the directors had not sooner adopted the port of Brindisi and possessed themselves of land and premises while they were to be obtained comparatively cheap; they were daily rising in value.

A Shareholder said that with regard to coals, about which he was well acquainted, he could tell the meeting that the directors had not been asleep, for they had made a large contract for Welsh coal at a price which could not be done to-day under 4s. advance.

Another Shareholder said the directors were acting wisely in electing Mr. Sutherland as a managing director.

The Chairman, in reply, said that so far from the Company enjoying a monopoly they were subject to the most severe competition by the Messageries, Holt's line, and a host of private steamers, and their subsidy bound them to keep time at the different stations, which often prevented them from obtaining cargo, &c. In regard to the system which had been always followed by the Company of having managing directors, he stated that this was provided for in the deed, and they had no choice in the matter; but he could assure the shareholders that the attendance of the board twice a week was not a matter of form, they took nothing for granted, but examined the necessary documents for themselves. In regard to the proposal to elect Mr. Sutherland, this was owing to the altered arrangement with Mr. Allan, so long a managing director. In regard to obtaining coals and ships by asking tenders he did not agree that it was the best mode; the case of coal had just been illustrated by a shareholder, and as to shipbuilding, they took care to have all the competition of competent builders. The proposition to pay the directors according to the dividends he considered very pernicious.

No response being made to the suggestions of Mr. Mackenzie, the Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report and the dividend of 3 per cent. for the half-year. This he might say had been earned in spite of lower freights and 20 per cent. reduction in passage money. Carried unanimously.

EXTRAORDINARY MEETING.

The meeting was then made special, and the Chairman proposed, in a complimentary speech, that Thomas Sutherland, Esq., be elected a director. Mr. De Salis seconded the same, alluding to the tried merits and services of Mr. Sutherland. Carried unanimously.

Mr. Sutherland thanked the board and the shareholders, and stated that this promotion would be appreciated and stimulate him to greater efforts on their behalf.

A vote of thanks to the chair and the board concluded the proceedings.

THE FRENCH IN CHINA.

M. GIQUEL'S article on La Politique Francaise en Chine, in the penultimate number of the Revue des Deux Mondes, has at least the merit of being candid. He looks the position of his countrymen in China fairly in the face, and neither exaggerates the importance of their commercial relations with that empire nor is blind to the political errors into which they have fallen. "You come to China with your merchandise, we with our ideas," was the remark once made by a French Consul to his English colleague. And such in few words is the substance of the first part of M. GIQUEL'S article. He points out that the whole of the French commerce with China is carried on at Shanghai, and that there out of all the foreign dealers in silk only five are French. At Canton and elsewhere not a single French merchant is found to occupy the concessions of land granted for their use, and he very naturally remarks on this state of things that "Le vrai parti à prendre est de nous "en débarrasser le plus vite possible et de les rendre au "gouvernement Chinois."

By far the most important part of his article is that in which he deals with the "missionary question." As a Frenchman, and as one who has for years been in close relationship with Provincial officials of all grades, and on terms of intimacy with the mercantile and working classes, he is unusually qualified to give an opinion on the policy at present pursued by his Government towards the priests. And this he unhesitatingly condemns. The missionaries now, he tells us, "N'ont plus été regardés que comme des emissaires Français," and hence all the ill-feeling which has lately been shown towards them by the Government and mandarins, culminating in the Tientsin Massacre, which, in his opinion, was directed solely against the missionaries and through them against France. We entirely agree with M. GIQUEL up to this point; but in apportioning the shares of blame which should attach to his Government and the missionaries, we are of opinion that he looks with too friendly an eye on the mistaken conduct of the latter. From the year 1857, when the war was undertaken, to revenge the death of l'Abbé CHAPPEDELAINE, he dates the beginning of all their troubles. Up to that time the missionaries had pursued the even tenour of their way in peace and quietness. The same indulgence which has ever been extended by the Chinese to the followers of BUDDHA, MAHOMET, and MOSES, was shown also to them. But then they existed only on sufferance, and they behaved themselves as those who were perfectly aware of the fact. The instant, however, that the French Government interfered forcibly on their behalf, the aspect of things changed. They ceased to be regarded by the mandarins as the harmless fanatics they had hitherto been considered, and were looked upon as the vanguard of the French army. But it is unfair to charge this change entirely to the conduct of the Government. The truth is that the animosity of the mandarins was aroused far more by the pretensions put forward by the missionaries than by the interference exercised on their behalf. This is clearly shown in the circular on the subject recently published by the Tsung-li Yamen. The chief complaints therein advanced are that the Roman Catholic bishops are daily in the habit of usurping the insignia of provincial Governors; of claiming equality of rank with mandarins of the highest grades; and of defending their converts against the lawful native authorities. That these complaints are only too well founded is unfortunately true, and M. GIQUEL admits as much; but at the same time he ignores their importance, and is willing to censure the policy of his Government and the imprudence of zealous converts rather than those who by his own showing are the chief offenders.

But whatever differences of opinion may exist on this point, the main fact that intense animosity is felt by the mandarins towards the Roman Catholic missionaries admits of no doubt. The continued existence of such a state of things is pregnant with danger, and M. GIQUEL calls on his Government to escape from the toils in which by their own deed they have become entangled. He proceeds to show how this may be done, and we would entirely endorse his advice. He urges on his Government the necessity of definitely settling the terms on which the missionaries should be entitled to hold communication with the mandarins, and the etiquette which should be observed between them; and he advocates the throwing open of the missionary establishments for periodical inspections. If some such arrangements as these are not soon arrived at events must shortly arise which will call for armed interference on the part of France, and M. GIQUEL reminds his countrymen that should such a contingency occur the Chinese army will not be found in the same miserable condition in which it was twelve years ago. The soldiers of the present time are not the same as those who ran away at Sin-ho, and were demolished at Palikeaou. The Chinese Government can, at this moment, reckon on 50,000 men, armed with Remington or Enfield rifles, and well versed in European drill, ready to do battle in its cause. Such a force is not to be lightly esteemed, and M. GIQUEL'S countrymen will do well to ponder his concluding words: "La France," he says, . . "doit sortir d'un état de choses qui enchaine sa politique, et l'engagerait dans une voie peut-être funeste."

HONG KONG JUSTICE ONCE MORE.

IT would really appear as if some strange fatality attached to the office of the Chief Justice of Hong Kong. We had hoped that when Chief Justice SMALE—on some of whose acts we felt it our duty to comment with some severity—left the colony there would have been an end, for a season, at least, of the continual squabbles, hesitations, retractations, appeals, and general muddle which characterised the Supreme Court. It would seem, however, that our friends in Hong Kong have, in the substitution of Justice BALL for Justice SMALE, been placed in the unenviable situation commonly described as "out of the frying-pan into the fire." The Overland China Mail gives an account of a proceeding, so undignified and self-contradictory—at once so arbitrary, so vacillating, and so unreasonable, on the part of the Acting Chief Justice, as to call, not only for the indignant protest of the residents, but also for the interference of the Secretary of State in Downing-street, if the reputation of English justice and the dignity of the Court are to be reclaimed from the contempt and dislike that recent events have surrounded it with. The facts of the case are startling in their simplicity and contradictoriness. An English merchant—Mr. DAVID WELSH—while performing the thankless duty of a juror, was reprimanded and fined for "not paying attention" to a case which he had to decide. Mr. WELSH, who was an invalid at the time, very courteously apologised to the Judge, who at once remitted the fine; but it appears that, so far from not paying sufficient attention to the cases before him, Mr. WELSH had paid a great deal more attention to them than was palatable to the sensitive nerves of his Acting "Lordship," and he sent a letter to the Daily Press, in which he drew attention to what he described, and no doubt believed, to be the "miscarriage in justice" in more than one case before the same "DANIEL come to judgment." Now comes the grossness of the inconsistency. On reading this letter—which no English journalist will contend the editor of the Daily Press was not fully justified in publishing—Mr. Acting Chief Justice BALL took proceedings against both writer and publisher, trotting out the worn-out stalking-horse of "Contempt of Court," and literally sentencing Mr. WELSH to a fortnight's imprisonment, and holding the powers of the law in terrorem over the head of the publisher, unless he chose to retract the very pertinent comments. A more monstrous stretch of authority was never perpetrated in an English court; and, if the English residents in Hong Kong do not cause this stigma to be removed from it, they may bid farewell to the prestige of British law, justice, and liberty in the native mind. It is monstrous to pretend that because a fine, which was proved to be undeserved, was remitted, Mr. WELSH forfeited the right of every British citizen to comment on the acts of a public man. But, even if Mr. WELSH had exceeded the limits of fair criticism, which we contend he did not, to subject a gentleman of his position and pursuits, and in his state of health, to imprisonment, without the option of a fine, was an act at once cruel and vindictive. We have full confidence that our friends in Hong Kong will not let the matter drop; and we heartily wish them success in purifying their legal "Augæan stable."

Digitized by Google

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

THE directors' report—published in our last issue—was presented to the shareholders at the half-yearly meeting on the 6th instant. The directors seem firmly and resolutely—to use a sporting term—to have put on the gloves, and are prepared to meet all comers. Sixteen new vessels, aggregating 50,000 tons, have been contracted for during the last four years, increasing the fleet of the company to fifty vessels, of 113,208 tons. This is a substantial sign of the counsels which prevail at the board, and it is fortunate for the shareholders that they have directors, capable of adapting themselves to the altered circumstances, which in these days constantly arise. We all know how difficult it is to get out of an old subsidised groove. Carrying mails and passengers with a large subsidy, and taking choice cargoes at £20 to £40 per ton, was the comfortable state of things from which the directors have but lately emerged. Now we find them entering into keen competition with private steamers, and carrying off the first of the new season's tea. Telegrams received last week announce the departure of the Deccan from Shanghai, at £7 per ton, the Malacca from Foochow, at £5, and the Sunda, from Canton, at £4 10s. No doubt these steamers will be the first to arrive from the respective ports, and after discharging will be able to make good defects, and return to the eastern stations. The difficulties which attach to the organisation of the mail service are considerably enhanced, when the company attempt to combine cargo voyages such as this. Again, we have seen that finding they were at a disadvantage in the substitution of Brindisi for Marseilles for the mail service, the directors despatched Mr. SUTHERLAND to treat with the Italian Government, for the transfer of a subsidy, which has been paid to the Adriatico Orientale Company, for the conveyance of mails to Alexandria. Mr. SUTHERLAND has overcome all the thousand and one difficulties which always surround any business negotiations with the officials of that land of dolce far niente. By this arrangement the company, in addition to the subsidy of £20,000 per annum, remove the opposition, and they will now be able to land cargo from India, China, &c., at Venice, for distribution to any part of the Continent. We are glad to see that Mr. SUTHERLAND has been elected to a seat on the Board; he is unquestionably the right man in the right place, and it would have been a mistake to have longer deferred this compliment.

WELL acquainted as many of our readers are with the public institutions of Shanghai, they may scarcely be prepared for the startling summary contained in the letter of our correspondent "E. W. S.," which will be found in another column. It is encouraging sometimes to pause awhile, even in good work, in order to ascertain the progress made; and we are indebted to our correspondent for placing before us so vivid and satisfactory an account of the results of the labours of missionaries, and the liberality of foreigners, in what we prefer to call "the model settlement," if we are compelled to choose a name for Shanghai out of the two our correspondent mentions. Nineteen places of Christian worship; three hospitals and many dispensaries; thirteen schools, exclusive of Chinese vernacular ones; and four charitable institutions of the highest order; —all these combine to show an amount of quiet benevolence ever at work to which not many foreign communities so limited as that of Shanghai can lay claim. The thoroughly liberal, unaffected, and unsectarian style of our correspondent's letter will commend his facts and his inferences to far more general attention than is to be obtained by the less modest and less temperate letters which we sometimes observe in our contemporaries.

THE Report of the Acting Harbour Master at Hong Kong for 1871 is a document which is singularly free from any official routine, or—may we use the word?—humbug. Besides the solid facts connected with his department, which are eminently satisfactory—the increase of tonnage being 983,057 over 1870—he deals with the failures in a candid manner. It is singular that his report should confirm so distinctly the remarks we made in our last issue as to the policy pursued by the late Governor, Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL, in regard to Chinese vessels. His comments on the boarding and shipping of seamen are particularly praiseworthy. We congratulate the local Government on possessing such an officer as Captain CAIRNS, and trust that he will have ere this been provided with an efficient steamer. Surely a good workman is worthy of good tools.

THE following letter has appeared in The Times with reference to the article—quoted in that journal from our last issue—upon telegraphic communication with Manila. It will be observed that the writer does not allude to the improbability of the Spanish Government being able to pay a subsidy for such a line:—

SIR,—With reference to the paragraph in your City Article of this day, commenting on the necessity of telegraphic communication with Manila, I beg to inform you that the Spanish Government has given a concession for a submarine cable from Manila to the Asiatic coast.

A company for carrying it out is now in course of formation, and by supporting such a useful and at the same time profitable enterprise the mercantile houses connected with Spain and the Spanish bondholders will have an opportunity of giving a practical proof of the personal interest they take in the development of the trade and resources of Spain and her colonies.—I am, Sir, your obedient, THE CONCESSIONAIRE.

WE understand that thirty-four candidates have offered themselves for examination before the Civil Service Commissioners for the vacancies announced in the Consular Service as Student Interpreters, and that several have been "plucked." The successful candidates will be announced in our next.

WE believe that M. LARRIEU, who holds the concession from the French Government, for running steamers on the inland rivers of Cochin China, will be prepared to despatch shortly two steamers from this country, to be followed by two others.

WE have much pleasure in announcing that the honour of knighthood has been conferred upon Mr. DANIEL BROOKE ROBERTSON, C.B., Her MAJESTY'S Consul at Canton.

CHINA AND JAPAN AT THE EXHIBITION.

In our notice written in May of last year, of the first of what is intended to be a series of International Exhibitions, we had occasion to express regret at the almost entire absence of objects representative of the arts or industries of China and Japan. We are glad to find that the hints we then threw out have not been wholly disregarded, and that in the present Exhibition, although the Far East is anything but adequately represented, still there are here and there to be found some of those marvellously complicated specimens of ingenious workmanship for the construction of which the Chinese and Japanese workman has long been famous. There is, however, still one thing wanting. The few objects which as we have said are to be found are scattered over the numerous departments into which the building is divided, are by their isolation completely lost in the mass of other exhibits with which they are surrounded. We have an Indian Court presenting from end to end one continued blaze of Oriental magnificence, and specimens from other countries Foreign and European are collected in special "Annexes," as Her Majesty's Commissioners are pleased to name the various galleries. But China and Japan productions can find no place set apart for their display, and, so far from being brought prominently into notice, are, as we have said, so distributed in holes and corners as to render a search for them a work involving a vast expenditure of time and labour, even though the explorer may have the assistance of the elaborate catalogue—slightly less complicated than Bradshaw—to aid his researches. To make "confusion worse confounded" many of both the Chinese and Japanese exhibits are not catalogued at all, while many again have no distinguishing label affixed explanatory of their names and uses. We know not upon whose shoulders the weight of blame for these shortcomings is to rest, but we trust they will be remedied in future Exhibitions. Surely a China and Japan collection would prove as interesting as Mr. Bucklands fish-hatching apparatus, or Mr. Walter's exhibition of back volumes of The Times, to both of which special departments are afforded.

In proceeding to a brief notice of the Far Eastern productions which are exhibited, it is necessary to record the impossibility —for reasons which we have already stated—to give the precise position of the objects referred to. Of all the "Annexes," however, the one in which the Far East is present to the largest extent is that known as the East Quadrant, reached by a flight of stairs from the jewellery and musical instrument galleries. Chinese porcelain is here shown in the form of a large fish bowl in company with some vases, tea-cups, and tea-pots lent by Messrs. Hewett and Co. Sir Rutherford Alcock is also an exhibitor and sends some charming specimens of Chinese porcelain and jade, amongst which are scent bottles, a bracelet, tea-pots, cups, saucers, and basins. Some of the enamelled work is beautiful, particularly that of a pair of jars and covers. Famous above all for their ivory carving, the skill of the Chinese appears again in a number of boxes and small cabinets, some of which are covered with raised carved figures and landscapes. In particular there is a large ivory basket, pierced everywhere by the knife of the deft workman, whose patient labour has produced a most exquisite work. These boxes, with the carved designs, are in truth amongst the features of the Exhibition, and will amply repay the visitor for his trouble in finding them. Her Majesty's late Minister in China is also the exhibitor of a magnificent robe, the ground of white silk, upon which are embroidered the representation of birds whose plumage is the most beautiful that mortals ever set their eyes upon. It is a garment such as might have covered the veiled Prophet, or its lustrous folds would add dignity to an Emperor. Several pairs of Chinese ladies' shoes, of such minute dimensions as to render it a matter of wonder how any human foot can be compressed into so small a space, are likewise shown, but by whom neither catalogue nor label informs us.

Turning from China to Japan we find that the interests of that country have been well looked after by Sir Harry Parkes, whose collection is unique. This includes some Kioto brocades, marvellous specimens of brilliancy and colouring, of which British looms and British operatives might, we imagine, try in vain to turn out the equal. The Exhibition is also indebted to Sir Harry for several pairs of Japanese slippers, all blue satin and gold ornament, and some Japanese costume figures, one representing a young lady in a very coquettish attitude, and another lady with an open umbrella. The grotesque is largely imported into these figures—the rabbits dressed in red, and the fantastically attired monkey, with a fan in one paw and some bells in the other, being amusing caricatures of humanity. Again in another place is to be found a variety of articles in Japanese lacquer, &c., including a massive sword in gold and lacquer, a landscape in the same beautiful work, small cabinets with birds in lacquer, and some cups and saucers. To these also we find Sir Harry's name attached. What is evidently a Japanese flirtation is depicted on a large tortoise-shell tray exhibited by Messrs Farmer and Rogers. The gentleman, who has a fan in one hand, has evidently failed to make much of an impression on the object of his adoration, who looks more scared than pleased; whilst the ardent lover's attendant is the picture of despair. Messrs. Hewett and Co. lend a Japanese cabinet of silver, gold, and lacquer work, on which are some extraordinary figures. Surmounting it is an ivory box, admirably made, and not unlike a doll's house. Dr. Drocachis exhibits Japanese bronze vases, and a collection of Japanese embroidery, at once artistic and beautiful, shown by Messrs. Joseph and Co., stands out prominently among specimens of similar work from other countries with which it is placed in contiguity.

Some economic facts of considerable interest are disclosed by a return from the statistical department of Her Majesty's Customs. In this paper are set out year by year, from 1801 to 1871, the weight, the price in bond, and the rate of duty of the tea consumed in the United Kingdom. This table, therefore, embraces seventy-one years. In the first year when the population of the kingdom was 15,828,000, the average price of tea being 4s. 2¼d. per lb. (market price 3s., duty 1s. 2½d.), the quantity consumed was 23,730,000 lbs., or 1 lb. 8 oz. per head of population. The extreme contrast to this is presented by the last year of the series. In 1871 the population was 31,513,000, or just double that of 1801, the average price of tea 1s. 10½d. per lb. (in bond, 1s. 4½d.; duty, 6d.), the weight consumed 123,402,000 lbs.; the rate per head 3 lbs. 15 oz. The lapse of half a century brought this change to the tea drinkers of the nation—the price to the consumer had fallen 55 per cent.; the average weight consumed by each individual of the community had increased by 166 per cent. The lowest price in the return and the highest rate of consumption are those just quoted for 1871. The decrease in the rate of consumption, with a market rise of price, is obvious enough generally. Tea was rising from 1801 till 1809, when the price was 6s. 10d., or 2s. 7½d. more than in 1801; the rate per head was only 1 lb. 3 oz., or 5 oz. less than at the commencement of the century. During the twenty-five years, 1809 to 1833, the rate of consumption though generally following the fluctuations of price, indicates no increase of permanent demand. Prices varied in that interval between 6s. 10d. and 4s. 2d.; the rate of consumption between 1 lb. 3 oz. and 1 lb. 6 oz. Viewed by the light of subsequent developments, the trade appears to have been stagnant, so much so that in 1834 and 1835, though tea was cheaper than in 1801, the rate per head consumed was rather less. It is not till we reach 1846 that any very marked improvement is established—then the price was 3s. 3½d., the rate per head 1 lb. 11 oz. Thence, with scarcely a check, the rate of consumption has continued to augment up to the present time. The financial history of the last decade will be in the memory of most people. The tea duties have been an important feature in all the budgets of the time. This period can be most succinctly illustrated by abstracting and condensing some of the figures of Mr. Baxter's paper.

The Price and the Rate of Consumption of Tea in the United Kingdom during Ten Years.

	Price of Tea per lb. to consumer. s. d.	Whereof was the duty. s. d.	Yearly Consumption of Tea in lbs. Millions.	Average rate of consumption per head. lb. oz.
1862	3 0¼	1 5	78¾	2 11
1863	2 7½	1 1	85½	2 14
1864	2 6¼	1 0	88⅛	3 0
1865	2 3½	0 7⅞	98	3 5
1866	2 1¼	0 6	102¼	3 7
1867	2 0⅞	0 6	111	3 11
1868	2 1¼	0 6	106¾	3 8
1869	1 11⅝	0 6	111¾	3 10
1871	1 10⅛	0 6	123½	3 15

The law of these figures is simple—with one slight exception the price the consumer had to pay decreased yearly; the rate of consumption increased concurrently with the diminution of price. But the decreased consumption of 1868 is probably due more to the long paralysis of manufacturing and commercial enterprise which followed the credit panic of 1866 than to the very small increase of price in the first-named year. In 1865, when the duty was 1s. 0d., tea brought into the imperial exchequer £5,581,000. In 1871, the duty being 6d., the yield to the revenue was £3,085,000. Hence the reduction of the duty has entailed a clear loss to the Treasury of £2,500,000 a year.

THE INTERNATIONAL CREDIT AND TRADING COMPANY, ROTTERDAM.

The general meeting of shareholders of this company was held on the 3rd inst.

The directors, in submitting the report for the year 1871, had the pleasure of informing the shareholders that since the reconstruction of the company the result of the operations had been satisfactory, as would be seen by the accounts presented. The commission business had increased in extent, the agencies in Java had shipped produce to the amount of f.2,545,000, of which f.1,409,000 was on orders, the remainder being on account of the company. The sales of cotton goods and other merchandise in Java had amounted to f.2,468,000, of which nearly two millions had been received in consignments, and f.290,000 sent out by the head-office at Rotterdam. The gross profit amounts to f.500,355.37, of which f.258,453.13 was realised by commission, f.68 177.74 from interest, f.133.649.92 on sundry operations, and f.40,074.58 were profits on sugar and tobacco plantations. The contra account showed—General expenses, f.174,072 94; on operations, f.23,591.84; bonus to the Java managers, f.45.690.05; dividend taxes, f.3,712; written off, f.60 236.56½, leaving a profit of f.193,051.97½, to which f.8,659.85½ is to be added as balance of profit of last year, bringing the total profit to f.201,711.83. The commissaries of the company recommended that out of the nett profits stated above a dividend of f.7¼ or 11 6-10 per cent. per share should be paid, amounting to f.145,000; that, according to the statutes, 20 per cent., or f.27,500, should be carried over to the reserve fund, by which the reserve would be increased to f.65,926.75, representing 5¼ per cent. on the paid-up capital, the remaining balance (less f.1,711.83, which is brought forward to the new account of profit and loss) to be divided amongst the commissaries and directors.

The motion approving of the balance-sheet and dividend was then put and carried unanimously. On the motion of Mr. I. C. Reepmaker, the Chairman of Commissaries, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the directors in Rotterdam, as well as the managers in Java, for their able conduct of the affairs and their attention to the interests of the company.

Monetary and Commercial.

The half-yearly meeting of the P. and O. Company was held on the 6th inst., and the proceedings are reported in another column. The directors' report was adopted, a dividend of 3 per cent. for the half-year was declared, and Mr. Thomas Sutherland was elected to the board of directors.

A meeting of the International Credit and Trading Company, "Rotterdam," has been held, at which the directors' report and accounts for the year 1871 were presented, and were unanimously passed. The operations for the year had yielded a profit of f.500,355, out of which a dividend of f.7¼ or 11 per cent. was declared, and f.27,500 were carried to the reserve fund.

The National Provincial Bank of England has declared the usual dividend of 8 per cent. per annum, with a bonus of 7 per cent. for the half-year; the London and River Plate Bank (Limited) an interim dividend of 5 per cent. for the half-year ended 31st March; the Bank of British North America a dividend for the six months at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum; and the London Chartered Bank of Australia a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

The directors of the London and Provincial Marine Insurance Company have decided on the payment to the shareholders of the usual interest, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, for the half-year ending 30th June. The Thetis Marine Insurance Company (Limited) notify the payment on the 1st of July of the half-yearly interest to the 30th of June of 2s. 6d. per share, free of income-tax. The directors of the Universal Marine Insurance Company have decided to pay on the 1st July next an interim dividend of 5s. per share, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The receipts of the Great Northern Telegraph Company for the month of May have been as follows:—On the European lines, 114,366 francs; China and Japan section, 94,485 francs; total receipts, 208,851 francs. In May, 1871:—On the European lines, 103,749 francs; China and Japan section, 32,110 francs; total receipts, 135,859 francs.

We believe that the orders for the entire pumping machinery for the new docks at Dundee have been placed by the commissioners in the hands of Messrs. Gwynne and Co., engineers London. This is the thirtieth dock this firm has supplied with pumping engines. They are also constructing a large number of gas exhausters, with engines for driving them—and including two of the largest in the world. These works are filled with turbines, hydraulic pumps, steam pumping engines, steam engines, boilers, &c.

Bar Silver is firm, and the price has slightly advanced to 60½d. per oz. standard, at which rate there are buyers to a considerable extent. Mexican Dollars are quiet; the arrivals have been but small, and the prices for the old and new coinage remain without alteration, the old at 62d. the new at 59½d.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Australia, which left Southampton on the 6th inst., was in silver—to Singapore, £1,250; to Hong Kong, £3,710; to Shanghai, £6,870; to Yokohama, £6,500; total, £18,330.

The Mansion-house Police-court has been occupied for several days with the hearing of a charge against Sir Rowland Macdonald Stephenson, the chairman, and George William Brown, the former secretary, of the Ottoman Railway Company (from Smyrna to Aidin), of unlawfully conspiring to procure a quotation of the shares of the company in the official list of the Stock Exchange, by means of false representations, with intent to defraud. The evidence was concluded on Saturday, but the Lord Mayor postponed his decision until Wednesday next.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

There has been no improvement in the tone of the market; the demand both for export and home consumption has been unusually small; whilst the earlier opening and large settlement of new Teas at Hankow and Canton have induced importers to endeavour to close old season's accounts before the arrival of new Teas. Large quantities have been offered, at public sale, without reserve, and sales also made privately for this purpose; and the result shows a declining tendency in nearly all kinds of Congou, Souchong, and Scented Teas. The public sales of the week have comprised 67,029 packages, of which 63,630 packages have been printed without reserve. The stock in the United Kingdom on the 31st ultimo was estimated at 90,064,300 lbs., against 86,819,802 lbs., and the quantity afloat at 1,951,000 lbs., against 6,370,870 lbs. last year. Deliveries have been on a large scale, amounting to 14,350,000 lbs. for last month, making the total for the year so far as follows, viz.:—

Home consumption for London from Jan. 1 to May 31.	... 38,670,000 lbs.	38,499,000 lbs.
Sent coastwise do.	... 16,654,000 ,,	15,210,000 ,,
Export do. do.	... 15,200,000 ,,	14,022,000 ,,
Total delivered ...	70,524,000 lbs.	67,731,000 lbs.

Black.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds have sold at a decline of ½d. to 1d. per lb. Fair to good common have been better supported, but have given way ½d. to ¾d. per lb. Fair to good Kaisows show a reduction of 1d. to 1½d. per lb.; fine also a similar decline; in finest but little has been done. Pak Lin kinds have been sold at rather lower prices. Black-leaf kinds: The low qualities continue in over supply and difficult of sale, prices ruling about ½d. per lb. lower. Fair to good common have been dull of sale, and prices must be quoted fully ½d. per lb. lower. Fair to good medium have been taken to a fair extent, but at a decline of ½d. to 1d. per lb.; good to fine kinds show a reduction of 1½d. to 2d. per lb. In finest sales have been small at former rates. Amoy kinds: The low qualities have sold from 4½d. to 5d. per lb.; fair to good have been steady. New-make Canton kinds: Siftings have been difficult of sale at 3d. per lb.; low kinds in half-chests sold at 7d. to 9d. per lb.; fair 10d. to 1s. 0½d., showing a decline of 1½d. to 2d. per lb. New season's have arrived to some extent, and have been readily saleable, but the later sales show a reduction of 1d. to 2d. per lb. on the opening prices; further supplies are close at hand. Oolongs: Common to good kinds, free from dust, have been taken for Export, and prices show an advance of 1d. to 2d. per lb. Finest are in limited request at full prices. Souchongs have been difficult of sale at lower prices. In Flowery Pekoes but little has been done. Scented Teas—Capers: Common to fair Canton kinds have sold at a decline of 1d. per lb., good to fine have been better supported. Foo Chow kinds have sold rather lower. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds have been steady, with a moderate demand. Foo Chow kinds: Fair to good quality has sold rather easier. Uncoloured Japans have been taken for export at improved prices for fair to good and fine kinds; the low descriptions show no improvement. Green: The demand for Export continues, and Young Hysons, Imperials, and Hysons have been sold at advanced prices; fine to finest lines of Gunpowder being very firm at former rates. Canton kinds have been heavy of sale at a decline of ½d. to 1d. per lb. for common to fair quality.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—The general tone of the Silk market has altogether changed for the better since our last report, and considerable business has been done; this improvement in demand commenced when it became evident that the advancing prices of European Silk on the continent must benefit Asiatic, and the first Silk to feel the movement was Japan, in which there has been a very large business done, chiefly in Mybash, at fully 2s. advance from the most depressed moment. The accounts of the European crops have been followed with the usual anxiety, and their generally indifferent character from the first has stimulated business, so that there has been much activity. Bengal Silk has also sensibly improved, and fine filatures have been readily taken at advanced rates, the medium classes also having in like manner felt the upward tendency, though in a less degree. Chinas, which seemed disposed rather to be losing favour, have within the last few days improved likewise, and a good 6d. recovery has been established, "Red Peacocks" being in request at 25s., and Chop, 3rd Tsatlees, at 28s. to 28s. 3d. Canton Silk has continued in steady demand, good market Tsatlee becoming scarcer ever day and commanding 18s. 6d. Deliveries during May were fairly good in the aggregate. Cantons and Japans showing comparatively the best figures. From Shanghai the latest accounts seem to agree in an estimated export for the new season of 55,000 bales, but notwithstanding this ample quantity prices have opened on a high scale, and have further advanced, being now decidedly over our present London quotations.

COFFEE.

The market has shown no material change during the week. There has been a steady demand both for Plantation and Native Ceylon at the recent advance, and a good business has been done. The prices paid at the sales have been Plantation triage and ordinary 68s. to 74s., small 72s. 6d. to 77s., fine ordinary mixed and Demerara grey 75s. 6d. to 76s. 6d., low middling 77s. to 79s., middling 79s. 6d. to 83s., good middling 84s to 86s, fine bold 93s. 6d. to 94s., pea-berry 90s. to 93s. 6d. Native small 65s., ordinary 69s., good ordinary 70s. 6d., fine ordinary 71s. 6d., pea-berry 74s. to 74s. 6d. THE MAILS, &c.

The French mail, bringing dates as above, was delivered on Friday last, the 14th inst., three days in advance of its due date. The mails and passengers by the steamer—the Ava—were landed at Toulon, probably to avoid the possibility of a detention in quarantine at Marseilles, with reference to which a communication appears in another column. The next inward mail (P. and O.), with dates, Yokohama May 1, Shanghai May 5, Hong Kong May 11, Singapore May 19, is due, via Brindisi, on Monday next, the 24th inst.

Telegrams by the China Submarine and Red Sea Lines are being received with the usual regularity, occupying, allowing for difference of time, four to five hours in transmission.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices extend to the 29th April; the P. and O. mail from London March 8 arrived out April 21—before the previous French mail of March 1, which, being delayed by the accident to the Messageries steamer Ava, was not delivered until the 25th April. The following French mail of 15th March was due the day this mail left. We take the following from the North China Herald:—

The Peking Gazette of the 31st March gives the following details of the last illness of Tseng Kwo-fan, whose death we lately noticed:—Mei Chi-chao, treasurer of Nanking, reports the death of Tseng Kwo-fan. The latter, after his re-appointment to the vice-royalty of the Two Kiang gave his earnest and unwearied attention to all matters affecting the welfare of those provinces. Last autumn, while performing the triennial tour of inspection, he became troubled with dizziness in the head and swelling in the lower extremities. But he persistently refused to allow himself even temporary rest. On the 5th March his hands suddenly began to shake and his tongue became so enlarged that he could not articulate, and there were all the symptoms of paralysis Medical aid was immediately called in, and the following day he had so far recovered as to be able to hold the official levee and to discharge his other public duties. With these he was engaged without cessation from morning to night. On the 8th he held the ordinary levee and examined an unusual number of despatches; the pen was never out of his and, and his mind was incessantly occupied devising this plan and that; and in consequence of this excessive fatigue, the old trembling of the hands came on again. His medical adviser then informed him that only long rest and nutritive medicines could possibly restore him; but, notwithstanding this, he attended to his duties as usual the following day. On the 10th, observing how feeble he was, the memorialist earnestly entreated him to request a month's sick leave, but he replied, "I have received much favour and have been entrusted with such important duties that while I have breath left I dare not think of my own ease or comfort, &c, &c." The whole of the following day, until late in the evening, he spent attending to public business. About eight o'clock on the morning of the 12th the memorialist went to see him and found him engaged with his ordinary duties. That afternoon, about four o'clock, while looking over the drafts of some despatches, with which work he had already been occupied for several hours, there were symptoms of his being about to have another stroke. His two eldest sons observing this, entreated him to lay down his pen and rest for a little while. He listened to their advice. But he still felt sufficiently strong to be able to walk alone; he had not walked, however, many steps, when both legs suddenly became dead and powerless. He was at once assisted to his bed, from which he knew he should never rise again. He then dictated to his eldest son a memorial for transmission to the Throne after his death. He never uttered a single word about his domestic affairs. His last thoughts and words were alike occupied with the concerns of the Empire. That night at eight o'clock he breathed his last. The tidings of his death will be received with universal lamentations throughout the Two Kiang. The memorialist observed, when looking through his wardrobe, that it did not contain a single new article, which is a sufficient proof of the severe economy which he practised in his home.

A correspondence relative to a despatch on the subject of transit passes and drawbacks, &c., &c., has been handed in by the American Consul-General to the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce. We have seldom come across a more cunningly devised scheme than that which is set forth in the proposed certain (uncertain ?) rules which are designed to govern and regulate the issue of transit passes and drawback certificates. The necessary government of these questions is pretty clearly defined in the Treaty of Tientsin, and why "Prince Kung and the Ministers, whose cards are enclosed," should attempt to gain by a side wind [illegible] we do quite see—that is to say we do quite see; and seeing do not understand why any such rules should either have been submitted or received on this question. The clauses relative to transit passes, &c., can be considered at the period when the entire Treaty is revised, and we hope when such revision does take place we may have a representative who will be thoroughly master of the subject, and as thoroughly determined to permit no evasion of the stipulations agreed to.

The Customs Returns for the first quarter of 1872 were issued on the 19th May. The import of all kinds of Shirtings is about the same as last year, varying only as to particular classes. T-Cloths are 250,000 pieces in excess of 1871, but still lower than in 1869 or 1870. English Drills are more than doubled, while American have fallen off from 30,550 in 1869 and 17,175 in 1871 to 1,032 in 1872. Sheetings and Jeans are much over the same quarter in 1871, and Dyed Cotton fabrics are generally considerably less. Woollens do not show much variation, except in Lustres, which are 78,584 pieces, against 31,237. Metals generally exhibit an increased import, iron being 56,627 piculs, against 36,958, and lead 40,576, against 13,572. The most remarkable export, of course, is Rice, which is 1,642,874 piculs, or about six times the export of 1871. Raw Cotton is only one-half for the corresponding period. The re-export of Shirtings, all kinds, is 1,057,355 pieces, against 1,247,922, being 190,567 less, but of T-Cloths the export has doubled, being 714,403. Woollen goods show generally a falling off. There is an enormous comparitive increase in the quality of goods sent into the Interior under Transit Pass, Cotton staples being so treated to five times the extent they were in 1871; conclusive proof that the broad and true interpretation of the clause, recently given effect to—that foreign goods in whatever hands may be conveyed inland under the protection of these passes,—was all that was wanted to show the real value of the system. Transit dues have jumped from Tls. 2,312 to Tls. 8,511. The revenue on imports shows a slight decrease, but there is an increase on opium and export duties, and the whole revenue of the quarter is Tls. 750,554, against Tls. 681,836; increase Tls. 68,718.

In our last issue we noticed that a boat and some wreck, identified as belonging to the U.S.N. Co.'s steamer Rona, had been passed near Ockseu. On April 22 the U.S.S. Benicia arrived, bringing from Amoy Captain Kofod, who was on board the Rona in the capacity of pilot at the time she was lost. We then learned that the collision occurred about eight o'clock on the evening of the 14th. The Rona was proceeding on her voyage with a good stern breeze, partly under sail and partly by steam. The night is stated to have been moonlight. The Ava struck the Rona in front of the starboard paddle-box, tearing it away and cutting into the vessel to the extent of fifteen feet. After striking, the steamers recoiled, but again came together, the Ava striking the other on the quarter with great force, when the captain of the Rona was thrown from the bridge to the deck of the Ava, and informed those on board of the fatal damage done to his vessel. Several of the Rona's boats were lowered, and a number of people succeeded in reaching the Ava, where, however, they appear to have had great difficulty in getting on board, only a single rope being put over the side for their accommodation. One gentleman, Dr. Thompson of Swatow, after two efforts to get up this rope, unfortunately lost his life by falling back and striking his head on the boat below. It is stated that there was an interval of forty minutes between the time of the collision and the sinking of the Rona. The saved are the captain and 2nd officer; 1st and 4th engineers, Captain Kofod, and about twenty Chinese; and those who went down: Mr. Hoole, 1st officer, Mr. Boyle, 3rd officer, Mr. McMeekin, 2nd engineer, Mr. McWade, 3rd engineer, Dr. Thompson, and fifty-five Chinese. On the 25th the Peiho arrived from Amoy with the Ava's mails and two passengers, besides the survivors from the Rona. The remaining passengers elected to come home in the Ava, which left on the 23rd, after being thoroughly repaired, and reached here on the 26th. A Court of Inquiry will be held to investigate the occurrence.

A short time ago we commented on an edict hanging over General Liu Mingchuen, commander of Li Hung-chang's foreign-drilled troops in Kansuh, to the Board of War for punishment. His offence was that, having been granted three months' leave, with instructions to await the arrival of his relieving officer, Tsao-ke-chung, he left his command at once, without waiting to consult with his successor, and after having disbanded portions of his troops. We connected this with the jealousy existing between Li and Tso-tsung-tang, and suspected that Li's strength and influence was such that the punishment of one of his generals for checkmating a military rival would be merely nominal. The Gazette of March 21, however, has an edict dismissing Liu Mingchuen from office, and stripping him of all his honours save his baronetcy. This is pretty good evidence of the power of the Manchu party.

We are glad to see, by a prospectus sent us, that an effort is about to be made to supply the place held a few years ago by the little serial called Notes and Queries on China and Japan. The new periodical is to be styled the China Review; or, Notes and Queries on the Far East, to contain sixty pages octavo, to be published at intervals of two months, and occasionally illustrated with lithographs, photographs, or woodcuts. The editorship is to be in the hands of Mr. N. B. Dennys, of the China Mail, originator and editor of the old Notes and Queries, whose experience in the work and knowledge of the Far East are a guarantee that the magazine will be interesting and valuable.

The Shanghai Yacht Club regatta for the challenge cup came off on the 22nd. The day was pleasant, but too calm for sailing, and the race was rather a slow one. The winning yacht was Mr. C. J. Ashley's Charm, Lucy second. A ship's boat race was postponed till Tuesday, when it was won by H.M.S. Juno's boat Eurydice, the U.S. Monocacy's boat Arrow being second.

The Spring Rifle Meeting was brought to a close on the 23rd, when the Champion Sweepstakes were shot for. The winner was Sergt. L. Cameron. A tie for second in the Municipal Council's prize, between Privates Cullen and Hall, was shot off at the same time and resulted in favour of the latter. From an analysis of the shooting we find that there are 20 complete scores of 40 shots each, giving a total of 1,861 points, or an average of 2·02 per shot.

In pursuance of a challenge offered by Capt. Mooney, of the Norna, a match for $30 came off on the 24th, between the gig Harp of Erin, of that vessel, and the gig Girl of the Period, attached to the Harbour-master's hulk. The course was from the Police-hulk to the Harbour-master's hulk, and the Norna's boat won by several lengths. Another match was immediately made up between the boats, with transference of the crews from one boat to the other.

A Kinkiang correspondent sends us a table showing the quantity of goods imported, and those sent inland under transit pass during the first three months of 1872. It is shown that transit passes have been largely availed of, but yet not nearly to the extent of the imports. It is evident, therefore, that the difficulties of the lake voyage still deter dealers, for it must be inferred that a large proportion of the surplus imports, over those for which transit passes have been issued, find their way inland by land. The opening of the Poyang lake to steamers is the next thing needed.

From the report given by the Viceroy of Szechuen in the Peking Gazette of the 30th March, distress from failure of the crops in that province would appear to be very great, extending more or less all over it. Food is selling at famine prices. In Shanghai the best rice costs only $2.80 a picul; in Szechuen, ordinary kinds fetch $13 a picul.

The repairs of the embankments of the rivers and canals in Chili, which were destroyed by the floods last year, appear to be costing frightful sums. The Yung-ting alone has absorbed Tls. 295,000.

The Peking Gazette of the 24th March fixes the 16th Oct. as the day for the celebration of the Emperor's marriage.

The following items are from the Courier:—

The Ulysses has gone into dock to repair the damages to her rudder, said to have been caused by coming in contact with the Rona's wreckage.

A new Catholic chapel is, according to the Courier, shortly to be erected in Hongkew, for the benefit of foreigners of that persuasion residing in that quarter of the settlement. Subscription lists are being sent round to secure contributions towards the expense, and we are informed that several Protestants have subscribed.

The steamship Norna has been safely floated out of Old Dock, Shanghai, where she has been undergoing repairs and general overhaul for the past three weeks. She comes out, we believe, almost "as good as new," and the promptitude and thoroughness of the work is said to reflect credit on the several parties employed.

The income of the Shanghai Municipal Council from April 1 1871, to March 31, 1872, exceeded the expenditure by Tls. 8,619.52.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail are to the 4th May. The outward P. and O. mail of 22nd March arrived on the 29th April. The following items are from the China Mail:—The tea market has opened in Canton, and several considerable settlements are reported as having been made. The prices are reported as being much higher than last year, and experienced hands are fighting rather shy. The opening thus early—earlier than we believe has ever been the case before in Canton—will possibly have a disastrous effect on trade. Teamen and native hongs seeing the indiscreet and eager haste with which the numerous—almost innumerable—tea-tasters and buyers outbid each other, are too astute not to take advantage. Hence present high rates, and hence too, unless we are mistaken, heavy losses as soon as the Teas are placed on the London market. The Hector is loading [will probably arrive in London on the 24th inst.].

The opponents of gambling will note with very considerable satisfaction the tone assumed by H.E. Sir Arthur Kennedy on that subject. Untrammelled by the responsibility of having initiated experiments of any nature, and, yet more fortunately, disposed to form his own opinions in place of accepting those of anybody else, however able and authoritative, Sir Arthur has foreshadowed his intentions in a manner calculated to win the heartiest good feeling and support of the community. He avoids all questions of expediency. There is no such choice presented as that between a large revenue with regulation and no revenue with unchecked indulgence. Gambling is to be dealt with on the same principle as obtains respecting thieving or any other vice. It is wrong, that is, a municipal wrong, and has to be put a stop to in precisely the same manner.

The memorial regarding the swimming bath is now in course of signature at the club. Odd fishes, queer fishes, and all sorts of swimmers have already affixed their names. Those who want to "go to Bath" habitually, but have not yet signed, had better do so.

With reference to a recent paragraph copied by us from an Indian contemporary, respecting the loss of the Montano ice-ship, bound to Hong Kong, we learn that, even should the report be true, the local ice company has an ample supply on hand for the coming summer, so no fear need be entertained that cold cocktail will become impossible.

Yesterday being the anniversary of the birthday of Tien-how (the Queen of Heaven), an unusually large number of pigs were roasted for dedication to this goddess, and throughout the morning roasted pigs were seen carried along eastward to the Joss-house, which is situated at the extreme end of East Point.

An alarm of fire was raised, and was found to proceed from the godown of Messrs. Vogel, Hagedorn and Co., which was situated at Praya Central, near Gilman-street. The cause of alarm seemed to have arisen from the rough handling of a package of matches, which became ignited and set another on fire. Energetic steps were taken, and the burning mass was at once put out.

The usual May festival in honour of the Virgin Mary was commenced here at the Roman Catholic Cathedral, as well as at nearly all the churches at Macao. The festival will be continued during the whole month. In the latter place it is, however, celebrated with much more pomp, and is far better attended than in Hong Kong.

We are glad to note that the new chancel to the Cathedral promises to be a very useful and elegant addition to the building. Whether it was wise to build it was one thing—we opposed it. But now the project is partially carried out, it is satisfactory to find that it, if extravagant, will not also be useless and unsightly.

The members of the Chamber of Commerce held their half-yearly meeting on the 30th April. The chairman, Mr. Greig, commenced the proceedings with some observations regarding the report for the half-year. One of the most important subjects dealt with was the subject of local commissions and brokerages, which, in accordance with an understanding arrived at at the last meeting, had been taken in hand by the committee, who had drawn up a scale which was laid before the members. The committee deemed the figures there shown to be fair and equitable, but of course it was open to members to suggest amendments. The chief alteration was the brokerage on shares, which might not please all the brokers, but which seemed to the committee a just rate. With regard to the second heading of the report—the blockade of the port by Chinese Customs' Cruisers—he was sorry to say that the labours of the committee had had no very satisfactory result, though the gentlemen composing it had done all in their power. The next subject was that of the memorial to the Earl of Kimberley on the Police Force. They must all be grateful to Mr. Magniac for the attentive way in which he had responded to their letter. In the matter of the Chamber's telegrams, the committee had arrived at a very satisfactory state of affairs; they now received full and correct telegrams almost daily from London on the state of the markets.

After the chairman had concluded his comments several resolutions were proposed and carried, including a vote of thanks to Mr. Chas. Magniac, and a motion to present a sum of $200 to Mr. Blakeman for his trouble in arranging for the transmission of telegrams to the Chamber, and the efficient manner in which he had carried out the affair. The following resolution was also passed:—"That the unofficial members of the council be requested to urge upon the Local Government the importance of properly lighting the entrances to the harbour of Hong Kong, and that they be further requested to ascertain whether such portion of the Special Fund as may be necessary cannot be applied to that purpose."

On the 1st May the action Liebert v. the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China came on for trial in the Supreme Court, before the Acting Chief Justice. The case arose out of the bankruptcy of the firm of Lyall, Still, and Co., and the action was to recover the proceeds of certain bales of goods which had been consigned to Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co., who had placed bills of lading for the same in the bank as security for an advance of £15,000. The Acting Attorney-General for the plaintiffs briefly argued that the case was similar to the former ones arising out of the bankruptcy of Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co., in which his Lordship Chief Justice Smale had given judgment for the plaintiffs. That judgment sets out that under the circumstances of the case the goods were not given for valuable consideration, no actual advance having been made on them. In the present case the bills of lading were transferred to the Bank when the security of 30 bales of silk was withdrawn. Mr. Drummond, for the defendants, replied that in this case the whole question was based upon two previous decisions. The facts in the Min case were not similar to the present one, the ruling in the former was not applicable to the latter. As the judgment in Henderson v. the Bank of India, Australia and China, was based on the decision of the Min case, the ruling in it was likewise not applicable. The Acting Chief Justice gave judgment in favour of the plaintiffs, saying he adhered to the previous decision of the Chief Justice.

In the Bankruptcy Court, on the 3rd May, Hadjee Abdool Rahim Elias appeared to undergo his final examination and to apply for his dischage. Mr. Francis appeared for the bankrupt, and the Acting Attorney General on behalf of the creditors to oppose. The case was adjourned to allow of time for the production and translation of certain letters which were required in evidence.

The P. and O. steamer Behar, to leave on the 5th May, has been chartered to convey about 400 Indian troops to Madras, calling at Singapore and Malacca to pick up a few. The terms have not transpired. The Adventure, troop ship, is also starting on the same service.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

The Siam Advertiser has the following items:—

The Italian corvette Vettor Pisani, 2,000 tons, Conte Joseph Levero, commander, anchored in the roads, and some of her officers have been on shore, sight seeing. She left for Singapore on April 23. Her presence is simply the friendly visit of a treaty Power. H.B.M.'s Consul General of Bangkok is Acting Italian Consul. The fact that a Treaty of Amity and Commerce exists between the kingdom of Italy and the kingdom of Siam, and that the road to the two countries is made very direct by the Suez Canal, renders it possible than extensive and profitable commerce may grow up between the two nations.

The Austrian frigate Fasana, 1,800 tons, has arrived with Le Chevalier Calice, the Austro-Hungarian Consul-General for China and Japan. We are happy to learn that he visits Siam at the present time as Austrian Ambassador to the Court of Siam, to exchange the ratifications of the treaty which was negotiated by his Excellency Rear Admiral Baron de Petz, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, May 17th, 1869. His Excellency Chevalier Chalice had an audience with his Majesty the First King. He was honoured with the usual salute as he landed at the Santang Prat'ate Court House, and was subsequently conveyed to the palace with the usual ceremonies accorded to visitors of his distinction.

Siamese princes, nobles, and even the King may now be seen on the New Road, taking afternoon drives in elegant carriages, drawn by noble-looking horses. This love for carriage and horseback riding by the great people will guarantee the keeping of the roads and bridges of Eastern Bangkok in good condition.

There are now in port four merchant steamers, two British and two Siamese. Two of these are from China and one has been drawn here, doubtless, by the ruling high freights. The other two are bound for Singapore.

The long wished for result seems about to be realised, and we hope soon to be able to announce that it is an accomplished fact that a line of steamers runs regularly between Bangkok and Hong Kong and between Bangkok and Singapore. The business between this port and Hong Kong is so much greater than between this and Singapore, that if it will pay to have a regular line between this and Singapore, it will pay better to have a regular line between this and Hong Kong.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 13th May. The outward mail (French) of 12th April arrived on 10th May. The Daily Times has the following items:—

The two new members of the Legislative Council, vice Messrs. Adamson and Ramsay Scott, resigned, we learn, are Dr. Little and Mr. Thomas Shelford, of Messrs. Paterson, Simons and Co. In this selection his Excellency may be said to have displayed the judiciousness of a Hooker—we do not mean the American General, Fighting Joe—and to have aimed at the happy mean wherein consists virtue, according to the old heathen philosopher. For we have the fire and rashness of youth tempered by the wisdom and moderation of middle age—the experience acquired by long residence under the old Indian regime and under the new, coupled with the fresh ideas and go-ahead tendencies of the rising generation. Then the professional classes are equally represented with the commercial—Tanjong Pagar interests with the New Harbour potentates; so that altogether Sir Harry Ord seems to have made a happy choice; if there might have been a better made, so also there might have been a worse. We have only further to add a word or two of counsel to our new senators, and especially to the younger one—who, we suppose, will be styled the honourable member for Telloh Blangah and Johore. Dr. Little having already had experience in the Council, there is not so much occasion to caution him. Although they are nominated by the Governor they are not on that account to consider themselves his supporters in everything. With the other unofficial members they constitute the very homœopathic dose of representation allowed by the paternal wisdom of the Home Government to Crown Colonists, and, as such, it is their first duty to represent thoroughly and consistently the wishes of the community, and fight its battles against officialism when necessary. The community expect them to be thoroughly independent—to beware of the seductive blandishments of Government House—to look narrowly into the revenue and expenditure—and in Council to put aside altogether their own private views and interests and to vote upon any question solely with a view to the general good. With these few remarks we leave them to contemplate with complacency their newly acquired honours and to prepare for their coming legislative labours.

It is the complaint of all visitors, and a good many residents, that the place is unbearable for want of something to enliven it. We always hail with pleasure the prospect of anything likely to entertain and amuse, and we know of nothing which can produce more pleasure, and perhaps instruction, than a good flower show. We have always here been known to have a taste for horticulture, and the many pretty gardens and crowds of flower-stands to be seen about the houses of our residents lead us to believe that the taste remains in spite of all the extra labour and thought required in the Square in these wire-canal days. We anticipate something very gay and bright on the 31st of July next, which, from the minutes of a meeting held yesterday, is the day fixed for the next show at the Agri-Horticultural Society's gardens. We very gladly draw the attention of subscribers to the show and its date. The more exhibitors, the better and more interesting the show will be. There is ample time to prepare between this and the end of July, and we hope the expectations of the committee will be fully realised.

BATANGAS.

Few of our readers may know where this place is,—indeed, may never have heard of it. Yet it is perhaps the most flourishing province inhabited by Malays. It is under Spanish rule, and by turning to a map may be found about the centre of the large island of Luzon. Lying 124·15' and 125·9' E. longitude, and 13·34' and 14·11' N. latitude, it has a very irregular form, and extends about thirty-six miles north to south, and sixty miles east to west. It is, with exception of the northern tobacco province of Luzon, the most flourishing of the Philippines. With a view of throwing a little light on the state of the neighbouring Colony, we propose to give a few notes on this province. Very little correct information is obtainable about any part of the Philippines, and any small contribution is always acceptable. We owe the chief part of our data to a report lately published by the statistical committee of the Colony, and should like to see each province in the Philippines similarly reported on.

The appointment of Dr. Little and Thomas Shelford, Esq., as members of the Legislative Council, is gazetted.

The average amount of notes in circulation at the Penang branch of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China during the month of April was $233,120.

We learn that the P. and O. steamer Behar has been chartered to convey native troops to Madras, the Adventure having been unable to take them all. The Behar left Hong Kong on the 5th May.

Secretary to the Municipal Commissioners, Singapore.

Sir,—Although I have on two occasions addressed the Hon. the Colonial Secretary respecting the state of the markets, from which Government derives considerable revenue, no notice appears to have been taken of my letters.

I have therefore to request that you will send for the renters of the said markets and remonstrate with them respecting the filthy state thereof, and give them notice such cannot be allowed to continue.

Ellenborough Market is particularly filthy, the fish market in a disgraceful state, and the shed between it and the market should be removed altogether or rebuilt. It is now a dark and offensive sort of covered way, where bad meat and rotten vegetables may be disposed of with great facility, and therefore should not be allowed.

It appears to me to be desirable that all boarded or plank partitions, and attap or cadjang screens, should be removed, and if looking places are allowed they should be placed under certain regulations.

I have further to request that you will lay this letter before the Municipal Committee at its first meeting, in order to solicit its opinion as to the parties who should frame rules for the markets, and enforce them. At present it would appear that none exist, or if they do they have fallen into desuetude.—I am, &c. (Signed), W. H. READ, Municipal Commissioner. Singapore, April 15.

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—The market for imports had been very quiet; sales had been small, and for some goods prices were weaker. With regard to Piece Goods there is very little to be said. Inactivity had been the ruling feature of the market throughout the week, and, although at the close the dealers were beginning to move, there was little probability of much business resulting at the prices offered by intending buyers. A very small quantity of Shirtings had been sold, and these had consisted chiefly of mildewed 8¼ lbs. on which purchasers had gone, finding difficulty in obtaining sound goods on such advantageous terms. Of White Shirtings and T-Cloths sales were not worth recording, but established a slight decline in value. The same remark applied to Drills, Jeans and Sheetings, with this variation, that the fall in the price of Drills was heavier. Dutch sold at Tls. 2.88 to 2.90, and English 15 lbs. fair quality at Tls. 2.97½. Best Drills English 15 lbs. Tls. 3.04 to 3.06. In Fancy Cottons or Woollen goods there was no movement of consequence to notice. 500 pieces of CPH Scarlet Long Ells, and 500 pieces Camlets, and 2,000 pieces Figured Lustres at Tls. 6.40, Tls. 15½ and Tls. 4.05 per piece, respectively, were the most prominent settlements recorded. Metals: No business in Iron; Lead offering at Tls. 4.50. Coals: Nothing doing; prices nominal.

HONG KONG.—There had been no change in the market, which remained in a stagnant condition.

SAIGON.—A moderate business was doing at previously ruling rates, quotations being as follows:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.73; 7 lbs., $2.30; Supers, No. 1, $2.20; No. 2, $2.25; T-Cloth, 7 lbs., $1.95; 6 lbs., $1.75; T-Cloths, 5 lbs., $1.52; 4½ lbs., $1.30; 4 lbs., $1.20; Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.85; No. 120, $1.72.

SINGAPORE.—Little or no change had occurred in the market. Prices ruled as follows:—40s Mule twist $1.35; 8½ lbs. Shirtings $2.62½; 7 do. $2.22½; 5 do. T-Cloths $1.40 to 1.42½; 6 do. $1.70; 7 do. $1.90; Cambrics 15 and 16s $34.

PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

On Monday last in reply to questions from Mr. CARTWRIGHT Lord ENFIELD (Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs) said,—As regards the first question—"What change will be made in the system of examinations for admission to the junior grades of the Diplomatic Service?"—I beg to state that candidates who have taken a University degree, or who have been at a public school up to their eighteenth year, will be required to pass only such examination as will prove that they have a correct knowledge of French grammar, can converse fluently in that language on ordinary topics, can translate accurately from English into French, and vice versa, and can satisfy the examiner of their proficiency in handwriting and précis writing. With respect to the second branch of inquiry—"Will the scale of remuneration of the junior members of the service be altered, and will certain pecuniary advantages be secured to them on special proof of specified qualifications?"—I have to state that the period of unpaid duty will be reduced to two years, whereof six months will be spent in the Foreign-office and eighteen months abroad. At the end of two years they will receive commissions as Third Secretaries, with a salary of £150 a-year; and if, on examination, they show a competent knowledge of public law, they will, as Third Secretaries, receive an additional £100 per annum; on promotion to be Second Secretary they will receive a minimum salary of £300 a-year, increasing by £15 a-year till it reaches £450 a year. The minimum salary of a Secretary of Legation will be £500 a year. Any Secretary of Legation or of Embassy, Second or Third Secretary or attaché, who shall possess a competent knowledge, colloquial or otherwise, of the Russian, Turkish, Persian, Japanese, or Chinese language while serving at any mission where such language is vernacular, will receive a special allowance of £100 a-year over and above any other allowance he may be in receipt of. The third question is:—"Will those who entered the service before the present arrangements for giving commissions to Second and Third Secretaries took effect be allowed to reckon towards their pensions the period of their service as attaches with four years' deduction?" No, Sir, they will not be allowed to count such time, as no such benefit was promised on their entrance into the service. In reply to the fourth question:—"Will chiefs of missions be allowed, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, to unite the leave one year with that of the next without incurring a deduction of salary?"—I have to observe that the Secretary of State is not prepared to allow this, as it is not considered advisable to establish a system which would sanction the absence of heads of missions for four consecutive months from their posts every second year, thus depriving the country for so long a time of the advantage which British interests would derive from the weight and authority attaching to heads of missions.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Mr. NORWOOD asked the President of the Board of Trade whether his attention had been directed to a notification of the Suez Canal Company that, on and after the 1st July next, the toll of ten francs per ton now levied on the net tonnage (or cargo capacity) of steamers will be charged on the gross tonnage; and whether the opinion of the law officers of the Crown has been taken as to the power of the company, consistently with the terms of its concession, to levy dues on that portion of the tonnage of a merchant steam vessel occupied by its machinery and fuel. Mr. CHICHESTER FORTESCUE said no opinion of the law officers of the Crown had been taken on the subject, and he doubted whether the Government would think it right to take it as to the terms of a concession made by a foreign Government to a foreign company. As to the facts, he believed that a notification had been given by the Suez Canal Company. Mr. NORWOOD: Is the right hon. gentleman aware that the Italian Government have taken diplomatic action in the matter? Mr. CHICHESTER FORTESCUE: The information at the Foreign-office does not include that.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

SUGAR FREIGHTS—STANTON V. RICHARDSON—RICHARDSON V. STANTON.

In these cross actions Stanton was the owner and Richardson the charterer of a large American-built vessel, the Isle of Wight, under a charter of the 24th of June, 1868, for Hong Kong to Manila for orders, and thence to one of the Philippine Islands for a cargo of lawful merchandise, to include "sugar in bags." The vessel duly proceeded to Ilo Ilo, Philippine Islands, and there took on board the greater part of a cargo of "wet sugar," admitted to be within the description in the charter party, when it was found that water and fluid was collecting in the bottom of the vessel which the pumps were incapable of keeping down, and it became necessary to unload that part of the cargo which had been put on board. It was at first thought that the ship had strained herself while lying at the jetty and was leaking, but it turned out that the drainage from the sugar had collected in large quantities in the hold, and, being thick and sticky, was difficult to deal with in pumping, and mastered the pumps. It appeared that the vessel could have been made fit by the adoption of fresh pumps and other means to carry the cargo home in eight months; but the sugar was, in fact, brought home sooner in a ship of very similar construction, in which, however, different pumps and further precautions with regard to pumping were used. At the trial the jury found that the vessel was not fit to carry the cargo, and could not be made so within a reasonable time, and found all other material issues in favour of the charterer, Richardson, whereupon verdicts were entered for him (the damages, which will be of large amount, to be referred), and a rule was subsequently obtained to enter verdicts for Stanton, or for a new trial, against which cause was now shown. The arguments were very protracted, it being contended for the charterer that it was a condition precedent of the contract that the shipowner should tender a ship fit to carry this cargo within a reasonable time, or such a time as would save the object of the charter from being frustrated, which he did not do, and, therefore, that the charterer was justified in throwing up the contract, and refusing to wait for the ship; and for the shipowner, that the charterers were under an obligation to tender a cargo reasonably suitable for the particular ship chartered and its construction.

The Court (Chief Justice Bovill and Justices Brett and Byles) held that there is no doctrine of law prevailing that the cargo offered should be reasonably suited to the particular ship, if it be a reasonable cargo within the description in the charterparty, and that the shipowner is bound to supply a ship not only seaworthy, but also reasonably fit for the purpose for which it is chartered within a time within which the object of the charter can be carried out. In this case he did not do so; in short, the ship was in fault, and not the sugar, and therefore the rule must be discharged.

COURT OF DIVORCE.

BEAVER v. BEAVER.

This was a petition by the wife against her husband. The parties were married in July, 1864, and they have since lived together in St. John's-wood, and elsewhere in London, and at Brighton and Cowes. The husband was a partner in a firm of commission merchants at Singapore. In 1869 Mrs. Beaver presented a petition to this Court for dissolution of marriage, and it was admitted that the allegations contained in that petition were true. But Mrs. Beaver had resumed cohabitation subsequent to the date of that petition, and had condoned the charges contained in it. She now prayed for a dissolution of marriage, on the ground that since the cohabitation had been resumed her husband had treated her with cruelty, and had thereby revived his condoned misconduct. The husband denied the charge of cruelty, and prayed for restitution of conjugal rights.

The Judge (Lord Penzance) decided that Mrs. Beaver had not established the charge of cruelty. Her petition for dissolution was, therefore, dismissed, and a decree of restitution of conjugal rights was pronounced.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ALTAI REGION.

Herr Bernhard von Cotta, an eminent German professor, has just published a very interesting work on the geology and mineralogy of the Altai. The Altai region comprises 7,800 German square miles, and is somewhat larger, therefore, than Great Britain and Ireland together. It forms part of the private possessions of the Imperial family of Russia; and its gold, silver, and copper mines are estimated to have yielded an annual income of about a million roubles. Of late, however, its silver mines have shown signs of exhaustion, and the new mines opened have not turned out nearly so remunerative as the old ones. Under these circumstances the Russian Government in the spring of 1868 commissioned Herr von Cotta to visit the region and examine its mineral resources. The work he has now given to the world is the fruit of his journey. In it he has not confined himself, however, to the mere object for which he was sent by the Russian Government. The first part of the work gives an interesting account of his travels; the second is devoted to the geology and geography of the Altai, and its present and early inhabitants. The Altai rises almost in the centre of the Asiatic continent, forming the western end of that great chain of mountains which stretches thence away to the mouth of the Amour, and separates Eastern Siberia from China. Almost in the centre this giant chain is breached by Lake Baikal and its southern feeders. In its ridges also are the sources of the Yenisei and the Irtish. The Obi takes its rise in the Altai. The name "Altai," we are told, is interpreted in four different ways. The first derives it from Alatun, that is, golden mountain; the second from Alin-tau, which means parti-coloured mountain; the third from Altaiya, or high-lying primæval forest; and the fourth from Alty-ai, six months. Herr von Cotta directs attention to the remarkable fact that not only are the rocks of the Altai and their relative position such as are found in Central Europe, but also the organic remains of the different geological periods are the same: even the plants of the coal formation of countries so widely separated in space are essentially similar, while the living flora are characteristically different. Still more singular is it that the coal formation of the Altai region appears to belong to the same geological period as those of Central Europe and Northern America; whereas in the whole of European Russia not a single district is known in which the coal formation belongs to the coal era of Western Europe. The coal beds of European Russia are all older than those of Central Europe. On the other hand, it is found that in a part, at least, of China the coal formation is later. It would thus appear that the coal region of the Altai was formed intermediately between those of European Russia and China, and are contemporary with those of Western Europe and Northern America. The present climate of the Altai is marked by a cold winter and very rapid alternations of temperature, which are extremely injurious to the development of plants. Germany and the Altai lie in the same latitude, but the number of plants growing wild in Germany compared with those peculiar to the Altai is as seven to four. While again in the very warm and dry summers sugar and water melons thrive in the open fields, in the course of every winter the temperature frequently falls so low that quicksilver is frozen. And to this must be added violent snow-storms, which make even short trips dangerous.

OCEAN RACING.

The Pall Mall Gazette comments upon the fact that the proprietors of the White Star Company have triumphantly established the assertion disputed by their rivals of the Inman line—namely, that their steamship the Adriatic has accomplished the swiftest passage on record between England and America. The time occupied between the Mersey and Sandy Hook was 7 days 18 hours 55 minutes. The Adriatic's log-book establishes the fact, and, as Captain Cuttle remarks, the log-book is the most veracious of human writings. We presume that, independently of honour, the competing proprietors consider that substantial profit as well is involved in the reputation of running the quickest steamer. They may be right, and their experience should inform them of what is most likely to advertise them with the travelling and emigrating public. We dare say pace may recommend itself primarily to their go ahead American customers, and men used to high pressure navigation in the Mississippi may make light of the relatively trivial risks of steaming express across the Atlantic. But we should fancy the more stolid and steady-going Englishman might object to the hazards incurred in economising a few hours in a long lifetime. A man used to take life easily; an emigrant who has been idly kicking his heels for years, while meditating when he should repair his dilapidated fortunes, need scarcely care to subordinate safety to celerity and excitement. Ocean racing is very perilous at best, and we have expressed our views before now as to those ocean matches between the tea clippers employed in the China trade. In their case, however, the seas they sail are for great part of the way relatively safe. Once in the trade winds, they may fly comfortably before them. Their crews, it is to be hoped, are adequately paid, and their cargoes, no doubt, are amply insured. It is very different with American packets. They are driven at extreme speed along a highway of international traffic, perpetually encumbered with craft of all kinds. They must run a constant risk of collision to themselves and to the vessels which may fall foul of their headlong course.

CEYLON AT THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—A case of jewellery has lately been transmitted through the Colonial-office from the Government of Ceylon to the International Exhibition, and its contents have been arranged in the jewellery gallery. The ornaments are such as are worn by the natives of Ceylon, and are characteristic of the native instinct for certain peculiar forms of decorative ornament which have been handed down through many generations, and thus retain an unusual purity of style. The collection embraces, firstly, Cingalese jewellery as worn by the peasants of the low country; secondly, Kandyan jewellery worn by women; thirdly, Tamil jewellery, such as is commonly used by the peasantry of the west and north-west provinces; and fourthly, Tamil jewellery worn by the peasants of the north provinces.

AN influential meeting has been held of ladies and gentlemen interested in promoting friendly and social meetings with Indians and Orientals temporarily resident in London. Sir Roundell Palmer pointed out the great advantages to be anticipated from the establishment of such a society as the one proposed, both to Europeans and Orientals. He concluded by proposing the appointment of a provisional committee to carry the project into effect, consisting of the following ladies and gentlemen:—Mr. Chesson, the Master of the Temple and Mrs. Vaughan, Mrs. Deane, Professor and Mrs. Amos, Major-General Vaughan, and Mr. Bunting.

THE BURMESE EMBASSY.—The Burmese Ambassador and his suite has been officially received by the Duke of Argyll, Secretary of State for India.

THE steamer Fitzpatrick, now loading at Glasgow for the Straits, is engaged for local employment there.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, June 11.

The German Parliament is still sitting, and it is now arranged that the close of the session shall take place at the end of next week. The business has been chiefly confined to home legislation with but little or no interest for foreigners, the only subject of some importance being the first and second reading of a motion made by Herr Grumbrecht, the Burgermeister of Harburg, for so far extending the competency of the Empire as to place the lighthouses, beacons, buoys, and other landmarks for the benefit and safety of mariners, as well as the sea-pilots, under the direct orders and control of the Central Government. Herr Mosle, the member for Bremen, in supporting the motion, complained of the inefficiency and wretched state of these institutions, the only hope of improvement being in their transfer from the separate States to the Imperial Government. Herr Busing pointed out the imperfect lighting of the coast of Mecklenburg, a stretch of 350 miles, which, notwithstanding the great danger and the total loss of thirteen vessels in the last four years, was left totally dark at night. Herr Schmidt, member for Stettin, whilst expressing himself fully in favour of the motion, protested against reproaching all the coast States with neglect, as nothing could be better than the way in which the Prussian part of the Baltic coast was cared for. Grumbrecht admitted the correctness of the foregoing statement, but, on the other hand, the Prussian coast of the North Sea was in a most neglected and inefficient condition. The motion was then passed by a large majority.

The debate then took a more lively and even amusing turn. A Miss Jenny Hirsch, in the name of the United Associations for the Education of Women, had petitioned the House for the employment of females in the service of the Railway, Post-office, and Telegraph Departments of the State. The committee for petitions brought up their report, recommending the House, after the declaration already made by the Federal Commissioners, to proceed with the order of the day. Herr Dernberg proposed to send the petition to the Chancellor for his consideration and decision. Dr. Blum (the son of the notorious Robert Blum, executed as a rebel at Vienna in November, 1848), pointed out the examples of Sweden, Russia, and the United States, where the system had been tried and found to work well, as was also the case in Baden. The Postmaster-General said:—"It is by no means an agreeable feeling to combat the philanthropic views expressed by the different members, but the interests of the public service require the Government to object to the motion. I am not opposed to the employment of women in positions for which they are adapted, such as book-keeping, in shops, and perhaps in the communal service—(laughter); but there are several good reasons for objecting to their employment in public offices. Reference has been made to other countries, but those Governments have been forced to employ females as they cannot obtain a sufficient number of men at the same low rate of pay. Experience has moreover proved that in those countries the public service is not conducted in so satisfactory and punctual a manner as it is, for instance, in Prussia. I have long since laid aside as a delusion the statement frequently made that women are deficient in the organs of orthography and geography, but there are other reasons on which I base my judgment. In the service of the State a woman would have to stand out in publicity; this is of itself a disadvantage for modesty; but in the public service they would be exposed to many unpleasancies from which out of delicacy I wish to spare them. The impertinences of the commis voyageur at the window of the post-office, the fighting and squabbling for precedence among rough porters and the letter-carriers, these are scenes by no means of a delectable nature for females to witness. To this must be added that the exigencies of the service frequently require bodily exertions for which women are physically unfitted, and the officials are often obliged to be up and at their post all night. Another and still more important element is female curiosity. I believe that in many of the cases where the inviolability of letters has been tampered with, it was shown to have been done in those offices where women were employed; and I very much agree with the opinion lately expressed by one of the members of this House, that it would become needful to frame penal laws on a new basis, as it lies in the nature of women to be curious, and that they would escape punishment for the offence, as no one can be expected to act against his nature. Besides all this the service must necessarily suffer from the want of efficient discipline, which could not be so rigidly enforced by former sergeants and other non-commissioned officers formerly in the army, towards young ladies who may be placed under their orders. And finally—and I may say this is the chief objection I have to make—the service could not be carried on advantageously in the face of the continual changes that must naturally take place if females are admitted into the public offices. Persistence and perseverance in the performance of their duties are quite out of the question; marriage and other circumstances interfere to prevent it—(laughter); or the only alternative would be to fix the age of aspirants so high as to render them ineligible in other respects, for to forbid them to marry at all is acting in opposition to the laws of nature. I freely confess that the associations for raising the status and improving the condition of the female sex have done much good, and deserve public support; but in my opinion the best and safest means of bettering their condition is to place the men in a position to marry. The best provision I could make for a woman would be to give her in marriage to a steady and trustworthy official of the Post-office." (Laughter and approval).

Dr. Loewe could not agree with all that had fallen from the Postmaster-General, and contended that the danger to which women would be exposed by having to speak with the public outside the window, was not to be compared with that in the performance of other duties when employed, for instance, as waitresses in places of public amusement. It has been asserted that women are constitutionally disabled from doing hard work, but his experience in the course of a long medical practice led him to a different result, which also made him differ from those who would fasten vanity and curiosity exclusively on the females, whilst these organs were quite as fully developed in the opposite sex. There was more tattling, gossip, backbiting, and scandal carried from house to house by his colleagues in the medical profession than was done by his female colleagues, the midwives. (Great laughter.) There could be no doubt that women, with their nimble little fingers, were much better adapted as telegraphic operators than men; and, with regard to their intellectual capacity, they would, as a matter of course, have to undergo the same examination in the different branches of knowledge as the men. And if it was found that they gave as much, and perhaps greater satisfaction, it would be nothing more than just and right to give them the same rate of pay. There was nothing to justify the fear that women would by marriage be led to neglect their official duties; and, if they did, they would be subject to the same rules of discipline, and would be discharged. (Cheers.) The motion of Herr Dernburg for sending the petition to the Chancellor for his decision was then agreed to.

The Federal Council have agreed to the proposal made by the Parliament to alter paragraph 3 of the new law for weights and measures, as far as regards the tonnage of ships; and it is now ordered that the registers of all German vessels be made out in tons of measurement containing a cubic metre each,—instead of the last of 2,500 lbs. weight in Schleswig-Holstein, 4,000 lbs. at Bremen, and 6,000 lbs. at Hamburg, hitherto in use—but that in every case the corresponding measurement of the vessel in British register tons be added in parenthesis. This simplification and uniformity of the system has given great satisfaction to the shipowners in all the maritime States of Germany.

Another great desideratum for all connected with the shipping interest will be the new Seemann's Ordnung, or uniform regulations for engaging, discharging, and treatment of sailors, as well as defending the relations between the officers and men. In fulfilment of orders issued by the Bundesrath some months ago, a special commission was appointed to draw up a plan, and composed of thirteen members, five of whom were superior functionaries of the Government, three shipowners, three captains of the Merchant Service, an officer of the Imperial Navy, and a Wasserschout, or Registrar of Seamen. All the maritime States are represented in this arrangement, the Commissioners for Bremen being the Wasserschout von Hunteln and the shipowner Herr Reck; and those for Hamburg the shipowner Herr A. F. Hertz, and Mr. Hargreaves, the accomplished Secretary to the Department for Trade and Navigation. The navy is represented by Commander Knorr. These gentlemen, who held their first sitting on the 5th of March, have now completed their labours and drawn up a plan in the shape of a law, which has obtained the approbation of the Federal Council, who will lay it before Parliament, but it is uncertain whether it can be passed before the close of this session.

A most surprising increase in the number of vessels visiting this port, as well as in their tonnage, is shown by the latest returns published by the Department for Mercantile Statistics. In the first five months of 1871, 1,663 vessels, of 384,790 lasts, arrived here, and 1,698, of 390,310 lasts, had sailed. During the corresponding period of this year 2,244 vessels, of 534,120 lasts, arrived, and 2,245, of 536,100 lasts, had sailed. A remarkable feature in these returns is the increase in the number of steamers; the average of the last five years—I am still referring to the five first months—was 778, whilst this year they amounted to 1,032.

In the same way that Herr W. Pustau distinguished himself at the Altona Exhibition a few years ago by his splendid and most interesting assortment of China silk in every stage, from the unhatched egg to the most beautiful shawls and other manufactured articles, I now learn that Messrs. Siemssen and Co., of Shanghai, are preparing a complete assortment of all the different descriptions of teas brought to that market for show at the Exhibition at Vienna next year. A letter has been received here from Yokohama, stating that Japan requires twice as much space in the Exhibition as they asked for at the Paris Exhibition in 1867.

The German Consuls at Canton, Shanghai, Tientsin, and Bangkok, have received permission and instructions to perform the marriage ceremony, and to keep registers and give certificates of birth, deaths, and marriages among the Germans in their respective Consular jurisdictions.

From Copenhagen we learn that the receipts of the Great Northern Telegraph Company were last month as follows:—On the European lines 40,546 messages, producing 114,366f., and in Eastern Asia 2818 telegrams, with 94,485f., making a total of 43,464 messages and 208,851f., against 135,859f. in the month of May last year.

COMMERCIAL.

Fresh supplies of Tea have arrived direct from China per Hohenzollern, consisting of 2670/8, 1514/8 chests Congou, and 5,481 do. Imperial. The market is calm, and the dealings were confined to the execution of consumptive orders, but prices are steady. In cleaned Rice a good deal of business has been done for the interior of Germany at former quotations; nothing done in rough. Terra Japonica firm; 1,300 packages just arrived per Hermann from Singapore have been taken at 14½ and 14¾ mks. bco. per centner. There is no alteration to notice in Cassia Lignea, but 90 chests of Flores have been sold a trifle below the last quotations. Pepper dull of sale, but no lower. Spelter nominally 15 mks. bco., but no sales reported.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 12.

Holland has lost a great man in the Liberal statesman Thorbecke, who has passed away while still engaged in the promotion of the welfare of his country. Great dejection pervades the whole Liberal party. Indeed, the country is displaying a sort of Thorbecke-mania. The statesman who was so much thwarted in his life—even in his last days—is now lauded to the skies, and the greatest indignation prevails amongst the Liberal newspapers because the Conservative and Clerical journals do not join in their panegyrics upon the merits of the defunct, who, though certainly the most able statesman we have had since the times of de Witt, nevertheless had his faults. The Liberals are somewhat too demonstrative in their sorrow. The newspaper articles—the number of which is indefinite—sum up the great merits of the ex-Premier. The speeches delivered everywhere throughout the country are to the same effect, and at the public meetings nothing is talked of except his eminent talents. That the nation honour him much is quite right, for he deserves it. He was for Holland the man who re-established the Constitution, who inaugurated a new era of Liberalism, when he succeeded in effecting his revision of the Constitutional Law in 1848. Many other important measures are due to him and to his influence—the Election Law, the Provincial and Communal Laws, the Middle-class Education Law, the Medical Law, and numerous other measures. Important public works have been undertaken at his instigation, and, in one word, Thorbecke has shown himself in every way worthy of the high position which he filled. And the nation is grateful. Thousands and thousands from west and east, from north and south, came together to the place where his remains were interred with the utmost simplicity of ceremony, in obedience to his expressed desire. The solemnity was very striking, just because it was so very simple. The manner in which he was buried was in true keeping with his whole life. Endeavours are being made now to collect contributions to erect a monument to his memory, and, of course, a very large amount will be forthcoming. The inhabitants of the town of Zwolle intend to furnish the house in which he was born, in 1798, with a stone tablet, mentioning the fact. Mr. Thorbecke married in 1836 the daughter of a Dresden professor, and he leaves one son and two daughters. The ex-Premier was anything but a rich man, and it is the wish of the King that a Bill should be introduced securing to the two daughters an annual income. The son is a lawyer of much talent.

As I have already said, the death of Mr. Thorbecke is the only topic of the day, and will probably so remain for some time to come. About the Ministerial crisis we do not hear anything, except that the Presidents of both the Chambers of the States General have had a conference with the King, and the liberal papers state that the crisis will be solved by the constitution of a Liberal Ministry. The Members of the Upper House, who met some days ago in order to confirm some Bills approved of by the Lower House, have since dispersed, to enjoy the very wintry summer weather which now prevails.

The King has accepted the resignation of Mr. O. Van Rees, Member of the Council of India. The last mail from Java brought news that the Commander-in-Chief of the East India Army had ordered that only two trading marks of Dutch gin should be used in the camps. Several distillers are protesting against this monopolising measure.

The King has approved of Mr. H. F. Ankersmit as American Consul at Batavia. His Majesty has conferred the Grand Cross of the Crown of Oaks upon M. Thiers, President of the French Republic.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The position of the market remains very firm for Coffee and Sugar, especially the latter, in which business has been doing at advanced rates. Transactions in Coffee on the other hand have been limited, and the June sales of the Netherlands Trading Company being announced to take place next week, not much activity will be likely to develop itself until then. Hardly any alteration is reported in other articles of produce. Prices of Tin have been unsettled, but the decline has been nearly recovered towards the close of the week.

COFFEE.—A firm tone has continued to prevail, with ready buyers of Java at the current range of 45c. for good ordinary Trading Company's imports, whilst pale has been selling at 46c. to 46½c. Owing to the reservedness of holders, the sales have been small in extent, and upon private account. To close the series of their spring sales this year, the Netherlands Trading Company will offer by public auction, on the 19th inst., about 80,500 bags Java and Santos, stored in different ports, which, according to the preliminary details, comprise the following assortments, viz.:—

Bags.		Bags.
1,000	Preanger brown and light brown	5,300 pale greenish
7,100	do. pale	15,600 Malang, Tenger and Bangil
4,000	yellowish to pale yellowish	3,800 foxy green
4,900	pale	1,300 W. I. cured
13,700	pallish to low pale	1,600 greyish green and greenish
2,000	Cheribon greenish	5,600 ordinary
4,550	Tagal greenish	3,900 Santos
6,150	green to pale greenish W. I. kind	80,500

TIN has been unsettled, a rapid decline having resulted from some forced sales, which, however, has since been nearly recovered. Banca sold for public sales' prompt at f.94½, f.93½, 93, f.93½, and f.94, whilst some contracts were concluded for delivery ex the coming autumn sale at f.91½, f.91¼, and f.91. Billiton on the spot changed hands at f.92, and afloat, per steamer Conrad, at f.91½.

RICE keeps firm, with little doing; 645 bags Java, ex Cornelia, changed hands at Amsterdam at f.10.

SILK.—Sales have been closed at Amsterdam of 55 bales Japan, at prices kept secret.

SPICES.—Some demand has continued to be manifested for Cloves, prices of which have been raised to 40c. for No. 2, and 39c. for No. 3. Other articles under this head without any alteration of note. Sales have been closed at Amsterdam of 16 casks Nutmegs and 2 cases Mace, 99 cases Nutmegs, and 4 cases Java Cinnamon, ex Cornelia.

SUGAR has been in brisk demand. For want of any floating shipments being offered in the market, transactions have been mainly confined to shipments to come forward out of the new crop, of which sales have been closed to an extent of about 100,000 piculs here and at Amsterdam, all of medium numbers, No. 9-14 at f.¼ to f.½ above the currency of the March sale. There are but few parcels still available for sale, and on being placed on the market, the same meet ready buyers at high prices.

TEA is firm but quiet, in anticipation of the public sales of Java, to be held at Amsterdam on the 20th inst.

CRITIQUES UPON "CHINA'S PLACE IN PHILOLOGY."

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Any one who has watched the manner in which this work has been treated by the Saturday Review and the Athenæum must have felt some surprise that in those literary organs so inadequate a mode of criticism should readily obtain admission. The theory of the work is highly probable. Authorities all agree in placing the first seats of the European races in Central Asia. They would naturally be expected, therefore, to be connected in traditions and language with adjacent peoples. The comparison of European languages and of Sanscrit with Mongol and Turkish, Chinese and Tibetan is fair ground for philological research. The refusal to allow the possibility of ancient connection in race between these peoples is not like the modesty of true science. The attempt on a priori grounds to shut the door on such inquiries as are entered on by the author of this book is absurd. In these days if the Saturday Reviewer is to be accepted as a guide, all philological research must be conducted in humiliating dependence on Germany. If the profound German philologists have said a thing there must be good reasons for it, and if they have doubted anything, it is becoming in an English philologist to doubt too. Such is the principle of criticism in philology boldly and firmly assumed by the Saturday Reviewer.

He does not seem to have had any suspicion that the theory advocated in the work he was criticising deserves a careful examination, and may possibly be right. The author of that work has attempted to get round at the back of the Indo European languages and to transfer the battle field of philology to Eastern Asia. The Sanscrit language for nearly a century has been as much honoured in linguistic science as if she were the mother tongue of the world. It is time to commence a new plan in the war. Nothing more of importance or very little can ever be discovered in Sanscrit. It is an exhausted gold mine. It can only be useful to philology in future as a stepping stone to older linguistic types. The grammar and lexicology of Sanscrit are complete. Philology has done her best in that region; she must now seek other fields, and if literary journals of repute would keep pace with the progress of inquiry, they must learn to believe that the philology of Bopp and Grimm is rapidly becoming a thing of the past, very valuable and useful in its day, but in many points incomplete and failing altogether to furnish even in outline the true field of future linguistic research. As surely as Wallace and Darwin have succeeded in fixing the eye of geologists upon the lost continent of the Indian and South Pacific Oceans by personal observation in that part of the world, so surely may the linguistic inquirer who pursues his researches in Eastern Asia expect to see results yielding themselves to his questionings such as cannot fail, if he be ordinarily prudent, to be of the most interesting nature. Many a critic wants the illumination of true science, and may utterly fail to see the importance of a new philological theory in that field. It is a pity that such men do not study a new hypothesis more deeply, so that they might be able to afford better guidance to the public for whom they write.

The Saturday Reviewer asserts with decision, and the air of complete conviction, that it is impossible to reduce Semitic roots to one, or even two syllables, and that the same is true in a less degree of many European roots. Just so water and atmospheric air were believed to be simple till science analysed them. The reviewer's philology is like the chemistry of the days before Watt and Cavendish. All these unsolved dissyllabic roots may be expected to yield their secret to the patient inquirer. The reduction of the whole body of Sanscrit words to monosyllabic roots might have taught the critic the uncertainty attending his hypothesis. But he is welcome to regard as unsolvable words like cuckoo and peewit. The advocates of the theory of the monosyllabism of roots would not wish to disturb him in his possession of these and such like imitations of double natural sounds.

The want of careful reflection on the part of the reviewers who have given to the public their estimate of the book in question may be judged of by their alike failing to notice the most important results of the author's inquiries. He states that when s is prefixed to k, t, or p in Indo-European words it is never radical. When these words occur in thousands in the various vocabularies, hostile reviewers might have given some instances in proof of the contrary. He states that Grimm's law is not circular, but progressive, and that sonant letters precede in order of time both aspirates and surds. The assertion might have been noticed. He declares that Sanscrit syntax is based on that of Tartar languages.

Digitized by Google

The reviewers might have attempted to disprove this. He has laid great stress on syntax, and has said that the neglect of syntax is one of the chief faults in the German school of Sanscrit philology associated with the name of Bopp. The reviewers take no notice of this. The adverbial case suffices in Homeric Greek, in Sanscrit, and in the Teutonic languages are traced to a Tartar origin. A remark on this subject, whether expressing assent or dissent, might have been vouchsafed. He expresses his belief that the auxiliary syllables in the European grammatical forms occur as roots in the Chinese vocabulary. The reviewers do not notice the proofs he adduces. He also declares his belief that the letters r and l coming after k, t, p in the initial of roots are invariably inserted and not radical. This might have been alluded to. The derivation of the Latin, Greek, and Sanscrit tenses from an older Turanian verb is shown by examples; the reviewers take no notice of this. The same pronouns and the same substantive verbs are shown to exist in the Indo-European and in the Tartar families; nothing has been said by the reviewers on this point.

The reviewers have dealt in expressions of extreme censure. They represent it as an offence of the first magnitude to believe that the earth was of one language and of one speech. The fact that the Bible says so is to the reviewers evidence sufficient to condemn the doctrine as unscientific. They grow violent at any attempt to prove that languages were originally one. They ridicule the author for not knowing that the root of the Sanscrit bheda was bhid, when the book shows that he did know it and would have mentioned it if it had been required. They roundly assert, without any fair ground, that he is ready to take any word of any language which has some resemblance to words of other lands and to class them together without troubling himself to inquire into their original forms. They say that his statement in regard to a change from m to b in Turkish and Mongolian is a fiction of his own imagination. That it is not so any one can learn for himself by looking at the chapter on pronouns in a Turkish or Mongol grammar. They represent his reasoning as wildly conjectural and childish, and his proofs as unscientific and incorrect, but they fail signally in the proof of this statement.

The reviewers show themselves very hard to convince. Most men would think it likely that the Chinese mid, honey, and the Sanscrit madhu must be one word. Not so the reviewers; they will not hear of the Sanscrit borrowing a word from the Tamul, although the Tamul-speaking people were certainly first in India, as shown by their geographical position. The Athenæum will have it that the Tamul people borrowed the word for honey from the speakers of Sanscrit. Yet honey is native to India, and must have had a name among the Turanian population. The Saturday Reviewer will not admit that the Chinese bit, to separate, can be the same with the Hebrew bad, separation, and the Sanscrit bhid, to separate. Such a critic is wedded to a theory of his own, and cannot give a fair consideration to a novel hypothesis. But more reflecting and careful minds will think on the resemblance and gather a result which a flippant criticism can neither imagine nor accept. The Saturday Reviewer cannot see how the Chinese bid, to spread out, can be the same with the Latin pateo, and the English broad and spread. All he can say, however, will not prevent discerning eyes from seeing that these resemblances mean something, that they point to an identity of roots and demand careful attention from a really enlightened philology. He does not perceive that the Tamul word para, to spread, is the same with the Chinese pit or bid, spread, the d being changed to r, and that his objection that the English broad is the Sanscrit prath, is all in favour of the author's hypothesis. If he would direct his attention to the fact that the English and Sanscrit r is inserted, and that the Tamul r is in this case a transformed d, he might come, though reluctantly, to agree with his author. Minds of a mould more open to the reception of new ideas will not refuse to admit the light thus thrown on etymology, while they condemn the critic for his indiscriminating censures. The Athenæum is offended at the identification of the Hebrew mathak with the Sanscrit madhu, forgetting that the Greek is strong evidence of connection. The Saturday Reviewer is shocked at the statement that there has been any Semitic influence on Sanscrit. But unless the Saturday Reviewer would maintain that the distinctions of genders in nouns by particular suffixes, and of the dual number, alike peculiar to both grammars, are of independent origin, he will find himself driven to admit that Semitic principles of grammar pervade the Sanscrit as they do the Greek, though in a less degree.

What are the causes of the reluctance of English literary journals to encourage any attempted extension of linguistic science? One is an undistinguishing admiration of the German school. Another is the striking limitations of the scope of that school. Bopp was unwilling to study the Celtic languages, as he was the Semitic and the Turanian. While he accomplished much for the exact philology of the languages into which he inquired, he failed to see that comparison with other and somewhat different stocks is a most fruitful and legitimate field for scientific research. What he did not see his blind followers fail to see also. So exact a scholar, so minute an analyst of word-forms, was not likely to obtain the same high success in philological speculation and theory that in the special criticism which he loved he undoubtedly acquired. Another cause is a powerful prejudice against the identification of the words of one family of languages with those of another. When suggested, such resemblances are immediately set down by the philological reviewer to casual coincidence. Whatever identities his linguistic method is too narrow to embrace he attributes to accident. His method being at fault, he not only refuses to modify it, but looks with supreme contempt on the new speculator, who demands the application of an extended method to the facts which require it. To attempt to prove with the Boppian method that the Chinese and European languages are one, must be useless, but when once the principles of investigation are so extended and adapted as to embrace this wider inquiry, the most remarkable results may be expected. Ordinary reviewers will perhaps continue to doubt that Chinese, Mongol and Sanscrit words are all radically one, till they become schooled in the new method of linguistic research required for their comparison.—Your obedient servant,

Shanghai, April 15, 1872. SCRUTATOR.

QUARANTINE AT MARSEILLES.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—As one of the unfortunate passengers from China by the French mail steamer which arrived on the 20th May, I thought it might be interesting to those who may think of travelling by that route to describe the extremely unpleasant termination, by quarantine at Marseilles, of an otherwise agreeable trip. During the voyage four deaths occurred on board (one I believe from rupture of a vein, two from consumption, and one from dysentery). The health of all on board, some 360 persons, was otherwise excellent, and there was no infection of any kind on board, so far as could be ascertained. On our arrival at Marseilles the steamer was not officially boarded or examined by any one, but allowed to go to the wharf and to be made fast there; the captain and doctor went on shore to report, and we were expecting to be permitted to land at any moment. But to our disgust they returned, saying that no one could go on shore until the Board of Health (Direction de la Santé) had decided whether we should go into quarantine or not! The outbreak of cholera in India, which occurred after our passengers thence had left, but news of which had been conveyed by telegraph, was the presumed reason for such caution, which would have been fair enough had any sickness appeared on board our steamer of course. At about four P.M., when we had been waiting alongside for six hours, conversing with people on shore, without any sanitary precautions we received news that we were to have three days' quarantine. However, we still lay by the wharf until nine P.M., when we left for the frioul. Passing over the point whether ship bearing the presumed germs of illness, which a month at sea had not dispersed, would be purified by lying three days in Marseilles, I proceed to describe our situation. We were anchored quite close to the public latrine, the openings of which were but a few yards from our cabin windows, and the inlet of the sea being closed by a breakwater, the tide, if there had been any, could not have carried away the refuse of the ship; this nuisance was, however, mitigated by shoals of lively and voracious fish, but those of us who had qualmish stomach eschewed fish from thenceforth.

Our companions in misfortune were two brigs and two steamers, under suspicion of yellow fever. We were not allowed to go on land at first, being what is termed "quarantine d'observation," but on the second day the second-class passengers were bundled off into the lazarettos with short shrift, and we were allowed to walk on shore to a limit of five kilometres. Doubtless you think we were comfortable enough on board; perhaps so, from a Board of Health point of view, but not from a cleanly English one. The deck was no longer washed at morning, the water supply of the "lieux" ceased entirely, and the stench from them was simply disgusting, while our only way of getting a bath was to take a jugful of water in with us, and indulge in an unsatisfactory smear. The sanitary regulations (?) were altogether so admirably adapted to breed sickness that we may congratulate ourselves on none breaking out. On the evening prior to our being admitted to pratique an individual styled "doctor" informed us at the last moment that no one could go on shore without his or her linen being steeped in salt or fresh water for two hours, and that it must be exhibited to him in a moist state. You can judge, perhaps, of the annoyance and inconvenience caused by this, ladies who were not brought up as washerwomen having no choice but to tackle to at the tub. The conclusion of the farce was played early next morning, when the great "doctor" came on board, did not inspect anything, and declared the quarantine over, permitting us to go on shore, carrying our bags full of dripping wet linen with us, and uttering blessings in many tongues.

I think I have said enough to show the monstrous annoyance to which we were subjected, without any reason that we could ascertain. I wish to "nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in malice," but we were treated, as one of the officers of the steamer told the great "doctor," "comme des chiens ou des coolies." The whole affair was simply disgraceful, and a gross injustice to the passengers, and I trust the directors of the Messageries Company will see to it.—I am, Sir, yours obediently, H. C.

CHINA'S PLACE IN PHILOLOGY.

A CORRESPONDENT'S letter will be found in another column on the "Critiques on China's Place in Philology." We certainly admire the vigorous and sensible defence of Mr. EDKINS's theory, but we cannot hide from ourselves the fact that the mode in which that gentleman's speculations have been presented to the public are lacking in simplicity, and wanting in lucid arrangement. Whatever may be said about the theories of BOPP and GRIMM, and of Germans in general, there can be no question about the scientific ability with which the German mind arranges its matter. Anybody may pick up resemblances in language and upon these base philological essays, but the scientific inquirer does not rest in first conclusions, he goes on to establish laws which shall be incontrovertible. That Mr. EDKINS has all the materials, or at least sufficient for his purpose, we believe, and he may yet enlarge them indefinitely. Every great and important discovery in science has had its bitter opponents in its early stages, and it will not do to pin our faith to the conclusions of writers of racy articles in the Saturday or any other Review. Neither can it be right to take the dictum of philologists who deal merely with the Aryan and Semitic languages. Mr. EDKINS has devoted himself to the ancient as well as the modern forms of Chinese, in which he has made many useful discoveries, and the results of Aryan Philology are before him; he must therefore be better able to form correct theories of the unity of these different languages than a Reviewer who looks at them only from one standpoint.

THE PANTHAY EMBASSY.

IT is a matter of surprise to those interested in Asiatic politics that the members of the Panthay Mission from South-Western China have not been heard of as arriving in Egypt or on the Continent. Indeed not since their passage through Calcutta in the end of April, the account of which was published in London on the 21st May, have we had any information as to their movements. This silence has not unnaturally given rise to a suspicion that our Government may have blocked them off at Aden, or some other intermediate port, as they lately did the Abyssinian Envoys on their arrival in Egypt. It is much to be hoped that this will not prove to be the case. It would be, to say the least, unwise to neglect the opportunity which would be afforded by their arrival of making ourselves acquainted with the aims and objects of the great Mahommedan powers which are wrestling for supremacy with the armies of the Emperor of China. Neither would it be politic to refuse a hearing to the emissaries of a man who claims to have established for himself an independant kingdom even though we may be on friendly terms with the potentate to whom sixteen years ago he owned allegiance. Since 1856 the Sultan SULEIMAN has exercised supreme sway over the greater part of the Province of Yunnan in spite of all the efforts of the Chinese Government to overthrow his authority; he has established a settled form of government, and has adopted all the insignia of Imperial power. He is thus no upstart rebel, for he has shown that he is not only able to lead his followers to victories, but that he is able to reap the fruits of his successes, and to set up a firm administration in place of the corrupt government of the mandarins. Nor can the movement of which he is the leader be looked upon as purely local, since, although in the first instance it arose out of a quarrel with the provincial authorities, it may now be said to form part of the great Mahommedan revival which is agitating the whole of Central Asia. The wave of Mahommedan insurrection which was stirred up against the Chinese by Yakoob Khan in Turkestan, and which has since swept over the whole track of country eastward to the boundaries of China, has now broken with violence over the provinces of Kansuh and Szechuen. If the Sultan SULEIMAN were to ally his forces with those of his co-religionists in these neighbouring provinces—and this coalition will soon inevitably take place—no armies which the Chinese could bring into the field would be able to stand against them. In holding communication, therefore, with the members of the Panthay Embassy it will be as well for our Government to remember that they are not dealing with the emissaries of a man of straw, but of a powerful chieftain, and to beware lest, by treating his representatives with neglect or contempt, they incur an enmity which may possibly at a future time bear bitter fruit.

THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

LORD ENFIELD'S reply to Mr. CARTWRIGHT'S questions on the adoption of the recommendations of the Diplomatic Committee by the Foreign-office, makes us wonder what manner of men those must be who will for the future enter on diplomatic careers. Formerly the service was open only to members of a small circle of aristocratic families who were willing to perform for a few years the duties of the lower ranks of the profession on ridiculously small pay, in exchange for the social position they enjoyed and the certain hope of rapidly rising to the higher and well paid posts. Now we have changed all that; every day the doors of admittance to the service are opened wider and wider, the prizes of the profession are fewer and less worth having, and the term of service in the junior ranks grows longer. Under these altered circumstances, and with the recommendations of the Committee before them, it might have been expected that the Government would at least have raised the scale of remuneration of the junior members of the service. But Lord ENFIELD checks all such wild hopes, unless, in a spirit of thankfulness for small mercies, we accept the reduction of the period of unpaid duty to two years as an inestimable boon. After six months' service in the Foreign-office, and eighteen months abroad, the fortunate aspirant to diplomatic honours will be entitled to £150 a-year! and should he ever arrive at the rank of Secretary of Legation, he will, on first reaching that lofty estate, receive just £500 per annum. When the number of years of hard, underpaid work which the attainment of this higher rank represents is taken into account, the remuneration thus offered is simply absurd, and the wilful determination of the Government, to ride roughshod over the recommendations of the committee, will give rise to an additional cause for discontent among men already smarting under injustice.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction exists amongst steamship owners at the increase in the tonnage dues to be enforced, on the 1st prox., by the directors of the Suez Canal Company. The hardship bears with undue severity on companies like the P. and O., whose ships have a large capacity devoted to passengers, and which, by the new regulations, will have to be paid for in the tonnage, besides the impost of ten francs per head for each passenger, which has also to be paid by the company. Now in ordinary business operations, care is generally taken, that no incongruous or manifestly absurd, or unjust impost, is inflicted on any class. Such conduct we expect only from Government functionaries, bound up with "red tape." That so eminently a commercial undertaking as the Suez Canal Company should attempt such a course, which must prohibit the use of their Canal, is simply incomprehensible, and discreditable to both the directors and the shareholders. A question asked in the House of Commons on the 13th inst. shows that our Government have made no remonstrance on the subject, at which shipowners are very indignant.

WE understand that the new contract lately concluded by the United States Government, with the Pacific Mail Steam Company, for a fortnightly service between San Francisco, Japan, and China, is for ten years, at a subsidy of $1,000,000 per annum. Six new screw steamers have been contracted for by the company in New York, &c. The machinery will be supplied from this country.

A TELEGRAM has been received from Hong Kong announcing that the decision of the Judge of the Vice-Admiralty Court in the case of "the steamer Ava versus Rona" has been given in favour of the Ava. The owners of the Rona (the Union Steam Company of Shanghai) were condemned to pay the damages and costs of suit.

THE BRINDISI ROUTE HOMEWARD.

Six months have already elapsed since the opening of the Mont Cenis Tunnel brought into renewed prominence the Brindisi Route as a principal line of communication between England and the East, and our columns have already contained many details with reference to the journey from London to the new port of embarkation; but we are now enabled to render a further service to our readers beyond the Isthmus of Suez by laying before them a short account of the journey homeward, respecting which travellers from the Far East are usually desirous of obtaining information. It is almost needless to preface our remarks by stating that the steamers of the P. and O. Company, leaving Alexandria immediately after the arrival there of the mails and passengers from Suez (the railway journey usually occupying about twelve hours, from 8 P.M. to 8 o'clock on the following morning), make the voyage to Brindisi, as a rule, in seventy-five hours, sighting on the way the Island of Candia, the south coast of Greece, and the Ionian Islands. Before the mountainous outline of Corfu is lost from sight on the east the flat shores of Southern Italy are descried, forming the opposite coast of the Adriatic, and shortly after making the land the mail steamer enters, between two diminutive but serviceable lighthouses, the sheltered haven which forms the port of Brindisi. Before arrival all luggage belonging to passengers is placed on the deck, and they are informed that it will be necessary for them to see to its transference on shore themselves. Very little time is available for a glance at the surroundings of the harbour, though the quaint cluster of buildings forming the town of Brindisi, above which towers to a great altitude a Corinthian pillar erected in the highest part of the town—a relic of Roman antiquity—would at another time be of interest, doubtless, to travellers on their first landing from so long a journey. No sooner is the steamer moored alongside the quay, or (if unable to find a berth) anchored a few yards from the shore, than the vessel is invaded by facchini, or licensed porters, by whom the passengers' baggage is to be carried to the Custom-house—a long, narrow-room in a building immediately facing the steamer. If not moored alongside the quay, the vessel will be surrounded by small rowboats, and it will be well for passengers to engage one of these to take them on shore as quickly as possible with their luggage, which on landing will be carried to the Custom-house by the licensed porters. For the boats, half a franc per package is the charge demanded, but an agreement may be made for a lower sum for the trip. The porters are not entitled to payment for conveying luggage to the Custom-house. Arrived at this place, two operations remain to be executed as speedily as possible.

In their laudable anxiety to accelerate as much as lies in their power the transit of the mails, the South Italian Railway Company have of late put on a special train, to leave Brindisi as soon as the mails and passengers are ready to depart, and this is usually the case in from one to two hours after the steamer's arrival. The arrangements made by the Italian Government, however, for Custom-house inspection are sadly deficient, as regards the room available and the staff employed for the purpose, so that when the number of passengers is considerable great confusion necessarily results. The Custom-house officer on duty is, as a rule, found courteous and obliging, and an interpreter is stationed in the Custom-house to give all needful assistance. The baggage once passed, the traveller is required to take his railway-ticket before his trunks can be registered, and he proceeds for this purpose to a desk at the extremity of the Custom-house, where a railway clerk—speaking English—is stationed. It should be borne in mind that, contrary to the impression usually prevailing, tickets through to London, and even to Paris, are not issued at Brindisi, nor (we speak of the state of affairs as prevailing in May, 1872), are second-class tickets issued for the express train made up on the arrival of the mail. The fare from Brindisi to Turin, first class, is one hundred and twenty-four francs, but it is usually stated to passengers arriving from the East as "five pounds less one franc," and payment is in most cases made in English gold, the sovereign being taken at twenty-five francs (or lire in the Italian currency). A considerable profit accrues by this process to some person or persons other than the traveller, as the railway fare is of course properly payable in the paper currency of the kingdom, which is at a discount of from 7 to 10 per cent. Persons intending to take the express train will, however, in few cases find time to exchange their English gold in the short interval of their stay at Brindisi, but those who remain any length of time at the place will, of course, benefit by doing so. The railway ticket taken, the traveller should see his trunks brought by a porter to the weighing-machine, and he will make the unpleasant discovery that every pound of his luggage must be paid for, with the exception of the valises, &c, he intends taking with him in the carriage, no allowance for luggage being made on any of the Italian railways. The charge for luggage is lire 0.033 per quintal for every kilometre (⅝ of a mile) of distance, or about three halfpence per pound for the journey from Brindisi to Turin, occupying twenty-five to twenty-six hours. For persons with any considerable amount of luggage this will be found to add at least one-sixth of the personal fare to the cost of the journey. A receipt, specifying the number and weight of the packages, is given by a booking clerk to the passenger on payment of the charge for luggage, and the packages thenceforth pass into the hands of the railway employés until claimed at the point of destination. A railway omnibus conveys passengers gratuitously to the end of the quay, where, by means of a line of rail extended from Brindisi station expressly for this purpose, the mail train is found drawn up. With as much despatch as possible passengers are accommodated with seats under the eyes of an admiring crowd of smart Italian officers, a priest or two, and a host of loungers; the guard at length blows his horn and shouts his warning partenza once or twice, and the Overland Mail is off.

Before continuing our description of the homeward route, it may be useful to mention that a good-sized and apparently clean hotel—the Great East India Hotel, under the control of the South Italian Railway—is now open in immediate proximity to the Custom-house; but the experience of one of our correspondents at this place is such as to justify us in warning our readers against overcharge. Two routes for the homeward journey will suggest themselves to the traveller on arriving at Brindisi. The direct journey northward to Turin has already been adverted to; but many passengers will doubtless choose to avail themselves of the opportunity of visiting Rome and Naples, passing northwards subsequently by the way of Florence. For the benefit of this class we may mention that ordinary trains leave Brindisi once or twice daily for Foggia—distant about 146 miles—where a junction exists with the Naples line; or passengers taking the overland mail express can leave the train at Foggia and proceed by the ordinary trains from that point. Fares, first-class, from Brindisi to Foggia, lire 25.75; from Foggia to Naples (six hours by express), lire 21.80. The South Italian Railway conducts the passenger only as far as Bologna—a journey of eighteen hours from Brindisi—where connection is made with the Upper Italian Railway lines, by which either Florence, Milan, or Turin may be reached. The country between Ancona and Bologna is highly interesting, with charming views of the Appennines, and a richly cultivated country extending between their base and the sea. The railway service is admirably conducted, and at all the principal stations excellent refreshment rooms are found. The charge for an abundant and well-cooked meal is ordinarily four francs, including a bottle of wine; for coffee, rolls, and butter, one franc. From Bologna to Turin the journey occupies between six and seven hours, the entire distance lying through scenery of the most charming description, the fertile plains of the Duchies and of Lombardy stretching on either side of the line throughout its entire course, save where interrupted by stately cities and historic fortresses, which are passed in rapid succession.

On arriving at Turin, where passengers who have come straight from Brindisi will invariably require to pass the night, the Grand Hotel, a fine and well-conducted establishment, will be found immediately opposite the railway station, where also omnibuses for other hotels stand in waiting on the arrival of the trains. The luggage will be delivered up on presentation of the ticket issued at Brindisi, or the whole or part of it may be left in deposit at the station, a charge of 10 centesimi (one penny) being made for each package per diem. Two lines of travel homewards from Turin next present themselves. The route across the Brenner Pass and Cologne may be chosen, but the majority of passengers will doubtless prefer the more direct and expeditious line via Mont Cenis and Paris. According to present arrangements, there is but one express train daily from Turin to Paris, taking its departure at 9 A.M., and reaching Paris at 6.55 A.M. on the following day. The fare, first class only, is francs 102.25, or about £4 2s., and gold only is accepted in payment for railway tickets on this line, the transit being in the hands of a French company. For luggage, all weight must be paid for as far as the French frontier, from which point to Paris the French allowance of 30 kilogrammes (66 pounds), is made for every first-class passenger. Excess weight is charged for at about the same rate as in Italy.

It does not enter into the scope of our present intentions to dilate upon the character of the scenery passed through during the delightful journey from Turin to the Mont Cenis Tunnel, this having been already sufficiently dwelt upon in our columns, and we confine, ourselves, therefore, to giving some detailed particulars concerning the line of travel. It will be well for passengers, especially those with much baggage, to repair in good time to the railway station at Turin, the departure side of which is on the opposite face of the vast block of buildings constituting the terminus. Here, if luggage has been left in deposit, the passenger should entrust his baggage-ticket to one of the railway porters, each of whom has his number legibly displayed on his cap, and at once proceed to take his railway ticket for Paris. This being secured, he will be rejoined by the porter, who will attend with him to the weighing and registration of his luggage for Paris, paying for excess weight, &c. All Italian paper money should be got rid of before leaving Turin. We would strongly recommend travellers to encumber themselves with as few packages to be carried by hand as possible, in view of the difficulty encountered in changing carriages at Modane on leaving the Tunnel. The train arrives at Bardonnechia at 12 3 noon, and occupies some twenty-eight minutes in its passage through the great Tunnel (the course being downhill). A short run after reaching the opposite mouth of the Tunnel (the passage through which is unattended with the slightest inconvenience) brings the train to the station of Modane, where the Italian carriages stop. Passengers are required to produce their portable articles for inspection by French Custom-house officers, and passports are demanded from all except British subjects, who, at the same time, will do well to be prepared with some proof of their identity in case of need. Ample time is allowed for refreshment before the French train takes its departure, about three quarters of an hour after the arrival at Modane, although, owing to the change from Roman to Paris time, the hour of departure (12.45) is apparently the same as that of arrival.

Leaving Modane, as above stated, the train passes through the mountain defiles of Savoy, by Chambery, Aix-les-Bains, and Culoz, into the vine clad hills of Burgundy, arriving at Macon at 8.15 P.M. A stoppage of nearly forty-five minutes here gives time for an excellent supper in one of the best refreshment stations in Europe, after which passengers will settle themselves as best they can for a comfortable night's repose. On reaching the Lyon et Mediterranée terminus at Paris on the following morning at 6 55, passengers will be required as usual to wait in the Salle d'Attente until the luggage has been marshalled in the examination room, and after passing the Customs' inspection, trunks are given up on production of the luggage ticket.

To sum up, we may state that, in round figures, the railway fares from Brindisi to Paris amount to about £9, to which from £2 to £3 must be added for the first-class fare from Paris to London. Hotel expenses may be estimated at from f.16 to f.20 per diem, and the same allowance should be made while travelling for refreshments, vehicles gratuities, &c. Persons requiring a coupé carriage, containing four seats, can procure the same (unless forestalled) by application to the station master at any principal station. For this privilege between Brindisi and Bologna ten francs per seat extra is charged in excess of the first-class fare. For particulars on this and many other subjects we would refer our readers to the Indicatore Ufficiale delle strade ferrate, etc, del Regno d'Italia—the "Bradshaw" of Italy—a monthly publication, to be had (price one lira, or franc) at all the principal stations. This, with the "Continental Bradshaw" (imperfect as the latter publication decidedly is), will be found almost indispensable by travellers over the routes we have traced.

Monetary and Commercial.

The report of the Ceylon Company (Limited), to be presented at the meeting on the 18th inst., states that the net profit for the year, including £4,267 brought forward, amounted to £51,062, and recommends a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax. This, with the interim dividend paid in December, the interest on debentures, and £5,000 carried to reserve, will absorb £50,007, and leave £1,055 to be carried forward. The crop of coffee from Ceylon, season 1871-72, now in course of realisation, of which the result will appear in next year's accounts is exceedingly small; but that which is now ripening (1872-73) promises to be far above the average. The sugar crop in Mauritius for the past year, although not so large as was at one time expected, has been a fair one, and the result is satisfactory. That for the present year will, it is anticipated, be even more so.

The annual report of the Colonial Company states the net profit for the year at £75,205. From this two ad interim dividends of 10s. per share have been declared, and it is now proposed to pay a further dividend of 12s. per share, making 32s. for the year, being at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax; £5,000 has been transferred to the reserve fund, making it £95,000—the balance of undivided profits carried forward being £21,888.

The directors of the Maritime Insurance Company (Limited) of Liverpool have declared an interim dividend for the current half-year at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum. The directors of the Merchants' Marine Insurance Company (Limited) announce that interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum for the half-year ending 30th June will be payable, free of income-tax, on and after 1st July.

Mr. Augustus Sillem, of Messrs. Anthony Gibbs and Sons, has joined the board of the Ocean Marine Insurance Company.

The Canadian Parliament has imposed a discriminating duty of 10 per cent. on tea and coffee imported from the United States, in consequence of the late action of the United States Congress in regard to those articles.

Sir Rowland Macdonald Stephenson, the chairman, and George William Brown, the former secretary, of the Ottoman Railway Company, have been committed for trial on the charge of conspiring to procure a quotation of the shares of the company in the official list of the Stock Exchange, by means of false representations.

Subjoined is an account of the quantities of the principal articles of imported merchandise subject to Customs' duties remaining in the bonded warehouses of the United Kingdom on the 31st of May, 1872, compared with the quantities in warehouse on the 31st of May, 1870 and 1871 :—

Bar Silver has again become flat, and the price has receded; the nearest quotation we can give is 60d. per oz., although transactions have taken place during the week at 60⅛d. per oz. standard. Of Mexican dollars the arrivals have been very small, comprising only about 9,000 from New York. Prices are firm, with an upward tendency, the last rates for old coin being 62¼d. per oz.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for May again show favourable results, though not of so remarkable a character as in some of the preceding months. The total declared value of exports was £20,771,303, against £19,099,880 in May, 1871, and £16,786,940 in May, 1870. The principal changes are again in metals, though there is also a very fair increase under some of the other heads. Among the leading items of improvement are the following :—Alkali, apparel, beer and ale, chemical products, coal, copper, haberdashery, hardware, iron and steel, linen manufactures, jute manufactures, machinery, silk manufactures, woollen manufactures, and "unenumerated articles." A decrease is shown in arms and ammunition; cotton yarn, 2½ per cent.; cotton manufactures, 1½ per cent.; earthenware, linen yarn, telegraphic wire, wool, and woollen yarn. The declared value of exports for the five months is £98,980,183 this year, against £82,379,737 in the corresponding period of last year, and £79,801,184 in 1870. In the list of imports wheat shows a falling off for the month of nearly 25 per cent., and cotton of 5 per cent., the reduction in the latter case being entirely due to diminished receipts from the United States.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

TEA.

The market has been very dull during the past week. The public sales which closed on the 6th inst. were followed by a small sale on the 7th (715 packages), and again by further sales of India and China Tea on the 11th (11,866 packages), at which most of the Teas were offered on importers' account to close invoices, the prices realised being much as at the previous large auctions of the 4th inst. Privately there have been a few purchasers of good common to fair red leaf kinds from 1s. to 1s. 1d. per lb., and also about 15,000 boxes of new seasons. New District Teas from Macao have been sold from 1s. 7d. to 2s. 2d. per lb., the later sales showing a decline of fully 1d. per lb. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 3,615,553 lbs., against 2,990,150 lbs. last year. The French mail steamer Ava, the arrival of which was reported on Friday, brings 4,400 boxes of new season's Teas from Canton.

Black. Red-leaf kinds: Siftings continue to sell from 4½d. to 6d. per lb., showing no change. Broken-leaf kinds remain as before; fair to good common have been rather firmer, also fair Kaisow kinds, and in some cases show ½d. to ½d. per lb. advance. In good to fine and finest Kaisows sales made have been at the decline last quoted. Pak Lin kinds remain without alteration. Black leaf kinds: There has been no improvement in the low qualities, either in demand or price. Fair to good common have been difficult of sale. Fair to good medium have been sold at public sale at the recent decline. In fine to finest but little has been done. New-make Canton kinds: Siftings have sold with difficulty at 3d. per lb. Common, of old season's, at 9d. to 10d. per lb. Fair to good 1s. to 1s. 5d. per lb., being previous reduced current rates. In new Teas about 20,000 boxes have arrived, and about 15,000 boxes have been sold, chiefly from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10d. for good to fine kinds; a few better parcels from 2s. to 2s. 2d. per lb. Oolongs, Souchongs, and Flowery Pekoes show no alteration, but there is still some inquiry for export for common Oolongs. Scented Teas: Canton Capers show no material change, but meet with a fair demand. Foochow kinds have sold rather lower at public sale. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds remain firm at recent prices. Foochow kinds have been fairly saleable at former rates. Uncoloured Japans remain firm at fully previous prices. Green.—The demand still continues good, and prices for all kinds are firmly maintained, whilst in better kinds of Twankay there has been some advance. Canton kinds, on the contrary, have been difficult of sale at rather lower prices.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular says, At the public sales (some 65,000 packages, 60,000 without reserve) held almost daily during the past fortnight, lower prices have ruled, and the range established appears to have imparted a better tone to the market, as during the past few days there has been decidedly more enquiry, and it is now practicable to sell Tea by private contract, which was not the case during the greater part of the month of May. The frequent telegrams from China relative to New Season's Tea advise heavy settlements; the latest, however, state that the markets have quieted down, and some difficulty in filling up steamers loading. In the export department business has been quiet to all parts, except to New York; but country green tea suitable for that market is very scarce. We understand an impost of 10 per cent. will still be levied on indirect shipments to the United States. The deliveries read well; but the stock, contrary to the general opinion, keeps over that of last year, the total export from China being over the original estimate.

SILK.

It being almost certain that the crop in France and Italy this season will be inferior both in quantity and quality to that of last year, business in Asiatic Silk has continued on a large scale, and the tendency of prices is still upwards. In China Silk a decided movement has at last taken place, and there is a good demand for all descriptions of Tsatlees at an advance in prices of 6d. to 1s. per lb., classic No. 3 having been sold at 28s. 6d. and Red Peacocks at 25s. 6d.; Taysaams on the other hand are comparatively neglected. In Canton Silk business continues active. Japan Silk is still very current of sale, and the advance in Mibash from the lowest point would average 2s. 6d. to 3s. per lb. Deliveries 1st to 12th inst. inclusive:—China, 1,073 bales; Canton, 411; Japan, 333; total, 1,817 bales.

According to Messrs. Arles Dufour and Co., of Lyons, opinions as to the result of the Silk crop have never been more fluctuating and contradictory. Even now it is difficult to ascertain the exact truth, but there is no doubt that all the rumours about the bad hatching and complaints during the various stages of the rearing, caused by wet weather, have been much exaggerated. In France yellow native seeds, that were rather plentiful, have failed more or less, and the outturn will, upon the whole, be inferior to the last; but in all other countries, Spain, Lombardy, Piedmont, Syria, and Brutia, where Japanese seeds were predominant, a good crop, similar to the last, is anticipated.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—PHYSICAL STRENGTH is all essential to success in the present day; a healthy man is a portion of the national wealth, a confirmed invalid loss to society. Weigh well these words. For the proper development and nourishment of the human body it is essential that the functions of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels be performed with order and regularity. Holloway's remedies readily ensure both. The powers of the stomach are greatly augmented, and good gastric juice secreted in abundance where this Ointment is diligently rubbed twice a day over the pit of the stomach. The Pills and Ointment enable it to extract all the food's nutritive matter, and to thoroughly digest most articles of diet.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The dates extend to 1st May. The outward mail of 8th March arrived on the 24th April.

It has been announced that the fares by the railway between Yokohama and Sinagawa are to be $1.50 for first class passengers, $1.00 for second, and 50 cents for third. It is evident that these prices are much too high; but, in view of the great pressure which a lower rate would cause on the first opening of the line, we may fairly presume that the fares are only provisionally fixed, in order to diminish such pressure until the Government feels fully confident of its power to deal with the large traffic it expects.

A trial trip took place on the railway, the train running between Yokohama and Sinagawa. The greatest speed attained was at the rate of thirty miles an hour. The result was, we hear from one of the passengers, very satisfactory, though the Japanese officials betrayed a little ignorance, which, however, will disappear with practice

It has been rumoured that the Government has given permission to the Yedo Shosha to negotiate for the shipment of from 500,000. to 800,000 piculs of rice to China, and that arrangements have been made with a mercantile firm to transact this business on the footing of their accepting a share in the transaction. We have authority to contradict the latter part of this statement, the house in question merely acting as the agents of the Government in doing its business. At the same time, it appears to us that as the Government has abrogated the restrictions upon the export of rice, the trade should be thrown open to its own merchants and those of all foreign Powers. It is opposed to the spirit which should animate a Government to make private arrangements of this nature, even if it be not contrary to the obligations of the treaties, a question which the foreign representatives will do well to consider. In regard to the quantity which it is proposed to ship, we should regret giving currency to rumours calculated to produce unnecessary fluctuations in the southern markets, and may therefore remark that the estimate of the shipments about to be made is very hypothetical.

The Japanese steamer Chili, which arrived at Nagasaki from Yokohama and Hiogo, brought back to this port forty-one native Christians. These people, who have come from Yedo, are a portion of those who were deported from Urakami. We hear that they, like those sent back a short time since, are to be allowed religious liberty.

A few of the 20 cent pieces of new coinage have been sent to us for inspection, with a view of showing that besides a considerable discrepancy between their respective weights, some of them are badly made. We shall admit at once that, as regards the coins sent to us, the complaints are well founded. There is a want of uniformity in the weights, while the milling in some cases is defective, either from its not being as regular as it should be, or from its exceeding the thickness of the coin itself, and thus leaving a bad impression both to the eye and the touch when the coin is carefully examined.

Information arrived from Hakodate that the steamer Tokei Maru was wrecked between Capes Esan and Blunt, on the south-east extremity of the Island of Yezo, about 20 miles from Hakodate. The steamer was laden with rice and provisions for 600 emigrants who were passengers by her.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices extend to the 5th May; the French mail from London March 15 arrived out April 29, and the following P. and O. mail of March 22 on the 3rd May. We take the following from the North China Herald:—

The report of the Municipal Council for the year just ending shows a rather striking difference between the estimated and the actual outlay, both in detail and in total. The Council have spent Tls. 239,076, against Tls. 211,836 passed at the last ratepayers' meeting, and have diverged to the extent of Tls. 81,808 from the detailed appropriations; that is to say, the accounts show an increase beyond the estimate, under various heads, of Tls. 54,524, while Tls. 27,284 have been saved under others, leaving an actual excess of Tls 27,240. The chief item of increase, Tls. 14,142 for roads, is one that the community will not regret, if they are satisfied that it has been judiciously spent; for the extension and completion of our street system is a pressing duty. The next large item is more apparent than real. Tls. 2,000 only were appropriated for the fire department, because that was the sum which the Municipality purposed to spend; it was known that the actual outlay would be greater, but it was anticipated that the insurance offices, which derive so great benefit from the institution, would contribute the remainder. And these did contribute a certain sum, which, subscriptions from the Taoutai and from various Chinese guilds raised to Tls. 4,681, leaving an actual surplus in Municipal expenditure of only Tls. 1,000, attributable to the Hongkew bell tower and the introduction of extincteurs. There is an increase of Tls. 3,796 in salaries and allowances, of Tls. 3,100 in stationery, advertising, and printing, and of Tls. 3,691 under the head of drainage. With regard to the estimates for 1872-73 the total expenditure is estimated at Tls. 237,606, against Tls. 248,675 in 1871-72, and against an anticipated revenue of Tls. 229,973, which is raised to Tls. 238,592 by the balance remaining in hand from the previous year. The Budget thus shows an estimated surplus of only Tls. 986, but as it includes an appropriation of Tls. 7,096 under the head of possible contingencies in Works, we may hope to find the new Council still with a good working balance, on the 31st March, 1873.

The annual meeting of ratepayers has been fixed for the 6th May. Notices of several intended motions have been sent in to the Municipal Council, and some lively debates are anticipated. The motions suggest a change in the wording of Art. IX. of the Land regulations, to enable dues to be levied on merchandise at the rate of one-tenth of one per cent. on the average value, according to such tariff as may be decided upon at the annual meeting of ratepayers. Another invites approval of the tramway scheme; another proposes to deal effectually with the Soochow Creek Bridge question, by instructing the Council to raise Tls. 15,000 by debentures, to build a new bridge; or, in case they are legally prohibited from doing this, to establish free ferries. Another probable subject of discussion is the erection of water works for the Settlement. Mr. Oliver, the Municipal Engineer, has taken occasion during his recent furlough to visit many of the more important water works in America and England, and has now laid an able report before the Council. Basing his calculation on a consumption of 1,000,000 gallons a day, he proposes three schemes; one to bring water from Feng-wan san, which would cost Tls. 514,814; one to bring it from near the Loonghwa Pagoda, which would cost Tls. 397,529, and one to take it from the Yangtzepoo, which would cost Tls. 299,386. The committee consider Mr. Oliver over-estimates the probable consumption, and fix on 500,000 as a more likely quantity. This would permit a decrease of one-third in the cost of all the works; but will it not be wise to leave a margin for increase, in dealing with such a place as Shanghai? Taking the Yangtzepoo scheme, on the reduced scale, they estimate an outlay of Tls. 208,000, a yearly cost of Tls. 35,800, and a revenue of Tls. 60,000.

The spring race meeting has been the great feature of the week, and, as one-half of the community habitually goes up country on the occasion, while the other half is intent on sport, we have not much other news to record. The meeting opened after a week of very uncertain weather, which had not been so favourable either for training as it might have been; but the racing was perhaps all the more interesting on that account, and the meeting generally a very successful one.

The s.s. Ulysses, which arrived on the 28th April, when about 130 miles out from Hong Kong, met with an accident to her rudder, but maintained her course by means of a temporary one. To steady her in the narrow limits of the river channel, however, she had to employ tugs, and was got up to her moorings without difficulty. It is creditable that she was brought here in safety with the rude but useful contrivance which replaced her lost rudder. This was a main boom, with a small anchor fixed to one end, forming a frame on which to lash a hatch cover, the whole making a huge yuloh, by which the steamer was steered. The Ulysses had her rudder and rudder-post knocked away by coming in contact with some part of the wreck of a steamer lost off Breaker Point a few years ago.

Some animated correspondence has passed in the daily papers with regard to the collision between the steamers Ava and Rona. An impression was conveyed by the statement of a person saved from the latter ship that the captain of the Ava had neglected any effort to save life from the sinking steamer. Captain Rousseau, however, replies that he had to attend to his own ship, which was so seriously damaged that he apprehended he might have to beach her, and that the Rona's people should have tried to save their comrades in the boats in which they escaped, whereas they sent these adrift.

The election of municipal councillors at Tientsin took place on the 24th April. The rules say not more than five nor less than three councillors shall be elected. Hitherto the land renters have been content with three, but this year four have been elected, it having been found from various causes, such as absence, sickness, pressure of business, &c., that three was an insufficient number to carry out with zeal and activity the wants of the community. The following are the council for 1872-73:—Messrs. J. A. T. Meadows, M. G. Moore, J. A. Cordes, H. Beveridge, and P. Kierulff.

A rifle match at Hankow, between six residents and six members of H.M.S. Ringdove, was won by the latter.

Puck, the Charivari of the Far East, has again budded under new management. The May number is now before us, and contains some capital hits.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 11th May. The outward (French) mail of 29th March arrived on the 9th May. The following items are from the China Mail:—

The Messageries mail steamer Ava was arrested by the sheriff on the 4th, but released next day, when she left with the mails; a protest has been made by the agent. The Ava-Rona collision case will be heard on Wednesday, the 15th inst. (The result we gave in our last.) Much interest is excited by a libel case between two prominent opium merchants. At a recent meeting of brokers it was unanimously agreed to adhere to the old rates of commission and brokerage in place of those fixed by the Chamber of Commerce. M. Geoffroy, French Minister to Peking, arrived here on the 9th instant. Complaints are made that coolie ships leave Macao without doctors on board. The rainy season has fairly set in. Arrangements are being carried out to ensure that China shall be adequately represented at the Vienna Exhibition of 1873. An Indian Baboo is on a visit to this colony. A reward is offered by Government for information leading to the apprehension of the persons who cut the submarine cable. The captain of the Hailoong, recently stranded, has been acquitted of blame. The steamer Douglas was totally lost on the 29th ult, on the Dioyu reef; all hands, cargo, and treasure saved.

Many misgivings have been floating in the public mind in regard to the opening of Hainan. The much-to-be-deplored death of Mr. C. D. Williams appears to have induced a general belief that, as the port was opened only at his earnest solicitation, so now no further demand will be made, and no further steps taken, until some other enterprising person expresses his willingness and desire to reside at Kiung Chow, under treaty stipulations. These misgivings we are in a position to dispel. We hear that Mr. Herbert Allen, at present Interpreter to H.M. Consulate at Foochow, is appointed British Vice-Consul at Hainan, and that he is now on his way to take up the duties of his post. The arrival of Mr. Hart to make the necessary arrangements on behalf of the Chinese Government is daily expected here; and we may hope this summer to see a regular line of steamers running between the colony and this interesting and, as yet, almost unexplored island.

The Indo-Chinese Sugar Company held their second ordinary meeting on the 7th May. The season 1871-72 did not realise the prospects presented in November last, chiefly on account of floods having destroyed a large portion of the crop.

It is announced that the Provisional Committee of the proposed Bank of China have decided on establishing it under the Companies Act of 1862, with a head office in London and Board of Management at Shanghai. The 31st August has been fixed as the last date for receiving applications for shares.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The dates extend to Sunday, the 19th May. The outward (P and O.) mail of 19th April arrived on the 19th May. The following summary is from the Straits Times:—

His Excellency has appointed two members of Council to fill the places of Messrs. W. R. Scott and W. Adamson, who have resigned. One is Dr. Little, who has held the same position before, and the other is Mr. Thomas Shelford, of the firm of Messrs. Paterson, Simons and Co. These appointments, we suppose, may be taken as an indication that the opening of the session is not far distant, though the date has not yet been announced. One measure that is to be brought forward early in the session is a Bill for regulating the local steam traffic by compelling the steamer to have certificated engineers and the masters to hold at least mate's certificates. Some such measure as this is needed, owing to the great increase in the passenger traffic and the increased size and number of steamers employed in it. The lighthouse on the North Sands, in Malacca Straits, is at last in a fair way of erection. Part of the iron work arrived here from England some time ago by the steamer Yangtsze, and the engineer and men to superintend its erection took passage for this from Rangoon by the last Burmah steamer, but we regret to have to add that the engineer, Mr. Young, died on the passage, after leaving Moulmein. This has caused an unavoidable delay, as the work must await the arrival of another engineer from England before it can be proceeded with. It is gratifying to know, however, that this much needed aid to the navigation of Malacca Straits is soon to be taken in hand, and we trust that before the end of the present year it will be completed.

The great want of a small coin currency, that has been so seriously felt here for years past, is at last being supplied. The steamer Enterprise brought out from London the first instalment of the new currency, $31 000 worth of 20 cent, 10c. and 5c. pieces, coined at the Royal Mint, which are now being issued from the Treasury at par. A further supply is expected when these shall have been exhausted, and a large quantity of copper coin is also on the way from England,—so that there is reason to hope the supply will be ample for all requirements. It is impossible as yet to form any opinion as to the reception these coins will meet with from the Chinese and native community, as but few of them have been put in actual circulation. We fear some difficulty will be experienced from the fact that the values of the coins are marked only in English figures, which are not understood by the great bulk of those with whom they must necessarily pass; had they been marked in the Chinese and Malay characters, it is evident that they would be more readily accepted.

The Salangore disturbances are, it seems, cropping up again, Rajah Mahdie and his adherents having succeeded in enlisting a number of men, and obtaining supplies from various quarters, and is at present in Johore, whence he readily manages to carry on recruiting in Singapore and its neighbourhood. The colonial steamer Pluto has made several trips lately to Salangore and other native States, though the result of her cruise has not as yet been made public. It is to be hoped, however, that we shall soon hear the last of this petty war in Salangore.

We believe the new arrangement made by the War-office places the Straits garrison under the command of the general in China instead of at Ceylon as formerly, and by the present mail steamer Major-General Whitfield came down from Hong Kong to make an inspection of the troops, the forts, the barracks, &c, in the colony. After a short stay in Singapore the General will visit Malacca and Penang. One result of his visit will probably be that the detachment of troops at Penang will be provided with barrack accommodation, which they sadly need. It would perhaps be well were one result of the General's visit to be an improvement in the principle of constructing the barracks at Hong Kong and in Southern China.

We have reason to believe that there has been some skirmishing at Deli, between two of the Sumatran chiefs. The Dutch man-of-war Banka, which left Penang, and another steamer was on her way with some 200 soldiers, and the traders here are satisfied that the Dutch will soon quiet the disturbance. Perhaps it is nothing new to say that the Dutch do not whine over such cases, but put down things with a strong hand.

Grey Shirtings: 7lb. and 8¼lbs., declined 2 to 3 candareens; 9¼lbs. of 8 candareens lower. Closing rates—7lbs. Tls. 1.73 to 1.76. 8¼lbs. Tls. 1.88 to 1.97. 9¾lbs. Tls. 2.60 to 2.85 per piece. White Shirtings: Small sales at former quotations. T-Cloths: in less request. Drills: No improvement. Jeans: Saleable in small lots at Tls. 2.29. Fancy Cottons: Very quiet and only retail sales practicable. Woollens and Worsteds: No sales of importance. Lead declined 1½ mace per picul, and not readily saleable at Tls. 4.80. Quicksilver: Weak at Tls. 82.00 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—The market had not improved. The northern dealers had shown considerable desire to purchase, but the prices they continued to offer had received little countenance from holders. Grey Shirtings: 65,000 pieces 8¼ lb. common chop at Tls. 1.88 to 1.90. 7 lb. cloth in fair inquiry at Tls. 1.72 to 1.73. Heavy Shirtings easier in value and in very limited demand. White Shirtings: Extra quality at Tls. 3.70, 66 R. Tls. 2.15 to 2.20, 64 R. Tls. 2.01 to 2.04, fine 60 R. Tls. 1.90 per piece. T-Cloths: Transactions neither numerous nor extensive. A parcel of Dewhurst's M.T. 7 lbs. had changed hands at Tls. 1.58. Drills: Considerable business at improved rates; the decline established at the opening of the market being almost wholly recovered, Tls. 3.10 refused for Mendel's "horse and jockey" chop; best Dutch changed hands to some extent at Tls. 3.10 per piece. Jeans in fair inquiry at Tls. 2.20 to 2.25. Sheetings: Market irregular, and quotations lower; second quality American sold at Tls. 3.78; English 14 lbs. at Tls. 3.10 to 3.12, and 15 lbs. at Tls. 3.12 to 3.15. Fancy Cottons: Trade trifling. Woollens: Market showed no change. Scarlet Long Ells C.P.H. sold at Tls. 6.40; Camlets, assorted, at Tls. 15 to 15½; Figured Orleans, at Tls. 3.90 to 4.5; Spanish Stripes at 60c. to 68½c. per yard—the higher figure being for extra fine cloth.

HONG KONG.—The market had been somewhat more active, but continued without strength or buoyancy. Dealers showed a disposition to make purchases of Plain Cottons, but offered prices below the demands of holders. Quotations were unaltered. The arrivals during the fortnight had added to the stocks, and the discouraging advices from the outports generally had led to a very restricted business. It is difficult to say when a change for the better is likely to occur, but the general opinion is that it will not be for some little time, as the Rice crop in the country is at present in a very uncertain position, and until the result is known, dealers will not care to increase their stocks to any extent.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—The arrivals with general cargoes during the fortnight are the steamers Sea Gull, Enterprise, and Colombo, from London, the Achilles from Liverpool, and the Drummond Castle from Glasgow. 39-inch Grey Shirtings: inquiry for 8¼lbs. limited at $.2.60 to 2.62½, a few sales of extra quality at $6.25; 7 lbs in demand at $2.20 to 2.22½, holders generally asking the higher quotation; 6 lbs. not inquired for; 45-inch, 8 lbs. wanted. 32-inch Grey T-Cloths in better request, and considerable clearances effected; 6 lbs. $1.72½; 7 lbs. $1.85 for common and $1.90 to 1.92½ for ordinary. 36-inch Grey Supers—No. 1 common, $1.95, Nos. 2 and 3 nominal. 36-inch White Shirtings—Low to medium, improved, and good business done; fine, dull and lower: 45-in in good inquiry. White Spots in moderate demand at $2.65. Camlets little inquired for, but firm. Scarlet Long Ells: 12 lbs. wanted at $7⅞ to 8. Scarlet Spanish Stripes held firmly for full prices. Brocade Lustres changed hands at 22 cents. Lastings in small inquiry at 42½ to 43 cents for assortments. Grey Yarn: 40s inquired for, and stock very small; sales at $132½ to 135; 30s out of stock and wanted, sales at $118. Turkey Red in small request at a slight decline; light Green in fair demand at $85 to 87. Iron is still firmly held; Govan flat bar offered at $3.60; small parcels held for $3.85; Nailrods quoted $4; Swedish flat bar in moderate request at $4⅛ to 4.20. Lead: Sales of L B at $5½, of common at $5.90 to 6.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had remained quite inactive, the settlements, almost entirely for San Francisco, amounting only to about 500 piculs. Stocks of old Tea were about 800 piculs, all of low quality, which was being held firmly above the views of buyers. Nothing reliable could be said about quantity or quality of the new crop. Quotations were quite nominal.

HANKOW.—Nothing of interest had become known concerning the new crop.

KIUKIANG.—Chest masters were expected to be on offer about the middle of May, and the Tea in bulk about a week later. Nothing definite was known of the extent of the crop, but everything was working favourably.

SHANGHAI.—The only transaction during the fortnight had been the settlement of 355 half-chests Shanghai packed Green Tea at Tls. 25½ proportion, leaving in stock 345 half-chests of similar class. Various reports were being circulated regarding the coming season. From some we are led to expect a very early crop, but the present has been a backward season for all produce, and it seemed probable that the bulk of first arrivals will not reach Hankow earlier than last season. From the Oopack districts we learn that purchases of leaf had been made in Soon-Yong at an estimated cost laid down in Hankow the same as last year, and it was thought that buying would be commenced in Young-Low-Toon and Chon-Sow-Kai on about the same basis. Advices from Ningchow report purchases at the equivalent of Tls. 40 to 42 laid down in Hankow, to which port the first and finest parcels of this class will probably be sent for sale, but we do not think buying would be general at such high rates. The best chops last year are said to have cost the teamen Tls. 35 to 36. From Hohow we have no news nor have we yet heard anything from the Shontam districts. It is said that the earliest pickings of young leaf had been made during rain, and that the sun drying process could not therefore be properly carried out; later, fine weather had prevailed, and prospects seem to be favourable for a first crop yield of good quality. Regarding Green Tea we have very little information. We are told that a large business will be done in both the Teenkai and Pingsuey districts, and probably at high prices, as much competition is expected. Teas from the latter country will, it is said, cost, laid down in Shanghai, Tls. 3 more than last season. Steamers are beginning to assemble here, preparatory to going up the river to Hankow, but there seems little anxiety to secure freight in advance.

FOOCHOW.—There are no late advices, owing to the loss of the coasting steamer Douglas.

AMOY.—Information had been received of the gathering of the new leaf and the commencement of purchases in the country at prices two taels over those of last year. Latest dates from Formosa reported the arrival of small parcels of the new crop at Tamsui, but no settlements had taken place. Opening prices for these Teas were expected to be high.

CANTON.—There had been a general buying of new season's Scented Teas, and a very large business had transpired. Canton District Congous: A few small parcels of light flavoury character had been taken at Tls. 24 to 29 per picul, but there was little demand for these, in view of the large quantity shipped from Macao. Scented Teas: The first purchases were made for immediate shipment per Hector and mail steamer, and teamen were enabled to command very full rates for the few lots available, but this demand being satisfied, holders had to moderate their ideas, but the bulk of the settlements had shown quite as good value as the early purchases of last season. The quality was thought to be preferable to last year's yield, as the Tea was of much more sightly appearance, and in cup quite equal to the former crop. Scented Capers: The first settlements were reported about the 1st of May, and since then purchases had amounted to 20,000 boxes. A large proportion of the musters shown had been much mixed with old and inferior leaf, and desirable parcels were more difficult to meet with than usual, and, judging from the musters already put forward, this crop was inferior to last season's. Of the finer grades there was a marked deficiency. The settlements had been mostly in the medium kinds at Tls. 24 to 28 per picul, and, considering the quality, prices were Tl. 1 to 1¼ per picul higher than the early purchases last year. Canton Greens: There had been no market settlements, but some contracts had been arranged, the terms of which had not been made public, and were supposed to be for the American market. The steamer Sunda was on the berth for London, but rate not yet fixed. The Hector took 5,700 boxes new season's, and the present mail steamer would take a further quantity. Settlements were as follows:—Country Congous, none; Canton District Congous, 2,500 half-chests, at Tls. 25 to 29; Scented Orange Pekoe, 15,000 boxes, at Tls. 25 to 35; Scented Capers, 20,000 boxes, at Tls. 24 to 34.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been quiet, and prices for Hanks and Hamatskis had receded about $10 per picul. The principal business had been done in Hank sorts, and a small amount in Taysaam and Oshu descriptions. The settlements amounted to about 600 bales. Stocks consisted of about 550 bales. The total exports to date for this season from 1st July had been 13,478 bales, against 5,741 for season 1870-71.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says:—Business in Silk during the past three weeks has been of little importance, settlements for that period only amounting to about 400 bales, consisting chiefly of yellow Silks and a few Re-reels. The total settlements now reach about 49,800 bales to all parts. Advices from up country give very favourable prospects for the new crop, the quantity of worms hatched being variously reported from 20 to 30 per cent. in excess of last year, and now well in the third stage; the leaf is also plentiful at moderate price, and although it is still too early to form any reliable opinion, many of the dealers predict an available yield of 60,000 to 65,000 bales.

CANTON.—Sample skeins of new crop were expected to be shown in a few days, and the product of the first crop would begin to arrive in bulk about a week from date. A few bales might be received in time to go by the French mail steamer leaving on the 18th May, but no large quantity would be ready for shipment before the next English mail of May 25. It was expected that the first crop of this season would be 20 per cent. larger than that of last year, but while the quality was reported good, the colour was said to be bad. No contracts for new Silk were reported, and consequently no idea could be formed of the probable opening rates, but it was expected that there will be much competition among foreign buyers. In Re-reels, contracts were reported at the following rates:—Kowkong No. 1, $500 per lb.; Mahang No. 1, $490; Seulam No. 1 $430; Hang Tang No. 1, $440; Punjum No. 1, $90; Waste Silk, No. 1, $85; No. 2, $70; Pierced Cocoons, $85.

PARLIAMENT.

COMMISSION OF THE "THALIA" FOR CHINA.

(June 17th.) Mr. A. GUEST (C) asked the First Lord of the Admiralty whether his attention had been drawn to the statement in the public journals that the Thalia storeship had been selected to convey a large number of supernumeraries to China, although her scuttles do not admit of being opened when at sea, and that the War Department on a recent occasion refused to recognise her as a vessel fit for the transport of troops, and if there was any foundation for the statement.

Mr. GOSCHEN said, in the first place, the Thalia was not a storeship, but a corvette of six guns, specially constructed to carry a certain number of supernumeraries, she having been designed, like her sister ship the Juno, to take the place of some of the old paddle steamers. The Thalia was a perfectly new ship, and had as yet scarcely done any service. She had not been selected to carry a number of supernumeraries, but to replace her sister ship, the Juno; and there had been no correspondence with the War-office on the subject of conveying supernumeraries. The lower deck of the Thalia was constructed precisely on the same principles as that of an ordinary frigate; her scuttles could be opened in the same weather, and the persons below would have the same amount of comfort or discomfort as the crew of an ordinary frigate.

THE PANTHAY EMBASSY.

(17th.) In reply to Sir S. NORTHCOTE (C.), who asked whether any communication had been received from the Government of India respecting a reported mission from Talifoo, Mr. GRANT DUFF (Under Secretary for India) said: In reply to my right hon. friend, I have to say that we did receive such a communication, and that the arrangements proper under the circumstances have been made.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Mr. B. COCHRANE asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether his attention had been called to the proposed increase of the dues levied by the Suez Canal Company, contrary to the spirit of the concession under which that company was established, and to the interest of British shipowners; if he was aware that the French Government claimed jurisdiction in all questions which might arise between those who used the canal and the Suez Company; and whether this claim was not entirely in opposition to the existing capitulations. The hon. member explained that when the canal was first opened the charge was £5 a ton for passing through. The tonnage was charged on the net tonnage, but a notice had been issued that it would in future be charged on the gross tonnage; and if it had been so charged last month, it would amount to £1,335,000, making a difference of £900,000, the principal portion of which would fall upon British commerce, because out of 101 vessels which passed through the canal last month, ninety-seven bore the British flag. He also pointed out that the French Government insisted upon all cases of dispute in which the rights of Frenchmen were concerned being tried in the French courts.

Lord ENFIELD said that the attention of Her Majesty's Government had been called to the increased charges, and from information received from Constantinople he could inform the House that the Porte were demanding explanations from the Khedive of Egypt on the subject. Her Majesty's Government were not aware that the French Government claimed any jurisdiction in the matter, but after what had been stated they would cause further inquiries to be made.

AMERICAN SILK INDUSTRY.

The New York Shipping List states that the California Silk Manufacturing Company, established in San Francisco city barely a year ago, has achieved so unequivocal a success that it is to be at once supplemented by another—the Union Pacific Silk Manufacturing Company, with a capital limited to $100,000. The first-named enterprise gives employment to forty operatives, and is capable of turning out $250,000 worth of goods per annum. The products are machine sewing silks, twist, tram, organzine, and fringes of excellent quality, for which a ready sale is found. The latest factory is to be devoted to the manufacture of ribbons, though, if deemed expedient, the production of dress silks may eventually be undertaken. The success of these pioneer factories cannot fail to have a wholesome effect on the silk-growing interest of California, in addition to their value in enlarging the scope of her manufactures. They will for the present, it is said, rely upon Japan and China for the raw material, until such time as the native article can be produced in ample quantity. The raw silk of Japan and China is obtainable free of duty, a privilege which, in consideration of the extreme tax of 60 per cent. on foreign manufactured silk, will afford the new factories very decided advantages for prosecuting the business. Indeed, the day may not be very remote when California will have the ability to fairly compete with Lyons, St. Etienne, and Basle in supplying the rest of the world with these high-cost fabrics.

The culture of raw silk in the United States, which some years ago promised well, seems to have been almost abandoned outside of California, the entire product in 1870, according to the census, having been but 3,937 lbs., against 11,944 lbs. in 1860. And of the production in 1870 California is credited with no less than 3,587 lbs. The decline has resulted from the general abandonment of the business in the States east of the Mississippi. Thus in 1860 Ohio reported 7,394 lbs. of raw silk, and in 1870 none at all; in 1860 Illinois reported 1,545 lbs., and in 1870 none; in 1860 Pennsylvania reported 163 lbs., and in 1870 only 1 lb.; in 1860 New York reported 259 lbs., and in 1870 none; in 1860 Virginia reported 225 lbs., against only 7 lbs. in 1870. The industry still has a foothold in some of the Southern States, Tennessee being credited with 153 lbs. in 1870; North Carolina, 95 lbs.; Kentucky, 45 lbs.; Mississippi, 31 lbs.; and Georgia, Missouri, and Louisiana each a few pounds. California alone has entered into the business energetically under the auspices of Chinese and Japanese immigrants who understand the culture.

AMERICAN SPECULATION IN TEA AND COFFEE.

The American Grocer states that since the Bill passed removing duties on coffees, a speculative clique of New York importers have advanced prices about 15 per cent., notwithstanding that the prices of the staple were 50 per cent. above the average at this season, and this with unusually large stocks at a season of the year when the demand is lightest. Teas have advanced nearly as much under the same circumstances. This is naturally surprising—continues the Grocer—to conservative merchants, and indicates that influences are at work which have no right to enter so largely into legitimate business, and which will produce results disastrous to the general good. It is not to be wondered at that we have strikes along the entire line of labour if capitalists aggressively put the price of articles of necessity so high as to be beyond the reach of the labourer. The combination of capital which expends its force on the tea and coffee market has had things pretty much its own way. It controls legislation in relation to these articles, and under pretence of benefiting the consumer, causes duties to be removed and gobbles what would otherwise help to support the Government. Not getting the Bill to their liking at first, they perfect it so as to exclude competition from Europe; their influence even extends to foreign countries where goods, which according to the law of supply and demand would otherwise come to our market, are purchased and held there until their gains can be realised on stock now here and the last cent fetched from the pockets of the consumers. We are glad to see that the Senate does not confirm the amendment to the free tea and coffee Bills imposing 10 per cent. ad valorem duty on tea and coffee imported via England to take effect at once, but allows teas and coffees to be imported from Europe free of duty until October. This will be a temporary relief, perhaps, and disarrange the plans of the speculators to a certain extent; but why impose this discriminating duty at all? This patching and cobbling in the interest of cliques is the strongest possible argument for the advocates of free rade doctrines.

A naval court-martial was held on board Her Majesty's ship Royal Adelaide, at Devonport, on the 17th inst., for the trial of Mr. Arthur Gore St. George Ponsonby, Supernumerary Navigating Lieutenant of the Ocean, on a charge of being drunk on the morning of the 17th of January last. Captain Wilson, of the Impregnable, was President of the Court, and Captain Hewett, V.C., of the Ocean, prosecuted. The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that on the 16th of January last, while the Ocean was lying at Galle, permission was given to the prisoner to go on shore to a ball given to the officers of the ship. The next morning, about a quarter to six, he came off to the ship in a native boat, and was observed to be asleep. A man was sent into the boat to wake him up and assist him over the ship's side, and afterwards he was taken down the main hatchway. Lieut. Joshua Cole saw the prisoner led through the ward-room by Mr. Lancelot, navigating midshipman, and considered him helplessly drunk. While the prisoner was in his cabin the witness heard questions asked him, but heard no replies. One of the witnesses, in answer to the prisoner, said the ship was rolling slightly when he came on board, and that it was awkward getting out of the boat. The prisoner's defence was that he was fatigued when he went off in the boat, having been playing croquet in the burning sun on the previous afternoon, and, having been in a close room, dancing for many hours, he fell asleep. He was not drunk when he went on board. He called his servant, who proved that he perceived no smell of drink on going into his master's cabin the morning he came on board. Captain Hamilton, of the Achilles, and Captain Hewett, both gave the prisoner a very good character. The Court, after a lengthy deliberation, found the prisoner "Guilty," and it having been officially known to them that he had been previously guilty of a similar offence on board the Adventure at Hong Kong in 1871, and taking into consideration that he had been warned and was on probation in consequence of such former offence when on his voyage home in the Ocean, they adjudged him to be dismissed the service.

COLONEL W. H. SYKES, M.P. for the City of Aberdeen, died on the 17th inst., at the age of eighty-two. The deceased joined the Bombay army as far back as 1804, and served with Lord Lake before Bhurtpoor. After gaining distinction in India, he quitted that country in 1831, and two years subsequently received the rank of Colonel. He was twice elected a director of the East India Company, of which corporation he was appointed deputy-chairman in 1855, and chairman in the following year. Colonel Sykes unsuccessfully contested Aberdeen in 1847, but was returned in 1857, and has since continued to represent that constituency. His name will be familiar to our readers from his speeches in favour of the Tai-pings, and his persistent introduction—not always with happy results—of Indian and Far Eastern affairs into Parliament.

THE steamer Fitzpatrick, which is now loading at Glasgow for Singapore, will, on arrival out, be employed in the local Straits trade. She was built in 1869 by the firm of Blackwood and Gordon, is 225 feet long by 29 feet beam, and 17 feet deep.

THE EUPHRATES VALLEY ROUTE TO INDIA.

The reports of Her MAJESTY'S Consuls, in reply to a circular from the Foreign-office requesting information concerning communication with India through Turkey, which have just been presented to Parliament, are singularly unanimous in recommending that great enterprise on the score of safety, practicability, and general advantages, including, of course, great saving of time. The questions of the cost of the construction of the line, which is estimated at from eight to ten millions sterling, and which Government should be responsible for the necessary guarantee, are no less important than the explanation of the undoubted benefits that would accrue from the new route; and it will perhaps be convenient if we commence by extracting some passages from the despatch from Sir H. ELLIOT to Earl GRANVILLE on these subjects, before we give a brief résumé of the reports of the British Consuls in various parts of the Turkish Empire.

Sir H. Elliot expresses his entire concurrence with the principles of the report of Mr. J. L. Haddan, the eminent civil engineer, and Director of Public Works at Aleppo. To this report we shall again have to refer; at present we take only that part of it which relates to the guarantee question. Mr. Haddan is clearly of opinion that Turkey cannot afford, and, indeed, ought not to be called upon to furnish this guarantee. His argument is this:—"It has been set forth that England, by endorsing Turkey's guarantee, enables Turkey to construct her railways at a lower rate. This is perfectly true, provided that the line in question was selected by Turkish interests and not by English, or provided this rule were applied to the whole system of Turkish railways. No one can deny that the Euprates Valley Railway, from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf, is essentially a British undertaking. In all the evidence given before the Committee of the House of Commons no one has ventured to assert that it will be beneficial to the Turks, beyond giving utterance to common-place observations as to civilisation. England is to risk nothing; to gain free transmission of the mails, passage to her armies at a low rate, and to have the capital (which will be essentially British) fully guaranteed. Turkey is to risk everything; the Customs duties of Alexandretta and Basra, the transit duty of one per cent., and to guarantee four per cent. on the capital. It is useless to conceal the fact that Turkey will have to pay the guarantee for many years to come." Turkey cannot afford to make such sacrifices even for the sake of England's friendship. "Were, however," proceeds Mr. Haddan, "the line to be undertaken on the same terms from Constantinople to Basra, instead of merely the British part from Alexandretta to Basra, both nations would be gainers. That the Turks know their own interests is certain, and judging from conversations held with influential persons, both in Constantinople and elsewhere, as also from the well-known wishes of the Sultan, and the rapid progress made on the Ismid line, I am morally certain that, by some means or other, the concession will never be granted, provided Asia Minor be not included in the scheme, a demand which, in common fairness, should be anticipated."

Mr. Vice-Consul Barker, who has resided for thirty-six years in various parts of the Ottoman Empire, says, "England ought to rejoice that there is a route open to her through Mesopotamia, 1,280 miles shorter than the Red Sea or any other route. The stories put forward of the obstacle in the way of the Euphrates line, on account of barbarous Arab tribes, are not worth the least consideration. The Arabs are more intelligent and better informed morally than the same class in any part of Europe. They are open to certain conventional notions of honour, never break their troth, can be trusted implicitly when once it is given, and their chiefs have complete control over the tribes." Though a railway through Mesopotamia as a route to India might not at first be productive of the greatest amount of income, the cultivation of grain, which can be grown so cheaply that no country at the same distance from England could compete with it at all, would increase a hundred and a thousand fold, and populous villages would spring up all along the line, as there is abundance of sweet water everywhere. 200,000 tons of merchandise still pass annually through Aleppo by camels and mules. This has been the real highway between the East and the West since the time of Alexander the Great. Calculating only 150,000 tons of goods conveyed by railway between Aleppo and the Sea, there would be a revenue of £225,000, by charging £1 10s. per ton instead of £3 and £4 now paid for camel and mule carriage. Deducting half for expenses, there would remain 8 per cent. on the capital of the first section between Seleucia and Aleppo, independent of passenger fares. There are not any natural obstacles at Seleucia, and the two "difficulties"—the want of a port, and the number of bridges required—can be got over with ease.

Mr. Consul Eldridge, of Beyrout, draws attention to the fact that the proposed line, passing through the heart of Arabia, would act as a trunk line to open up the country, and it would be easy to connect it with light narrow-guage lines with other places as necessity might arise. The advantages to the Ottoman Government would be very great; but, as the primary object is communication with India, Mr. Eldridge does not think it would be just to call upon the Ottoman Government to offer a guarantee greater in amount than as an equivalent to the advantages it would gain by the opening up of the country.

Mr. Vice-Consul Guarracino, of Constantinople, considers the Euphrates route as more practical and easy, and likely to yield satisfactory returns sooner than the Tigris route.

Mr. Consul-General Herbert, at Bagdad, believes the proposed line would be well worth not only the guarantee that may be sought, but the entire cost of the construction of the railway, whatever that may be. Had the Euphrates line been in existence at the time of the mutiny, England would have possessed the means of sending troops and military stores to Delhi in the space of a fortnight, and the insurrection might have been quickly suppressed. Colonel Herbert prefers the Euphrates to the Tigris route, and recommends the line surveyed some years ago by Mr. George Latham, C.E, who is now in Calcutta designing docks for the Hooghly. This line would pass from Alexandretta by Alepp, Bira (Birejik), Orfa, Nisibin, Mosul, Kerkuk, Bagdad, Kutul-Amar, and Kurna, to Basra. The Ottoman Government has from the first encouraged this line, and promised a convention, a guarantee, and every support. At the same time Persia would be brought nearer to Europe. As regards the port in the Persian Gulf, which should be made the terminus of the line, Colonel Herbert agrees with those who recommend the adoption of Kurayn (spelled variously Kuwayt, Koweit, Grane, &c.).

Mr. Consul Holmes, at Bosna Serai, and formerly Consul at Diyarbekir, thinks that if the line were carried to Birejik, where it would cross the Euphrates, it would be more likely to pay its working expenses, independently of Indian traffic, than by the valley of the Euphrates, as the former line would pass through districts inhabited by a comparatively orderly and industrious population, furnishing wool, madder roots, gall nuts, and cereals in large quantities, in which there is an existing trade capable of large extension. To the Tigris route, though somewhat longer than the Euphrates, Mr. Holmes gives preference, as possessing more promise of pecuniary advantages; but he is unable to furnish any statistics as to the actual amount of promise to be relied on.

Mr. Consul Palgrave prefers Colonel Herbert's line to any other scheme, for reasons which we have already extracted from other reports. As regards the only real difficulty—the guarantee—Mr. Palgrave thinks that it should be furnished by the British Government or the Government of India.

Mr. Vice-Consul Rassam, at Mosul, objects to the Euphrates Valley line on account of the undulating nature of the country, its liability to floods, and the sparseness of its population, and recommends a route through Mesopotamia to Bagdad, crossing the Euphrates below Balis, and so on to Nisibin and Mosul, where it crosses the Tigris, from whence nearly all the land it would pass through is comparatively level. The soil is very rich, but much of the land is waste, which would be put into cultivation if the railway passed through it. The country contains numerous villages, whose inhabitants are very industrious; there is no lack of labourers; there is, moreover, a rich mine of iron in Berwari, seventy miles from Mosul, and a very extensive forest near the mines.

Mr. Consul Rogers, at Cairo, recommends that a new harbour should be made near Tripoli, and that the railway, instead of stopping at the mouth of the Persian Gulf, should be continued on through Persia and Beloochistan to Kurrachee, and join the Indian railways. Mr. Rogers thinks the difficulties not so great as those which have been overcome in other countries, and likely to be very profitable to shareholders, if properly guaranteed and protected by the Turkish Government.

Mr. Consul Sandwith, at Canea, Crete, and formerly Vice-Consul at Hayfa, supports the proposal to make that town the Mediterranean terminus of the proposed line. The line would run to the north of Mount Carmel, across the Jordan, and through the great corn-growing districts of Hawran, crossing the Syrian Desert on its road to Bagdad. The direct route would be the straightest line from the Mediterranean sea-board to Bagdad.

Mr. Vice-Consul Sankey, at Kustendji, describes the gulf of Alexandretta as a safe natural harbour for vessels of large burden in all weathers, and the only place on the coast where no other harbour-works but a landing-pier would have to be made. The construction of a harbour and breakwater at Seleucia would be very costly, and the approach in bad weather dangerous. The Syrian Arabs and Bedouins are, however, a source of danger in the 'Anaza and Shamar country, and the line would require to be protected. The telegraph wire would be useful as heel-ropes for horses, and therefore too great a temptation for the Bedouins. Mr. Sankey recommends the telegraph should be carried underground, or laid in the bed of the Euphrates. The caravan owners are likely to unite to hinder the construction of the railway by preventing labourers from working, &c. Kindness and courtesy are especially enjoined towards the Arabs. English navvies and workmen are too apt to ill-treat, and their superiors to ridicule, them. N.B. (adds Mr. Sankey), an Arab would rather be beaten than laughed at.

Mr. Consul Skene, at Aleppo, encloses the report of Mr. Haddan, C.E., which we have already referred to. We have only now to add that the greatest difficulty in the scheme is the financial one. It is to be feared that capitalists will not be inclined to risk so much as will be required, even if backed by a four per cent. guarantee. The working expenses will be very heavy—at least six per cent. on the capital—as the whole of the staff, down to the lamp-cleaners, would have to be imported, the natives holding regular work in abhorrence. Having been many years in the country, Mr. Haddan has devised an economical railway, the cost of which would be no more than £1,000 per mile for a double line, while the average cost put upon the Andrew line is £9,000 per mile for a single line. It is more than doubtful that the possible traffic will yield a profitable return to the Turkish Government on such an enormous capital, or prevent actual loss, from the guarantee. Moreover, one year only, instead of five, would be required for the construction of Mr. Haddan's "Pioneer" railway, thus saving interest. Alexandretta being a port at which Russian, French, Egyptian, and Austrian mail steamers touch, very frequent mails to India will be the result; consequently light but frequent trains (like the Pioneer) will be more suitable than the mammoth structures in vogue at home. The works necessary for the complete drainage of the Alexandretta marshes are estimated at no more than £2,200.

Mr. Consul Taylor, at Erzeroom, while generally concurring in the opinions expressed in the reports from which we have already quoted, prefers Mohammura, a free port in Persian territory, situated on the Hafar (an ancient canal communicating with the Karun), to Basra or Kuwayt, by reason of its greater commerce, fertility, and healthfulness. The main line to be connected by the Roumelian line in progress from Constantinople, opposite Scutari, with the Austrian network, seems, of all others, the right one to take in hand. The physical difficulties that undoubtedly attach to it before entering Mesopotamia, though involving enormous outlay, cannot for a moment be considered in comparison with the immense commercial and political advantages, not to us alone, but common to all the countries it would intersect. The different stages, commencing at Scutari, would be Ismid (72 miles), Sabanja (24 miles), Lefka (55 miles), Angora (181 miles), Tusgat (146 miles), Siwas (140 miles), Malatia (111 miles), Gerger (75 miles); crossing the Euphrates into Mesopotamia to the left bank, Nisibin (160 miles), Peysh-Khabur (70 miles); crossing the Tigris to the left bank into Turkish Arabia, Mosul (90 miles), Bagdad (250 miles), Mohammura (360 miles)—a total of 1,734 miles.

Mr. Consul White, at Tangier, reminds us that, while there is no conflict of opinion as to the direction the proposed route should take when it once strikes the Euphrates, there has been a divergence of opinion regarding the point of the Mediterranean from which it should start. The ports of Alexandretta and Suwadyiyya (Seleucia) appear, however, by general consent to be the points which offer the greatest facilities. The objections to the former are its malaria, and the mountainous character of the country through which a railway would have to pass. It possesses a natural and capacious harbour, but it is exposed in winter to a strong wind from the mountains, the effects of which are severely felt by the shipping at anchor. Should the Bay of Antioch be selected as the starting-point of the proposed railway, the difficulties would be comparatively few, as it presents the only natural opening in the hilly country of that part of the coast of Syria. A safe and commodious port could be constructed under the shelter of Mount Casius. The climate is as healthy as any on the coast of Syria, the soil fertile, and the population industrious and quiet. If opened to commerce by a harbour and railway, Suwadyiyya would rapidly become again, what it was in former times, an important and flourishing seaport.

Mr. Consul-General Wood, at Tunis, who has had occasion to travel repeatedly through Asia Minor and the proposed routes, describes the three projects for connecting by railway the Mediterranean with the Persian Gulf, as—1. The Turkish project from Constantinople through Asia Minor to Aleppo, and by the Valley of the Euphrates to Bagdad and the Persian Gulf. 2. From Suwadyyiya (Seleucia) by the Orontes to Antioch, or from Alexandretta to Aleppo and the Euphrates. 3. From the Bay of Alexandretta to Aleppo, Orfa (Edessa), and the Valley of the Tigris to Bagdad. The last of these Mr. Wood considers to possess advantages which would more than compensate for its greater length (136 miles or forty-two hours). It would traverse a much more secure country, where the Turkish authority is more firmly established, and consequently possess more power to protect it.

Mr. Vice-Consul Wrench, at the Dardanelles, having resided eight years in Syria, is disposed to agree with those who condemn a South Syrian route. It is admitted that the substitution of Salonica for Brindisi as the European point of departure would effect a saving of some fourteen hours; but, if a Syrian port is to be reached, it would be found in practice that the economy of time would not be so great as anticipated, on account of the caution required in winter in navigating among the numerous islands of the Sporades that lie on the direct course. Could Smyrna be selected as the Asiatic terminus, the sea passage would be materially reduced, the navigation free from obstructions, and advantage might be taken of the existing railroad to Aydin, which might be extended to Aleppo. But whatever port may be now selected as the terminus of the proposed railway, involving an intermediate sea voyage and consequent transhipment, it would be likely to be abandoned sooner or later for one by which those inconveniences would be avoided and time economised. Constantinople appears the natural point at which Europe should be connected with Asia by railway communication. It is on the direct line between England and India. The Bosphorus could easily be crossed in ferry boats without a bale being displaced or a passenger changing his carriage. The advantages of passing through a city of such importance are incontestible, and a vast extent of country, now shut out from European commerce, but fertile and abounding in mineral wealth, would be opened up. Such a route would possess the further advantage of a greater amount of support and favour from the Ottoman Government than any other line.

POLITICAL ECONOMY IN JAPAN.

THE history of industry and civilisation exhibits no commercial phenomena so remarkable as the rapid extension of the trade and privileges of foreigners in Japan. We have so often recorded new instances of the advancing liberality and perception of the Japanese that it would be superfluous to refer again to it now. The editor of that useful magazine, the Phœnix, has, however, in the number now before us, put us in possession of the interesting information that reform in Japan was brought about by precisely similar machinery to that which was employed in this country in the cause of free trade. The last number contains the first part of a "Conversation on Commerce," which answers precisely to the pamphlets by which the Manchester League educated our countrymen and converted their opponents for many years prior to 1846. The translation of the present "Conversation" is the work of the late Mr. J. O'DRISCOLL, and bears prima facie evidence of the fidelity of that Japanese scholar. The persons who take part in it are one GWANROKU (Obstinate) and his friend, SAISUKE (Clever). Of course in a production of this kind the arguments run all one way. The obstinate Protectionist—or rather, Exclusivist (if we may coin the word)—sets the ball rolling by expressing his disappointment that the "hairy foreigners" have not been driven from the country, as he fondly hoped three or four years ago, but that, on the contrary, they are taking so large a quantity of Japanese produce that the price of everything is three or four times as high as it used to be. GWANROKU, under the thin veil of whose appellation Japanese politeness has evidently hinted at the unconverted reader, further asks why, as Japan contains in itself everything that is necessary for its support, and as it continued to prosper during 2,500 years under the old system, that system should be done away with. Here it must be confessed (in parenthesis) that our "clever" friend has us at a disadvantage, as well as his "obstinate" antagonist; for we were certainly not prosperous at the time of the repeal of the Corn Laws, and, in fact, it was the pressure of general distress and want which made their abolition a necessity. SAISUKE, however, boldly accepts the conditions on which his opponent (who modestly calls himself a "worthless old dotard" in quest of instruction) has founded his argument. Somewhat after the manner of FADLADEEN, in "Lalla Rookh," who declared that, in order to form a just opinion of any one poem, it was necessary to review all the poems that had ever been written, our "clever" friend treats us to a complete history of commerce from that rather uncertain period, "the first dawn of civilisation." We need not bore our readers with his arguments. Suffice it to say that they are clear, well-arranged, forcible, and advanced with great tact; and that, so far as the reader is permitted to see at the close of the first chapter—when the parties adjourn for the excusable recreation of "taking a smoke"—GWANROKU has not a leg to stand upon, although it is clearly understood that that personage by no means admits that he is vanquished.

The most interesting characteristic of this contribution to our knowledge of Japan is its corroboration of the contrast, to which we have so often drawn attention, between the literati of Japan and China. In the latter country all their influence has been to obstruct, to misrepresent, and to confuse the multitude; in the former the educated classes have always set themselves to diffuse information, and to reconcile the people to advanced reform by removing their prejudices against it. It is a humiliating, though unconscious, reflection by the East on the West, that, at the very time when a majority of the French seem determined to repudiate their and our Treaty of Commerce, the Japanese Government should be thus anxious to convince the people of the value of unrestricted commercial intercourse with foreigners. If the individuals at the head of the Government cannot always march abreast with the improving spirit of the age, it is at least to be wished that they knew the rate of progress at which the nation, whose affairs they undertake to administer, is advancing. This is precisely what the Japanese apply themselves to do, and the Chinese to ignore. The people are often accused of being supine, indifferent, and prejudiced. This may be a matter of question, but about their prosperity or poverty there can be no doubt whatever. The Japanese, in the flush of prosperity, are educating the people to make that prosperity permanent; the Chinese, in the face of adversity and distress, are clogging the wheels of commerce for which the people are pining. But distress is the quickener of discontent as well as the parent of reform—and the days of Chinese obstructiveness will be numbered as soon as the nucleus of an association there can be formed for the purpose of disseminating advanced thought like that contained in the "Conversation on Commerce."

THE PANTHAY MISSION.

MR. GRANT DUFF'S (Under Secretary for India) answer to Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE'S question on Monday night, on the subject of the Embassy from Talifoo, will be deemed disappointing by all who are interested in the political condition of China. The most casual reader must have observed that the reply was framed with the obvious intention of mystifying the House, and through it the country at large. No one would have supposed from the answer vouchsafed that the Panthay Envoys had already been in communication with the India Office, and that at that very moment they were taking their ease in quarters provided for them within a mile of Westminster. No doubt it will save the Government a good deal of immediate trouble if they can put off inquiring members in the House of Commons, and can quietly get rid of their, from their point of view, inopportune visitors without allowing the attention of the public to be attracted to them. But is this a statesmanlike way of considering an important question which has been brought before them, and especially one which, unless it be thoroughly ventilated, will be probably very much misunderstood? The Chinese Government may rest assured that our Government will not commit themselves to the schemes of the Panthays in opening up for us the Western China route. The information available on the subject of the Mahommedan movement in Yunnan is so fragmentary, and is to be arrived at only through so many different channels, that it may well be doubted whether the Government is, at the present moment, in a position to form a sound opinion on the true merits of the case. A debate in Parliament would probably throw considerable light on the subject, and it is much to be hoped that the question will go through some such elucidating process.

BY a telegram from Constantinople it appears that the Porte has requested the Khedive of EGYPT to suspend the intended increase in the tariff for the navigation of the Suez Canal. From the answer given by the President of the Board of Trade to Mr. NORWOOD we may conclude that our shipowners have not to thank the British Government for any action contributing to this result, although the British flag has by far the largest stake in the matter. Mr. CHICHESTER FORTESCUE is so indefatigable in the affairs pertaining to his department that we are surprised that he did not see the necessity of at least making an attempt to stop the introduction of the increased rates.

WE understand that the reason which induced the captain of the Messageries steamer Ava to land the mails and passengers at Toulon was not on account of the risk of quarantine, but to save the mail train for London, which could not have been done from Marseilles.

THE BILL OF LADING QUESTION.

The Committee of Merchants trading with the East, which was appointed some time since to consider and amend the conditions of Bills of Lading by steamships passing through the Suez Canal, have brought their labours to a close, and have issued a report. The Committee consisted of Mr. James MacAndrew, Chairman (Messrs. Matheson and Co.); Mr. G. Arbuthnot (Messrs. Arbuthnot, Latham and Co.); Mr. Wm. Broughall (Messrs. Broughall and Co.); Mr. W. H. Crake (Messrs. Crawford, Colvin and Co); Mr. Lancelot Wm. Dent (Messrs. Dent, Palmer and Co.); Mr. Horace Farquhar (Messrs. Forbes, Forbes and Co.); Mr. John Fleming (Messrs. Smith, Fleming and Co.); Mr. E. Halton (Messrs. T. A. Gibb and Co.); Mr. F. W. Heilgers (Messrs. Wattenbach, Heilgers and Co.); Mr. John E. Ralli (Messrs. Ralli Brothers); Mr. George Ross (Messrs. James Wyllie and Co.); Mr. S. L. Schuster (Messrs. Schuster, Son and Co.).

THE OUTWARD BILL OF LADING.

The Committee commenced by seeking the co-operation of steam ship owners in arriving at a common understanding upon the subject. A meeting of the latter body was called in London, and a Committee, of which Mr. C. M. Norwood, M.P., was Chairman, was appointed to concert terms with the merchants. The two Committees addressed themselves in the first instance to the examination of the Bill of Lading Outwards, and after prolonged discussion and a series of compromises on both sides, the "Eastern Trade Bill of Lading Outwards" was agreed upon, and published in three forms, slightly varied to suit different voyages, viz. :—

No. 1.—For an ordinary voyage to the east direct, or trading at intermediate ports. No. 2.—For a voyage to India, trading at Colombo, Madras, or other open roadsteads on the Malabar or Coromandel Coasts. No. 3.—For a voyage involving transhipment, the steamer not proceeding to the port for which she accepts cargo, such as Rangoon, Batavia, or Japan.

The new form came into immediate use; and it affords the Committee much gratification to testify that it has been very generally accepted, not only in London, but in Liverpool and Glasgow also, and has proved a useful and successful document. One exception to its universal use is the Liverpool line of steamers to the Straits and China, known as Holt's line. The Committee in their circular of Jan. 20 recommended that as far as practicable shippers should require that the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading be used by any steam vessel in which they engaged to ship goods via the Suez Canal. Had this recommendation been more generally acted upon, there is no doubt that the managers of Holt's line would have ere now adopted the new form; but if shippers of goods put it in their power by continued support of their steamers to decline compliance with the agreement accepted by all other private steamship owners in the trade, the efforts of the Committee to benefit merchants by the introduction of an improved system are so far frustrated. The Committee believe that the results of the agreement have been beneficial alike to shipowner and merchant, and that the advantages of uniformity of system have not been too dearly purchased by the compromises acceded to. If shippers entertain the same view, it rests with themselves alone to necessitate compliance by declining to ship in any line of steamers where the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading is not recognised. With the two great companies controlling the Overland Route, the P. and O. Company and the Messageries Maritimes, no negotiations have yet been entered into. There are many stipulations in their respective Bills of Lading which seem to the Committee to be very prejudicial to the interests of merchants; but it must be conceded on the other hand that their mail contracts, and the circumstance of their being essentially passenger lines, impose special obligations upon them, and render stringent conditions more necessary than in the case of other steamers. At the same time, when the vessels pass through the Suez Canal, as is now very generally done by the French, and occasionally by the English Company, the Committee see no good reason why a slight modification of the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading should not meet all the exigencies of the case; and it rests with shippers to take measures for bringing about an alteration in this respect.

The Committee regret that in the case of the Bill of Lading inwards they are unable to report an equally satisfactory result of their labours. It was agreed between the two Committees that the Bill of Lading outwards should be substantially followed with such verbal alterations as were required by the change of voyage, but that special clauses applicable to the port of London should be introduced respecting the delivery of cargo and payment of freight. The system of discharging ships at Liverpool and elsewhere is very different, and might require differently-worded clauses, which the trade of the various ports interested would have to adjust. It was soon found that on these clauses the two Committees were essentially at variance. As respects the delivery of cargo, the difference of opinion was not so wide as to preclude the hope of an arrangement, the merchants merely desiring to be protected against a surprise, by which their goods would be warehoused by the agents for the ship before they knew, or had the means of knowing, of her arrival. The following was the clause proposed by the Committee :—

One clear working day after the day on which the ship reports at the Custom-house, and is docked, is to be allowed for applications for delivery; and if thereafter the goods are not removed without delay by the consignee, the master or agent is to be at liberty to land and warehouse the same, or, if necessary, to discharge into hired lighters, at the risk and expense of the owners of the goods.

The clause finally proposed by the Shipowners' Committee was as follows :—

Twenty-four hours (Sundays and holidays excepted) after the ship reports at the Custom-house, and is docked, are to be allowed for applications for delivery; and if thereafter the goods are not removed by the consignee immediately they come to hand in discharging the ship, the master or agent is to be at liberty to land and warehouse the same, or, if necessary, to discharge into hired lighters, at the risk and expense of the owners of the goods.

As it is not customary or practicable in London to give Consignees notice of the ship's arrival except by publication of her report in the bill of entry the morning after it is made, the clause adopted by the Merchants' Committee seems decidedly the more reasonable of the two, especially as the hour of the ship's report is a point on which the consignee of goods cannot possess any evidence. Moreover, the bulk of the warehousing entries would certainly be passed within twenty-four hours, and the steamer's discharge be thus very rarely interrupted, while, if she landed the whole of her cargo on the dock quay, as is most usually done, no interruption at all could take place.

THE PAYMENT OF FREIGHT.

On the more difficult question as to the mode of paying freight some explanations are necessary. When the terms of the Bills of Lading now used run "Freight payable in London," "Freight payable on delivery," or even "Freight payable as customary," the shipowners contend that, according to the usage established by themselves since the introduction of steam vessels into the trade with the East, they are empowered to detain the goods on board, or in the dock or warehouse of their own selection, until the freight is paid in advance of delivery, or, what is practically the same thing, simultaneously with delivery. It will not be forgotten that this is precisely the grievance of which merchants have for years past complained, and to remedy which was one of their principal objects in organising a committee of their number. The Shipowners' Committee continue to maintain the above position, and their chief arguments for so doing may be thus expressed :—

I. That payment in advance of delivery is now the established usage of the trade. II. That it is necessary for their protection against the insolvent or fraudulent consignee of cargo. III. That it is unreasonable to expect them to follow goods to the wharf or warehouse appointed by the consignee, either for the purpose of collecting the freight upon them or ascertaining the correctness of delivery. IV. That goods in transit to the wharf or at the wharf may be plundered or damaged by the servants or agents of the consignee, for which, in the absence of distinct proof, the ship would be held liable. V. That a large proportion of the freight earned is expended in advance on coals, canal dues, and other charges peculiar to steamers, to which, therefore, immediate returns from their earnings are essentially necessary. VI. That to defer payment of the inward freight for thirty days would render it impossible for steamship owners to carry on their business, owing to the large increase of capital which it would call for.

To these arguments the merchants reply :—

I. That the present usage as to payment is of quite recent introduction, deriving any validity it has from the terms of Bills of Lading drawn up by shipowners themselves, and that so far from being established by common consent, it has been constantly objected to by consignees of goods. II. That the shipowner has a perfect protection for his freight in what is known as the dock or wharf stop, with which there is no intention of interfering, and by which the warehouse-keeper engages not to part with the goods to any one until he receives a release from the shipowner. To meet the rare case of insolvent or fraudulent wharfingers, the Committee were quite willing to concede that the shipowner might object to the goods being delivered into the custody of any such until his freight was paid. III. That to constitute proper delivery the consignee must have the opportunity of ascertaining that his goods are according to Bill of Lading, while the existing system does not afford this opportunity either on board ship or on the dock quay. The shipowner, therefore, cannot be absolved from following the goods to their final destination, as until they are there examined, weighed, and measured it is quite out of his power to render a freight account. IV. That this objection merely calls for an improved and less hurried method of taking the delivery account, as between the Dock Company, who are the agents of the ship, and the wharfingers, who are the agents of the merchants, and that the Merchants' Committee would gladly co-operate in the establishment of such an improved system. Cases of plunder could then be traced without difficulty to the parties guilty of them. V. & VI. That it is no part of the merchant's functions to provide capital for carrying on the shipowner's business; and that in London there can be no difficulty whatever in procuring money on so excellent a security as the assignment of a steamer's freight, payable in thirty days.

The Merchants' Committee have likewise to point out, that, as a matter of fact, the larger portion of a steamer's freight is voluntarily paid before her discharge, in order that the merchant may obtain possession of the freight release, especially in the common case of goods sold to arrive. They object, however, to be compelled to pay upon the shipowners' estimate of what the freight may eventually amount to, and before he has completed his share of the contract by the delivery of the goods. The term of thirty days has been fixed as the lowest average period in which the landing account of an ordinary cargo may be looked for, there being no desire on the part of the Committee to delay payment longer than may be requisite to ascertain the precise amount of freight, and the claims (if any) against the steamer for short delivery, ship damage, or other default.

Upon this divergence of views, the negotiation between the two Committees has been broken off. The only concession proposed by the Shipowners' Committee has been that delivery should be made on pre-payment of four-fifths of the estimated freight, instead of the whole. This suggestion, however, seemed to the Merchants' Committee to be just as objectionable in principle and inconvenient in practice, as the existing system, and it was not seriously discussed. They subjoin the clause as they have drafted it :—

Freight for the said goods at and after the rate of per ton of delivered is to be paid subsequent to the landing thereof by cash in London not later than thirty days after the ship's reporting at the Custom-house, or upon any earlier day on which a freight release may be required and received by the consignee.

while the wording proposed by the shipowners is as follows :—

Freight for the said goods at and after the rate of per ton is to be paid by cash in London, when the ship is ready to discharge.

The Shipowners likewise sought to re-introduce into the Bill of Lading inwards the exemption for damage by vermin, which by mutual consent had been expunged from the Bill of Lading outwards. They further proposed for the Committee's adoption the following clause :—

The Bill of Lading duly endorsed is to be delivered to the agent on demand after arrival, in exchange for the master's copy, and an order for the delivery of the goods.

On this latter it will be sufficient to observe that the Committee obtained a legal opinion, which was to the effect that the shipowner had no right to require the surrender of an endorsed or cancelled Bill of Lading until he had completed delivery of the goods comprised in it.

The Committee having devoted much care to the drafting of the Bill of Lading herewith, styled the "Eastern Trade Bill of Lading Inwards, No. 4," recommend it for adoption by merchants trading to the East, and would urge that they use their best efforts through their correspondents abroad to have it recognised and brought into use at the ports of shipment ; declining, so far as may prove practicable, to allow their goods to be shipped by steamers the owners of which continue to enforce the use of the old forms.

THE POLICY CLAUSE.

In the Committee's circular of 20th January it was recommended "that to ensure the benefit of a complete protection to sea risks, the policies taken out on voyages by steamer via the Suez Canal should cover the merchandise 'in terms of the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading.'" When this recommendation was brought before underwriters, the clause suggested was at once objected to as imposing upon them new and undefined liabilities. A meeting was held at Lloyd's on the 21st February, which resulted in the appointment of a committee, representing both the Insurance Companies and private underwriters, to consider the question further, and if possible to come to an agreement respecting it. With this Committee the subject has been very fully considered and discussed. The intention of the Merchants' Committee in their original recommendation was sufficiently evident from their expressing their object to be the more complete protection of the sea risks to which the Bill of Lading related ; but they are quite willing to admit that the language proposed for the clause was too wide and vague in its terms, and might have been interpreted as involving underwriters in some of the liabilities from which shipowners had by the revised Bill of Lading been specially exempted. In order to draft a clause more exact in its wording, the first matter to be determined was the precise meaning attached, both by the assurers and the assured, to the risks covered by a policy on goods which had been shipped under the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading. On this point the Committee are happy to state that they have arrived at a satisfactory understanding with the Underwriters' Committee, of which the following is an abstract :—

The underwriters' risk on the voyage named, calling at the intermediate ports named, is to include—Coaling at other intermediate ports not named ; taking in and discharging cargo while so coaling ; sailing with or without pilots ; towing and assisting vessels in all situations of distress ; loss or damage arising from the machinery or boilers ; dangers and accidents arising from the navigation of the Suez Canal ; any act, neglect, or default whatsoever of pilots, master, or crew in the management or navigation of the ship, provided the expression "management of the ship" shall not be held to include any act connected with the stowage or other dealing with the cargo of the ship not arising out of a sea peril. In addition to all risks comprehended and provided for in the body of this policy.

The underwriter is not to be liable for acts or default of the shipper unconnected with sea perils, such as insufficient packing, incorrect marking, improper description, absence of declaration for inflammable or dangerous goods, or insufficient declaration of value for specie and valuables.

The underwriter, however, is to be liable as heretofore for the consequences of sea damage or sea perils of any kind, such as leakage, breakage, sweat, rust, decay, when traceable to that origin, but not otherwise. Damage by coal dust when not mixed up with damage by sea water is to be borne by the merchant.

In case of the goods being placed in quarantine depot afloat or ashore previous to the final delivery to the consignee the underwriters' risk will continue until such final delivery, and will cover risk of boats to and from such depot.

In case of blockade the underwriters are understood to cover the voyage to the port of discharge selected by the captain as fully and effectually as to the port of discharge named in the policy, their liability ending with the landing of the goods at the former destination.

Should the voyage be extended beyond the destination named in the policy, as when the goods cannot be found, or from stress of weather cannot be landed, the underwriters are to be entitled to receive additional premium for the extra risk incurred.

It was agreed that it was unnecessary to embody the whole of this understanding in the policy, as most of it is universally accepted by underwriters. It is true that the legal construction of a policy of insurance would not go beyond its expressed conditions ; but after a recorded declaration of the meaning attached to it by the representatives of both merchants and underwriters, it need hardly be feared that the latter would contest a claim which clearly fell within the scope of the declaration. The efforts of the two Committees were therefore directed to framing a clause which should embody such conditions of the Bill of Lading as were not sufficiently protected by the ordinary practice of underwriters, and especially a deviation clause which would cover the deviations permitted in the Bill of Lading for coaling purposes, for towing vessels in distress, and for proceeding to another port in case of blockade. The following is the clause that has been agreed upon by the two Committees to be printed on a slip of paper and attached to the margin of the policy, when so required by the assured :—

The goods hereby insured being shipped under the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading No. , it is agreed that the terms of this policy shall apply to the following sea perils therein referred to, in addition to such risks as are already hereby covered :—1. All deviation of voyage provided for in the said Bill of Lading, with any risk of land carriage incidental to the voyage. 2. Sailing with or without pilots ; and any act, neglect or default whatsoever of pilots, master or crew in the management or navigation of the ship, improper stowage excepted. 3. All risks attending the goods by reason of their discharge into, retention at, and delivery from any quarantine depot afloat or ashore. 4. In case of the goods being carried on to a more distant port through stress of weather or because they cannot be found, the marine risk of the additional voyage as well as of the return voyage to their destined port, the assured agreeing to pay for such extra risk such premium as may be agreed upon.

It is only requisite to add that the Committee is now dissolved, as its functions terminate with the issue of this report.

THE INWARD BILL OF LADING.

The following is the form of the Inward Bill of Lading drafted by the Committee :—

This Company—the formation of which we lately noticed—has been re-constituted and registered as the "China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company," with a capital of £500,000, in shares of £25 each, the following being the first subscribers:—Edward Henry Green, 22, Old Broad-street, banker, 400 shares; Edward Munster DBussche, The Lawn, Ryde, Isle of Wight, steamship owner, 200 shares; William Wetmore Cryder, 86, Gresham-house, merchant, 200 shares; John Hudson, 5, Crosby-square, merchant, 200 shares; Paul S. Forbes, 86, Gresham-house, merchant, 10 shares; Willian John Alt, Woburn Park, Weybridge, Surrey, merchant, 240 shares; William Endicott, 28, Savile-row, merchant, 10 shares. The board of directors is not to exceed fifteen, and their remuneration is to be a sum equal to one per cent. on paid up capital not exceeding £10,000 per annum.

It is announced that, in compliance with the request of the authorities of the Stock Exchange, the register of transfers in the Anglo-Mediterranean, the British Indian Submarine, the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta, and the Marseilles, Algiers, and Malta Telegraph Companies will be closed from the 4th to the 24th of July next, for the purpose of enabling the directors to make the necessary arrangements for the exchange of shares for shares of the Eastern Telegraph Company (Limited), and carrying into effect the special resolution for amalgamation.

The British Australian Telegraph Company (Limited) announces that telegrams for Australia, Tasmania, and New Zea land will be accepted for transmission at all the Postal Telegraph stations throughout the United Kingdom. Such messages, however, will be sent out at the sender's risk until the land lines in Australia are finally completed.

It is notified that the interest on Great Northern Telegraph shares, at the rate of five per cent. per annum, will be paid on and after the 1st July.

The Realm Marine Insurance Company (Limited) notify that the transfer books will be closed from the 1st to the 7th July, and that interest warrants to the 30th inst. will be forwarded to the proprietors whose names are registered in the books of the company on that date.

The directors of the British and Foreign Marine Insurance Company (Limited) have declared an ad interim dividend of 6s. per share, free of income tax, being at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum.

At a meeting of the proprietors of the Imperial Ottoman Bank, the directors' report, announcing a dividend of 13½ per cent. for the year, was agreed to.

At the meeting of the Colonial Company (Limited) the directors' report was adopted, and a dividend declared for the year at the rate of 8 per cent.

Mr. J. Michael, in a letter to The Times, referring to the announced increase of charges by the Suez Canal Company, says:—

It behoves the shipowners to protest most strenuously against any alteration whatever in the dues or the mode of collecting them, and, in fact, against any deviation from the implied contract between themselves and the Company. If once a change is allowed to be made in the interpretation of the concession, as adopted by the company, and if the shipowners quietly submit to such change, there is no telling to what extent they will not hereafter be taxed, in order to raise the money requisite for interest on the expended capital, the amount of which is well known to have been unnecessarily large for the completed work. The remedy, however, I suggest is in the hands of the shipowners themselves, and I beg to recommend their uniting at once with those able to obtain a concession, and with English capitalists willing to subscribe for the construction of a new and more convenient canal. At first sight the enterprise may seem to be extraordinary and hazardous, but in reality, on full examination, it will be found to be simple, the construction comparatively easy and rapid, and at a cost of only one-third of that of the present canal. Thus a commercial success may be looked for from the present toll, and even from English shipping alone. I venture to recommend that shipowners should at once send protests against any increase in the dues to the company at Paris and to the English Consuls at Suez and Port Said, against the alteration proposed to commence on the 1st of July next, and also that a committee should be formed to take such steps as the circumstances require in this detail, and for any other proceeding which may be found necessary. I shall be ready to give the benefit of the information, drawings, &c., which I have procured, to any shipowners who may be interested in this very important and pressing question.

The Messageries Maritimes steamer Ava, drawing 21 feet, accomplished the entire passage through the Suez Canal in thirteen hours.

The Rollo, which put into Singapore for repairs and remained there about two months, has at last arrived. The Neville is the only vessel which has now to arrive with old season's teas.

The P. & O. steamer Cathay, Captain Dundas, had her trial trip yesterday, and proceeded round the Isle of Wight. She attained a speed of over 13 knots at the measured mile. A large party of the directors and shareholders were on board.

The half-yearly interest due on the shares of the Amoor River Company is announced payable by Messrs. Schroeder and Co.

The price of Bar Silver is unchanged from our last quotation viz.:—60 1-16d. per oz. standard. The demand has been exclusively for the Continent. No Mexican Dollars have arrived; the last quotations are 62¼d. per oz., for the Old Coin, and 59¾d. per oz. for the New, but the market is quiet. A large amount, stated to be $4,000,000, has been despatched from the interior of Mexico for shipment after 1st July, when the reduced export duty of 5 per cent. comes into operation.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Candia, which left Southampton on the 20th inst., was in gold—to Madras, £10,223; to Galle, £70; in silver—to Shanghai, £3,275; to Hong Kong, £5,600; to Penang, £6,380; to Singapore, £2,600; total, in gold, £10,293; in silver, £17,855.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The demand has been rather on an improved scale during the past week, the reduction in prices recently established having caused an increased inquiry. Privately, there has been more disposition to buy, whilst the large public sales now closing have gone steadily at quite previous prices. There have been further arrivals of new district Teas, from Macao, comprising about 16,000 boxes, but they have not been so readily saleable even at a further reduction in price. On the 14th inst. 1,358 packages were offered and sold without reserve, and on the 18th 22,987 packages were brought to sale, of which 21,935 packages were offered without reserve. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 3,322,524 lbs., against 2,923,204 lbs. last year.

Black: Red-leaf kinds: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds have realised previous prices; fair to good common have been steady, with a moderate demand; fair to good Kaisows have been sold at the decline last quoted; in fine to finest we hear of no transactions. Pak Lin kinds remain as before. Black-leaf kinds: The low to fair common kinds have been dull of sale at former prices; good common have been neglected; the sales of fair to good medium have been to some extent, chiefly at public auction, prices showing steadiness; a few fine have been sold at former rates; in finest but little has been sold. New make Canton kinds: Old season's have been sold at the heavy decline lately established; in new, further supplies, including the 4,400 boxes per last (French) mail steamer, have been difficult to sell at a decline of 1d. per lb., good to fine realising 1s. 5d. to 1s. 11d., whilst some large parcels are still unsold. Oolongs have been wanted for export. Souchongs have sold at public sale at rather lower prices. In Flowery Pekoes there has been no business of note. Scented Teas: Canton kinds show no material change. A few finest, received lately, have realised extremely high prices. Foo Chow kinds have been without alteration. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds meet with a fair inquiry at previous rates. A few small parcels of extra fine, just to hand, have been sold from 2s. 5d. to 2s. 7d. Foo Chow kinds have sold at previous prices. Uncoloured Japans have been in fair request at former rates. Green: There is no change of importance to record; the demand for Export is still good, especially for Young Hysons, and prices for all kinds have been firmly maintained; Canton kinds remain difficult of sale.

On Thursday, the 20th, there was a public sale of 5,081 packages, 4,800 packages being without reserve. The bulk consisted of red leaf siftings on account of the importers, which sold at easy rates. 1,900 chests and half-chests red leaf Congou, per Teviot, Glaucus, and Reigate, all sold; siftings 4d. to 6d., broken leaf 7¾d. to 8d., low common 10½d., fair 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d. 1,051 half-chests red leaf, per Ajax, without reserve, sold, broken and leafy 8d. to 8½d., common 10¾d. to 11½d., a few lots fair 1s. 1d. 300 boxes read leaf, per Sarpedon, 1s. 3¾d. to 1s. 4½d. 213 half-chests Ningchow, at 1s. 2¾d.

SILK.

A good business continues in all Asiatic Silks, and prices are everywhere very firm, with an occasional slight advance during the last few days. Chinas are 6d. higher, good "Red Peacocks" selling at 26s., and best chop 3rd Tsatlees at 28s. 6d. to 28s. 9d. Cantons are very firm at last quotations, with more inquiry for the better classes of Tsatlees. Japans continue in active request at a further advance of 1s. for best Mybash and Sinchew. The periodical public sales commenced on the 19thi nst., and are concluded. The quantity offered was about 1,700 bales Bengal Silk, 2,300 bales China, 1,590 bales Japan, 850 bales Canton, and 250 bales Seychuen and Cochin China. The whole was allowed to pass without biddings, and comparatively little business has resulted. Deliveries from 1st to 19th inst. have been—China, 1,672; Canton, 677; Japan, 612; Bengal, 243—total, 3,204 bales.

COFFEE.

The market has continued very strong, and although an unusually heavy supply, amounting to about 1,450 tons, has been brought to auction, the demand has been fully equal, and the sales have gone off briskly, giving a further upward tendency to prices. The tone of the market has been supported by the favourable result of the Dutch sale. The current rates are—Plantation Ceylon grey at 80s. to 81s., triage 70s. to 75s., small 75s. to 78s., fine ordinary 78s. 6d., low middling grey 79s. 6d. to 81s. 6d., middling 82s. to 84s., one lot bold 88s., peaberry 92s. to 95s.; Native barely good ordinary 71s. 6d., fully good ordinary 72s. 6d., garblings 48s. to 55s., peaberry 75s.; privately on the spot about 6,000 bags Native have been sold at 72s. 6d. to 74s. 6d. for good ordinary to fine ordinary bold. For arrival about 200 tons Native sold at 73s. 6d., a parcel of bold quality (shipment) at 76s., and 70 tons Plantation at 80s. all round.

SUGAR.

An extremely dull tone has been manifested throughout the week, and we have not a single sale of East India to report.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market is dull at auction; 100 hogsheads Ceylon have been sold at £34 10s., and of 339 casks offered 2 pipes only sold at £45, the remainder being bought in at £34 to £35 5s. or withdrawn. Privately the current rates are £34 10s. to £35, with but little doing.

COIR GOODS.—At public sale small quantities of Yarn offered were disposed of at previous rates, 56 bales Ceylon sold, low medium to medium £30 to £33 15s., fine £42 5s., also 70 tons in dholls, common £27 to £28, low middling £29 5s. to £30, fair £35, and 3 tons low indirect at £25. Of 687 coils (6 tons) Cochin Rope offered 4 tons sold, 2¼ to 2½ inch at £27 10s. to £28 per ton.

GAMBIER continues very quiet, 3,000 mats cubes have been sold at 22s. 9d. to 23s., 100 tons block at 20s. 3d. to 20s. 6d., and 100 tons do. for October delivery at 18s. 6d. ex warehouse, and 100 tons March April shipment at 20s. ex ship.

HEMP.—The market continues quiet for all descriptions. During the last few days about 400 bales Manila have been sold, chiefly mixed quality, at £46 10s. per ton.

PEPPER.—The market has been quiet, but tolerably steady; Black has been quitted at 5¾d. to 5⅞d. for Penang and 6¾d. for Singapore; White at 12⅝d. to 13d. on the spot, and 10¾d. for future delivery.

RICE.—But little has been done on the spot, the chief business having been in floating cargoes, the following being reported:—The Tanjore, 1,330 tons Necransie, March sailing, at 9s. 6d. Continental terms; a cargo 1,000 tons Bassein, at 9s. 10½d. open charter. The Antonetta, 800 tons Rangoon, February sailing, at 10s. 1½d. Continent, damages at valuation. A cargo of 1,400 tons Necransie, June-July shipment, per steamer, at 9s. 3d., ex ship London; the cargo of 800 tons Necransie, May sailing, per President Sarmiento, at 9s. 6d. Continental terms. NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

The market is somewhat less strong, but while most holders still ask full prices, and show no disposition to give way, extreme prices cannot be so readily obtained, buyers looking for a reduction.

COFFEE.—An improved demand has sprung up for Brazil Coffee, at an advance of ¼ to ½ cent per lb. gold—the increasing demand for consumption, the small arrivals and rapidly diminishing stocks strengthening the views of holders. The market is buoyant and somewhat excited, and holders more and more indisposed to sell except at constantly advancing prices. There is, in consequence, less activity than there otherwise would be, and as the stock is now in few hands and easily controlled, a still higher range of values is looked for, when the inquiry for consumption at the West attains more formidable proportions, which is expected as the month wears on. East India, though firm, has remained quiet; the stock is in few hands, and held for extreme figures, but the demand at the moment is moderate; the sales are 6,510 mats Java in lots per Aztecs on private terms, and at auction, 75 bags Java, at 19 to 20 cents, cash.

CORDAGE.—The annexed quotations show an advance of half a cent per lb., the following being the current prices:—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 19½c.; 6-thread and 9-thread (½-inch and 5-16 inch diam.), 20½c.; 12-thread (⅝-inch diam.), 20c.; Manila Hay Rope, 20c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 21½; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 22½c.; Tarred Manila, 19c.; fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 20½c.; Sisal Rope, sizes above 12-thread, 17c.; 6-thread and 9-thread, 18c.; 12-thread and Hay Rope, 17½c.; New Zealand Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 16½c.; 6-thread and 9-thread (¼ and 5-16-inch), 17½c.; 12-thread (⅜-inch) and Hay Rope, 17c.; and Russia Bolt Rope, 18c., cash.

FIRE CRACKERS remain firm, though in but moderate demand; sales have been made of 4,000 boxes extra No. 1 at $2.70 to 2.75, and 5,000 do., in lots, on private terms.

HEMP.—An active demand has sprung up for Manila from manufacturers whose stocks had run low, and the market is now quoted about one-quarter of a cent higher. The Anahuac has arrived with 6,370 bales, besides which there is little expected for the next three months not already disposed of. We quote the price at 12 to 12½ cents gold, below which it is understood there is none obtainable. The sales are 830 bales, here, at 11¾c.; 3,100 ditto, to arrive here per Fred. Warren, 11¾c.; 1,000 ditto, also to arrive here per Clyte, 11¾c. (cash), duty paid, in bond for Canada; 200 ditto, in Boston, 12¼c.; 3,100 ditto, to arrive there per Ceylon and St. James, 12c. gold, 60 days, and 2,460 ditto, also to arrive there per St. James, on private terms.

RICE.—The market is steady, Rangoon being in fair demand at $6,87½ to 7.25 currency duty paid, and $3,18¾ to 3.25 gold in bond.

SPICES.—A letter from Zanzibar, under date of April 19, states, "It is below the fact to say that three-fourths of the cocoa-nut and clove trees have been torn up and broken down by the recent cyclone." As it requires from three to five years to bring the clove tree to a bearing maturity, these advices have given a further impetus to the upward tendency of prices of cloves and stems; stocks in Europe are known to be especially small, and with a moderate supply here, and that closely concentrated, the advantage is decidedly with sellers, with a prospect of a high range of prices for a long time to come; some 700 bales, mostly outside lots, have been bought up at 17½ to 18½ cents gold, now held at 20 duty paid, and 15 in bond. Clove stems are held at 8½ to 9½ cents. The market for other descriptions is very quiet. Mace and Nutmegs are dull and weak. Pepper is very firm and Cassia is quiet but steady at the recent decline. There has been no business in whole parcels, and but a moderate demand for trade lots; we notice sales from store of Mace at $1.20 to 1.25; Nutmegs, 92½ to 95 cents; China Cassia, 27½ to 28; Batavia, 32. Pepper, 17 to 17¼ for Sumatra, and 18 to 18¼ for Singapore, all gold.

SUGAR.—The daily business in Raw Sugar is quite moderate, refiners buying only for their immediate wants, and the trade doing very little; the stock in the meanwhile increasing, having now attained the highest point of the season. There is, however, on the part of holders an increasing disposition to sell sparingly, and only at full prices, in view of the favourable advices from England and Cuba, a demand for Canada, with some on speculation, and the continued high price of gold; the market in consequence has acquired rather more firmness. There have been no sales of East India.

TIN.—There has been no movement, but now that the tariff question is at length settled, an early resumption of business is probable; in the meantime prices are wholly nominal, at 38½c. to 39c. for Straits, and 50 for Banca, all gold.

Berth freights to the Eastern Ports are without quotable change since our last issue; tonnage is somewhat scarce, but there is little business doing. Homewards there is more doing, and a good inquiry exists for vessels from the rice ports, Java and Ceylon. In coal freights there is no alteration to report.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

THE LAW OF LIFE.—The present is a fitting opportunity for drawing attention to the few points on which health hinges. All impurities must be expelled from the system immediately their presence is discovered. Wear and tear must be compensated by suitable food, which, when thoroughly digested, enriches the blood with its nutritive elements, and by this means incites every organ throughout the body to its natural activity, rouses every muscle to its normal strength, confers tone on every vessel and energy on every nerve. The alterative virtues exerted by Holloway's purifying Pills exactly meet these requirements, and they further exercise distinctive and peculiar powers in steadying the nerves and regulating the circulation.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

NAGASAKI.

The following items are from the Nagasaki Express of May 4:—

The facilities afforded by the Japanese overland post between this port and Yedo are gradually leading to an increase of business in this useful department. At present some forty-five postmen are employed in conveying the daily mails between this and Osaka, and each travels over a distance of about five ri, but the question is now under consideration as to what will be the best means to be adopted to convey the mail bags when they exceed a weight beyond the capacity of men to carry. The greatest difficulty, we hear, is the bad state of the roads in this island, which prevents horses or vehicles being made use of in conducting the service. We recently paid a visit to the head office in Oto-Ha-katomachi, and found it internally fitted up on the model of the English one, with outside boxes for the reception of stamped letters.

The recent arrival of 150 more of the natives deported from Urakami in 1870 is reported. They came overland at their own request instead of by sea. It is stated that they have renounced their religion and have gone back to their old one. The forty-one whose arrival by the steamer Chili we announced last week are reported by those who are best able to judge to have done the same thing.

The Japanese authorities at this port have refused to grant the extension of time for receiving large numbers of ishius and nishius in payment of duties, and insist upon the limit being thirty days from the date of the Yokohama notification, and not thirty days from the date on which notice was given by them at this port. We believe that they refuse to agree to the supplementary arrangement made at Yedo, on the grounds that they have not received any official intimation.

The difficulties placed in the way of the P.M.S.S. Company taking possession of, and building on the piece of land at Naminohera has at length been settled. It will be remembered that the officials interfered and prevented the erection of coal-sheds and a jetty some time ago, pending a reference being made to Yedo, owing to the registration being in the name of the Company's native employé. The reply has recently been received, and we hear that the Government will not grant permission to the Company to build, but are willing to do it for them, and to rent them the premises.

The British barque Serpent, from Tientsin, arrived with the first cargo of ice this season.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

On the 30th April, the birthday of the Emperor of China, who is sixteen years of age, was celebrated by the Chinese gunboats, three in number, flying all their flags, and the Consuls their holiday flags, and the Customs were closed. H.E. Le Hung-chang, the Viceroy of Chihli, inspected officially the three Chinese gunboats in port, and was saluted on going on board and leaving with three guns from each vessel and by the crews manning yards. In the Peking Gazette of 25th April the death of Juy Chang, one of the grand secretaries of state, is announced in an imperial edict. He was of Mongol descent and far advanced in years. There is a report that Chin, the Customs Taoutai at Tientsin, has asked for one month's leave of absence on account of ill health.

The country around Tientsin still remains flooded, and great mortality has occurred in the city, chiefly amongst young people. The Imperial grain commissioner from Peking, named Ying, is expected to arrive. Formerly two commissioners were appointed, but since the Viceroy has been appointed to Tientsin he acts as one of the commissioners.

Messrs. Cordes, Meadows, Beveridge and Kierullf have been elected a Municipal Council for twelve months. When the Council held their first meeting, Mr. John A. T. Meadows was elected chairman, Mr. M. G. Moore, Honorary Treasurer, and Mr. August Cordes, Honorary Secretary.

Mr. J. Macleavy Brown has resigned the Legation, and Mr. Davenport has been appointed acting Chinese Secretary, pending the arrival of Mr. Mayers.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices extend to the 12th May; there had been no mail arrival from London since that of the P. and O. mail of March 22 on the 3rd May. We take the following from the North China Herald:—

The ratepayers' meeting this year was a decided improvement on that of last. The ratepayers present seemed practically disposed, and much important work was quickly got through. There is no doubt that the quality of debate has improved in the Settlement. The meeting was held on the 6th May. The accounts, showing an excess of income over expenditure, during 1871-72, of Tls. 8,619, were passed; and the estimates for 1872-73, showing a revenue, including this balance, of Tls. 238,592, against an outlay of Tls. 237,606, were agreed to. The Council were authorised to erect a new bridge across the Soochow Creek, or to inaugurate a free ferry. They were also requested to make a bridge over the Hongkew Creek at the bottom of Seward-road. The tramway scheme was entertained, in so far that details are to be asked for. Negotiations are to be had with the Bund lotholders for the surrender of the Foreshore; and the issue of debentures to meet the cost of extending the Foreshore was authorised. Plans for this scheme and for a new Soochow Creek bridge are to be submitted in three months. A proposal to prevent resident ratepayers being represented by proxy at public meetings was negatived. Tls. 4,000 were voted to pay Mr. Webb's claim on the old Volunteer corps. It was agreed to recommend to the Foreign Ministers an alteration in Art. IX. of the Land Regulations, so as to permit the levying of dues on merchandise at the rate of one-tenth of one per cent. upon the average value of all goods of the same description. Rules are to be framed for the regulation of carriage traffic in the settlement. In the course of the discussions Mr. Dent made a graceful reference to Mr. Seward's approaching departure. The testimony borne to Mr. Seward's public spirit and energy were well deserved, and were peculiarly appropriate at the end of a meeting which he had conducted with much tact and judgment. In his capacity as senior Consul Mr. Seward has lately had to conduct much public business, and has done so with ability and discretion. The report of the proceedings occupies twenty-four columns in the Herald.

A new advertisement has been issued by the projectors of the Bank of China. The legal difficulties which hindered the formation of the company have been at length removed. It is purposed to establish a permanent direction in London, with a board of management in Shanghai. Applications for shares will be received up to Aug. 31 next. It is proposed to commence business in London and Shanghai simultaneously, on Jan. 1 next.

Minutes of a meeting of the Finance Committee of the French Municipal Council, published in the Nouvelliste, show that the revenue for the year ended March 31 amounted to Tls. 84,630, and the expenditure to Tls. 72,970, leaving a surplus of Tls. 11,660.

A meeting of treaty Consuls was held on April 8, when Mr. Seward resigned the chair of Senior Consul on account of his approaching departure from the Settlement. He is succeeded in this capacity by the Italian Consul, M. Vignali.

Admiral Shadwell came up to Shanghai on April 8 in the Salamis. The Iron Duke will remain at Woosung for a few days, and is then likely to go to Japan. Admiral Shadwell, we believe, purposes to go north in the Salamis.

An extraordinary feat has just been performed by a Buddhist priest, with the view of raising money to build a temple at Soochow, whence the man had come on a begging expedition. With a devotion more than worthy of the cause, he resolved to stir up some interest, and cause money to flow in by an extraordinary expedient. He announced among the Chinese that he would allow himself to be locked up in a wooden box for seven days, during which period he would remain in an upright position, and without food or sleep. On the 8th April he was accordingly placed in a cage about 2½ feet wide and 5½ feet high, just sufficiently large to admit of him standing upright. The bottom of the cage was studded with nails, so that his feet should have space only between the nails sufficient for them to rest on, and a couple of slight bars in front formed a rest for his arms. The cage was a close one, with a few open bars near the bottom for the admission of air; it was placed in a joss-room in Hoopeh-road, passing in and out of which a crowd of people might be seen day and night during the seven days, religious exercises being engaged in the while by the priests. The devotee endured his painful incarceration with remarkable fortitude, the only relief afforded him being an occasional glass of water, and he emerged looking to all appearance little the worse. After his release the cage was broken up and sold piecemeal to the Chinese, every nail bringing more than its weight in silver. The desired result of calling forth liberal subscriptions was also attained, amounts from Tls. 500 downwards being freely paid by wealthy Chinese.

The trustees of the Recreation Fund have published a highly satisfactory report of their stewardship during the past two years. Whereas, at the time of their appointment, they had not enough cash to pay ground rent on the race-course land, they have now in hand about Tls. 6,000, besides a greatly improved property, and a net annual income of Tls. 2,500. When we look back a few year, to meetings where shareholders were begging to be relieved of the responsibility of their shares, when the Fund and the Club seemed likely to be involved together in one common ruin, and when it was seriously proposed to hand over to the race-course shareholders the whole 430 mow in the interior of the course, together with some Tls. 300 or Tls. 400 in cash, to satisfy a more or less doubtful claim by the latter for the cost of thirty mow alleged to have been never yet paid for—it is impossible not to praise the perseverance and good management by which such a change has been effected.

The Shanghai Yacht Club and Rowing Club regattas, and the Athletic Sports meeting, are fixed to take place during the week following the departure of this mail. The cricket ground has been opened for play, and we hear that an "Eleven" from H.M.S. Iron Duke has challenged the S.C.C, and the match has been arranged for the 13th May.

In the Racket handicap Mr. Hamilton won the A, and Mr. Gilfillan the B, sweepstakes. The Chess Club has received and accepted a challenge to play a game by correspondence, with Messrs. Jackson and Hogen, of Chefoo; and Messrs. Curgel and Mullins have been selected by the committee to represent the Club in this contest.

A Hankow correspondent writes:—We are, I fear, to have a flood. The river is ten feet higher than it was last year, and is still rapidly rising. Rain has been frequent and heavy—if it does not cease, the tea must suffer. One or two musters of teas have been received.

The following is from the Shanghai Courier:—

At a meeting of Treaty Consuls the Report of an interview on the 23rd April, 1872, between the Inspector-General of Customs and a Committee of Consuls relative to exemption certificates was read. It is stated that the committee had communicated to Mr. Hart the substance of a letter addressed to the Senior Consul by the Chamber of Commerce, referring to the inconvenience which the mercantile and steam shipping interests of Shanghai sustained by the Customs Regulations with regard to exemption certificates on duty-paid foreign goods re-exported to Treaty ports, and inquired whether these regulations could not be so altered as to admit of the certificates in question being granted without the requirement of the Customs, from the applicants for them, of particulars regarding the dates and an order of importation, which it is frequently impossible to furnish.

Mr. Hart explained that the particulars in question are not necessary for the protection of the revenue, but so long as it is within the option of re-exporters to claim either a drawback or an exemption certificate, it will be incumbent upon the Customs, in order to keep their accounts, to insist upon detailed information being furnished. This option, he further explained, does not rest upon a Treaty right, but was granted some years ago, at the instance of the mercantile body. If the Chamber of Commerce would inform the inspector general that drawbacks would not be required in future, he, on the other hand, would undertake to make representations to the Tsung-li Yamen, and to advocate the issue of exemption certificates to re-exporters of duty-paid foreign goods to Treaty ports, without requiring from them declarations as to the name of the importing vessel.

The Erl King has gone into dock to get thoroughly cleaned and overhauled, so as to prepare her for taking part with credit in the great ocean race of the year. The repairs to the Ulysses are likely to detain her in dock for some weeks.

The frigate now in course of construction at Kaou Chang-Meaou Arsenal is rapidly approaching completion; she will be nearly, if not quite, of 3,000 tons burden. Naval men speak highly of her fine appearance. There is a rumour that she will visit Europe on some mission.

A report has reached us that Mr. Baber, H.B.M.'s Vice-Consul at Kiukiang, has been severely beaten by some Chinese when travelling inland. No details of the affair are given.

The share speculators are adopting the tricks of their more experienced brethren in the old country. A telegram was manufactured stating that an American company had bought off Holt's intended line of steamers for the Yangtsze. This caused a rise in the shares of the Union and S.S.U. Companies.

The excessive rates charged by the London life assurance companies has induced the formation of a local company at Shanghai; arrangements are now in progress by a committee of provisional directors. We hear that it is intended to combine a system of annuities and a subscription fund for providing means for a run "home."

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 18th May. The outward mail (P. and O.) of 5th April arrived on the 12th May.

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on the 6th May, at which the Governor, the Hons. the Acting Chief Justice, Acting Colonial Secretary, Acting Attorney-General, Acting Colonial Treasurer, and Hons. P. Ryrie, H. Lowcock and James Grieg were present. The Governor said he wished before the Council proceeded to business to make a few remarks upon a subject brought forward by the Hon. P. Ryrie at the last meeting—that of education. No data had been furnished upon which an estimate of the necessity of such a school as Mr. Ryrie alluded to could be based. For himself he thought that any scheme for the education of the middle-class children was premature. He had lately visited the Central School, and was quite satisfied that that institution at least was doing a very good work. It might be that a school for those who could afford to pay was very desirable, but it was necessary to know the numbers of those who would send their children. Education was a subject upon which it was very difficult to get people to agree: the eternal denominational question was continually cropping up. If a meeting were called he would gladly attend, and as he had had a good deal of experience in educational matters he might be able to give some useful information. Mr. Ryrie said he had intended to obtain the details H.E. mentioned either by circular or by personal visits, but his time had been too fully occupied. He should however now endeavour to carry out H.E.'s suggestion. He believed that, now the Governor's views were known, the public would gladly respond.

His Excellency then remarked that as the time of the members was, doubtless, valuable, he would now proceed to business. The first question was a vote of $950 for enclosing Possession Point; The vote was carried. The next item was the sum of $2,200 for building a market at Showkewan. Upon this subject Mr. May thought that a committee should be appointed to fully inquire into the effects of the market system before any decision were come to. His Excellency suggested that Mr. May should propose the appointment of a committee as an amendment. Mr. Ryrie offered to second Mr. May's motion, but the original vote was carried against the opposition of Messrs. May and Ryrie. A petition of Cheong-Alum, the porter of the Government offices, was then read by the Colonial Secretary, setting forth that the applicant would prefer, in place of the pension voted at the last meeting, either the gratuity of $630, or $350 down and half pension; the $630 were voted, Mr. Ryrie recording a dissentient vote.

His Excellency then brought forward an ordinance to amend the Criminal Procedure Law of the colony. The Acting Attorney-General stated that the first idea of this ordinance arose from the Acting Chief-Justice's recent decision in a larceny case, where the value of the stolen property had not been stated. By the present criminal procedure enactment the principle of special juries in criminal cases was recognised, but the usefulness of that recognition was much impaired by the jury ordinance, which limited criminal trials by special juries to cases other than treason or felony. The new ordinance provided that the Attorney-General might select Crown cases to be tried by special jury, but that if a prisoner elected to be so tried he should pay for it, as the Crown had no funds to reimburse special juries in criminal cases. Another point dealt with was as to the locking up of jurors; the object was to prevent outside influence being used, and at home this might be a reasonable precaution, but it did not apply in Hong Kong. The only cases would be those of murder, generally Chinese cases, and it was not likely that such influence would be used in these cases. Therefore it was provided that the exemption should apply to all capital cases. The ordinance was read a second time, minus the clauses referring to special juries, which were reserved for future consideration.

The great libel case, "Belilios v. Agabeg," has resulted in favour of the plaintiff, who was awarded damages to the extent of £1,000.

The Daily Press says, at an early hour his Excellency the Governor held an inspection of the police force and the gaol. The men fell in and paraded before him, and it was fully expected he would give them some few words of encouragement, but we understand he merely asked after the health of the force, though he was heard to remark to the Acting Colonial Secretary that it was the finest body of men he had ever seen to compose a police force. His Excellency then visited the gaol, and was highly pleased with the arrangements and cleanliness of that institution.

We hail with much pleasure the improvement with regard to ascertaining the views of the public, which was made yesterday by H.E. Sir Arthur Kennedy, in his suggestion that a public meeting should be convened to discuss the question of the establishment of a middle-class school before the matter came before the Council, his Excellency promising to give the meeting the advantage of his experience during the discussion. Nothing can tend more to the efficient government of the Colony than the respect for the public wishes, of which Sir Arthur Kennedy has already given many satisfactory proofs.

THE PIECE GOODS GUILD.

It has always been the case that charity comes from sincerity, and that charitable acts cannot be brought about by compulsion. Never has a purse been opened for charitable objects by the result of force or compulsion. We see in the Daily Press a false report that the Chinese Hospital compels our Guild to impose a subscription from our Brokers' Brokerage. While perusing this article we were quite startled by its statements. The establishment of the hospital was a most benevolent act, and subscriptions in aid of the Institution are left entirely to one's free will. The yearly subscription of over $700 from the Guild is a voluntary contribution on our part, and is in no wise the result of compulsion on the part of the Hospital Committee. That body have, moreover, frequently said that in opening one's purse in aid of a charitable object, the amounts, whether small or great, should be left to the subscribers themselves. This clearly indicates that the hospital has been erected solely for the purpose of doing good, and is fair in all its actions; how can it be said that it encourages secret designs to get subscriptions by force? The subscriptions by the different guilds, whether great or small, have all been given voluntarily and have been in proportion to the ability of the subscribers. That the statement in the Daily Press, that the hospital obtains subscriptions by force, is utterly false, is perfectly clear. As to the sources from which the subscriptions are to be raised, each individual guild takes its own measures, and it in no wise concerns the Hospital Committee. As to the deduction of brokerage in our guild, it is the rule of our trade; it has nothing to do with the hospital. All tradesmen have their own rules of business, and nobody can be compelled to conform to them if he does not like. The brokers, with the full knowledge that such is the rule of our trade, can come to us for business if they like, and can go away if they do not. How can we take anything from them by force? It must be a thing wherein two parties agree before any transaction can take place; what is there of compulsion? Not only does the hospital carefully refrain from forcing people to subscribe, but our Guild also does not force people to contribute. In uniting to do good the amount of subscription is left to the free will of every one; you cannot persuade, and you cannot dissuade. This is a theory so plain that it must be evident even to women and children. Our Guild does not care to enter into any controversy, but with the statement of the Daily Press before us we cannot help strenuously contradicting it; how can we allow the good name of the benevolent hospital to be assailed in this manner? By those who are open to reason and to those who are liberal-minded our words will be admired.

In Liebert v. The Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, application was made by the defendants for leave to appeal.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 27th May. The outward (P. and O.) mail of 19th April arrived on the 20th May.

The Straits Times has the following:—

As yesterday was set apart for the observance of Her Majesty's birthday, it was generally believed the occasion would be marked by a review of the troops on the Esplanade in accordance with the old and time-honoured custom. Such, however, was not the case, and had it not been for the gallant Singapore Volunteer Corps, who, with their band, paraded on the Esplanade in the afternoon, the day would have passed off without any military display whatever. The Volunteers turned out under the command of Lieutenant Buckley to the number of fifty-five all told, including the band, and marched down from the armory in North Bridge-road to the Esplanade, where they went through a series of manœuvres with a precision that showed the corps to have attained very considerable efficiency in drill,—and the band, which though reduced in number, was yesterday five members short, acquitted itself very creditably indeed. After the parade, the corps marched back again to their armory. We hear the reason of there being no general review was that the number of men available for the purpose was too small—the force here being divided between the Tanglin Barracks and Fort Canning, and that only a few men could have been spared, who on their return would have almost immediately to go on duty to relieve guard. If this be true, it shows the colony to have at present very little military protection in return for its annual military contribution of £68,000; and though it has been all along asserted that the regiment will be reinforced by some 300 men from England, we understand that the band of the regiment, which numbers about forty members, is to be reduced just one-half, which does not look as though the reinforcements were expected soon.

In the Straits Times for the 21st May and 2nd July, 1870, there appeared particulars of the wreck of the coolie ship Italia, off Anjer, and of the saving of the lives of about 500 Chinese coolies, through the fearless conduct of Mr. de Jong, pilot there. The New Batavia Handelsblad of the 8th May publishes the following appeal to the public on behalf of the latter:—"It will be remembered that on the evening of the 21st April, 1870, the Italian ship Italia, Vidanwaraga, stranded on the rocks near the roadstead of Anjer, whereupon a squall arose which dashed the ship to pieces against them. It was chiefly owing to the zealous efforts of the aged Mr. W. P. de Jong, pilot by calling, and also ship chandler at Anjer, that fully 500 human beings were saved from certain destruction."

We understand the Hon. H. Plunkett has been appointed Head Inspector of Police at Penang. He went down by the last P. and O. mail steamer, and Mr. R. W. Maxwell will come up to Singapore to act as Superintendent of Police here until Mr. Waller's return. The Singapore police is just now rather badly off for inspectors. Head inspector Hayward is Acting Superintendent at Malacca, Inspector Barnum is absent on a month's leave on medical certificate, Inspector Towers is also unable to attend to the duties of his station, and Inspector Phillips has resigned. There remain only Inspectors Warne and Miller to take charge of the stations.

MALACCA ITEMS.

The B.I.S.N. Co.'s steamer Busheer, arrived here from Singapore last Monday en route to Calcutta. She landed here three officers and seventy-five men belonging to H.M.'s 80th regiment, and took away from this the wing of the 19th M.N.I. brought here from Madras about a year ago, in the B.I.S.N. Co.'s steamer Himalaya. The appearance of European soldiers here has quite startled the weak minds of the native community, and it is amusing to see the small crowds standing about the streets here and there gazing in wonder on the European sentry who is quietly marching up and down on guard under a long tiled-roof shed. The soldiers are dressed day and night in white tunics and helmet hats. The latter is a great improvement on the Glengarry cap, to which has been so strongly objected to.

Lieut.-Governor Shaw leaves this week, for Singapore, per Colonial steamer Pluto, en route to England on leave of absence. His locum tenens, Captain Ord (who, it is said, is to perform the threefold offices of Lieutenant Governor, Magistrate of Police, and Commissioner of the Court of Requests), is expected here on the return of the Pluto from Singapore. In the meanwhile it is rumoured that Thomas Neubronner, Esq., Acting Magistrate of Police, is to act as Lieut.-Governor.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Since the date of our last report the market had been excessively quiet, and transactions reported were very trifling. Yarns and Grey Shirtings were hardly asked for, and quotations were nominal; T-Cloths were in moderate demand, Drills in no inquiry whatever, and the nominal quotations were much lower. Turkey Reds were inquired for, but Woollens and Fancy Goods almost entirely neglected. This dulness is in a great measure attributable to the season, and is more or less periodical.

SHANGHAI.—The settlements of Plain Cottons during the week amounted to a considerable business in the aggregate, but the demand had been met by a few holders only, the majority still refusing to treat the offers made by purchasers, who were evincing more disposition to buy at last quotations. In Fancy Cottons and Woollen Goods there had been no alteration. In Metals, Lead had again suffered a decline, owing to continued absence of demand; a sale of common brand was reported at Tls. 4.45 per picul. Nailrod Iron remained unchanged. Transactions comprised 4,800 bundles at Tls. 3.20 per picul. In Bar Iron no sales were recorded.

HONG KONG AND SINGAPORE.—There had been little or no alteration in the markets at these ports since last mail.

SAIGON.—The current quotation for imports ruled as follows:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.70 per piece; 7 lbs., $2.25; Supers, No. 1, $2.20; No. 2, $2.25; T-Cloth, 7 lbs., $1.95; 6 lbs., $1.75; T-Cloths, 5 lbs., $1.45; 4½ lbs., $1.30; 4 lbs., $1.20; Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.85; No. 120, $1.72.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—With the exception of the settlement of a few lots of common leaf there has been nothing to report in this market. Regarding the new crop very little was known; a few garden musters had been shown from which no criterion could be formed. The last Pacific mail steamer, which sailed on the 23rd April, took 39,650 lbs. for San Francisco, and 14,751 lbs. for New York.

SHANGHAI.—Latest dates from Hankow were to 7th inst. Three small musters of new tea had then arrived, and a considerable number were expected within a week. It is a matter of uncertainty as to when the market may open. Musters had been hurried forward with great haste, and arrivals in bulk may not come to market for some time. Reports as to quality still continue favourable. Green Teas: Pingsueys are said to cost 10 to 15 per cent. higher than last season. The quality is said to be good, the crop large, and it is expected that musters will be shown in about three weeks from date.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There was no change to report in the market for this staple; the business done had been quite limited, and settlements had only amounted to about 300 bales, about one half of which were Hank sorts, Oshus being neglected. Arrivals had been on a very meagre scale, and the unsold stock had been further reduced. Prices during the early part of the fortnight were somewhat lower, but since then had again hardened, and at the close no change could be noted.

SHANGHAI.—Very little business had been done for Europe during the week. The settlements amounted to say 150 bales, 100 bales of which were re-reels for America. The weather was very satisfactory for the prospects of our new season, and the advices from the interior are so far good. Prices, however, are expected to open high, in consequence of the present high rate of dollars and the dearness of mulberry leaves.

LITERATURE.

The Japanese Embassy in America, by Charles Lanman, American Secretary at Washington. London: LONGMANS and Co.—The publication of this book is most opportune. The general reader will now have an opportunity of gaining an intelligible knowledge of this Embassy and its members, with their unpronounceable names, consisting of over one hundred persons, including five young ladies to be educated in America. The particulars of the journey from Yedo to San Francisco, their reception by the city magnates, as also at Sacramento, how they were snowed up at the Salt Lake en route to Washington, the magnificent welcome given them by the Government and private individuals, and their visit to Congress, are all given in a complete and pleasant manner. Of course a great deal of it has already been reported in our own columns, but the convenience of bringing the whole into one record is of great practical utility. But this is not all; the author has given us an account of the progress of several Japanese who have been at various colleges, illustrated by their letters and essays, freely commenting on all they have seen of American character and institutions, extracts from which we will give in our next. We have never had so useful a description of any Oriental mission, and the author has conferred a great boon by its production.

Six Months in California. By J. G. Player Froud. London: LONGMANS and Co.—This volume is dissimilar from many recent productions of a similar character, inasmuch as the reader, while perusing the author's interesting description, may gain valuable knowledge with regard to Californian industries and pursuits. Interspersed with amusing narratives illustrative of "new American" life and manners are terse and yet complete accounts of the geology, agricultural productions, zoology and flora, of the country; while three chapters are devoted to the Nevada and Grass Valley mines, and the manner in which they are worked. It is evident that the time passed by the author in California was not idly spent, and the vigorous style in which his experiences are narrated cannot fail to render the book interesting to every reader, be the object of his search information or amusement.

EXTRACTS FROM DE BEAUVOIR'S YEDO, PEKING, &c.

THE FOREIGNER IN JAPAN.—I hope I may be wrong, but I sincerely believe that the Westerns have introduced here an element of great trouble, and that the serious revolution amongst all classes in this country is in great measure our doing. Remember that thirty years ago Japan lived apart, happy and prosperous, under the laws of feudalism, which turned a political hierarchy into a sacred institution. Now a cry of terror arises and spreads over all this land to disturb it. In the name of the civilisation of the West revolution is at the gates of Japan to give a blow which is all the more terrible that it is unlooked for, and that, without any preparation, the most opposite elements of the middle ages and of our time will find themselves struggling together. So from China, whither the West first carried arms in the immoral and degrading opium war, it has been necessary to come once again in the wake of England to bring trouble amidst a pieceful nation. It has been necessary, for the sake of furnishing a new and much-needed employment for the working classes, as well as for the merchant navy of the Queen of the Seas, for the sake of seeing the Manchester furnaces still smoking, for the sake of forcing a people who were sufficient for themselves to buy our produce, for all this it was necessary to force an entrance into Japan, make our will law, thrust our trade upon them, and say to a nation, "We are the strongest, and in this century we do not allow a part of human society to isolate and cut itself off; we are coming to force our friendship upon you."

THE DOCKS AT YOKOSKA.—The reason for the establishment of this station is as follows:—In the midst of the agitation of the revolution which shook Japan to its very heart, the Taikoun, after openly adopting the European side, saw his armies beaten by those of the rebel Daimios. M. Roches, our Minister, cleverly profited by the occasion to propose to the Taikoun to introduce European instructors, who would render his army invincible. To Captain Chanoine was confided the direction of this work. All these young Japanese officers are wildly enthusiastic, and, though it looks absurd when one sees them cutting off their pig-tails, decking themselves with metal buttons, and imploring the Taikoun and our officers to dress them in the most beautiful "uniforme Franze," this eagerness also brings forth fruit in serious matters. They learn French with marvellous rapidity, and they work hard all day and far into the night to study mechanics, geometry, and the theories of drill and firing. Yet we can very heartily congratulate M. Roches on having by this last effort carried French influence so far that it is already cleverly and happily established in Japan, having really mastered the situation, leaving England, America, and Holland far behind. I told you how it distressed us to have travelled over the world for thirteen months, skirting the shores of Indo-China and China, from Singapore to Peking, from the Equator to the Poles, without finding for France a position worthy of her; but here we may hold up our heads. It is with reason that the Japanese are called the Frenchmen of the East. This people have regularly fallen in love with us, and a happy succession of events have only strengthened that event for which we have shown how deeply grateful we are by the openness and support of our policy. Our triumph will be complete if we can add a fleet to the army and the arsenal, but the necessities of policy and a wise prudence have forced the Taikoun not to increase the exasperation of the English, round whom are grouped other jealous nations—the Dutch, the Germans, the Russians, and the Americans. The command of the fleet has been promised to soothe British irritation, but never will that service, of which they will only have a part, have the popularity, the enthusiasm, and the influence of our military station.

SHOPPING IN JAPAN.—Presently, with the most careless air, we rummage amongst the shelves, and find a pretty lacquer-work cabinet. "I konra" (how much)? Then the worthy man looks very solemn, rubs his eyes, frowns, and, after a play of great earnestness, says, from the depths of his chest, and sadly, "Ftay-yaek, ichibou" (two hundred bous) or it is worth about £2; then we sit down again, joke a little, and say "Alagigoto," which means show me some other things, and then he spreads out hundreds of lovely things, always laughing, and you should hear all the absurdities he says. Upon that simple minds have given in, offer half the price, and even then they are fleeced of about £4. Clever people come back another day, dazzle the merchant by speaking of large purchases, then seem to change their minds altogether; then our friend sighs, and in a voice I cannot describe calls from the threshold of his house as you leave it "Magotto, Magotto, Magotto, Nijioubou" (at the lowest price twenty bous); you return and again smoke and talk and drink; you take twelve bous from your pocket and place them in the merchant's hand, who refuses them, prostrates himself and arranges his shop, but at last, at the end of two hours, just as you are really going, he calls you, and in despair throws to you for twelve bous the articles for which he had asked two hundred. You clap your hands three times; he cries, "Irouchi," and the bargain is concluded. Then the final cloud of anxiety disperses; the laugher is your best friend; he makes you come back into his house, packs up your purchase in charming little boxes with minute care, gives you cakes, tries to tempt you again, and everyone is delighted with his bargain. The English buyers never behave like this. I have seen them pay seven and eight times dearer for certain articles than we do. They come in stiff as posts, with their white collars, remain proudly on the threshold of the shop, and consider it far beneath their dignity to bargain, pay heavily, looking with contempt upon the Japanese, with whom they never condescend to talk familiarly. No doubt it is not only our open policy, but quite as much the familiar ways of our nation, the abandon, the love of gaiety, and the lively and playful sides of our character, which has gained the sympathies of this nation of great children.

HAMBURG, June 24.

In the absence of Herr von Brandt, the German Consul-General in Japan, Herr Eappe, the Acting Consul, has received a flattering proof of the esteem and approbation in which he is held by his fellow countrymen, in the following address, dated Yokohama, April 28:—"We, the undersigned Germans residing at Yokohama, feel it our pleasant duty to express our warmest gratitude for the energetical, circumspect, and dignified manner in which you have promoted the interests of the Germans in your temporary capacity as Acting Consul, and as a mark of the great respect and confidence you enjoy in the German circles in this country, we take the liberty of presenting you with the accompanying chronometer, and request you to accept it as a remembrance of us. An agreement between the Austrian Government and the Steam Company of the Austrian Lloyd for a direct and regular line of steamers between Trieste and Bombay, viâ Suez Canal, has been signed, and is now ratified. The company engages to send monthly a steamer of 1,000 tons and running at least eight knots, from each of the above ports, and to carry the mails, for which service they are to receive a Government subsidy payable in monthly instalments of 150 florins each. The contract expires at the end of December, 1877.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 26.

The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant of the 23rd inst. contained a semi-official communication with reference to the Ministerial crisis. This Liberal leading paper stated that the King had charged Mr. G. de Vries, member of the Council of State, with the formation of a new Cabinet, and that Messrs. Brocx as Minister of Marine, and Gericke van Herwijnen (Foreign Affairs) had consented to resume their Portfolios, which they had resigned in consequence of the vote upon Mr. Blusse's Income-tax Bill. The journal went on to express a hope that Mr. de Vries will succeed in finding the right men for the other Portfolios. But, up to to-day, nothing has transpired as to the remaining appointments. It is of public notoriety that Mr. de Vries is an eminent and talented man, but he has never filled a seat either in Parliament or in any Cabinet, so that it is perhaps somewhat precipitate to say—as some papers do—that he is the right man to fill the place left vacant by the late lamented Mr. Thorbecke. A mass of names are in circulation as his colleagues. That Mr. van Bosse will accept the portfolio of the financial department seems pretty certain, and perhaps we shall see Mr. Fransen van de Putte or Mr. Mirandolle a la tete of the Colonial Department. The greatest difficulty, however, seems to be to find a Minister for War. The greatest confusion prevails with respect to the solution of the military question, and it is almost certain that whoever accepts the portfolio will have to resign so soon as his projects come under discussion in the Second Chamber. But besides this stumbling-block there are many other questions of importance waiting for solution; and as the Liberal party is much divided there are a good many, even amongst the Liberals, who wish fervently that a Conservative Cabinet had tried their hands at the Government.

The annual meeting of shareholders of the Dutch India Railway Company was held yesterday at Amsterdam, when Mr. E. H. 'sJacob presided. The balance, showing a net profit of f. 317,300, was brought forward and after a short discussion approved of. Messrs. A. W. van Eeghen, J. J. van Kerkwyk and G. C. Dunn were elected commissaries.

H.M. the King of Prussia has, according to the Preuss. Staats Anzeiger, conferred the Second Class Crown Order with the Star on Mr. F. P. van der Hoeven, our Minister Resident in Japan.

To-day will be unveiled, with a grand ceremony, in the town of Leyden the statue of Dr. Boerhave. The statue is sculptured by Joh. Th. Stracké. On the 29th inst. another national festival will take place. On that day the first stone will be laid for a monument to be erected at Dillenburg (Nassau), the birth-place of Prins Willem of Orange; Princess Marianne will attend the ceremony.

I hear that the members of the International are to hold a general meeting at the Hague. You will remember that this ought to have taken place last year in London, but it was delayed by political circumstances.

REFORM IN HONG KONG.

THE post of Governor of Hong Kong is proverbially the reverse of a bed of roses. The population is more diversified than any to be found, in so limited a space, in any other part of the world; the inhabitants of the ruling nationality form but a small proportion to the total number of residents; the proximity to the mainland gives rise to endless disputes with the Chinese authorities, and the Colonial-office is always prepared to snub or praise, to cavil at or applaud, his Excellency the Governor, as the ever-shifting politics of the House of Commons may direct. Happy is the man, therefore, who taking up the reins of power finds himself in a position, on a question of importance, to act in accord with the various interests which it is his duty to consider. Such a man is Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY at the present moment, and such a question is the suppression of the gambling-houses. Against the system inaugurated by the late Governor the inhabitants of Hong Kong have expostulated. The evils arising from it are so patent, and have of late been brought so prominently before them by the proceedings in the police courts of the colony, that it is universally condemned by all sections of the community. The echo of these unanimous complaints has been heard in the House of Commons, and the consequence has been that Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY was, on his arrival, able to announce in the Legislative Assembly that it had "been strongly impressed upon him "by the Secretary of State for the Colonies on behalf of "Her MAJESTY'S Government that gambling should be put "down." We are not surprised to hear that considerable satisfaction has been felt in the colony at this announcement. The speech in which it was conveyed to the Legislative Assembly was received with "applause," and a deputation of the leading Chinamen in Hong Kong, expressed their satisfaction at the course which the new Governor told them he was authorised to pursue in this matter.

The visit of the Chinese deputation to Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY is a feature in Hong Kong politics which is worthy of notice. The Chinese residents in the colony so vastly outnumber the European inhabitants, and the comfort and well-being of the latter are so dependent on the good offices of the former, while at the same time such a wide gulf, socially speaking, divides the one from the other that any attempt at arriving at a more intimate knowledge of each other's wants and aspirations should be encouraged. A hearty co-operation between the Government and the more respectable of the Chinese residents would put an end to many of the evils of which the foreign community with reason complain—not the least of which is the frequent failure of justice, owing to the practice, prevalent among the Chinese, of giving support and shelter to their criminal fellow-countrymen, and the impediments which exist in the way of obtaining information on subjects which are purely Chinese. Hitherto, although possessed of every information in its power, the Hong Kong Government has been compelled to remain in ignorance of many fraudulent conspiracies and unlawful oppressions of which Chinamen have been made the victims by their own countrymen. Only lately it has been discovered that a complete system of levying black mail from the fishing boats of the colony has for some time been in existence. By the last mail we have an account of the capture of one of these freebooting craft, on board of which were found a number of license forms ready to be granted to fishing boats in exchange for the tax demanded. How long this nefarious trade might have been carried on but for its accidental discovery it is impossible to say; but it is one which might long ago have been made known and suppressed were the Chinese more willing to co-operate with the English executive. By taking the Chinese deputation so completely into his counsels Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY has advanced an important step in the right direction, and it is much to be hoped that, with the suppression of gambling, and the increased confidence which will in consequence be felt by the respectable Chinese in the upright intentions of the Government, many of the vices which have followed in its train will receive their death-blow.

THE EASTERN BILL OF LADING.

THE committee of merchants trading to the East, which was elected to amend and settle the terms of Bills of Lading by steamers passing through the Suez Canal, has justified the confidence reposed in it, and vindicated the impartiality and moderation of the parties whose interests are most directly involved, by an exhaustive and conclusive report which we gave in our last. It is a document which, although necessarily somewhat lengthy, is evidently the production of experienced and earnest men; it has nothing of the "Circumlocution Office" about it, and the mercantile body cannot but feel that they owe a lasting debt of gratitude to their representatives on this occasion. The amount of time and thought which has been expended on the subject by the chairman, Mr. MACANDREW, and his coadjutors, must have been a severe tax on energies so much occupied as theirs. No doubt the services of these gentlemen will be formally recognised in due time; for the present, however, there is no way in which the value of their labours can be so well acknowledged, or by which they can be made available for future good, as the unanimous and stedfast adhesion of all shippers to the principles enunciated in the report. Without united action, however obvious may be the justice of the case, in the face of vested interests and narrow old-world policy, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to carry the reforms demanded. It is by unanimous and uncompromising co-operation alone that the well-considered provisions of the "new form" can be universally carried out. In order to attain the early settlement of this question it is only necessary for shippers to decline to send freight by any steamers where the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading is not recognised. The P. and O. and Messageries Companies are alluded to. The quieta non movere theory has long been discarded from mercantile enterprise as a fallacy, and at the late meeting of the P. and O. Company there were evidences of a strong desire to "move with the times." The gain that would accrue to the first of the great companies to set the example can hardly be over-estimated, and not the least part of it would be the recognition by the mercantile world of the justice of the demands which are so moderately put forth.

The report of the committee appointed by Lloyd's, to consider how far the clauses of the new Bill of Lading would affect the underwriters, has just been approved, and will be found in another column. This committee has also given long and anxious consideration to the subject as it affects their interests, and we are glad to see that they have been able to recommend a clause to be inserted in policies of insurance, which embodies pretty nearly all the requirements of the new Bill of Lading. The new Inward Bill of Lading form, our readers must bear in mind, is still unsettled, owing to differences between the committee and the ship owners, but these no doubt will be overcome in time.

MR. RYRIE deserves the thanks of the European residents at Hong Kong, for having brought under the notice of the Legislative Assembly the subject of education in that Colony. For some time past the want of some cheap means of education for the sons of the less opulent members of the European community has been much felt. The expense of sending children for education to England is very considerable, and the number of European families in Hong Kong is now so large, that the question of providing school accommodation on the spot is one which is quite ripe for discussion. In reply to Mr. RYRIE's remarks, the opinion expressed by Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY, that it was "the first duty of all and every Government to place education within the reach of all their subjects," leads us to hope that the project will obtain his active support. The increase of the colony is quite such as to enable the Government to lend its aid to works of public utility, and certainly there is no object more calculated to benefit the colony at large, and therefore more deserving of a public grant, than the establishment of an efficient system of education.

THE arrest of the French mail steamer Ava at Hong Kong by an order of the Admiralty Court, at the suit of the owners of the steamer Rona, was a most vexatious proceeding, and indicates mismanagement and stupidity on the part of those concerned. That any necessity existed for carrying matters so far as to place a warrant in the hands of the sheriff for the arrest of the ship, while a responsible agent of the Messageries Maritimes was resident in Hong Kong, we cannot believe. The whole of these proceedings are rendered the more objectionable by the result of the action, viz., that the Ava was acquitted of all blame in the collision, and the owners of the Rona condemned in costs. As the steamers of the Messageries also carry British mails under the International Postal Convention, we understand that the matter is now under the consideration of our Government, and the Governor of Hong Kong will be instructed in due course.

WE learn from the Batavia Handelsblad that the managers of the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company have applied for a concession, to enable them to establish a line of steamers between Batavia, Adelaide, Melbourne, and Sydney. There is, we believe, no doubt that the Dutch Government will grant the annual subsidy of £12,000 asked for by the company, which sum may be termed trifling when the increased trade which would result from the establishment of the line is taken into consideration.

THE P. and O. steamer Delta (paddle), which leaves Southhampton on the 18th inst., with the Bombay mails, will pass through the Canal to Bombay, and afterwards proceed on to China, there to be employed in the Company's Coast Service. It is probable that the Massilia, also a paddle steamer, will follow in two or three months.

THE arrangements for the registration in London of the Bank of China, lately formed at Shanghai, have not yet been completed, and will, we understand, stand over until the arrival of Mr. KING, one of the directors.

EASTERN TRADE BILL OF LADING AND POLICY OF INSURANCE.

The following Report was presented at a meeting of Underwriters held in the Library at Lloyd's :—

Immediately on their appointment the Committee placed themselves in communication with the Committee of Merchants, and it was agreed that the several exemptions from liability on the part of the shipowner, contained in the new Bill of Lading, should be by each Committee carefully considered in detail, with a view, in the first place, to ascertain precisely the wishes of the merchant, and then to consider the expediency and the method of complying with those wishes on the part of the underwriters. This was done, and several conferences took place between the two Committees; and the result is shortly expressed in the following memorandum :—

The exemptions in the Bill of Lading referred to are found to be thirty-four in number, and may, for the present purpose, be divided into six classes, which it is agreed shall be distinguished by the letters A, B, C, D, E, and F. The following is a complete list of the exemptions, in which each is thus assigned to its own class :—

A 1. The Act of God; 2, the Queen's enemies; 3, pirates; 4, robbers by land or sea; 5, restraint of princes, rulers, or people; 6, loss or damage from machinery; 7, loss or damage from boilers or steam; 8, loss or damage from explosion; 9, loss or damage from heat; 10, loss or damage from fire on board, in hulk or craft, or on shore; 11, jettison; 12, barratry.

B 13. Any act, neglect, or default whatsoever, of pilot, master, or crew, in the management or navigation of the ship.

A 14. And all and every the dangers and accidents of the seas, rivers, and canals, and of navigation of whatever nature or kind are excepted.

E 15. The ship is not liable for insufficient packing, or reasonable wear and tear of packages.

E 16. For inaccuracies, obliteration, or absence of marks, numbers, address, or description of goods shipped.

D 17. Leakage; 18, breakage; 19, loss or damage by dust from coaling on the voyage; 20, sweat; 21, rust; 22, decay.

E 23. Fines and expenses, and losses by detention of ship or cargo, caused by incorrect marking, or by incomplete or incorrect description of contents or weight, or of any other particulars required by the authorities at the port of discharge, upon either the packages or bills of lading, shall be borne by the owners of the goods.

A 24. The steamer, while detained at any port for the purpose of coaling, is at liberty to discharge and receive goods and passengers.

D 25. The owners of this steamer will not be accountable for gold, silver, bullion, specie, jewellery, precious stones, or precious metals, or beyond the amount of one hundred pounds for any one package, unless the bills of lading are signed for such goods, and the value declared therein.

E 26. If medicinal fluids or any other goods of an inflammable, damaging, or dangerous nature are shipped without being previously declared and arranged for, they are liable, upon discovery, to be thrown overboard, and the loss will fall upon the shippers or owners of such fluids or goods.

C 27. The goods are to be discharged from the ship as soon as public intimation is given that she is ready to unload, and if not thereupon removed without delay by the consignee, the master or agent is to be at liberty to land the same, or, if necessary, to discharge into hulk, lazaretto, or hired lighters, at the risk and expense of the owners of the goods.

F 28. In case of quarantine the goods may be discharged into quarantine depot, hulk, or other vessel, as required for the ships' despatch; quarantine expenses upon the goods, of whatever nature or kind, shall be borne by the owners of the goods.

F 29. In case of the blockade or interdict of the port of discharge, or if the entering of or discharging in the port shall be considered by the master unsafe, by reason of war or disturbances, the master may land the goods at the nearest safe and convenient port, at the expense and risk of the owners of the goods; and the ship's responsibility shall cease when the goods are so discharged into proper and safe keeping, the master giving immediate notice of the same to the consignees of the goods, so far as they can be ascertained.

E 30. The master or agent shall have a lien on the goods for payments made or liabilities incurred, in respect of any charges stipulated herein, to be borne by the owners of the goods.

F 31. In case any part of the within goods cannot be found during the ship's stay at the port of destination, they are, when found, to be sent back by first steamer, at the ship's risk and expense, and subject to any proved claim for loss of market.

E 32. The ship shall not be liable for incorrect delivery, unless each package shall have been distinctly marked by the shippers before shipment, with the name of the port of destination.

F 33. If prevented from discharging by weather, the goods may be taken on to the next convenient port for transhipment to their destination, at the expense of the vessel, but at the risk of the merchant.

A 34. The goods to be transhipped at the expense of the vessel, but at the risk of the merchant, into a steamer bound to

1. It is submitted that those marked A are covered by the ordinary form of policy, and so far as the loss shall be traceable to a peril of the sea, the only exception being of fire after the discharge of the goods, either on shore or into hulk, or other like place of deposit.

2. That those marked B are also so covered, excepting that (B 13) the word "management" it is agreed cannot properly be construed to include stowage.

3. That those marked C are also so covered, but it is agreed that the liability of the underwriter shall cease on the discharge of the goods from the ship, either on shore or into any place of deposit afloat.

4. That those marked D shall be borne by the shipper, unless they shall be incurred under a sea peril insured against. It is agreed, however, that any mere enhancement of a sea damage covered by the policy, which may be traceable to coal dust (D 19), shall be borne by the underwriters.

5. That those marked E shall be taken by the shipper in all cases, excepting (E 16) obliteration by a peril insured against.

6. And that those marked F shall be provided for by a special clause, to be attached to the policy.

The risks which the Merchants' Committee seek to have covered by the policy being thus clearly distinguished, the labours of your Committee were directed to the framing of a Clause adopted to afford the required security as to those brought within Class F. For this purpose the following Clause has been agreed upon, and it is approved by the Merchants' Committee.

"The goods hereby insured being shipped under the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading No. , it is agreed that the terms of this policy shall apply to the following sea-perils therein referred to, in addition to such risks as are already hereby covered :—

"1. All deviation of voyage provided for in the said Bill of Lading, with any risk of land carriage incidental to the voyage.

"2. Sailing with or without pilots, and any act, neglect, or default whatsoever of pilots, master, or crew, in the management or navigation of the ship, improper stowage excepted.

"3. All risks attending the goods by reason of their discharge into, retention at, and delivery from, any quarantine depot, afloat or ashore.

"4. In case of the goods being carried on to a more distant port through stress of weather, or because they cannot be found, the marine risk of the additional voyage, as well as of the return voyage to their destined port, the assured agreeing to pay for such extra risk such premium as may be agreed upon."

The proviso that in the event of the voyage described in the policy being materially extended, an additional premium (to be agreed upon) shall be paid for the additional risk, has not obtained the support of Mr. Leathley and Mr. Natush—two of your committee—who consider this recommendation as objectionable on various grounds, and that the question of additional premium, whether there should be any at all, and if any, under what conditions payable, is not within the province of this committee to report upon, but is a matter for the exclusive consideration of the underwriter in each instance

It is to be observed, however, that the words objected to are so placed that they can readily be expunged without affecting in any degree the rest of the clause; that they only secure due consideration of the matter; and that, in view of the probability of the steam trade in the East, in the future, being largely extended, it is desirable to provide for a contingency which, if not very material now, may become one of considerable importance. On these grounds the other members of your committee have voted for the clause as it stands.

Your committee now (with the exception above stated) recommend the proposed clause for general adoption, as a mode of settling, with satisfaction to all parties concerned, the matters referred to your committee.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

(THE STANDARD.)

Mr. Baillie Cochrane raised, in the question he addressed to Lord Enfield in the House, and in the few observations with which he prefaced it, a subject of very considerable importance. The announcement made by the Suez Canal Company of its intention to increase the dues levied upon vessels using the Canal has caused much excitement amongst English shipowners, who, relying upon the maintenance of the original tariff, have entered with great spirit into the new trade to the East, and have expended a large amount of capital in the construction of vessels expressly calculated for it. The increased tariff would, they believe, make it impossible for them to compete with vessels taking the old and long route, or, at all events, would leave such a small margin of profit that the capital they have invested in the trade would be in large part sacrificed. It might have seemed doubtful whether the English Government would have had any right to interpose in such a matter, but the action the Porte has taken not only removes all difficulty on the point, but will probably prevent any realisation of the plans of the Canal Company. It may appear harsh to object to the owners of a highway levying tolls which will give them some return for their outlay; but the Suez Canal was constructed under very peculiar conditions, and the increase of rates now would be a gross breach of faith as regards those English shipowners who have invested such large sums in building vessels adapted for the traffic. The Porte has a perfect right to veto any such scheme as the Company seems to be bent upon, and the English Government may properly sustain the Porte in its action. The Khedive is a shareholder in the Canal. Indeed, it was practically built for the larger part with his money. The Khedive is, therefore, not entirely disinterested in the matter, and it is but just that the Porte, very jealous in this matter of its authority, should intervene, and claim that any such serious changes as those now proposed should be submitted for its approval.

A still more serious matter would be the claim of the French Government to jurisdiction in all questions between those who use the Canal and the Canal Company, if such a claim has really been asserted. That would be an attempt at usurpation of authority which would not be submitted to by any European Power. Lord Enfield had not heard of it, but promised inquiry into the matter, and we fancy that, with inquiry, the claim, if made at all, will evaporate. It is quite true that the French Government is inclined to seek satisfaction for the humiliation France has suffered from Germany by the adoption of an arrogant tone towards weaker countries, and it is probable that if England were to directly oppose herself to such a pretension M. Thiers would assert it with great vehemence. But other countries than England are fortunately interested in the matter; and whatever M. Thiers may desire, he will be unable to establish such a French protectorate in Egypt as the attainment of such an end would give him. Lord Enfield knew nothing of any such pretension, and we are inclined to believe that none has been asserted. It is probable that the officials of the Canal Company have made menaces of the kind, but they count for nothing except with the natives. The whole of Europe has an interest in the Canal, and will take care that it is not rendered useless to Europe by any action of the French shareholders. The whole of Europe is pledged to defend the independence of Egypt as a part of the Turkish Empire, and will not allow the French Government to assume a power in Egypt which would be fatal to that independence.

Monetary and Commercial.

The report of the British Australian Telegraph Company has been issued. The South Australian Government Land Line, intended to connect the Cable Terminus at Port Darwin with Adelaide, and which was to be completed by the 31st December, remains still unfinished, and more than five months having now elapsed since the date agreed upon for completion, the directors, although desirous to give the Government every reasonable latitude in point of time, are of opinion that additional means of communication with the centres of commerce of Australia should be immediately provided, an alternative line from Port Darwin being considered necessary; it is, therefore, recommended to lay a cable to the existing Queensland lines on the Gulf of Carpentaria, and to raise for this purpose £320,000 Preference Stock in shares of £20 each, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. Since this report a telegram has been received announcing a fracture of the Java and Port Darwin Cable, and the Company give notice that messages for Australia, New Zealand, and Tasmania should, for the present, be sent Post Galle.

The report of the Assam Company, presented on Friday, recommends a dividend of 15 per cent., making, with the previous distribution, 20 per cent. for the year, and leaving £2,524 to be carried forward. The total distribution in the previous year was 15 per cent.

At the annual general meeting of the Marine Insurance Company a dividend of £1 and a bonus of £6 per share were declared, payable on and after the 10th instant.

The National Steamship Company have declared an interim dividend for the half-year ending the 30th ult., at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The ordinary general meeting of the proprietors of the City Bank will be held on the 16th inst., to declare a dividend.

In the Albert Life Assurance Company Arbitration a first dividend of 2s. in the pound on all policies claims on which are admitted against the Albert Company proper has been declared, and will be payable on the days to be named in a circular which will be sent to every creditor who has claimed.

An action "Moul v. Andrews" has been tried before Chief Justice Bovill in the Court of Common Pleas. The suit was to recover damages for an alleged misrepresentation of the value of a tea broker's business, sold by the defendant to the plaintiff for £1,200, the income being stated to be £2,000 a-year, and partly secured; but in fact the plaintiff sustained a loss of £500 a-year by it. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

Bar Silver is inactive, the price not being firm at our last quotation of 60 1-16d. per oz. standard. There is no demand for the East. Mexican Dollars are scarce, and quotations are nominally as last given, viz.:—62¼d. per oz., for the Old, and 59¾d. per oz. for the New Coinage. About £13,000 were shipped to China by last mail.

The Neville, the last vessel with old season's teas, arrived on the 27th.

TEA.

The market has been very quiet during the past week, it having again become difficult to effect sales by private contract, buyers being able to provide for their immediate wants at the public auctions, which continue to be held from day to day. Prices on the whole show but little change, but further supplies of new season's Scented Orange Pekoe have sold at a considerable decline on the extreme rates obtained for the small lots previously sold. The public sales have comprised 14,459 packages, of which nearly the whole was offered, and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 2,930,870 lbs., against 3,493,160 lbs. for the corresponding period last year. Telegrams from Aden, dated 26th June, announce the departure of the first two steamer cargoes with new season's China Teas; the Deccan at noon on the above date, and the Sunda in the evening of the same day.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings show no improvement. Broken-leaf kinds have been sold rather easier; fair to good common, free from dust, remain firm. Fair to good Kaisows have been sold at public sale at last week's prices; fine to finest have been dull of sale. In Pak Lins there is nothing to report. Black-leaf kinds: The low qualities remain as before; good common have been quiet at rather lower rates; fair to good medium have been realised at public auction to some extent, prices occasionally favouring buyers; fine to finest show no change. New make Canton kinds: Old season's continue to be sold at very low prices; in new about 3,000 boxes found buyers at 1s. 2d. per lb. for fair quality; good to fine show no material change, but the demand is quiet. Oolongs: Some fine, recently arrived, have been sold at 2s. 4d. per lb.; the export demand is still fair. Souchongs have sold lower at public sale for fine quality. Scented Teas:—Canton Capers: Recent arrivals per Rollo have been difficult to move at rather lower prices. Orange Pekoes:—Canton kinds: About 1,000 boxes new season's have been sold from 2s. to 2s. 2d. per lb. for fine quality, being lower prices; old season's show no change. Green Teas: The market remains very steady, and prices firmly supported for all kinds of country Tea. Canton kinds: About 1,500 boxes were sold at public sale at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb. for good quality.

SILK.

The Market keeps very firm, with a good business doing in Asiatic silk generally. Chinas are in much demand, and the prices of good Tsatlees have further slightly advanced during the week. Deliveries are very good, and the general tone of the market is strong. Deliveries, 1st to 26th ult. inclusive:—China, 2,311 bales; Canton, 1,053 bales; Japan, 824 bales; total, 4,198 bales.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

There is very little doing from first hands, buyers holding off until the duty is removed. Prices, though without quotable change, are scarcely so firm as of late.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil has been quiet, so far as sales from first hands is concerned, but dealers and jobbers have sold freely to supply the growing demand from consumers at the West. The small business from first hands is accounted for, mainly, by the extreme firmness of holders, who, as a rule, are not in the market at all except at a still further advance in values, and offer their stocks very sparingly at any price. Prices of East India show an upward tendency. In Java there has been a movement here, with sales of 17,232 mats per Cyclone, 5,600 do. in a jobbing way at 22c. to 23½c.; 1,450 bags Government do., 19c. to 20c. gold in bond; and on private terms

500 bags Government Java per India (via Glasgow), and 500 bags Native Ceylon, ship not named.

CORDAGE.—Although there is a strike among the workmen of the Cordage manufacturers, so far prices have not been influenced thereby, and the market is without change.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The stock is in few hands, and is now held firmly at $2.70 to 2.75 for trade lots. Sales have been made of 10,500 boxes extra No. 1, at $2.65 to 2.75, 2,000 boxes at $2.60 to 2.70 (Golden Dragon $2.75); 2,000 boxes in bond, for export, $1.30 to 1.35 gold; and 6,500 boxes duty paid, on private terms.

HEMP.—The late arrivals of Manila at New York and Boston have brought all the supplies expected in the States to Sept. 1 next, and holders in consequence are firm in their views, and are offering little if any below 12¼c. gold. Manufacturers of both cities are supplied for the present, and we have only to report sales in 100 bale lots at 12¼c. gold.

RICE.—The demand for Rangoon for home consumption is fairly active at former prices, but the sales in bond show a slight decline, owing to there being an extensive stock, and but limited demand for export. The sales of the week have been 1,550 bags at $6.87½ to 7.25 currency, and 4,200 bags in bond at $3 to 3.12½ gold.

SUGAR.—The market is quiet, but holders, as a rule, remain pretty firm, and offer the increasing stock sparingly, but in view of a strike in some of the refineries, and a general demand for an increase of wages, there has been little disposition to purchase freely, and the business has, consequently, fallen off. There have been no sales of East India descriptions.

SPICES.—The market for most descriptions is firm. In Nutmegs there has been considerable movement, some 600 cases Penang having changed hands on terms not made public. For a few days there was a pause in the demand for Cloves and Clove Stems, consequent upon the advanced and unusual high prices, but buyers now come forward more freely, and sales have been made of about 400 bales Cloves at 19½c. to 20c., and 500 ditto Clove Stems 9c. to 9½c. For Mace there is rather a better feeling, though prices are without quotable change. Cassia is very dull. Pepper is steady. We notice sales to the trade —Mace, at $1.15 to 1.22½; prime Penang Nutmegs, 92½c. to 95c.; Pepper 17c. and 18c. for Sumatra and Singapore; White Pepper, 35c. to 36c.; all gold.

TIN is still neglected, buyers holding off until the new tariff takes effect. Straits is generally held at 38c. gold, but in the present pathy prices are wholly nominal.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

CHINA.

Sunken Rock off White Rock near Tungao.—Information has been received of the existence of a sunken rock near Tungao bay and lying directly in the track of vessels proceeding from the anchorage in Tungao roads round Breaker point, as also when keeping in shore to avoid the north-east monsoon, and on which the steam ship Hai-Loong struck. The sunken danger, Hai-Loong rock, lies a mile off shore, on rocky ground which is about half a mile in extent with from 5 to 10 fathoms; near the centre of this rocky ground are two pinnacles lying north and south 50 yards apart, with only 11 feet water on them at low water, the lead slipping off into 6 fathoms on either side of each pinnacle. From the north pinnacle—The islet inside Breaker point bears E. by N. northerly, distant 5¼ miles. White rock N. by E. 2-3 E., one mile. North Pagoda N.N.W. ¼ W., 5¼ miles. These bearings place the rock in lat. 22 deg. 54 min. 30 sec. N., long. 116 deg. 19 min. 30 sec. E.—Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, London, June, 1872.

SUCCESS IN INDIA, AND HOW TO ATTAIN IT.
EFFINGHAM WILSON, Royal Exchange.

The writer is evidently well acquainted with the East, and the information afforded by him is both useful and interesting.—Daily News.

The honest yet hopeful way in which practical information is communicated in these pages concerning actual life in India will awaken the dormant enterprise of young men of education and ability, whose prospects may be somewhat indifferent at home.—Globe.

A valuable little pamphlet.—Morning Post.

The author of this very sensible work appears quite at home in his subject.—Financier.

We leave the little book with much the same impression as would be derived from the conversation of an intelligent and observant man of the world.—Bullionis .

A real and practical knowledge has been brought to bear upon the subject —Money Market Review.

The author of the above-named pamphlet formerly editor of the Indian Examiner, and since on the staff of daily and weekly journals in London, seeks a re-en gagement as editor in China, Japan, or Ceylon. The advertiser has a thorough knowledge of the practical working of a newspaper, and could undertake the business department also.

Address, J. D. B., care of the Editor of the London and China Telegraph, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, to whom references are kindly permitted.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

The practical man in medicine and surgery is always successful. Patients praise the source of their own cure and never tire of recounting the miracles wrought upon them. A fair trial is all that is asked to prove the sterling and superior merits of this Ointment, and to demonstrate how much more successful it is in curing old ulcers, inveterate sores, and disfiguring eruptions than any other application. When properly used it lessens the inflammation which invades parts adjacent to the wound or ulcer, whereby much local pain is immediately assuaged, irritation subdued, and in the course of an hour or two the most satisfactory results invariably follow, which will steadily advance to a thorough and permanent cure.

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, 14th MAY, 1872 (VIA SAN FRANCISCO).

My last usual monthly was on the 13th ultimo via San Francisco, since when nothing of any great importance has transpired. The latest mail dates to hand are the French and English mails of the 15th and 22nd March, both of which arrived here on the 6th instant; the former by the British steamer Miaca, 53 days out, and the latter by the Pacific Mail steamer Golden Age, 46 days out.

The effect produced in England by that madbrained article of the Nagasaki Gazette on the native Christian question has furnished a subject for conversation. No one here even from the first believed the statements to be correct, and the subsequent actions of the Government of Japan have only been to prove how unfounded were the charges brought against them. Not the least fatal thing to the assertions of the Gazette is the fact that the identical men who were tortured, according to the statement of that journal, have been allowed to return to their homes. It is beyond doubt that they are the same men as those taken away, so that better proof could not be obtained.

The penalty being paid by the delinquent journal will ultimately end in it collapsing altogether before long. I hear that subscriptions to it, which have for some time past been falling off one by one, are now becoming a general thing. This accounts for the Editorials in which "Ye lords of ye bund" appeared. The general impression amongst persons here is that the Catholic priests had nothing to do with the native Christian article.

The subscription list, in order to meet the expenses incurred in putting the fire engines, &c., in proper repair, and make them fit for the use of the brigade, has about $200 contributed, chiefly by the agents of the Fire Insurance Companies.

Our Regatta, which is never remarkable for heavy betting or large prizes, has been fixed for the 25th instant, weather permitting at the old rendezvous, Papenburg. So far as fun and real enjoyment is concerned, the day will be another of the successes for which Nagasaki has obtained a reputation. The events are generally rendered historical by a photograph being taken of all persons who are present.

The Pacific Mail Company appear to be doing a thriving trade, both as regards the number of passengers and the quantity of cargo carried. This steamer carries a large number of the former, and appears to be very deep; she shuts out all through cargo from this unless shippers will consent to it being carried on deck.

The Lahloo is on the berth for London, to fill up with tea at Shanghai. The Solent does not come here, but another vessel is reported to be coming instead. Boos, 400 per $100. Sterling on London, 4s. 7d. per dollar nominal; on Shanghai, Tls. 77 per $100. Arrivals.—From London, Lahloo; Cardiff, Scotia, with coals for the British Government, both on the 8th instant.

YOKOHAMA.

Dates by the present mail reach to the 15th May, but by the Pacific mail via San Francisco our files extend to the 25th. The outward French mail of 29th March arrived on 17th, and the P. and O. mail of 5th April on the 19th May. The following summary is from the Japan Herald:—

By the last American steamer from San Francisco arrived Ito and two other members of the Japanese Embassy. It is reported that Terashima, of the Foreign Department, accompanied by Ito, will return by this steamer and join the Embassy.

An outbreak of the farmers and peasantry at two or three villages near Niigata has taken place. It is said that discontent was caused among them by the Government levying a tax in order to make a canal in that district. The military were called out, and after a short engagement, in which two Government officials were wounded, and several farmers killed, peace was restored. Although the outbreak occurred near the foreign settlement, no Europeans were molested or menaced.

The Mikado's mother, the Dowager Empress of Japan, has arrived at Yedo from Kioto, which she left to permanently reside at the former place three weeks previously. The procession, although a long one, was not on a grand scale, and presented no special feature of interest.

Since the fire at Yedo a survey of that city has been in hand, and is now completed. The streets are to be made much wider, and good drains are to be laid down in all the thoroughfares, and the houses to be built more substantially than before.

The fares that have been fixed by the Government for travellers by the railway from here to Yedo are universally considered much too high, the first-class being equivalent to fourpence per mile.

A regatta in honour of the Queen's birthday is fixed to take place on the 29th, in consequence of the departure of mails on the 24th. It promises to be the most successful that has yet been held.

The Exhibition at Kioto has been opened, but not many foreign visitors have visited it. It consists of a miscellaneous collection of Japanese products and curiosities.

The grave of Will Adams, the first Englishman that ever reached Japan, has been recently found near Yokoska, as likewise that of his Japanese wife.

The health of the settlement is excellent, the hospital at no time containing so few inmates.

The Japan Mail has the following items:—

M. M. von Brandt, Minister Resident for North Germany, was received by H.M. the Tenno in private audience on the 13th. The audience was granted in one of the wings of the castle, in a room sumptuously furnished in European style. The Minister Resident, accompanied by M. Kempermann, his secretary and interpreter, was introduced by H.E. Terashima, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs. His Majesty sat at a table, on which stood his sword-stand, and around him were ranged several of the high officers of the Court, including the Chief Master of the Ceremonies. On a verandah, which could be seen through one of the open doors, were six chamberlains in waiting. The Tenno requested M. von Brandt to occupy the seat on his right, and a conversation ensued, which lasted an hour and a half, after which M. von Brandt took leave of his Majesty. Among the curiosities in the audience chamber is a silver peacock of life size, of extraordinary workmanship and beauty.

On the 14th Mr. Adams, H.B.M.'s Chargé d'Affaires, had an audience of H.M. the Mikado, prior to taking his departure for Europe.

We understand that a memorial to the Consular body is in course of preparation by the owners of land on the swamp concession, urging upon the Consuls the necessity of insisting upon the maintenance of a proper system of drainage in the streets between the Homura-road and the swamp.

The New York telegrams from Japan mention that the Japanese Government had arranged a loan of $2,000,000 at 9 per cent. with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank.

The Japanese Custom-house refused to enter the steamer Zadkia, from Glasgow, as she sailed under the Tunisian flag. After a week's detention the difficulty was arranged. This vessel had on board the gas material for the town.

THE BLUFF FLOWER SHOW.

The Flower Show held at the Bluff Gardens is the most successful, from a floricultural point of view, that has as yet taken place in Yokohama. Two years ago Yokohama did not possess many roses of excellence, and it is indeed a surprise to witness the rapid progress that has been made in rose culture, for no less than thirty-five named varieties were exhibited, principally, as was to be expected, by foreigners. The contributions by the ladies have been more numerous than last year, and a difficult task had the judges to decide upon whom to bestow the honours of the occasion. Shortly after three o'clock Captains Baldwin and Lane, and Mr. Christie, the judges, went their rounds of inspection, and in about half an hour decided that Miss Dare's bouquet was entitled to the first prize, and the arrangement of flowers of Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Allmand to the second and third respectively. The Japanese mustered plants, flowers and shrubs in great force; the variety and quality of their exhibits were very commendable, but by far the best exhibits in the show were the three boxes containing thirty different kinds of named roses sent in by Mr. Kramer. Of fruits and vegetables there were many exhibitors, Captain Purvis showing some strawberries, lettuces, and radishes. Mrs. Bourne sent in some artichokes. Some kohl rabi was exhibited by Mr. Dowson and Mr. Jarmain, who likewise contributed asparagus, peas, potatoes, gooseberries, and strawberries.

The gardens were well filled with visitors, and the band of the Colorado performed several selections of operatic music during the afternoon. The public of Yokohama are certainly under great obligations to Mr. W. H. Smith, the managing director of the gardens, to whose untiring industry and indefatigable energy the success of the show is mainly due. We trust that this pleasant affair is but the precursor of other similar gatherings which are yet to follow, and that such stimulus to floriculture and horticulture will result from these competitions as to exercise an appreciable influence on utiltarian and ornamental gardening in Yokohama.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

The advices from this port extend to May 19; the French mail of March 29 arrived out on the 14th, and the following P. and O. mail of April 5 on May 17. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

Prince Kung's memorial regarding the position of foreigners, a translation of which was published in the Herald of March 28, has been posted outside the New North Gate, and seems to attract a good deal of attention. But it is in the cities of the interior that it is most wanted; and it is for its fate there that we feel most apprehensive. Foreigners know whether a thing is posted at Shanghai, but they don't know whether it is posted at Nanchang.

The Shanghai Hsien has issued a proclamation, stating that a despatch has been received from the Board of Rites, announcing an eclipse of the sun on the 6th June. All people must accordingly be on the alert at the proper time; that is, rescue it from the jaws of the dragon by beating gongs and so forth, to frighten away the devouring monster.

A complimentary address has been presented to Mr. Seward, on the occasion of his leaving Shanghai. We believe it expresses very truly the feeling of the community; it will gratify Mr. Seward to know that his exertions have been appreciated, and that he carries with him the general good wishes of his fellow-residents. Mr. O. B. Bradford takes charge of the United States Consulate during Mr. Seward's absence.

The second expedition for the recovery of specie from the wreck of the Hamilla Mitchell commenced operations on the 16th May, and succeeded in recovering $8,000, when it became apparent that blasting was necessary—the ship, which is iron built, having completely broken up, and the pieces corroded and formed a solid mass, covering in the silver. The expedition accordingly returned to Shanghai for the necessary appliances, but will return to the wreck as soon as possible.

There have been quite a number of amusements in Shanghai during the past week. The Shanghai Yacht Club held a regatta on May 13—three events—a ladies' purse for yachts, which was won by the Emily; a race for house-boats, won by the Winifred; and one for ship's boats, won by the Snipe. A cricket match was played on the same afternoon, between eleven of H.M.S. Iron Duke and eleven of the Shanghai Cricket Club. This resulted in favour of the former, with seven wickets to go down. On the 15th the Shanghai Rowing Club held a spring regatta—two events, for Eights and Fours. The Eight-oar race was awarded to the Red boat (Addis, stroke), the Fours was won by Blue (Glass, stroke). The course was on the Pootung side, between Boyd's and Lindsay's wharves, distance about one mile. The 16th was devoted to athletic sports, and the meeting proved a thorough success. Fifteen events came off, and nearly all produced good fields. The time made was not good, but none of the men had trained.

The Deutsche Bank has taken the premises in Kiangse road lately occupied by the Chamber of Commerce. It will be remembered that these were built, a few years ago, for the Bank of India.

Messrs. Aymeri, Galle, Voisin and Weelock have been elected members of the French Municipal Council.

For some weeks past a series of meetings have been held in the London Mission Chinese Chapel, in connection with the temperance societies of H.M.'s ships Cockchafer and Leven and the U. S. steamers Monocacy and Palos. These meetings have had satisfactory results; no less than sixty-three new members having lately joined the societies.

It is said that the S.S.N. Co. have bought the Nautilus; rumour adds for $80,000, and that she is to run with the Chusan on the Ningpo line.

An edict in the Peking Gazette of April 12 announces more successes by the Imperialists in Kweichow; but it is the Mahomedans who are beaten this time, not Miaotze. The lustre, however, of the victories is somewhat tarnished by the fact that they were won through the treachery of a renegade chief. The places mentioned are situated in the south-western extremity of the province, connecting on the south with Kwangsi and on the west with Yunan—that is to say, probably, that the affair was a sort of offshoot of the Mahomedan insurrection in Yunan.

The Gazette of the 13th April contains a rather striking memorial from the Governor of Kiangsu, regarding the rice tribute. Sea-going junks are now so few that it was found impossible to send the whole at one time; the same junks will have to repeat the trip. No attempt is made to account for this decrease in native shipping; but the cause doubtless is that, as old junks die out, they are not replaced, their inferiority to foreign ships being recognised. But fancy their being convoyed by steamers! The idea of convoy at all is nonsense, now. Pirates have died out on the north coast; still it is something to have got so far as to recognise the superiority of steamers to war junks for convoying purposes. But what are the steamers belonging to the "Shanghai Office for the Prevention of Piracy,' which are only able to cruise in inland waters?

SHANGHAI, May 18, 1872.

A despatch recently came down from the Minister at Peking to Admiral Shadwell, and was telegraphed on to him at Hong Kong. It was considered urgent, and brought on the Admiral at once to this place, on his way to Tientsin with seven men-of-war, viz.:—Iron Duke, Salamis, Juno, Teazer, Leven, Firm, and Cockchafer. The intelligence awaiting the Admiral here has changed his destination, and instead of proceeding at once to Tientsin, as was his original intention, he now goes in the Iron Duke on the 20th inst. to Nagasaki. That there was some hitch at Peking is evident, but what the difficulty was about is a profound mystery, only to be dug up out of some ponderous Blue-book some year or two hence, unless, indeed, some member of Parliament questions the Government on the subject. It cannot be the "Audience question," as there could not have been any instructions to Mr. Wade to move in that matter at present. The only surmise I can make is that it must have arisen on some point of etiquette so dear to our Minister. Some Mandarin or other must have made a bow or two less than customary, and so endangered the peace of two mighty nations. Massacres, evasions of Treaty Rights, illegal dues on merchandise, all fail to arouse the ire of our representatives, but let a point of etiquette arise, or a punctuation be put in a wrong word, and the British Lion immediately roars and wags his tail. I shall be curious to hear what the row was about, and shall keep my eye on Peking and the Foreign-office.

The Admiral arrived here on the 11th inst. in the Salamis, the Iron Duke having to remain at Woosung, owing to the everlasting bar, which ought to be, but is not, dredged by the Chinese Government out of the dues on shipping fraudulently levied for that purpose for the last thirty years. If the Iron Duke got over at the highest spring tides she might be unable to get out again without delay and lightening.

The Tea trade is about to open, and a frightful rush of tea tasters has taken place. Steamers and tea tasters are all flocking to Hankow. A number of fine steamers will load with the new teas, and the P. and O. Company are running two direct vessels, the Deccan from Shanghai, and the Malacca from Foochow, and I imagine they will not be behind in the race. The Deccan being a through steamer takes a number of first-class passengers, amongst whom are several ladies and their families. Several of our well-known residents are going home just now, as may be seen by the passenger list. Sir E. Hornby is expected at the end of this month, when Mr. Goodwin takes his leave for a time.

A cricket match came off on the 13th and 14th inst. between eleven of the officers of H.M.S. Iron Duke and eleven of the Shanghai players, resulting in a victory for the Iron Dukes.

A grand scheme was discussed at the late ratepayers' meeting for widening the bund, erecting a new bridge, and inaugurating a tramway for the conveyance of goods and passengers. The bunding and bridge will be carried out, but the tramway is still sub judice.

Mr. Hart has gone south, to open a port in the island of Hainan, and one is also to be opened in the north, somewhere on the Yangtsze.

SINGAPORE.

The advices from this port extend to the 2nd June; the French mail from London, April 26, arrived out May 30, and the following P. and O. mail of May 3 was expected to arrive the day this mail left.

The session of the Legislative Council will be formally opened by his Excellency the Governor, at the Council Chamber, on the 4th June. Though there are a number of matters to which the Council might well devote attention, it is not anticipated that the session will be a busy one; no important measures have as yet been shadowed forth, and the general belief is that the Council will have little to do besides ordinary routine business. In the meantime, his Excellency is, we believe, endeavouring to prevent the exportation of arms and the enlistment here and in the neighbourhood of men, for the purpose of renewing the Salangore petty war Rajah Mahdie, who it will be remembered was obliged to leave the territory after the Salangore affair—having been busy ever since, in Perak, Siak Rhio, Johore, and even in Singapore, obtaining men and supplies for his adherents, who are now harassing Tunkoo dia Oodin. His Excellency made an excursion "around the island" a few days ago in the Pluto, stopping at Johore on the way, and immediately after his return left for Rhio. Both these excursions, it is believed, were in connection with the doings of Rajah Mahdie.

Major General Whitfield, commander-in-chief, has been making a tour of inspection of the troops and defences of the Colony. He arrived by the last homeward mail steamer, and left for Hong Kong by the French mail steamer.

The Chinese and native community continue quiet and orderly, though attempts have been made during the past day or two by a few ruffians to get up a faction quarrel. They have failed, however, so far, and will, it is to be hoped, be summarily brought to account should they renew their efforts to foment a riot.

We are pained to have to record the death of one of our prominent residents, Mr. William Cathcart Hannay, of the firm of Martin, Dyce and Co., at the early age of thirty-five. Mr. Hannay was greatly respected in the community, and always took a leading part in all matters likely to promote the public good or the welfare of the place. The members of the Exchange have unanimously resolved to erect a memorial stone over his grave, as a mark of their esteem.

HONG KONG.—There had been some inquiry during the fortnight in the market for Plain Cottons, and a small business had resulted, but in most instances at concessions upon last quotations. Towards the close the market had again become quiet. Clearances continued on a very small scale, and money appeared to be scarce.

MANILA.—The market had been quiet and prices weaker.

SINGAPORE.—A fair amount of business had been done at slightly weaker prices for most descriptions of Grey Goods. The latest telegraphic advices from Manchester were in favour of holders. 39-inch Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs. inquiry fallen off, and some few sales made at $2.60; 7 lbs. quiet, $2.22½; 6 lbs. $2.2½; 45-inch 9 lbs. without inquiry; a small sale of 8lbs. at $2.70; 32-inch Grey T-Cloths, 7 lbs., a fair amount of business done at $1.90 to 1.92½; 6 lbs. little inquired for at $1.70 to 1.72½; 5 lbs. and lighter weights neglected; 36-inch Grey Supers, No. 1 taken at rather lower prices, $1.95 to 2.3 according to quality; small demand for No. 3, at $2.25; Grey Yarn, 18/24's very quiet at $105 to 107½; 30's out of stock, and 40's in fair demand at $135; Coloured Yarn, T R dye very dull; Imperial Red in good demand at $84 to 87; Green and Yellow wanted at $82½ to 87, and $78 to 83 respectively; Woollens—Scarlet Long Ells 12 lbs. firm at $7¼ to 8; Lastings, little wanted; Brocaded Lustres, offered to "arrive" without finding buyers; Scarlet Spanish Stripes held firmly for 80c. to 85c.; Metals—Iron in good demand and firmly held for an advance; Govan Flat Bar, $3.85 to 4; Common Bar, $3.50; Nailrods, $3.75 and 4; Hoop, $4½; Swedish Flat Bar, $1½; Yellow Metal, buyers purchasing very sparingly, quotation 26½ to 27; Lead, improved, upwards of 50 tons L.B. placed at $6¼, and a fair quantity of Common at $5.85

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Fully a fortnight earlier than usual parcels of the new crop had come into the market, which was accounted for by the natives having availed of steamer transport; these supplies had been eagerly bought up at prices fully $8 higher than opening rates last season. Settlements for the month amounted to 1,300 piculs of old Common leaf, and 2,000 piculs of new; the latter consisted of Good Medium to Finest grades, and had been settled at prices ranging from $46 to 60. The quality was good, but showed signs of having been too hastily prepared, as is usual at an early period of the season; large supplies were expected during the month of June, and there was every prospect of an abundant crop. The market closed easy, with a tendency to lower prices.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—During the month under review small lots of new Teas had reached the market. The present Pacific mail steamer took the first of the new crop, in all about 350 piculs. Although the new season had not been fairly inaugurated, prices paid for the first arrivals showed an advance over last season's rates of about $5 to 7 per picul. Quotations were nominal, but the late business had been done on a basis of $55 to 60 for finest to choice. Nothing had been done in old Tea.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co. report as follows, under date May 14:—Musters of the new Teas were placed on the market yesterday morning, 13 inst., fully a week earlier than last year, and during the day between 80 and 90 parcels were placed on offer, consisting chiefly of Ningchow leaf. So early a commencement was entirely unlooked for, musters not being expected before the 15th inst., at the earliest. One settlement was reported yesterday, namely a parcel of half-chests Ningchow at Tls. 40 per picul (costing at 6s. 4d. Exchange and £6; freight, say 2s. 6½d.). We hear also of settlements at Kiukiang of two or three parcels at Tls. 38 to 40½ per picul, the first being made on the 9th inst. A few further settlements are reported to-day. Contracts can only be made at high prices, dealers preferring to wait, owing to the non-arrival of the greater portion of the Shanghai buyers. We shall report more fully the comparative merits of the crop by the next steamer, having scarcely had sufficient time yet to go carefully through the whole of the musters. The average of the Ningchows is good. The Teas are well made and strong in cup, but we think them deficient in quality and not so fine as last year's. Of the Hankow Teas, arrivals are principally from Cheong-sow-kai district, and these compare favourably with last year's. We have not yet seen musters enough of the Oonfar and other district Teas to form an opinion about them; the former are reported on native authority to be inferior to last year's standard. The quantity of Tea now on offer amounts to about 10,000 chests, 50,000 half-chests, 46,000 boxes; of which has been settled, as far as we can learn at present, 7,263 half-chests and 1,000 boxes, at Tls. 35 to Tls. 41 per picul, at exchange 6s. 4d., and freight £6 2s. 3½d to £6 2s. 7½d., adding Tls. 3 for duty &c. There are no steamers in port yet, but the following vessels are advertised to sail from this:—Galley of Lorne, Erl King, Agamemnon, and Lord of the Isles for London, and the Tchihatchoff for Odessa. Also the P. and O. steamer Deccan, rates of freight by which are—£8 per ton of 40 feet for 45 days passage from Woosung; £7 10s. per ton of 40 feet for 50 days passage from Woosung; £6 per ton of 40 feet over 50 days passage from Woosung.

KIUKIANG.—Black: The market was opened on the 11th May, ten days earlier than last year, and at prices averaging Tls. 2 higher than the rates of last season. The Tea appeared rather better in quality, and the crop opening, as far as could yet be judged, would very likely exceed 20,000,000 lbs. Large arrivals were looked for in four or five day from date. Ningchow Teas were quoted Tls. 38.5.0 to Tls. 40.5.0.

SHANGHAI.—Market not yet opened.

FOOCHOW.—Up to the 13th May about 2,000 chests of new Congou had arrived, and some 1,500 chests more were expected to come in on the 14th, of new Ooloongs 800 half-chests were reported to have been received. No opinion as to the quality of the Teas could be given, though the Pehling Congous, of which some small parcels had already been forwarded to Hong Kong for transshipment by steamer to London, were spoken of favourably.

AMOY.—The first parcels of New Season's Teas were brought to market on the 13th May, when chest musters representing ten chops of Ooloong and one of Orange Pekoe were shown; these varied somewhat in quality, but were all fine well-made Teas, though one or two chops had not been well fired; this disadvantage would hardly extend to the later Teas, however, as Teamen with more time at their command would doubtless exercise greater care in the preparation.

CANTON.—A considerable amount of business had been transacted. For a few days after the departure of last English mail a quieter tone prevailed, and the teamen were willing to accept rather easier prices; but later on buying becoming more active, prices hardened. Some improvement in scent had been shown in some cases, but in make the musters offered during the interval had continued inferior to the teas of last season. All desirable parcels had been eagerly competed for, and but few remained on the market, the samples lately shown being much mixed with old leaf and spurious matter. In spite of these defects the teamen were asking extremely high figures, and this, coupled with the absence of tonnage, had during the last few days checked operations. Scented Orange Pekoes had been in moderate request, and had been dealt in on the whole at easier rates than those last quoted; the settlements reported include some 2,000 to 3,000 boxes "new make" at Tls. 16 to 19. Scented Capers had been in brisk demand, and business had been done at an advance of Tls. 1 to 2 on last quotations. Congous had been little inquired for. Green Teas: Gunpowders alone were in request, and purchases consisted principally of medium and fine descriptions. Settlements are:—Scented Orange Pekoe, 17,000 boxes at Tls. 16 to 33; Scented Caper, 65,000 boxes at Tls. 18 to 33; Congou, 1,000 boxes at Tls. 22 to 26; Gunpowder, 10,000 boxes at Tls. 20 to 30.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The business done since the 8th May had been on a very moderate scale, only about 300 bales having been settled. Arrivals had been few, and the stock was estimated at 300 bales. The supply on offer consisted mainly of Oshu Silk, for which high prices were demanded. Reports from the interior regarding the new crop were satisfactory, the weather having been very favourable.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—There is nothing to report with reference to this market. No transactions had been entered into during the interval, and quotations were nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says transactions during the fortnight sum up about 300 bales, bringing the season's total over 50,000 bales, of which a much larger proportion than usual has been Yellow Silk. With regard to the new crop everything went well until a week ago, when sickness is reported to have destroyed a large percentage of the worms then in the fourth stage; how far this may affect the yield is still uncertain, as reports and opinions are very conflicting, some estimates giving only 50,000 bales, whilst others range up to a probable 60,000 bales. A few small hank musters were received here on the 17th May, and the bulk is expected in the course of next week.

CANTON.—Musters of the first crop of new season's had arrived, also some cargo, but the quality was not up to expectations, either as regards size or cleanliness, though of average good colour. The opening prices were exceedingly high, partly accounted for by the eagerness shown to make purchases, regardless of wet Silk and high rates, not at all justified by any news from England. It was the opinion of some that after the first excitement subsides, consequent upon the departure of this mail and the next French mail, an abatement in the exorbitant rates would follow. Re-reeled Silks were in great request, and very high prices had been paid—for No. 1 Re-reeled Lacklow $580 to 590, and for No. 1 Re-reeled Kotengon $670 to 690. Dealers refused to re-reel Silks on their own account, and would only do so under contract. Stock was not ascertainable, but very little Silk had arrived compared with amount of crop, which is estimated at 5,000 bales of all descriptions, inclusive of 2,000 bales Tsatlee. Settlements had been 400 bales, of which 200 went forward by the present mail: for the American mail of June 600 boxes of Re-reels were reported to have been contracted for, but this estimate must be taken with reservation, as it is very difficult to ascertain the real amount.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Beebe and Brothers advise as follows:—Since the issue of our Circular of the 18th May business in tea has been comparatively limited, and prices realised show more or less decline upon quotations prior to that date. Sales reported from first hands during the month include 9,200 half chests Green, 19,800 half chests Japan, 26,200 half-chests Oolong, and 1,600 half-chests Souchong and Congou. At the close jobbers show but little disposition to buy, except at a further decline, while the demand for consumption is materially checked by pending auction sales.

The following are the current quotations (in gold, duty 15c. paid): —Greens (Moyune, Teenki and Fychow, in chops): Gunpowder, first quality, 95c. to 108c.; second, 72c. to 82c.; Imperial, first, 75c. to 85c.; second, 63c. to 72c.; third, 50c. to 52c.; Young Hyson, first, 83c. to 95c.; second, 70c. to 80c.; third, 54c. to 60c.; Hyson, first, 75c. to 85c.; second, 62c. to 72c.; third, 52c. to 56c.; Hyson Skin, 34c. to 44c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 43c. to 51c.; superior and fine, 54c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 90c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 42c. to 52c.; superior and fine, 55c. to 65c.; finest, 67c. to 70c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 29c. to 38c.; superior and fine, 43c. to 55c.; finest, 60c. to 70c.; Japans, common, 45c. to 47c.; medium, 52c. to 55c.; good medium, 57c. to 60c.; fine and finest, 62c. to 72c.; choice, 77c. to 82c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to June 18, 1872, were as follows:—Greens, 15,556,989 lbs.; Japans, 7,904,533 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,665,507 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,380,770 lbs.; other sorts, 83,397 lbs.; total, 36,591,196 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 19,708,564 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 56,299,760 lbs. as the total supply. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to June 18, 3,031,799 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 13,622,124 lbs., there remains a total of 39,645,837 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date.

SILK.

A decrease in business has been perceptible of late, consumers purchasing in small parcels, and only for their immediate wants. The firm prices demanded for present stock, and the desire to await the arrival of the new crop of silk, tend in a great measure to check operations. The principal enquiry during the interval has been for re-reeled Haineens, Tsatlees, and Cantons, which are current at quotations. There is a slight demand for usual reel Tsatlees and Taysaams, and the stock is light. Japans are still without sale.

Prices current for China and Japan Silks (currency prices, six months terms):—Tsatlee, No. 1, $9.25; No. 2, $9.00; No. 3, $8.50; Nos. 4 and 5, none. Taysaam, No. 1, $8.00; No. 2, $7.50; No. 3, none. Canton, re-reeled, No. 1 Cotngoun, $8.50; Best, No. 1 Cumchook. $7.50 to 7.75; Inferior, No. 1 Cumchook, $7.00 to 7.25. Tsatlee re-reeled, best, $8.62½; fair, $8 37½ to 8.50. Taysaam, re-reeled, fair, $7.75; med., $7.50. Haineen, re-reeled, best, $9.00 to 9.25; fair, $8.50 to 8.75. Szechuen, Shantung, med., $7.50 to 7.75; Kopun, $6.25.

Coffee.—The Market for Brazil remains inactive, caused chiefly by the continued firmness of holders who are not sellers except at extreme prices. The demand for the West has continued moderate, and dealers, though as a rule holding light stocks, are not buying to any extent, prefering to wait till after "The Fourth," when business will probably resume its usual course, the duty in the meantime having been taken off. The market for East India is quiet but firm. The stock in first hands is reduced, and as the whole supply is well concentrated, full prices are asked. The sales are 200 bags Government, and 8,210 mats Java, the latter per Coringa at 22c. to 23c. for the former, and 22c. to 23½. for the latter, all gold; also 400 bags Government Java at 19½c. gold in bond.

Cordage.—Work at several of the Cordage manufactories is interrupted by reason of the strike among the workmen, but there is a fair stock on hand, and, as the demand is not large, prices have not been affected.

Camphor.—China is quoted 18c. gold in bond.

China Preserved Ginger rules at $8.25 currency, duty (50 per cent. ad val.) paid.

Essential Oils.—Aniseed is quoted $2.75 to 2.87½ gold, and Cassia $2.12½ gold, duty paid.

Fire Crackers continue firm, although there is no extensive demand. Sales have been closed during the week of 8,700 boxes No. 1 quality at $2.65 to 2.75—chiefly at $2.70 to 2.75—gold, 1,500 boxes at $1.30 gold in bond, and 6,000 boxes on private terms.

Gambier is dull at 4.4-5c. gold; the stock on hand is 5,000 bales.

Hemp.—There is nothing doing in Manila, which is nominally quoted 12 to 12¼c. gold.

Indigo.—The market for Manila is very dull at 95c. to 105c. currency.

Rice.—Messrs. Talmage and Son's Circular says:—The demand for Rangoon is fairly active, but far short of last season. The trade purchase sparingly, evincing no disposition to buy in advance of immediate wants. The receipts have fallen off, but, as there is already in store a heavy stock, no improvement has resulted, and, unless an export demand shall speedily take off the surplus stock, prices will weaken and a marked decline may be expected. Advices from England show an unusual large stock for this time of year, owing to the large shipments made through the new route, the Suez Canal. Although partially anticipated, this much earlier arrival of the burden of the East Indian crop has caused general depression. The sales of Rangoon for the week have been 1,400 bags duty paid at $6.87½ to $7.25 currency, and 400 bags in bond at $3.70 gold.

Sugar.—An active demand has sprung up for refining purposes, and the sales have been large. There has also been a fair inquiry from the trade. The activity is attributable more, perhaps, to the ruling low prices—the investment being considered a safe one—than to the partial resumption of work on the part of refiners, or the prospect of full work at no distant day. This last, however, doubtless has its influence, for though prices of Refined have receded from their highest point, and may go lower, it is thought that on a return to a normal condition of trade prices of Refined Sugars will then probably bear a relatively higher price to Raw than heretofore, and this induces confidence, though a majority of the refiners are not at work. The transactions have not included any sales of East India descriptions.

Spices.—There is but little inquiry for invoice lots, and we hear of no sales; prices, however, are steady, and, for most kinds, quite firm. The trade demand is also light. Dealers are supplying at, for Mace, $1.15 to 1.22½; Nutmegs 90c. to 92½c.; Black Pepper, 17c. to 18c.; White, 35c. to 36c.; Cloves, 20c. all gold.

Tin.—We are still without business to report in Straits; holders generally ask 37½c. gold, but in the absence of demand this quotation is entirely nominal.

LEGAL.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

IONIDES V. PENDER.

This is an action on trial before Mr. Justice Hannen and a special jury on several policies of insurance effected in this country by merchants at Hamburg along with others effected at Hamburg, with the ostensible object of covering a mercantile adventure in which they were engaged, but, as alleged on the part of the insurers, with the fraudulent object of having the ship scuttled at sea in order to realise the insurances. Messrs. Ionides, the well-known insurance brokers, are only nominal plaintiffs, having effected the insurance for a firm of Hamburg merchants, the owners, who are the real plaintiffs, and for whom they merely sue as agents. The trial lasted from the 1st to the 4th inst. Sir J. Karslake, Q.C., Mr C. Butt, Q.C., and Mr. F. M. White appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. H. James, Q.C., Mr. Watkin Williams, and Mr. Laynon for the defendants.

There is a firm of merchants at Hamburg—Brounckhorst and Dickmann—some of whose members have been for some years engaged in trade to Eastern Siberia. That trade had been carried on through a place called Nicolaiefesk, on the eastern shores of Russian Asia, at the mouth of the river Amoor, which is navigable for some 1,200 miles. That port, however, it appears, is closed during a portion of the year, and during the last few years a trade had sprung up at a port in the Bay of Peter the Great, lately called Victoria Bay, on the same coast, but some 700 miles more south; and, indeed, almost the most southerly point of the coast of Asiatic Russia, just where it overlaps the empire of China, and opposite the centre of Japan. This port, it appears, is of splendid capacity, and is accessible almost all through the year, and on this account, and also by reason of its position, at the borders of two vast empires, its advantages for commerce and trade appear to have been lately very much appreciated. Hence, a place has sprung up there (called Wladiwostock), with a population partly Russian and partly Chinese, already numbering several thousands, and apparently increasing; and trade had begun to shift there from the more northerly port, which had previously engrossed it. Early in 1871 the Messrs. Diekmann, according to the case for the plaintiffs, contemplated a commercial adventure to the new port, and got several others to join them. One of these, named Vernicke, was the owner of a ship of 300 or 400 tons, and this ship was to be chartered for the purpose, and Diekmanns, Vernicke, and some others were to freight her with goods likely to sell in those remote and dreary regions. The cargo was very mixed, but included a large quantity of spirits and tobacco, and also woollen goods and a variety of other commodities. The insurances were effected by the different parties interested—on the ship, on the cargo, and on the freight payable under the charter, and also on the profits supposed to be attainable on the proposed adventure, as well as upon commission; and the total amount of the insurances effected was about £20,000. Out of this large amount above £4,000 was insured on the ship, and this insurance was effected at Hamburg. Policies were also effected on the goods, and of these some were effected at Hamburg and some in London, the total amount being £14,000, and one of these policies was sued upon in this action. Then there were insurances of £1,500 for "commission" (one of which was also sued upon in this action), and there were other insurances of freight and profits, making up the total amount of £20,000. The question was as to the goods, which were alleged to have been enormously over valued. It was admitted on the part of the plaintiffs that 25 or 30 per cent. had been added to the cost price in these valuations, and that freight and charges had been added, but, according to their case, the actual cost and freight came to nearly £12,600, and the amount of insurances on goods was under £14,000, so that the over-insurance would be only about £1,400. But according to the case for the underwriters the actual outlay was only about £8,000, and the amount of insurance on goods was £12,880. The case for the underwriters was, in a word, that by reason of the enormous over-insurance of the goods, and some fictitious heads of assurance—the ship being well insured—the adventurers had an interest to the amount of some thousands of pounds in her going to the bottom. The ship sailed in the spring of 1871, and on the 18th of May, while on her voyage out, she suddenly filled with water and sank about 150 miles from the Canary Islands, lat. 30.15 N., long. 19.16 W.; it was early in the morning, on a fine day, no high sea running, no rock visible, no wind, without any apparent accident or cause. According to the captain and the mate, the captain, at four o'clock, thought he felt a shock, and said so to the mate, but "took no further notice of it," thinking it was a blow of the sea, especially as on looking about they saw nothing. At this time the captain was in his cabin, from which an opening had been made into the hold. At five o'clock the ship was apparently all right, but soon afterwards was leaking, and about seven o'clock had 7 feet or 8 feet water in the hold, which was only 10 feet deep. The captain, who was in his cabin, was told this by the mate; he came hastily on deck, and said the ship was sinking, and the boats must be got out as they were; and then he and the crew got into them, stood away from the vessel, and went off. About three or four miles off, a ship, the Ocean Bell, hailed them, and took them up, and then went towards the vessel they had left, which had capsized, but not sunk, and did not sink until some three or four hours after they had got out of it. Indeed, the crew did not appear to have seen it actually sink, though the captain stated that he saw it sink before the Ocean Bell finally left. The captain went in another ship to Hamburg; some of the crew came to Liverpool. The mate had induced some of them to sign a statement that they had felt a "shock" in the ship before it leaked, but those who got to Liverpool refused to sign such a statement there, and now denied it to have been the fact. Moreover, they made charges against the captain, and openly declared that they believed the ship had been sunk. An investigation was made at Hamburg, but it resulted in an acquittal of the captain, and the Hamburg insurers paid upon their policies. The English underwriters, however, were not satisfied, and resisted the claim, and hence the present action, and another against the North China Insurance Company, which also stands in the list for trial at these sittings. They resist the claim on three grounds—first, that the concealment of the fact of enormous over-valuation of the goods was a concealment of a material fact which vitiated the policies, and several underwriters were called who gave it as their opinion that such an over-valuation was a very material fact; next, that it was not made out that the ship was lost through "perils of the seas," the perils insured against, all that appeared being that she went down, and this, apparently, without any cause arising from "perils of the seas;" thirdly, that this very fact, coupled with the enormous over-insurance, raised a great probability that the ship was scuttled, and that this probability was supported by several other circumstances, as that there was no shock, no rock, nor wreck, nor anything against which the vessel could have struck; that the captain was in his cabin when the ship began to leak, that he had had an opening made into the hold, and that he had an augur in his cabin, an instrument for making holes. This defence was supported by the evidence of one of Lloyd's surveyors, who proved that the construction of such a ship must have been so stout and strong that she would not have been much affected by coming into contact with a moving wreck; and, on the other hand, if she had struck against a rock the shock would have been so great that the ship would have quivered through all its timbers, and everyone in it would have been knocked down, whereas, even according to the captain's own account, he was not certain there was a shock at all, and it was so slight that he thought it a blow of the sea. Similar evidence was given by several nautical men, and two of the crew, who were called as witnesses for the defence, stated that they felt no shock at all. The captain was examined for the owners under a commission at Hamburg; but neither he nor any of the crew were called as witnesses in their behalf at the trial.

The above facts having been deposed to by the witnesses for the plaintiff, Mr. James, for the defence, called two of the crew as witnesses to explain circumstances from which the fraudulent design was sought to be inferred, and they were cross-examined by Sir J. Karslake with a view to elicit circumstances to rebut the inference, and especially with reference to other statements they had made, which, it was suggested, were at variance with their present evidence, or other circumstances which might explain or account for it. The examination and cross-examination of these witnesses went to such length on account of the number and minute character of the circumstances on which it turned, that it occupied the whole of one day. Mr. James then addressed the jury, and Sir J. Karslake is to replied on the part of the plaintiffs.

The case was brought to a termination on Thursday, Justice Hannen having summed up, the jury, after a short deliberation, said that they found that the valuations for the insurances were excessive, and that, though they could not say whether the valuations were fraudulent, they were of opinion that they were material, and were concealed. They further found that the vessel was not lost by the perils of the seas, but they could not say (not having sufficient evidence to show) whether or not it was intended by the assured that it should be lost. A verdict was then entered for the defendants.

Yesterday two actions on policies by the same parties on the same ship and cargo, viz., "Ionides v. the North China Insurance Company," and "Ionides v. the London and Provincial Insurance Company," came on for hearing, when the plaintiffs withdrew from the cases.

ANOTHER INSURANCE CASE.—In the Court of Queen's Bench yesterday the trial commenced of an action "Cator v. the Great Western Insurance Company of New York." The action was brought on a policy of insurance to recover £1,996 for loss by perils of the sea on 1,711 packages of Oolong tea shipped at New York in the Eurydice for the United Kingdom in January, 1871. On the voyage the ship encountered severe weather, and sea water got into the holds and damaged some of the tea. Part of the tea was not damaged, but under the advice of an experienced tea broker the whole of the tea was sold at a tea sale with all faults. The defendants paid £660 into Court as the amount of their liability. The trial concluded yesterday with a verdict for the defendants, leave being accorded to the plaintiffs to appeal to a higher court on some points of law raised in the course of the proceedings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE OPIUM LIBEL CASE.

With reference to the Hong Kong libel case, Belilios v. Agabeg, of which we recorded the result in our last issue, Messrs. Jameson and Barton in their Opium Circular publish the following remarks:—

The strictures and remarks passed by us in our Circulars of Dec. 12 and 27, Jan. 10, and Feb. 7 last, on the discreditable practice which had arisen of tampering with opened chests of Bengal drug, having been taken by Mr. E. R. Belilios to apply to himself, an action for libel, with damages laid at $10,000. was commenced by that merchant against our Mr. A. L. Agabeg, junior. The case came on for trial in the Supreme Court on the 8th inst., before the Acting Chief Justice and a special jury. The difficulties (which will be well understood by professional men) in the way of legally substantiating the plea of justification having been found insuperable, the defendant's counsel felt bound, on the second day of the hearing, to withdraw it, and the case went to the jury,—which we may mention is here composed of seven members. On their return into Court, their foreman stated that they were not unanimous either on the question whether a libel on Mr. E. R. Belilios had been committed, or upon the amount of damages. The parties to the suit, through their counsel, then agreed to submit to the decision of a majority of the jurymen, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiff, and $1,000 damages awarded to him.

It would ill become us to criticise their finding, but we cannot refrain from again assuring our readers—and we hope in so doing we are guilty of no disrespect to the august Court which has condemned us—that in publishing the observations which have been decided against us to be libellous, we have been animated by a sincere desire to expose and put an end to practices which, we had reason to know, had sprung up in the Opium Trade, and which could not fail to shake confidence in those engaged in it, and to reflect on them very injuriously. We regret that this single motive should have betrayed us into the use of words which have been held to constitute a libel on Mr. E R. Belilios, and from which more guarded language might possibly have protected us. It is, however, satisfactory to us to know, as doubtless it must be to our readers, that by whomsoever the trickery we sought to lay bare was practised, and the discredit brought to our trade, the publicity we gave to it has been productive of this good, namely, that the practice has been completely stopped. The question of the purity of our Mr. Agabeg's motives and conduct, and the reality of the existence of the evil he attacked and destroyed, will be more apparent to those at a distance from this colony, when it is stated that the costs of his defence to Mr. E. R. Belilios's action at law against him and the amount of damages in which he was cast (together about $2,500) have been publicly subscribed by merchants of Hong Kong, who represent more than three-fourths, almost the entire bulk, of our opium importers.

THE BURMESE AND PANTHAY EMBASSIES.

The Globe says:—"Of the two embassies from Burmah now in England one is represented by the Panthays, a Mahommedan race of Chinese origin, which has, through many difficulties, succeeded in retaining its independence and extending its authority. But for their earnest and friendly assistance our expedition in 1862 to examine the trade route between Burmah and China would have failed through the opposition of the Burmese Government of that day. Since then the policy of our Indian Government has been to keep up the friendliest relations with the Panthays, and the mission representing them has arrived under its direct auspices and with its direct aid. By the India-office at home, however, it is altogether ignored; while the second Embassy, unaccredited from India, has been paraded and received with special honour. No one ever hears of the duly accredited mission representing our friends and allies, the Panthays, while that professing, solely on its own responsibility, to represent a Government which has hitherto made a point of putting obstacles in our way, receives even an unnecessary amount of recognition. Can it be that the India-office, in its ignorance of the state of Burmese politics, has made a blunder, and mistaken the false embassy for the true? If so we fear that very disagreeable complications may arise when the error—if there be error—comes to be discovered. We have nothing to urge against the attention lavished on one embassy, but why is the other so signally neglected?"

Subsequent to the publication of the above remarks the following letter has appeared in the same journal with the same signature, "Progress:—"Sir,—Permit me to comment on a note regarding Burmese Embassies in your to-night's issue. The Panthay mission has not been altogether ignored; the India-office has received it with due civility. It is, however, probably a matter of no importance whether the Panthays be recognised or not, but the one obvious fact regarding them is that they are rebels against the Chinese Government, and their great distance from Peking is the only cause why they have not long since been reduced to order. It is difficult to see what international morality or sound policy there may be in encouraging totally unsettled predatory tribes like the Panthays, whose chief influence is to sow and maintain disorder in South-Western China. The Burmese Embassy represents a thoroughly settled Government, and is duly accredited by its Sovereign. There is, therefore, no force in the assertion that it is accredited solely on its own responsibility. Nor is there the slightest reason why the Indian Government should expect to patronise it. Burmah, though not a strong, is a perfectly independent Power, and the King has very properly demonstrated his treaty rights by sending an Embassy to protest against the unjust desire of the Calcutta Government to treat him as if he were in their leading strings."

SILK SUPPLY.

We extract from the annual report issued by the Society of Arts the following reference to the Society's Silk Supply Committee:—

A short time since, the Council received a communication from the Silk Supply Association, suggesting that a union or amalgamation of that body and the Society of Arts would be likely to lead to advantageous action in reference to the objects for which the association was established, and it was further suggested that the best way of effecting this would be the forming a Silk Supply Committee of this Society, and taking on such Committee, in addition to those nominated by the Society, such Members of the Silk Supply Association as should be arranged. Accordingly such a Committee has been nominated by the Council, to consist of Mr. A. Cassels (Chairman), Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart., Mr. Hyde Clarke, Mr. E. Chadwick, C.B., Mr D. Chadwick, M.P., Mr. Thomas Dickins, and Mr. Cobb, the Honorary Secretary of the Association, with such other members of the Association as may be hereafter added thereto. It is confidently anticipated that this Committee will be the means of vitality to a useful organisation, and will be able to give valuable aid in obtaining and diffusing through the pages of the Society's Journal important information, and wherein the interests of this large industry will be discussed and promoted. By such exertions the efforts of various foreign and colonial governments will be promoted, and further resources may be obtained by the encouragement of silk culture and silk manufacture.

THE troopship Orontes, which left Hong Kong on the 6th April, arrived at Portsmouth on the 1st inst., having on board Captain Morten Eden, Captain M. J. Sexton, Lieutenant E. W. Adams, and Assistant-Surgeon S. H. Ray, of the 8th Battery 2nd Brigade Royal Artillery; Mr. W. J. Walsh, Second Class Clerk of Works, Royal Engineers Department; and Commissary J. L. L. Buchanan, of the Control Department; five invalid soldiers, 121 time-expired men, six women, and six children. The Orontes has been absent nearly six months, having sailed from Portsmouth with the 80th Regiment of Foot on the 12th January, for Singapore and Hong Kong.

No orders have yet been issued for the commissioning of the corvette Thalia to take the place of the Juno on the China Station, and we are in a position to state that another vessel will probably be selected for the service, and that the Thalia will be appointed to the Mediterranean Station.

An interesting account of Japan appears in the July number of the Leisure Hour, from the pen of Mr. Mossman, formerly editor of the North China Herald, at Shanghai. The conductors of Leisure Hour have acted wisely in placing in reach of their readers this account of the Japanese; they will be better able to appreciate the Japanese Embassy.

Foreign Intelligence.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 3.

The Ministerial crisis is not yet solved, notwithstanding reports to the contrary; Mr. de Vries is still in search of colleagues, though of course there are a great many "well informed" correspondents, who, from the best of all sources, are able to give the full list of the Cabinet in spe. The most inaccurate of these trustworthy correspondents is, however, most certainly, the newsmonger who last Monday wired from the Hague to The Times the names of the members of the new Cabinet, for a more nonsensical list of names could not possibly be invented. Geertsema, charged with the portfolio of the Department of Justice; Mirandolle, Home Department; Gerike (said to be late Minister of the Naval Department!) Foreign Affairs; and last, but not least, Mr. van Bosse, or "Professor Groningue," Finance. Heaven only knows who this last-named professor is. Perhaps the correspondent meant Professor Tellegen, from Groningen, but if so, I think he is still quite wrong. I trust the official paper will very soon put an end to these surmises and rumours, by publishing the list of the new Cabinet.

The Staats Courant has published the satisfactory intelligence that Princess Mary of the Netherlands, wife of the Prince of Wied, has given birth to a son. If this event had taken place some weeks ago it would have been of still greater importance, because the health of the Prince of Orange was then in a very critical state. The Prince's condition has, however, now much improved, and the fears for any fatal result have entirely disappeared.

The Handelsblad informs us that the Governor-General of Java has granted a concession to Mr. A. G. Busch, of Amsterdam, for the construction of dry-docks in the Colony. The concession is granted for a term of seventy five years. This communication has given great satisfaction to our traders and shipowners, these institutions being greatly requisite, and will be largely employed, especially when the tariffs are somewhat moderated.

On the 9th inst. a general meeting of shareholders of the Steamshipping Company Nederland will be held at Amsterdam, to appoint twelve commissaries. The appointment of managers will be made at the following meeting.

The shareholders of the African Trading Society met here on the 28th ult. The society's operations, as was shown by the annual report, have given last year a most satisfactory result. The net profits have amounted to f.384,260, against f.326,408 in 1870, and a dividend of 10 per cent. on the paid up capital will be paid.

At the annual meeting of the Dutch India Trading Bank, held on the 26th ult., the accounts showed a net profit of f.240,004, out of which a dividend of f.10 per share, equal to 4 per cent., was declared.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

There is but little alteration to report in the general features of our market for Colonial and Foreign Produce, which has exhibited a quiet appearance. Prices of most of the leading articles are, upon the whole, barely supported, with the exception of Coffee, which remains very firm, and has slightly advanced.

COFFEE continues in good request at advancing rates. Good ordinary Company's Java has sold at 46½c., and is but little to be met with now at that price. Low quality has fetched 47c. Total stock, 532,600 bags.

SUGAR.—For want of sellers (hardly any parcels being offered in the market) transactions are very unimportant, but no reduction of price is to be reported. There is, however, no demand for white sorts, which could only be realised at low rates, if sales were pressed. The Trading Company will offer for sale by public auction at Amsterdam, on the 23rd inst., 62,500 baskets Java. Stock, 4,000 tons.

TEA is very firm, and the public sales promise to meet a good attendance of buyers. Stock 11,300/4 chests.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Sales have been closed by private tender of some small parcels, but to-morrow important lots will be brought into the markets. Stock 11,740 bales Java, 528 bales Sumatra.

SPICES.—Without any transactions of note to report in Nutmegs or Mace, but the speculative demand for Cloves has again increased, and prices are looking upward. Stocks, Nutmegs, 2,203 casks; Mace, 281 casks; Cloves 2,298 casks.

RICE.—The demand remains quiet. 3,339 bags Java table ex Kosmopoliet II. were sold at f.11⅞.

RATTANS continue in good request, but less disposition has been evinced on the part of buyers to operate in floating shipments. For want of stock the business done has been confined to the sale of 220 piculs ex Maassluis.

TIN.—Hardly any demand prevails for the article, and the business done has been confined to a few contracts of Banca for autumn delivery at f.92 to f.92½. Billiton on the spot has sold at f.92. Stock on warrants 35,082 slabs Banca, new stock unsold 31,457 slabs. Stock of Billiton 2,450 slabs.

HIDES.—The business done has been confined to the sale of about 6,000 ps. ex Leucothea, Queen of the Colonies and Vrachtzooker.

ARRACK continues in good demand. 35 casks Batavia, ex Rosalie, 30 do. ex Cornelis Gips, 60 do. do. ex Utinia have been sold.

MISCELLANEOUS.—250 cases Preserved Ginger, and 50 chests Mandarnie, put up at auction last week were bought in. Gum Damar has been selling from first hands to an aggregate extent of 500 cases at reduced rates. Holders are asking 32 cents, which can only be realised occasionally for small lots, as buyers are very cautious, in expectation of heavy supplies to come forward. About 3,100 bales White Borneo Guttapercha, ex steamer Prins Hendrick, changed hands on secret terms. Holders of this import are not inclined to sell at the present market currency. The available stock of Japan Camphor has been disposed of at 55 cents, and there are no sellers now under 56 cents. China attracts but little attention. About 80 bags Cubebs, ex Maassluis, changed hands at a price not named. Some business has been doing in Cajaputa Oil on a partial reduction.

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1872.

THE MESSAGERIES AND THE SUEZ CANAL.

WE have received a pamphlet issued by the Directors of the Messageries Maritimes of Paris, protesting against the recent advance in the rates, and the proposed alteration in the measurement of steamers passing through the Suez Canal. Whether for its clearness of reasoning, its simple explanation of—and adherence to—facts, or the moderation of its tone, the pamphlet before us deserves the kindest consideration, and the best thanks, of the commercial community. The Messageries are so sure that they are right in resisting the proposed arbitrary increase that they prefer to have recourse to reason, and appealing to public opinion, before having recourse to the law to protect them—and all other shipowners—from an impost which would neutralise the benefits of the Canal, and go far to shut it up altogether.

The facts are thus shortly stated. On the 4th March last the Directors of the Suez Canal Company resolved that the tariff should be ten francs per ton on the gross tonnage. No difference was to be made between vessels belonging to the State and those which are the property of private owners; but the immediate result of this new rate is to increase the cost of transit 40 per cent.! and at the same time that they made this advance, the Directors reserved to themselves the right of making any such further increase, as they might think fit at any future period. Upon this startling announcement a number of French shipowners, seeing their trade menaced with an absolutely prohibitory rate, formed themselves into a committee, to inquire whether the Canal Company by its constitution possessed the powers which the Directors had thus claimed. In order to arrive at a just conclusion on this question, the committee consulted the "Articles of Association" of the Company itself, all the official reports and pamphlets published during the last four years by M. DE LESSEPS and others, and the report of the proceedings at the general meeting of shareholders held on 12th March. The results of this investigation proved that the Egyptian Government, in consideration of the concession granted to M. DE LESSEPS, required and decreed that the rate for transit through the Canal should never exceed ten francs per ton, irrespective of nationality or ownership. This is undoubted; but the question that is not quite so clear is, "On what basis are these dues to be calculated? Are "they to be calculated on the gross or nett tonnage? "And are they to be levied alike on vessels whether "full or empty?" The answer to this appears conclusive. The French law expressly rates all vessels by the tonnage officially registered; and the usage of commerce is alike among all nations in this respect—that the registered tonnage is always the basis on which all dues, of whatever kind, are assessed. This axiom of maritime law and custom is corroborated by the fact that in the Firman of the Egyptian Government the passage of the Canal is decreed to be in all respects conformable with the usages and laws of France. That this is the motive principle of the Firman is apparent, when we find that the calculations by which the maximum rate are to be levied are made not in the Egyptian, nor in any other European currency, but, according to the French system, are always computed in francs. Surely nothing could prove more strongly than this fact, that the attempt to increase the maximum rate, fixed and guaranteed, is directly opposed to all law and precedent, to say nothing of assurance and guarantee. When M. DE LESSEPS was making the tour of the commercial cities of England in 1856, this principle was clearly affirmed by Sir DANIEL LANGE in Newcastle, Birmingham, and other places. It was fully recognised by the aggregate committee of the officers and servants of the Canal Company in 1868, when it was resolved that the English method of calculating tonnage was the best, and therefore the most worthy of adoption; but that it ought not to be allowed to supersede the methods of other nations until an uniform system had been agreed upon by representatives of all the various nationalities. Pending this event, the Company distinctly pledged itself to abide by the rates it had fixed, without regard to nationality. It was not until the end of 1871—after the war had shattered the French Empire—that the Directors of the Canal Company ventured to propose any alteration of their terms; and the pressure then brought to bear on M. de LESSEPS, who foresaw the complications that must ensue from such a course, became apparent. M. de LESSEPS issued his circular to the various European Chambers of Commerce, officially informing them of the new question that had been started. Of twenty-five Chambers which replied to this manifesto, the one from Copenhagen is as practical and conclusive as any. The Danes distinctly affirmed the principle that the rule of measurement was irrevocably fixed on the French principle—100 tons register, English or Danish, to equal 105 tons French—and certainly nothing could go further than this to prove the justice of the protest now made against the attempt to advance the rates and alter the constitution of the Company.

The arguments against any such alteration are thus summed up in the protest of the Messageries Directors against the proposed advance. The act of the Directors of the Suez Canal Company in altering their system of measurement is in direct opposition to the principles of the undertaking, and in excess of the powers granted to them to carry it out. On the other hand, the Directors of the Messageries have entered into certain agreements, made certain arrangements, and given certain pledges, on the faith of the Canal Company's undertakings and charter. Morally, there cannot be a doubt of the justice of the Messageries' protest, and the commercial community, West and East, owe them a debt of gratitude for their promptness and firmness in pointing out the folly of a course which, if persisted in, will probably destroy the capital of the shareholders in the Canal, and fling Europe back into the same position with regard to the East as she occupied years ago, before M. DE LESSEP'S grand idea became an accomplished fact, just at the moment when, by keeping faith, it seemed most certain to become a financial success, no less than an engineering triumph.

JAPAN FORWARD—ONWARD.

THE last brand new institution which the Japanese Government have imported from Europe is a scientific medical school. With the cosmopolitan impartiality which has characterised their choice of foreign instructors they sought in Germany for the future reformer of the Japanese art of healing, and requested the Professors of the University of Leipsic to select a fitting person for the office. At first sight the task thus imposed upon the Professors would appear to have been no light one. The qualifications which the Japanese Government considered it necessary for the holder of the post to possess were both numerous and minute. He was not to be tall, lest he should be unable to sympathise with his short pupils; he was to love children; to be a man of good manners and kind-hearted; to be possessed of good health, and to be sound in wind and limb and eyesight. He was not to be finicking or artificial in his manners, but upright, straightforward, and spontaneously courteous. He was to be well-versed in the theory and practice of medicine and the allied sciences; to understand English and to be able to lecture in that language; and not only to be competent to learn Japanese, but, in due time, to teach it. Fortunately the Leipsic Professors have discovered in Dr. JUNKER a man in whom all these excellences dwell; and the new director-in-chief of the Kioto school of scientific medicine will shortly leave to meet his Oriental masters, and to justify by his labours the choice of the learned men of Leipsic.

The rapid transformation which has of late been going on in the political and social life in Japan, as indicated by the constant announcement of some new undertaking, such as the above, on the part of the Government of that country, suggests some curious reflections. We have always been taught to believe that a nation is a growth, not a manufacture; yet here is a country which but fourteen years ago was sealed against all intercourse with the outer world, and which now is striving to place itself on a level with the most highly civilised nations of the West. Possessed of an ancient Imperial system, said to have been founded by the gods; of a civilisation which had become fossilised by age, and peopled by a brave, proud, and patriotic race, Japan in 1858, to all appearances, presented as hopeless a pupil of advancement in the path of progress as even China herself. Nor did the experiences of the first few years of our intercourse with the Japanese tend in any way to remove the desponding aspect of affairs. The history of our international relations during the period from 1858 to 1862 is a record of assassinations, of assaults, and of violent outbreaks against the authority of those Daimios who favoured the presence of the hated foreigner on the sacred soil of Japan. Ten years have passed since the close of the epoch we have named, and how shall we count the changes which have been crammed into that decade? Railways now dissect the countries where ponies were the fleetest means of locomotion known. The telegraph wire flashes messages throughout the length of the land; arsenals, dockyards, scientific schools and hospitals, all arranged on European models, abound in every large town in the Empire; and the capital cities of Europe and America swarm with young Japanese studying the laws, the institutions, and the customs of foreign lands. It is difficult to accept so sudden a transformation without some feelings of misgiving. Are the people of Japan so wise and easily convinced, as some would say, or so shallow and changeable, as others would suggest, that they can thus throw off, at once and for ever, national associations which are the growth of twice ten centuries as they would an old coat? Or will the new wine burst the old bottle? In considering this question one must not argue on precedents furnished in the history of European countries. A people who could make up their minds to adopt the literature, and, to a certain extent, the language of China, are plainly not to be judged by the rules which regulate the actions of ordinary men. And thus, while we watch with curiosity the extraordinary advance the Japanese are now making in the paths of Western civilisation, we are firmly convinced that they will retain the advantage they have gained, and that, in spite of occasional internal jars, they will continue their onward progress both safely and surely.

THE new Italian service of the P. and O. Company, which we lately announced as starting from Venice to Ancona and Brindisi, commences with the steamer Ceylon on the 26th inst. On the 29th she will take on board the mails at Brindisi, and proceed to Alexandria. The directors have decided to make no increase in the passage money from Venice. By this arrangement it is expected that the company will secure a larger portion of the continental cargo to and from India, China, and Japan.

BY the last mail from Washington, it is announced that the details of the new Treaty with Japan, have been arranged, but it is yet uncertain when it will be finally completed, and the Embassy start for this country.

IT has been stated in Parliament that the Suez Canal Company have declined to postpone the increase in the tariff, which comes in force from the 1st inst.

Monetary and Commercial.

The directors of the City Bank, at their half-yearly meeting, announced a dividend for the past half year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and to add £10,000 to the reserve fund. The distribution at the corresponding period of 1871 was 8 per cent. per annum, and £5,000 was added to the reserve fund. They have also decided to increase the capital of the bank by a further issue of 10,000 shares of £20 each, of which £10 will be called up at a premium of £2 per share. At the half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the Colonial Bank the directors' report was adopted, and a dividend of 6 per cent. and a bonus of 1½ per cent. were declared.

The dividend to be declared by the Union Bank of London on the 10th inst. will be at the usual rate of 15 per cent. per annum, with a bonus of 2½ on the paid-up capital, making together 10 per cent. for the past half-year, and with the dividend and bonus paid in January last 20 per cent. for the financial year. The directors of the London and Westminster Bank have resolved to declare at the ensuing general meeting a dividend and bonus of 10 per cent. for the half-year ending the 30th of June last, carrying forward £6,300. The directors of the London Joint Stock Bank have resolved to declare at the half-yearly general meeting, to be held on the 18th inst., the usual dividend of 12½ per cent. per annum, and, in addition, a bonus of 11s. 3d. per share. being together at the rate 20 per cent per annum. The Liverpool Union Bank have declared a dividend of 17s. 6d. per share for the half-year ending June.

At a meeting of the British Australian Telegraph Company full powers were granted to the directors for raising the capital required (£320,000) for a cable from Port Darwin to the Norman River in Queensland, at such time and in such manner as the Board may determine. The chairman stated that in proposing this extension to the shareholders he was responding to an application from the Queensland Government. It was also stated with regard to the interruption of the cable between Java and Port Darwin, that the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company are under contract to repair the cable at their own expense.

A general meeting of the shareholders of the Suez Canal Company has been called, and will be held in Paris on the 31st inst.

The Indo-European Telegraph Company have made a slight reduction on their rates for telegrams to India and the Far East. The revised scale of charges is as follows:—To India, £3 12s.; to Ceylon, £4 4s.; to Penang, £4 14s.; to Singapore, £5 10s; to Batavia, £5 19s. 6d.; to Saigon, £5 14s.; to Hong Kong £4 16s. 6d.; to Shanghai, £5 8s.; to Nagasaki, £6 8s.

The annual meeting of the Netherlands India Commercial Bank was held at Amsterdam on the 26th ult., when the directors' report and the accounts—which will be found in our advertisement columns—were adopted, and a dividend of 10 florins per share, equal to 10 per cent., was declared.

The traffic receipts on the Great Northern Telegraph Company's lines for the month of June have been f.214,796, against f.138,390 in June 1871, when, however, only the Hong Kong-Shanghai section of the China cables was open.

Applications are invited for 1,500 Seven per Cent. First Mortgage Building Bonds of the Western Union Telegraph Company of the United States. The price of issue is 92 per cent. Principal and interest are payable in gold, and the final redemption of the bonds is to take place not later than 1902. The proceeds of the issue will, it is stated, be devoted to erecting in Broadway, New York, a large central building specially adapted to the business, and the whole real estate of these premises is hypothecated as security, in addition to the company's revenue, which, to the 1st May last, amounted to £539,563; the total sum required for interest on the mortgage being £84,558. A sinking fund is to be provided by the annual payment of £30,000 for purchasing bonds in the open market. The bonds are already quoted at a premium of 2½ to 2¾.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company have concluded a contract with Messrs. John Roach and Co., an American shipbuilding firm, for the construction of two iron steamers of 4,000 tons, to be delivered by December, 1873, at a cost of $850,000 each. These vessels are intended as an addition to the Company's China and Japan line.

Tenders for £600,000 in bills on India were received on the 3rd inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts alloted were—To Calcutta, £374,000; Bombay, £200,000; and Madras, £25,300. The minimum was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10⅛d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10⅜d. will receive about 16 per cent, and on Bombay at that price 16 per cent.; above that quotation, on Bombay, in full. No change of importance is apparent, compared with the last occasion.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Massilia, which left Southampton on the 4th inst., was in gold—to Galle, £803; to Madras, £273; in silver—to Hong Kong, £15,238; to Shanghai, £1,443; to Yokohama, £4,700; total, in gold, £1,076; in silver, £21,381.

Bar silver is in better demand for the Continent, and the price has improved to 60½d. per oz. standard. Mexican dollars are in good demand, but the supply has been so small during the week that transactions have been merely nominal. Quotations remain as last given.

TEA.

Although the market has continued dull, there has been a fair amount of business done, chiefly at public sale without reserve, to close invoices of old season's teas, prices again ruling in favour of buyers. Privately, but little has been done, with the exception of considerable sales of new district Congous, and a few small invoices of new Scented Teas, arrived per steamer; prices of these have shown a considerable decline, especially in Congous, the supplies being in excess of the immediate wants of the trade. Deliveries have been on a satisfactory scale for the first six months of the year, but the increase is chiefly owing to the expansion of the export trade. The figures stand thus:—

	1872.	1871.
Home consumption for London from Jan. 1 to June 30.	... 45,714,000 lbs.	45,415,000 lbs.
Sent coastwise do.	... 19,223,000 ,,	18,453,000 ,,
Total delivered ...	84,258,000 lbs.	81,805,000 lbs.

Black: Read-leaf kinds: Siftings continue to sell from 4½d. to 6d. per lb., showing no change. Broken-leaf kinds have been sold at rather easier rates; fair to good common are firm at the decline last quoted; fair to good Kaisows have been sold, at public auction, at about last quotations; in fine to finest transactions are unimportant. Pak Lin kinds are without alteration. Black-leaf kinds: There has been no improvement in the position of low qualities; fair to good common have been dull of sale, and prices have been weak; fair to good medium have been forced off, at auction, to some extent, and prices have ruled in favour of buyers; in fine to finest but little has been done. Amoy kinds are unchanged. New-make Canton kinds: Old seasons have been realised at very low prices, siftings selling at 3d. per lb., common at 9d. to 10d. per lb., fair to good 1s. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; of new Teas the supply has been in excess of demand, and sales have latterly been difficult to effect, whilst prices have been declining gradually throughout the past month. Oolongs: A recent arrival of fine quality has been sold at 2s. 4d. per lb., other descriptions show no alteration. Souchongs have sold at lower rates at public auction. In Flowery Pekoes there has been no business of any importance. Scented Teas: Canton Capers, out of recent arrivals, per "Rollo," have been difficult of sale at easier rates. Foochow kinds have sold rather lower at public sale. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds, the first arrivals of new Teas realised extremely high prices, but further supplies have not met with much competition, and 1,000 boxes have been sold at public sale, without reserve, at prices showing a decline of fully 1½d. per lb. on those lately obtained by private contract. Foochow kinds have sold at previous prices. Uncoloured Japans have been in fair request at about previous rates. Green: The market has remained very steady, and prices have been firmly supported for all good kinds of country Tea. Canton descriptions, on the contrary, have been most difficult of sale at rather lower prices, good quality selling at auction at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co.'s Circular says:—The past month has been one of considerable business in Asiatic Silk, chiefly induced by the indifferent out-turn of the European crops, and the high prices ruling on the Continent for Italian Silk; there is also a general improvement in quotations, but the chief advance during the month has been in good Tsatlee Silk; 26s. has been freely paid for Red Peacock, 27s. for Blue Elephant and Dancing Bear, and 29s. 6d. for best chop 3rds. Common Tsatlees and Taysaams have hardly benefited, however; the former has been generally unenquired for, while the poor assortment of Taysaams offering is the main reason of the limited business done in that Silk. In sales of Chinas "to arrive" there has also been much doing, and in all cases at very full rates. Canton Silk has been in good demand at firm rates for Tsatlee sorts, but Loong Kongs are still neglected. In Japans business continues on a good scale, and even at the present advanced quotations there is good demand. Bengal Silk is quieter of late, the new range of quotations for filatures and the higher rates generally asked for this Silk somewhat checking the inquiry that had set in. Deliveries for the month of June are very good, having been 2,627 bales China, 1,213 bales Canton, and 937 bales Japan. From China the accounts report much activity in the new Silk, and large settlements (about 12,000 bales) at prices considerably above our London market rates.

COFFEE.

At the public sales the supplies of Plantation Ceylon have been small, and meeting with a good demand have been disposed of at slightly advanced prices, quotations at the close showing an entire recovery from the recent depression. The current rates for Plantation are—triage 70s. to 75s., small 77s. to 79s., fine ordinary mixed grey 79s. 6d., low middling grey 80s. 6d. to 81s. 6d., middling 82s. to 85s. 6d., good middling 86s. to 87s., pea-berry 93s 6d. to 95s. 6d. There have been no public sales of Native Ceylon, but privately a fair amount of business has been done at 74s. on the spot, and 75s. afloat.

SUGAR.

There has been extreme dulness in the market throughout the week, and the business done has been very small, and at prices showing a decline of 1s. to 2s. per cwt. The Produce Markets Review states that the market is now suffering from one of those contests which have been so common of late years, when the grocers buy as little of the refiners as possible, and when the latter reduce their purchases of raw Sugar to as low a point as they can, with the view of bringing about concessions in price, which the importers, on what they consider good grounds, are disinclined to make. As the statistics of the moment are no longer accepted as a criterion of value, the result of a contest of the kind depends upon whether the grocers or the importers can hold out longest. The trade have now kept out of the market for three weeks, and though they have obtained a very considerable reduction in the price of manufactured goods, the refiners have not succeeded in obtaining an equivalent concession in the price of Raw Sugar. They have, therefore, in several instances, talked of stopping work, or have already done so, and the struggle is thus coming to a crisis. It is clear that the refiners cannot continue to work long at the present small margin for their profit, and the question is, whether the grocers can keep out of the market for two or three weeks more, and thus enable stocks to accumulate, or that a fall in Raw Sugar, the legitimate consequence of the refiners' abstention from buying, may take place.

The only transaction in East India during the week is comprised in the sale of 250 packages dark Siam concrete at 26s. 6d. to 27s. per cwt.

CAMPHOR.—China: Nothing doing, and quotations entirely nominal; £4 2s. 6d. has been offered for a parcel afloat (June sailing per steamer), but refused; 3,000 cases have arrived per Priam and Meteor. Japan: An arrival of 200 cases is expected.

SOY.—Nothing doing in China, of which 20 casks offered were retired at 2s. 6d. per gallon.

CHINA PRESERVED GINGER.—Ordinary quality has been quitted at 7d. per lb.; an offer of 300 cases fine Chyloong was retired at 9d.

CHINA ROOT.—Nothing doing.

CHINA GRASS.—No transactions; quotations nominal.

COIR GOODS.—Yarn: Fair supplies, both of Cochin and Ceylon, have been offered, and nearly the whole has been placed at about previous value; the market has shown considerable steadiness. Latest prices are: Cochin, very fine to fine, £45 to £55; good, £35 to £40; low and common, £22 to £28. Ceylon, very fine and superior, £50 to £60; fine, £40 to £45; good, £33 to £36; low and common, £25 to £28. Fibre: Large supplies have been brought forward, and the bulk disposed of at slightly easier prices: Cochin, good, £27 5s.; medium, £23 10s. to £24; low course red, £15 to £15 10s. Brush, fair £32 15s.; Ceylon, ordinary to middling, £15 15s. to £18 5s. per ton.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The Market for all descriptions continues in a most depressed condition. Cochin, with only moderate sales, shows a further decline, fine only realising £38 to £39, and middling £37 15s. Ceylon also lower, fair to fine selling at £33 10s. to £34 10s., yellow to yellowish £32 10s. to £33 10s. These repeated falls attract no additional orders, and the future prospects of the article appear most uncertain. Nearly all offered at auction has been retired.

COLOMBO ROOT.—There have been small transactions at previously current rates, viz., fair 33s. to 34s. 6d.; common 30s.

CUTCH continues without any demand. Prices at Liverpool being lower than here, causes the few orders that are given to be sent there; only retail sales have been made, and quotations are quite nominal.

DRAGON'S BLOOD.—There is no demand except for the finest quality, a supply of which would realise a high figure.

GALLS.—China continues quiet, the current rates being good £2 16s.; fair, £2 15s. 6d.; inferior, £2 14s. 6d. to £2 15s. Japan are in request, but there is no supply.

GAMBIER.—The demand continues to improve, the "bear" operators appearing (as shipments from Singapore continue light) to be anxious to cover sales; a good business has therefore resulted in March sailing at 21s.; May-June 20s. 6d.; April-May 21s. 3d.; March-April ship declared 21s. 6d. Cubes have not participated in the advance of block, large quantities having been offered at auction and only partly sold, good but slightly mixed 22s. 9d. to 23s. 6d.; really fine held for 26s. per cwt.

GALANGAL ROOT.—There is a small business doing at 17s. to 17s. 6d. per cwt.

HEMP.—There are no transactions to report in Manila, there being little or no demand; prices are nominally unaltered.

HIDES.—Arrivals of East India have come to hand very freely during the past month, and stocks are heavy; but the low prices now reached have attracted some attention on the part of buyers, and a fair amount of business has been done at, and in some cases a trifle over for the light average weights, fully the rates current at the close of May. Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow are unchanged in value, but the demand has been limited, and the sales are confined to 3,410 Hides: Light 9d. to 9½d.; Heavy 7½d. to 8½d.; Thirds, 6¾d. per lb. Singapore and Penang Buffalo have been in moderately active demand at about previous prices. The sales of the month consist of 5,836 Hides: Fair to Good, av. 18⅜ to 32½ lb. 5½d. to 6d.; Seconds 5⅛d. to 5½d.; av. 11⅜ to 15⅜ lb. 6¼d. to 6½d.; Ordinary and Inferior, av. 28 to 35½ lb. 5d. to 5¼d.; Seconds 4¾d. to 5⅛d.; av. 11⅛ to 16½ lb. 5½d. to 6d. per lb. Batavia Buffalo have been in somewhat limited request, and to effect sales a decline of ¼d. to ½d. has been submitted to. The sales since the 31st May comprise 1,394 Hides: Best av. 13 to 23¾ lb. 7d. to 8½d. per lb.

HORNS.—At the public sales held yesterday heavy Siam Buffalo, of which the supply is large, were difficult of sale, and only a few lots found buyers at easy rates. Other descriptions, however, went off with active competition at an advance of 2s. to 4s. for heavy, and 2s. to 5s. per cwt. for light. Deer horns met a good demand at last sale's rates to an advance of 2s. per cwt. Buffalo: Of 28,301 (36 tons) Siam offered only a small portion sold, average 720 to 700 horns, at 39s. 6d.; sea-damaged, 726 to 702 at 38s. 6d. 609 Ceylon horns sold at 22s. Deer: 14,410 Ceylon, average 1,500 to 1,800 horns, sold at 67s. to 73s., stale and broken 50s. to 54s. Ox and Cow: 17,137 horns (16 tons) Manila were offered and withdrawn.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Borneo has continued to advance, and is now quoted 1s. 11d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—There is very little doing, and no sales have been reported since our issue of Friday last, an offer of 55 cases in public sale being bought in at £4 6s. to £4 7s. per cwt.

PEPPER.—Black: Prices are irregular, but the market continues depressed; 755 bags fine bold West Coast at Havre have been sold at 5⅞d., and privately sales have been effected at 5⅝d. cash. Of Singapore 330 bags at New York are held for 7d., a bid of 6¾d. being refused; 240 bags ordinary and dusty, per Wallace, have been offered and retired at 6⅝d. Afloat there are sellers at 6⅜d., and 829 bags, per Theresa Behn, sold with all faults at 5⅜d. to 5½d., one lot at 5⅝d. Privately 408 bags Siam dull greyish to fine bright heavy qualities sold at 6⅜d. White 149 bags Singapore have been sold at 1s. 1d.; 300 bags privately for delivery in October, November, and December at 10½d., with sellers' option to treble quantity.

RICE.—There is somewhat more business doing, chiefly in floating cargoes. Bengal of good to fine quality may be quoted at 12s. to 13s. 6d. per cwt.; ordinary at 9s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.; Askoolie at 10s. 7½d.; Ballam at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d.; Necranzie, March sailing at 9s. 6d. contract terms; May sailing at 9s. 6d.; and June-July shipment, per steamer, at 9s. 3d. ex ship in London, and 9s. 4½d. open charter; on the spot 9s to 9s. 3d.; Bassein at 9s. 10½d. open charter, and 8s. 9d. ex ship arrived; Rangoon: February sailing at 10s. 1½d. contract terms or open charter; and March sailing at 9s. 10½d. to 10s.; on the spot at 8s. 9d. to 9s. 3d.; Moulmein: March sailing at 9s. 10½d. open charter.

SAGO.—Continues steady and fairly active. Flour is slightly lower, sales being effected at 15s. 6d. to 15s. 9d. per cwt.

SHELLS.—At the periodical sales held on the 2nd inst. a small parcel of Manila Mother-o'-Pearl, of recent arrival, was quitted at £12 12s. 6d. for good quality; 4 cases Manila Tortoise sold, 23s. 6d. to 25s. 6d., and 2 cases Singapore, very fair quality, at 21s. to 22s.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea continues to decline; 1,700 boxes medium quality, ex Meteor, being quitted at £4 6s. to £4 7s., showing a total decline for the past month of 6s. to 7s. per cwt. This article is now lower than for many years past, but still care must be exercised in importing, as stocks both here and on the Continent are very heavy. Buds: Very little doing privately at £6 10s. Cinnamon is quiet, and nothing of importance has been done. Cloves: For Penang 1s. 6d. is now demanded for good, and 1s. 9d. for fine; 35 cases, per Alice, were retired at 1s. 9d. up to 2s. per lb. Nutmegs have met a ready sale, chiefly small nuts of 100 to 107 to lb., at 3s. to 3s. 1d. per lb.; 86 to lb., at 3s. 4d.; 81 to lb., at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d.; 73 to 78 to lb., at 3s. 5d. to 3s. 6d.; 70 to lb., at 3s. 7d.; 68 to lb., at 3s. 8d. to 3s. 9d.; and 66 to lb., or fine bold, at 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10d.; 150 to 160 to lb. at 1s. 7d. to 2s. Mace: Little offered, and prices again dearer; good Penang, 4s. 3d.; bold but red, 4s. 1d.; middling, 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10d.; ordinary, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d.; very low 3s. 1d. to 3s. 3d. per lb.

TAPIOCA continues quiet; good Singapore has sold at 2¼d. to 2½d., and Penang at 2⅝d.

TIN.—There is very little business doing in the market, but prices are without alteration, the current quotations being Straits on the spot, £151 10s.; afloat, £150; Banca, £160; Billiton, £153. The price of Straits at this time last year was £132 10s. The deliveries last month were in Holland 450 tons, in London 642 tons; total 1,092 tons.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT
AND PILLS.—MORE PRECIOUS THAN GOLD.—Diarrhœa, dysentery, and fever are, through the summer's heat, carrying off the young, as the winter destroys the aged. In the most acute cases, where internal medicine cannot be retained, the greatest relief will immediately result from rubbing Holloway's soothing Ointment over the abdomen. The friction should be frequent and brisk, to ensure the penetration of a large portion of the unguent. This Ointment calms the excited peristaltic action, and soothes the pain. Both vomiting and griping yield to it. Where fruits or vegetables have originated the malady, it is proper to remove all undigested matter from the bowels by a moderate dose of Holloway's Pills before using the Ointment.

SUBSCRIPTION for 1,500 SEVEN PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BUILDING BONDS of $1,000 each of THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Net revenue of the Company for the year ending 1st May, 1872, $2,697,816, or £539,563 sterling.

In addition to the general security of the company, these bonds have the special security of a first mortgage on the real estate of the Company in Broadway and Dey-street, in the City of New York.

Interest payable in gold on 1st May and 1st Nov., by coupons attached.

Principal repayable in gold on 1st May, 1902, if not previously paid off by purchase at a premium up to 10 per cent. (say $1,000 per bond), in accordance with the deed of mortgage hereinafter referred to, which provides a sinking fund for this purpose.

Price of subscription 92 per cent., making, at the exchange of 4s. 6d. per dollar, £207 per bond of $1,000, payable as follows:—£20 per bond on Application; £50 per bond on Allotment; £70 per bond on 20th Aug.; £67 per bond on 20th Sept.; total, £207.

Subscribers may pay up the instalments in advance under discount at £5 per cent. per annum.

Reckoning the accrued interest from the 1st May last, and the discount for prepayment, the net cost per $1,000 bond is reduced to £203 2s. 6d., thus yielding to the investor about £7 per cent. per annum.

Messrs. GRANT BROTHERS and CO. are PREPARED to RECEIVE APPLICATIONS for the above-mentioned 1,500 Seven per Cent. First Mortgage Building Bonds, which have been issued by the Western Union Telegraph Company of the United States.

The bonds are to bearer for the sum of $1,000 each, with coupons attached, payable in gold half-yearly, on 1st May and 1st November in each year, at the offices of the Union Trust Company of New York.

Interest accrues from 1st May last, and the first coupon for the half-year's interest will fall due on 1st November next.

The coupons (at the option of the holder) may also be collected in London, at the banking-house of Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., 24, Lombard-street, London, at the fixed exchange of 4s. per dollar, thus making the amount of the coupon receivable in London £7 per bond each half-year.

The Western Union Telegraph Company of the United States of America is probably the largest undertaking of the kind in the world, possessing almost a monopoly of the vast telegraphic business of the United States having absorbed nearly all other competing lines, forming the whole into one great and powerful system, equal in importance to the English telegraph service as now administered by the Postmaster-General.

Some idea of the extent of its business may be formed from the fact that it has in operation no less than 60,502 miles of line, and 133,690 miles of wire, being about 40,000 miles more than the total telegraph wires of the United Kingdom.

The business of this great undertaking is yearly increasing, as will be seen by the following table certified by George H. Mumford, Esq., Vice President:—

,, 1871	7,923,562	,,

The gross receipts from May 1, 1871, to May 1, 1872, $8,251,694, or £1,650,338 sterling, and the net profits the large total of $2,697,816, or £539,563 sterling.

The Board of Directors, which is of a very high character, includes many of the first merchants of New York, and the following is a complete list of the same:—

William Orton, President.

A. B. Cornell, Augustus Schell, O. H. Palmer, Geo. H. Mumford, Vice-Presidents.

George H. Mumford, Secretary.
R. H. Rochester, Treasurer.
W. H. Abel, Auditor.

Horace F. Clarke. O. H. Palmer. A. W. Greenleaf.
John Steward. James H. Banker. Harrison Durkee.
E. B. Wesley. A. B. Cornell.

Hugh Allan, Montreal.
James H. Banker, New York.
Nathan A. Baldwin, New York.
Wm. D. Bishop, New York.
Horace F. Clark, New York.
Ezra Cornell, Ithaca.
Alonzo B. Cornell, New York.
Harrison Durkee, New York.
Wm. E. Dodge, New York.
Sheppard Gandy, New York.
Norvin Green, Louisville.
Augustus W. Greenleaf, New York.
John A. Griswold, Troy.
Wilson G. Hunt, New York.
George Jones, New York.
C. Livingston, New York.
Edwin D. Morgan, New York.
William Orton, New York.
O. H. Palmer, New York.
E. S. Sandford, New York.
Augustus Schell, New York.
Hiram Sibley, Rochester.
Z. G. Simmons, Kenosha, Wisconsin.
John Steward, New York.
Moses Taylor, New York.
Daniel Torrance, New York.
George Walker, Springfield, Massachusetts.
E. B. Wesley, New York.
Stillman Witt, Cleveland, Ohio.

To meet the requirements of the Company the directors, with the full consent of the shareholders, have determined to erect in New York a large central building, eight stories in height above the street level, especially adapted to the business of the Company, and sufficiently spacious for its constant growth, and have accordingly secured a site on the corner of Broadway and Dey-street, in the city of New York, upon which a suitable building is in course of erection.

The cost of this site (as certified by William Orton Esq., the president of the Company) was $850,000, and the estimated cost of the building and fittings is $650,000, together $1,500,000; to provide which the 1,500 7 per cent. building bonds now for subscription have been created.

As special security for such bonds the Western Union Telegraph Company have executed a deed of mortgage of the above property to the Union Trust Company of New York (the well-known Trust Company, and which is of the highest standing) on behalf of the bondholders, which has been duly registered, thus effectually protecting the latter in their legal claim on such estate.

In addition to such special security, holders of the bonds will have the general security of the Western Union Telegraph Company, the amount of whose share capital is $41,071,510, or £8,214,302 sterling, and whose bonded debt, inclusive of the bonds now for subscription, only amounts to $6,039,900, or £1,207,980 sterling.

To meet the interest on such bonded debt the sum of $422,793, equal to £84,559, only is required annually, and as the net profits earned by the Company for the year ending May 1, 1872, amounted to $2,697,816, equal to £539,563, or upwards of six times the amount required for the payment of such interest, the exceptionally first-class character of the security will at once be seen, apart altogether from the special and absolute security possessed by the Bondholders in the valuable property in Broadway mortgaged by the Telegraph Company in favour of the Bondholders.

In addition to payment of the interest the Telegraph Company undertakes to place in the hands of the Trust Company on the 1st of May in each year, for the period after mentioned, the sum of $30,000 by way of sinking fund to be applied in the purchase by the Trust Company of a portion of the bonds now for subscription, at such prices as they can purchase the same up to 10 per cent. premium (say $1,100 per bond), and on such purchase the bonds so acquired are forthwith to be cancelled. The Telegraph Company may also itself purchase and hand over for cancellation the said amount of bonds.

Should, however, the Trust Company not be able to purchase bonds at 10 premium, a higher price may be paid with the consent of the Telegraph Company, and the said sum of $30,000 is to continue to be set aside annually until the amount of the bonds outstanding shall be reduced to $1,000,000; and as the entire security will still remain to the holders of the remaining bonds, they will thus become still more valuable.

The remainder of the bonds not so purchased will be paid off at $1,000 in gold in New York on the 1st May, 1902.

An important option is reserved to the holders of these bonds, by the terms of which it is provided that they may be converted into the share stock of the Company at par at any time before the maturity of the said bonds.

Congress, by Act of 24th July, 1866, has the right to order the purchase of these lines, and, whenever it may so elect, it must direct the appointment of two arbitrators on the part of the State to meet two arbitrators to be appointed by the Company, who are empowered to determine the sum to be paid; an umpire being named in case of disagreement.

Whenever the Government may decide to avail themselves of this power to purchase the undertaking the option reserved to the Bondholders of converting their bonds into the capital stock of the Company must become very valuable, as it must result in the Company receiving a very large sum for the surrender of its privileges and its highly profitable and progressive undertaking.

As an illustration of the great increase in value in the stock of a similar undertaking, under such circumstances, it may be stated that the total sum returned to the shareholders of the Electric and International Telegraph Company, whose property was acquired recently by the Postmaster-General, was £257 11s. 3d. for each 100 stock.

It will be seen, therefore, that the option alluded to may, under the circumstances of the lines being purchased by the United States Government, prove exceedingly valuable.

Meanwhile the holders of the bonds will possess a first-class and highly remunerative security, yielding a certain 7 per cent. per annum; and Messrs. Grant, Brothers and Co. have no hesitation in recommending the same as an exceptionally desirable investment.

Scrip certificates to bearer will be issued against allotment letters and receipts for deposit, and will be exchanged for the bonds when all the payments are completed.

Default in payment of any instalment when due will render all previous payments liable to forfeiture.

Certified copies of the resolutions of the Company authorising the creation of the bonds, and a certified copy of the mortgage to the Union Trust Company of New York, and the original certificates referred to above, may be inspected at the offices of Messrs. Ashurst, Morris, and Co., solicitors, 6, Old Jewry, E.C., London.

Applications must be made in the enclosed form, accompanied by the deposit of £20 per bond on the amount applied for, which may be forwarded to either of the undermentioned Bankers:—The Consolidated Bank (Limited), 52, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; Messrs. Martin and Company, 68, Lombard-street, E.C.; or to Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., 24, Lombard-street, E.C., London.

Should the amount allotted not require the whole sum so paid, the surplus will be applied towards the payment of the amount due on allotment.

In case no allotment is made the deposit will be returned forthwith without deduction.

Forms of subscription may be obtained on application.

24, Lombard-street, E.C., London, July 4, 1872.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The dates by this mail are to the 26th May. The outward mail of 12th April (French) arrived on 25th May.

The following items are from the North China Daily News:—

It is very rarely that the Peking Gazette mentions Yunnan. The number of the 27th April does quote a memorial from the Governor; but its tenor cannot be pleasant to the Imperial Government. The greater part of the province is in such a state of anarchy that the officials cannot remain at their posts, and his Excellency therefore cannot report on their official conduct. The treasuries are empty, the cities depopulated, and there are few taxes forthcoming. Why is not the great army that Li has in Chihli employed in re-conquering Yunnan?

The Gazette of the 25th April has an edict regarding the late grand secretary Jui-chang; his character is highly spoken of, and the usual honours are conferred on him. He was a Mongol belonging to the Red Bordered Banner. Only two grand secretaries now remain, viz., Juilin, Viceroy of the two Kwang, and Chu Feng-piao; and the latter is so infirm that he recently petitioned the Throne to be allowed to retire from office.

That of the 23rd and 24th April contain memorials from the Governor of Shantung, regarding the completion of the embankment of the new Yellow River in the neighbourhood of Howchialin, which is evidently considered an event of great importance. It appears that the river, finding an outlet at Howchialin, a place situated in or near the Yun-cheng district in the south-west of Shangtung, had inundated a large tract of country in that direction. The erection of embankments, &c., had therefore become necessary in order to save the flooded districts. This work, which has cost, we are told, "many myriads of taels," has been pushed forward with a rapidity of which the Chinese are seldom guilty. But speed in this case was absolutely necessary, as the flooded district must have been ruined if the water had not been drained off in time to sow the crops. In an edict issued on the 10th April, the Lieut.-Governor was lauded for the energy and ability he has displayed in carrying out the work, and over thirty other officials were decorated with titles, peacocks' feathers, &c., while the man who really seems to have done the work, and to have saved Tls. 80,000, gets a peacocks' feather and Tls. 500 as a present.

A meeting has been held to decide on a scheme for building a new theatre, and that proposed by the committee previously appointed for this purpose was unanimously adopted; Tls. 15,000 to be raised in debentures among the community, bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent.; Tls. 5,175 from Recreation Fund Shareholders, who are invited to exchange their scrip for Theatre debentures; and a loan of Tls. 1,500 from the Recreation Fund—making a total of Tls. 21,675, to meet an estimated outlay of Tls. 21,250. Messrs. Alabaster, J. T. Brand, Essex, Fearon, Forbes, Groom, Little, and Mowat are the committee.

It appears that the Shanghai Hsien, in his proclamation regarding the solar eclipse to take place on the 6th June, makes the following quotation from the Provincial Treasurer's despatch:—"At Soochow, the sun will be eclipsed 7 digits and 32 minutes. The eclipse will commence at 9.29 A.M., reach its height at 11.37, and terminate at 12.56." This being the case, and the fact that all will terminate happily being well known, what, it is pertinently asked by the above paper, is the use of encouraging ignorant superstition by inviting the people to beat gongs, to scare away an imaginary dragon?

Messrs. S. C. Farnham and Co. have taken over the Tunkadoo Dock, and propose to work it in connection with the old dock, of which they are the lessees. But they intimate that though thus having the control of the only large docks in Shanghai available for foreign shipping, their rates both for dockage and work done will remain the same as heretofore.

Baron von Richtofen has arrived, and some record of his recent explorations is looked for with interest.

THE ATTACK ON MR. BABER.

Some time ago we (Courier) noticed a report that Mr. E. C. Baber, H.B.M.'s Acting Vice-Consul at Kiukiang, had been attacked and ill-treated by the Chinese when travelling in the interior. Mr. Baber passed a day or two in Shanghai before leaving to do Consular duty at Tamsui, and we have gathered the following particulars of the affair :—

It may be remembered that six or eight months ago, in a letter published in our columns, a British missionary residing at Kiukiang, gave an account of a visit paid by him to Nanchang, the capital of the province of Kiangsi, and of the uncourteous, hostile, and violent treatment he, in spite of the Consular passport with which he was provided, experienced from the natives, official and non-official, by which he was forced to leave the city and seek safety in a retreat to Kiukiang. It now appears that, when an account of the affair reached his Excellency the British Minister at Peking, he sent instructions to Mr. Baber, in order to test the actual value of the Consular passport for the protection of a foreigner travelling in the interior, to proceed to Nanchang in the guise of a private foreign traveller, without anything to indicate his office, and carrying a Consular passport as his sole protection. In accordance with these instructions, in due time Mr. Baber found himself in Nanchang. As soon as it was known that a foreigner had come, a crowd collected on the banks of the canal, and ere long stones began to be thrown at Mr. Baber's boat. Looking out, he saw several mandarins among the crowd queitly looking on, without attempting to check these hostile demonstrations. On this he had the courage to land and remonstrate with the officials ; but they excused themselves from interfering on the plea that the crowd was too strong for them to control.

Finding no help or remedy in this quarter, Mr. Baber directed his steps to the Taotai or Governor (we have not ascertained which). As he went, the crowd behind increased till it assumed alarming proportions, and Mr. Baber was several times indebted to the ultima ratio for his right of way. A petty military mandarin in particular—some corporal mounted on horseback—rode his horse so close up to the foreigner, pressing him against the wall, that he had to be served with a corporal ejectment. At length the Yamen of chief magistrate was reached, and on being ushered into his presence, Mr. Baber at once stated the case and produced his passport. H.E. looked at the printed English form on the one side, and said that this was a foreign document, which he could not understand, and of which he could, consequently take no notice. Mr. Baber, however, drew his attention to the Chinese version on the other side, on seeing which he at once assumed a different tone. We have not learned the details of the interview, but the result was that he supplied Mr. Baber with a chair, and provided an escort of sixteen stout men armed with clubs to escort him to his boat. The crowd was waiting for him outside, and his progress to the boat was a severe running fight between his escort and the crowd. The chair coolies wisely chose the narrowest streets, so as to reduce the number of the assailants as much as possible. But notwithstanding this generalship, the escort had full employment with their clubs, and used them with a will all the way. In the course of one of the scrimmages, Mr. Baber found the head of one of his assailants inside his chair, and detained it there for a few minutes to convey a few salutary impressions for future guidance.

At length the boat was reached, and Mr. Baber having fulfilled his mission, and settled by personal experience the value of a foreign passport in the interior of China, lost no time in getting under weigh for Kiukiang.

A SCHOOL AT CHEFOO.

It will be in the rocollection of most of our readers, says the Courier, that in view of the excessive expense to people of moderate means, and other disadvantages, of sending foreign children home to Europe and America for their education ; and taking into consideration the great sanitary advantages of Chefoo, the lamented Mr, Markham, when Consul at that port, joined with other leading citizens in endeavouring to organize a first-class boarding school to be established there. But the pecuniary and other responsibilities to be incurred in erecting a suitable building, sending home for a qualified teacher, and making other necessary arrangements were so great, that the scheme fell through. But Chefoo has continued to be held in estimation as the Brighton of China, while the rapidly increasing number of foreign families in China has made the want of a high-class institution where children could be sent at once for health and education to be more and more felt.

In these circumstances we have read, with special interest, a prospectus now in course of circulation through the settlement, in which Mr. and Mrs. Loewenstein announce that they have secured suitable premises on the beach at Chefoo, and are about to open a boarding school, where English, French, German, and Latin, with geography, history, arithmetic, and the elements of science will be taught, as well as piano and singing. The charges seem very moderate for China. Mr. Loewenstein speaks and writes the various modern languages mentioned with the mastery of a native ; Mrs. Loewenstein is an English lady. The time chosen for the opening of the school is peculiarly happy ; as, when parents take their family to sea-bathing quarters at Chefoo in summer—as so many foreign residents in China do—they will have an opportunity of judging of the merits of the institution on the spot. We wish the project every success.

A very elaborate work has just been issued by the Baron Von Gumpach, giving a detailed account of the Burlingame Mission the Tientsin Massacre, and other recent political affairs in China.

Judgment has been delivered by the Supreme Court at Shanghai, in the salvage claim against the Claro Babuyan. The Court decides that Mr. Bain's services were rather of the nature of "extraordinary pilot services, than of salvage in the strictest sense ;" and, following the practice of English Law Courts in such cases, awards him "about double the ordinary rate of pilotage, together with a sum for expenses or costs" i.e., Tls. 200.

HONG KONG.

Dates are to the 1st June. The P. and O. mail, from London 19th April, arrived out on 28th May.

The following is from the Chida Mail :—

The Canton Proclamation is so far a step in the right direction that it enjoins a respect for the Treaty, and the civil treatment of foreigners by the Chinese. It is unsatisfactory, inasmuch as it assumes a direct falsehood—that China in her foreign intercourse "has ever been actuated by justice." It would, however, be ungracious to refuse a recognition of the fact that its tone is far less arrogant than that of previous effusions of a similar nature, and we gladly admit the value of so promising a sign of better times to come. We cannot, however, help inquiring whether the proclamation, which at a port accustomed for three hundred years to the presence of foreigners, and possessing a Consular body of much ability and dignity, would seem hardly necessary, has been posted at the inland cities, where it is most needed? We very much doubt if it has. And a little episode narrated by the Courier supplies a reason for our doubt. The occurrence in question took place while copies of a proclamation similar in its terms to that now before us was posted at the gate of Shanghai. The zeal of our Canton Prefect was even eclipsed by that of his brother of the model settlement. The wrong-headedness and ill taste of wantonly annoying foreigners were being set forth in the most flowing and convincing language on the city gates, just at the very moment that one of Her Majesty's Consular officers was being mobbed, stoned, and otherwise ill-treated in the interior. Directed by Mr. Wade to test the value of a Consular passport, that gentleman proceeded incognito to Nanchang, a city on the Poyang Lake, at no great distance from Kewkiang, a place regarding which complaints had already been made by a former traveller. The net result of Mr. Baber's journey was, that the value of his passport, as regarded the subordinate officials, was nil. It did ensure from the Taoutai a little civility, and an escort from the yamun to his boat, but this only after he had refused to acknowledge the passport, and Mr. Baber had called his attention to the Chinese written on the back. But Mr. Baber was able to speak Chinese ; had he not possessed that accomplishment, we fear that his errand would have been cut summarily short.

We learn that a supply of timber for the Pier and Godown Company is being rapidly shipped from Manilla, and may be expected here (not daily, as the Advertiser says, but towards the end of next month), while satisfactory arrangements have been made for further supplies.

The Spanish steamer Pasig, from Ilo Ilo and Cebu, brought to Manila the crew of the British ship Lorton, Captain Lowe, which foundered on the 3rd of April in the Pacific, having struck on a sunken rock not put down in the charts, situated in lat. 8 degrees 24 N., long. 138 degrees 50 E. The crew took to the boats, and after forty days arrived at Cebu, all hands being saved. She was bound for Yokohama.

The Sunda left Macao at 2.30 P.M. on the 27th, and the Deccan left Shanghai at 5 A.M. on the 29th, both with full cargoes of tea, for London.

We hear that H.E. Comte Geoffroy, the new French Ministe to Pekin, proceeded hence in the Linois, via the the Coast Ports, at which he will inspect the various Consulates, &c. M. Lemaire, for some time interpreter in the French Consulate-General at Shanghai, will arrive by next French mail, and proceed to take charge of the French Consulate at Canton.

The unfortunate town clock had a fit yesterday at noon, and its struggles were not subdued until it had struck no less than 217 times consecutively, extending over a period amounting to 9 minutes 6 seconds and half a tick. Perhaps the department under whose care the patient is placed will be induced now to attempt to alleviate its sufferings.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 10th June. The outward P. and O mail of May 3 arrived on the 2nd June.

OPENING OF THE COUNCIL.

The session of the Legislative Council was formally opened by his Excellency the Governor, on the 3rd June. The attendance of the public was large, and a number of ladies were present. A guard of honour with the band of the 80th regiment were drawn up in front of the Hall, and as his Excellency alighted a salute was fired from Fort Canning, the guard presenting arms and the band playing "God Save the Queen." His Excellency was received at the door and escorted up stairs by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and the Honourable Colonel Phillips, commanding the troops, and took his seat at the head of the Council table. The Honourable the Chief Justice, the Honourable Captain Innes, Acting Colonial Engineer and Surveyor General, and the Honourables Dr. Little and Thomas Shelford, then took the oaths and their seats as members of the Legislative Council. After the new members had all been sworn in, his Excellency rose and addressed the Council as follows:—

Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.

"It affords me much pleasure to meet you again after an absence of twelve months from the Settlements, though I notice with regret that several of those gentlemen who in past years have shared in our labours with so much advantage to the Colony no longer occupy seats at this Council.

"During my residence in England I have had the opportunity of assisting in the settlement of some of those questions which occupied your attention in the course of last year, and I have watched your proceedings with much interest.

"I regret to find that the year has been characterized by serious riots amongst the Chinese population in Singapore, a settlement which has been free from such disturbances since 1854. I trust, however, that by the exercise of a vigilant supervision over the movements of this portion of the population, and a firm and judicious exercise of the powers with which the Government is furnished for the purpose, the settlement may be secured from the recurrence in future of any similar outbreak.

"You will have been made aware by the accounts published at the commencement of the year how satisfactory is the financial condition of the Colony. After the five years' experience we have had of its financial resources, and the demands made upon them, we may feel satisfied that we are in a position to undertake, without fear of embarrassment, those measures of reform and re-organization more immediately necessary to the well-being of our large and varied population, which we have hitherto hesitated from undertaking on account of their cost.

"Of the Ordinances passed last session ten have received Her Majesty's confirmation and allowance, and four are still under consideration.

"There will be laid before you to-day,—

"A Bill to Repeal and Re-enact the Police Force Ordinance, 1871.

"A Bill for the Survey of Steam-vessels, and for Granting Certificates to Engineers.

"A Bill for the Regulation of Ports and Harbours.

"A Bill to Consolidate and Amend the Law relating to the Summary Jurisdiction of Magistrates.

"Draft Bills for amending the Penal Code Ordinance, 1871, and the Pawnbrokers' Ordinance, 1871, are now under the consideration of the Secretary of State, and will be submitted to you later in the session.

"Under instructions from the Secretary of State, I am engaged in considering with the Judges of the Colony a scheme for the re-organization of the Courts of Justice, so as to afford increased facilities for the administration of justice in the Settlements, and I hope to be able to lay before you during the Session a measure to effect this most desirable object.

"At the transfer of the Settlements it was laid down that the military arrangements for garrisoning the colony should continue in force for five years, and as the termination of this period was approaching when I was at home, I was directed to consider and report, in conjunction with officers of the other Government departments concerned, what arrangements should be made for effecting this object in future. After considerable discussion and inquiry it was decided that the most suitable garrison for the Settlements was—1 European Regiment, 916 strong, and 1 Battery of Royal Artillery, 103 strong, which it was estimated by the War Department would cost £91,595 per annum.

"During the time this arrangement was under discussion, it appeared to be the opinion of H.M.'s Government that the time had arrived when the flourishing condition of the Colony would justify its being called upon to assume the whole cost of its military protection and defence. I am happy, however, to say that such representations were made on behalf of the Settlements, that it was at length agreed upon between the Colonial, War, and Treasury Departments that the Imperial Government should bear the cost of a portion of the garrison, which was estimated at £40,000. The decision finally arrived at was that this garrison should be maintained at Imperial expense, on condition that the Colony contributed a yearly sum of £51,595, and provided the troops with all necessary barrack accommodation. The Colony is also liable to furnish at its own cost, such guards as it requires for Colonial purposes, and which the troops themselves are unable to supply. Some additional expense has been entailed by this, as it has been necessary to organize a small body of police drilled and trained specially for this purpose. But on the other hand there is a direct and immediate saving to the Colony of nearly £8,000 per annum on its military contribution.

"The Secretaries of State for the Colonies have repeatedly urged upon this Government three subjects of the greatest importance to the welfare of the Settlements, and the Earl of Kimberley has now again drawn the earnest attention of this Government to them; they are—

"The state of our prisons, and the inefficiency of their discipline and system of management.

"The inefficiency of the arrangements for the care and treatment of our sick and leprous poor.

"The insufficiency of the provision secured, and the limited efforts made, for the spread of education among the masses of the people.

"The sudden and, as it appeared, uncalled for action of the Madras Government two years since put an end to the Coolie emigration from that presidency to this colony, and has caused serious injury to the agricultural interests of Penang and Province Wellesley. The Secretary of State has from the first shown great anxiety to protect the interests of the colony, and repeated references have been made to the Government of India expressive of the desire of Her Majesty's Government that no unnecessary impediment should be placed in the way of this immigration. From recent communications which I have had with the Home and Indian Governments, I am in hopes that a settlement of this important question on a footing satisfactory to the Settlements is not now far distant.

"It is satisfactory to me to be able to inform you that the contract for the erection of a screw pile lighthouse on the North Sands has been concluded, and that the materials for the work, and the engineer charged with its construction, have arrived, so that we may look for its completion at the close of the present session.

"I am sorry to say that I am not in a position to make any statement respecting the construction of the water works at Singapore, or the proposed railway to New Harbour, the Secretary of State not having communicated to me his final decision respecting them.

"The abolition of the Hong Kong Mint having put an end to the receipt of any further supplies of small silver coins from that source, it was decided to obtain them, as well as small copper coins, in future direct from home, and a quantity of the former has already been received, which seems to be much appreciated."

The following extract, translated from the Diario de Manila, appears to be the only intelligence from Manila which has been afforded us for some time back of the operations of the Spanish fleet now occupied in blockading and subduing the Sultan and chiefs of the Sulu Archipelago, and in particular the Sultan himself, who appears determined not to accept the terms offered him. This intelligence, although exceedingly meagre, shows plainly that considerable difficulty is experienced in pursuing the piratical chiefs through the sinuosities of their island homes, and it may be questioned whether the Spanish will attain their ends without a considerable augmentation of their fleet and forces in that quarter. The stoppage of trade with Sulu bears somewhat heavily on the resources of Labuan and other places in that direction; although, on the other hand, the suppression of the piracies of the widely-known Sulu sea-rovers is a desideratum. If the Manila press could afford us some particulars now and then as to the progress of events in that quarter, it would of course prove very interesting, and answer many inquiries among both merchants and seamen.

Recent letters from Mindanao, dated May 22, inform us that the Valiente and three gunboats have traversed the Sulu Archipelago in various directions. In the port of Sulu they met H.B.M. steamer Nassau. The Valiente remained some days at the island of Tawi Tawi, where several vessels and prahus and houses belonging to the pirates on the south side were burnt, notwithstanding the many difficulties which hindered navigation owing to the number of unexplored creeks which intersect that island and render the principal lurking-places of the pirates almost inaccessible. The northern portion of the island proper has been forsaken by the famous pirate Aluncaya Abubacal, owing, no doubt, to the havoc twice made last year by our men-of-war at his lurking-place. On the island of Cagayan, Sulu, the Valiente rescued a captive, a native of Paragua, who had been enslaved for the space of a year, and who succeeded in swimming off to her.

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Manufactured Cotton Goods: The market had become rather inactive owing to the receipt of advices reporting some falling off in the demand at Tientsin. The additional settlements since the P. and O. mail of Grey Shirtings only amounted to 25,000 pieces at Tls. 1.8.6 to 1.9.5 for 8.4 lb. chops, and Tls. 1.6.9 to 1.7.3 for 7lb. In White Shirtings and T-Cloths the further business had also been of moderate extent, prices of the former article showing a decline of 2 candareens per piece. For English and Dutch Drills a steady inquiry had continued for Hankow, resulting in fair settlements at Tls. 3.0.5 to 3.1.0 and Tls. 2.9.7 to 3.0.2 respectively. No additional transactions had been effected in American fabrics of any description. Fancy Cottons had attracted more attention, and sales had been made to a larger extent. In Woollens, Camlets, Spanish Stripes, and Long Ells were somewhat dearer, and a good business had been done.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales had been made during the week:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., 1,000 pieces at $2.77½ per piece; 7 lbs., 1,750 pieces at $2.25 per piece: T-Cloths, 7 lbs., 3,200 pieces at $2.07½ to 2.75 per piece; 6¼ lbs., 800 pieces at $2.05; 6 lbs., 1,000 pieces at $1.95 per piece; Lead is quoted at $6½ to 6¾ per picul cash, $7 to 7¼ to teamen.

HONG KONG.—Moderate transactions had been effected in Raw Cotton and Cotton Yarns upon easier terms, but the market for Manufactured Goods and Woollens had been quiet, and settlements small.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s report, dated 21st May, says:—On the 14th inst. we had the pleasure to advise the opening, on the previous day, of our Tea Market, by the settlement of one parcel Ningchow. Only a limited buainess took place on the second day, not more than 9,000 half-chests and 2,000 boxes having changed hands. Since then, however, operations have been carried on on a much larger scale, settlements up to last night amounting to as follows:—Ningchow, 47,678 half-chests; 26,536 boxes. Oopacks, 63,317 chests; 66,513 half-chests; 17,260 boxes. Total, 63,317 chests; 114,191 half-chests; 73,796 boxes. Prices for the above have ruled as follows:—Ningchows, Tls. 30 to 44½; Oonfars, Tls. 27 to 34; Cheong-sow-kais, Tls. 26 to 34½; Toon Shans, Tls. 26½ to 35; Yung-low-toongs, Tls. 25½ to 30; Ping-kongs, Tls. 22 to 25½; Low-yongs, Tls. 22¾ to 26½; Lee-Lings, Tls. 22½ to 24; Nip-car-szes, Tls. 18¾ to 21. As regards the crop, it is generally admitted to be a good one, the various districts, with one or two exceptions, showing an improvement on last year's Teas. We confirm the remarks we made in our previous Circular with regard to the Ningchows and Cheong-sow-kais. The Oonfars, as a rule, are fully equal in quality, and we consider this class gives the best value for prices paid. Yung-low-toongs and Toong-yongs we do not think so good, Ping-kongs, Low-yongs and Lee-lings on the other hand are quite as good. Up to date no Shuntam Teas have been shown. For quotations we can only refer you to the prices paid above. At the opening, attention was chiefly devoted to the finest kinds, and when these had been nearly all cleared off for Russian orders, a reduction fully equal to Tls. 2 took place in the finer Teas suitable for the English market. Medium kinds have been in good demand, and we make the market rather firmer for these descriptions. Total arrivals to date are:—Ningchow 62,678 half-chests, 34,536 boxes; Oopacks 88,317 chests, 82,137 half-chests, 25,260 boxes. Steamers in port are the Agamemnon, Erl King, Gordon Castle, Parnassus, Hong Kong, and Galley of Lorne, and the rate of freight has been fixed at £5 per ton of 40 feet. The rates by the P. and O. steamer Deccan have been reduced, and are now £7 for 45 days, £6 10s. for 50 days, and £6 if over 50 days.

SHANGHAI.—The market for New Season's Tea has not been opened.

FOOCHOW.—By this opportunity we have to report the opening of the Congou and Oolong markets, business in the former description having commenced on the 23rd May by the purchase of Paklings at Tls. 34.8 to 37.8 o.b., or some four to five taels over last season's opening prices; and the total quantity of this kind of Congou so far settled was roughly estimated at 10,000 chests. On the 25th May some 4,000 chests, composed of Soey Cuts, Ching Wos, and Toong Hoong Tongs, had been taken at Tls. 27.3 to 36.8 o.b., or three to five taels over last season, but the majority of buyers were holding off, and there was every indication of a fall in prices. Total arrivals of Congous to date (May 25) amounted to 108,000 chests, and it was considered that the crop was on the whole superior to that of last season, especially in the case of Paklings and Kaisow or Shumee kinds, which were richer in the cup. No report had been made of the settlement of any Kaisows or Shumees, and the holders of these were asking Tls. 38.8 to 41.8 o.b. The settlement of about 2,100 half-chests of Oolongs was reported at Tls. 31.8 for superior cargo, but particulars of the chops had not been made known. These Teas were supposed to be for the English market. Scented Teas had not been shown. The steamer Malacca was engaged full at £5 10s., iff she should make the passage in 45 days, £5 if in 50 days, and £4 10s. i over 50 days. The steamer Glengyle (in port) had been circulated at £4 10s. if under 55 days, and £4 if over 55 days. The steamer Canton (expected to arrive) has been circulated at £5 under 50 days, £4 10s. under 55 days, and £4 over 55 days.

FORMOSA.—Latest dates from Tamsui report the commencement of business there by the settlement of 3,000 to 4,000 piculs of new leaf at rates $5 higher than those of last year. Choicest kinds were scarce but finest and choice parcels were in fair supply. About 2,000 half-chests of these Ooloongs had already been shipped to Hong Kong to go forward to America by the first Pacific mail steamer leaving in June.

SWATOW.—Ooloongs in moderate quantity had been arriving at this port from the adjacent districts, and settlements to the extent of 6,500 half-chests had been made at prices ranging from $12 to $38 per peiul according to quality.

CANTON.—A quieter feeling had prevailed, and but a moderate business had been done, as operators had shown less disposition to buy; prices had ruled irregularly, but were not quotably lower. The S.S. Tweed was loading for London at £4 per ton of 40 feet, and the ship Caermarthenshire was on the berth for the same place at £3 per ton.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Although the market for the new staple could scarcely be regarded as having fairly opened, about 150 bales of common Tsatlees of the new crop are reported to have been settled at prices ranging from Tls. 450 to 475, being about the equivalent of Tls. 500 for Red Peacocks. These prices were generally regarded as being high in view of the abundant supply anticipated this season, as well as the fact of the parcels that had so far come forward being of rather indifferent quality. With regard to old Silk there had been no additional business of importance to advise.

CANTON.—The later arrivals of the first crop showed no improvement in quality. Some further contracts of Re-reels aggregating 1,000 to 1,100 boxes were reported.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Messrs. Mosses and Mitchell, the London Transit Agents for the Suez Canal Company, have been authorised to publish the subjoined letter, addressed to them, in reply to an influentially signed memorial concerning the present change in the mode of levying dues:—

"Gentlemen,—Together with your letter of the 25th of June was received the memorial in which a certain number of English shipowners make observations with reference to the new basis of levying of duties in operation since the 1st of July. We have communicated this memorial to the Administrative Council of the company. The shipowners state that the principle generally admitted for the levying of taxes and dues applicable to steamships is to grant a reduction for the space occupied by the engine, the fuel, &c., and they seem to think that the Suez Canal Company henceforth intends levying its dues on the total capacity of the steamers, and without allowing any deduction for the engine. This idea, however, is the result of an error. The principle which has guided the Administrative Council in the adoption of the new measure consisted in subjecting each ship to a duty of f.10, as often repeated as the ship is capable of carrying tons of goods—viz., in basing the levying conformably with the acts of concession on the capacity of the ships. The Council, moreover, has found out that it was necessary to increase, by 20 per cent. on an average, the tonnage inserted in the official British papers, in order to arrive as closely as possible at the exact capacity of the ships. Afterwards, it has admitted, that from this total tonnage, an allowance of 25 per cent. should be conceded for the space occupied by the engine, &c. Now, if we increase by 30 per cent. on an average the tonnage inserted in the official British papers, or gross tonnage, in order to obtain the total capacity of the ship, and if afterwards we deduct the 25 per cent. from the sum obtained in order to allow for the space occupied by the engine, we arrive exactly at the figure expressed by the gross tonnage. It is therefore for the purpose of simplification that the company has adopted the gross tonnage, after having found out that the number of tons expressed by the gross tonnage indicated as exactly as possible, and, as a rule, the capacity to be utilised in the ships. We now fairly ask the shipowners whether it is not true that the net tonnage inserted in the official ships' papers is notoriously inferior to the real capacity of the ships, and whether it is not likewise true that the gross tonnage indicates, with an average exactness, the precise capacity of the steamers' measurement, or the number of tons which the ships are able to carry. It is on account of these considerations that the Council of the company has made the decision of the 4th of March, by which the new basis of the dues has been fixed, and, these considerations still prevailing, the new tariff remains unchanged. We do not disguise from ourselves the importance which this change must have for the shipowners, but these gentlemen must certainly acknowledge that it would be unfair that shareholders who were so persevering and courageous as to endow the maritime community with this new means of communication should remain any longer without obtaining the reward due to them. We beg you to communicate this letter to the steam-shipowners in England. Please receive, gentlemen, &c.,

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, July 8.

The German Parliament is closed, the Emperor at Ems, "where," he said, "I shall not be annoy and insulted this year by M. Benedetti;" Prince Bismark at his Tusculum in Pomerania, and the members of the Federal Council are on the point of breaking up and going home for the holidays. In fact, it is the dead season, or what "Kladderadatsch" irreverently calls the saure gurken zeit, or period of sour cucumbers, and, therefore, there is but little going on in politics. The new Convention with France is the most important event of the fortnight, and in financial circles the great topic of conversation is the forthcoming French loan, which it is feared, if raised all at once, is likely to disturb the money market—in France from the drain of precious metals, and in Germany from a plethora of the same. In the meantime the coining of the new currency goes on comparatively slowly, the quantity reported as ready on the 1st of June being only 156,606,200 marks, in coins of 20 marks each. Between that day and the 8th of the same month the mint at Berlin has turned out 4,702,820 marks; that at Hanover, 1,597,140 marks; Frankfort, 2,059,020 marks; Munich, 966,660 marks; Dresden, 1,215,640 marks; Stuttgart, 577,540 marks; and Carlsruhe, 250,000 marks; making together up to the 8th of last month—the latest official account published—a grand aggregate of 167,975,020 marks in 20-mark coins. The Bundesrath has now ordered that between the present time and the end of October the new gold 10-mark piece shall be coined in the proportion of one such piece for every five 20-mark pieces. Under these circumstances, and in this period of transition, it was a wise resolution to retain the old silver dollars that are still in circulation, though no more are to be coined; and as the new gold coins are also to a certain extent in circulation, we have at present in Germany a double currency, whilst we here in Hamburg are in the anomalous position of having four, viz., gold, silver, banco, and currency. Nothing is yet settled about the abolition of banco money, and it will probably be left to die a natural death when the new gold currency comes into operation, which will probably be in the course of next year. In the meantime, our sister city of Bremen has really put in execution her projected alteration of her currency by adopting the new system of gold marks and pfennigs, which came into operation on the 1st inst., when the transfer was much facilitated by the opening, on the same day, of a branch establishment of the Bank of Prussia, for which a special law was passed both by the German Parliament and the Senate and Burgerschaft of Bremen. The great novelty, however, is that the Bank of Bremen have already issued paper money in the new Imperial German currency, in the shape of Bank notes for 100 marks each.

At the last sitting of the Burgerschaft of this city two measures of paramount importance for the interests of Hamburg were definitely settled. The committee of seven members appointed to investigate the urgent message of the Senate, for the concession to the new company that propose to construct docks and warehouses on the Island of Steinwerder—as mentioned in my last letter—read their report, and on the strength of their recommendation the House unanimously and unconditionally accepted the Senatorial proposal. The other subject was the equally important message from the Senate to confirm the concession to the other company for the construction of docks, piers, warehouses, and a railway down to Cuxhaven, as far as the Hamburg territory was concerned. On this question the opinions of the members diverged greatly, some believing the execution of the project would be the ruin of Hamburg, whilst others maintained it would greatly facilitate and enlarge the trade of this city, when it was generally known that the Elbe was accessible and free from ice all the year round. The committee had divided their report into four separate heads:—1. The general subject of granting the concession; 2. The giving up to the new company the land belonging to the State required for the execution of the works; 3. The application of the law of expropriation to enable the company to purchase private property at its real value; and 4. To agree to the subvention of 60,000 thalers per annum for twenty years, promised by the Senate, but subject to the consent and approbation of the Burgerschaft. The committee recommended the unconditional acceptance of the first three subjects; and with regard to the fourth, to suspend its judgment for the present—without absolutely refusing its ratification—to see how the affair was likely to turn out. After a lively debate the recommendations of the committee were all definitively passed. In the same sitting a motion was made and seconded to prevent members of the Senate from taking an active part in land and building speculations; but as there was no law to prevent them from speculating in cotton or coffee, and it was therefore unreasonable to restrict their operations, the motion was rejected.

Herr Stephan, the German Postmaster-General, to whose indefatigable energy we are indebted for the many great improvements in the organisation of the Post-office departments, and more especially the late postal treaties with France, Spain, Portugal, Au-tria, Holland, and England, has just returned from Russia, where he has concluded a very favourable treaty with that Government. Whilst at St. Petersburg he agitated in favour of the adoption of a single rate of postage for the whole world, a proposal emanating from Germany—and of which I gave your readers some particulars in a former letter. He found the Russian Government not disinclined to join the combination; but there are at present some serious obstacles in the way that must first be got rid of, the principal difficulty being that the single rate of postage at home is 10 copeks, whereas the proposed rate for the whole world is only 8 copeks, or 2½ groschens, or threepence sterling, or 9 kreutzers, or 30 centimes. Whilst on this subject I may mention the curious anomaly that the above-named gentleman, who is so studiously ready to be guided by public opinion and willingly to accept any practical improvement in his department, refuses, to the detriment of his own budget, the proposal that has been made to him on several sides,—and supported by the public press of this city and Berlin—to issue a postage stamp for 2½ groschens, which is the single rate for letters from any part of Germany to Great Britain, the United State, and other countries. Here at Hamburg, where the great bulk of the correspondence is carried on with the above-named countries, it is considered a very great inconvenience, hardship, and loss of time. The last item may sound trivial, but it is an object of consideration for many houses here that send off daily a couple of hundred letters, and have the greatest difficulty in getting them ready in time for the post. The only means of prepaying such letters is by making use of at least two stamps, whereas one stamp of 2½ groschens would not only answer the purpose, but effect a great saving in the expenses of the post department—such saving being exactly one-half.

The Post och Inrikes Tidningar of Stockholm announces in its official part that a six months' leave of absence has been granted to Herr B. A. Dickman, Consul at Rangoon for Sweden and Norway; and that during his absence the Consular affairs will be carried on by Herr Chr. Deetjen, merchant at Rangoon.

Herr H. Schiff, the Danish Consul at Nagasaki, has resigned his appointment, and his resignation has been accepted by Ministerial Decree, dated Copenhagen, June 29.

The steamer Sylvia, belonging to the German Steam Company of this city, which in May despatched their steamer Atlanta as the pioneer of their line to China, was advertised to sail for the same destination; but an accident having occurred to the machinery of the Rio, belonging to the Hamburg and South-American Steam Company, the Sylvia has been chartered by the latter, and is gone on her first voyage to the Brazils instead of to China, taking out the cargo that was on board the Rio. In the meantime their third steamer has been launched (she was built here), and is advertised to leave this port on the 15th inst. for Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai, via Suez Canal. She is called the Olympia, described as 1,700 tons burthen, and will be commanded by Captain Romkes.

A very beautiful work of art has been on show here for a few days last week, being a shield of massive silver, ornamented with figures in high relief, a present subscribed for by citizens of Hamburg to General Werder, as a token of gratitude for his brilliant achievement during the late war of taking Belfort, and obliging a French army of eighty thousand men to lay down their arms and take refuge on the neutral territory of Switzerland. The shield is about the size of the celebrated Achilles shield, designed by Flaxman, and presented to the Duke of Wellington after the battle of Waterloo.

COMMERCIAL.

The Tea market is quiet, business being limited to the execution of small local orders at former prices. Several cargoes of new Rice have arrived from Rangoon and Akyab, some of which were sold for delivery and a good part since, as it is offered at a moderate price. Among the former were 28,000 bags for arrival, as also 11,000 bags Necranzie, per J. W. Seterwall (since arrived), and 11,500 do. Bassein, per Dora (not yet arrived). In cleaned grain but little has been done. Cassia Lignea is rather lower, and being offered at 9¾ to 10 sch. bco., the article attracted notice, and the market closes rather firmer. There is a slight improvement in Pepper, 7 to 7⅛ having been paid for Singapore, 6¼ to 6½ for Penang, and 13½ to 14 for white. Among the miscellaneous articles 80 serons of China Flava have been sold, as well as 20 chests of Vermilion, per Johann Anton, from Macao; also 150 chests of China Galls, per Aline. In Spelter no transactions; nominal price 15 marks bco.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Melissa, Deutschland, Metis, Walter Siegfried, and Undine, from Rangoon; J. W. Seterwall, from Akyab; Aline, from Shanghai.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 10.

At last we have a new Cabinet. After much hesitation and wavering the Liberals have succeeded in forming a Ministry, and the following list was published on Saturday last by the Staats Courant:—

Mr. G. de Vries Azn, Justice.
Mr. I. D. Fransen van de Putte, Colonies.
Mr. J. H. Geertsema, Home Department.
Mr. A. van Delden, Financial Department.
Mr. M. D. Count van Limburg Stirum, War Department.
Mr. J. L. H. A. Baron Gericke van Herwynen, Foreign Affairs.
Mr. L. G. Brocx, Naval Department.

I have no need to tell your readers that the new Ministers will have a very serious task before them. Of course it will be very easy to organise a programme of all kind of measures of more or less importance, but I fear that if such a document is issued there will be more promised than can possibly be performed, and the practice, I think, may for once and on the present occasion be departed from with advantage. The whole nation is well acquainted with the questions which must be dealt with;—the reform of our Colonial Government must no longer remain an idle word; our system of taxation must be altered; the flagrant shortcomings of our military system must be remedied; and last but not least, the franchise (the right of voting) must be reorganised on principles of equity and justice. In addition to these indispensable measures there is still a good many old accounts to be closed up. With all this business in view it is satisfactory to know that the Ministers really mean work. The composition of the Cabinet has been so organised as to satisfy as much as possible both factions of the Liberal party, the "old" and the "advanced" Liberals are both represented; but the fact still remains that if all the members of the Liberal party do not to a certain extent coalesce, there will be such a want of combination as will greatly hinder the furtherance of Liberal measures. There must be a common line of action laid down, by which the majority can be united, and unless this is effectually carried out there it is much to be feared that the party will once more break to pieces, a contretemps, which in the present position of affairs it is especially desirable to avoid. Since the death of Mr. Thorbecke the Liberal party have resembled sheep without a shepherd, and it is very doubtful if these sheep have in themselves the instinct to rejoin their flock, in other words, there still remains a tendency on the part of Liberals and Radicals to engage in an internecine conflict, to fight their own battles, instead of uniting for the national benefit. And if this party struggle is recommenced there is no other course left for the new Cabinet than to leave the necessary reforms to sleep for a time, otherwise we shall be very soon in the toils of a new crisis, which undesirable consummation cannot be avoided unless our Liberals recognise the principle that government by party is now the only possible system, of which the very essence is that the members as a body should subordinate their own views to those of the majority.

But even supposing that the Liberal party is so far united that it will be possible to carry one or more of the measures which I named, there remains yet another question which may easily become the stumbling-block of the Ministry. That question is, Who will be the Premier? It is quite true that Mr. de Vries was charged by the King with the formation of the new Cabinet, and that the Liberal leading papers have declared that he is the right man to fill the place of the late Mr. Thorbecke as Minister of the Home Department. But at the same time it is also a fact that he has not accepted the Portfolio of Home Affairs, but only that of Justice—a department which has been brought into much discredit, because several men, equally eminent and talented with Mr. de Vries, have held that office, without introducing any reform in our Penal code, which is still that of the first Napoleon. On the other hand, Mr. Fransen van de Putte has entered the Cabinet, holding the very important position of Minister of the Colonies, and, looking back to his previous political career, I should wonder very much if there is not eventually a struggle for the mastership between these two statesmen. If I am rightly informed it was just this question of precedence which caused so much delay, before the Cabinet was constructed. Another important man among the new Ministers is the Chief of the War Department, Count van Limburg Stirum, with reference to whom I quite agree with those Liberal papers who say that a better Minister could not be found for the department he fills. Thoroughly liberal, loyal, and what is of still greater moment, quite independent of influences from high quarters, we believe that we may reckon upon his introducing a military system fully equal to the national requirement. I think it unnecessary to say anything about the other members of the Cabinet. Messrs. Brocx, Gericke, and Geertsema are well known and as well liked. Mr. van Delden, the Minister of the Financial Department, has yet to prove his ability. It is probable that the Second Chamber will meet a short time, notwithstanding the tropical heat which prevails. There is one Bill in particular with which the members must deal as soon as possible, viz., that by which a life pension is granted to the two daughters of Mr. Thorbecke of 4,000 guilders a-year. Of course it is not doubtful that it will not be carried. Money is being largely contributed to establish some sort of memorial in recognition of the eminent talents of the late statesman, but it is not quite decided whether to erect a statue, or to purchase the house in which he lived, and convert it into a public library, or to create a fund to provide talented but poor young men with funds to accomplish their studies. I think, however, that the statue alternative will be selected.

The King has appointed Mr. J. H. Ferguson, the late provisional Governor of our possessions on the West Coast of Africa, Consul-General and Chargé d'Affairs for the Netherlands in China. This appointment is for four years, and Mr. Ferguson will leave Holland some time this month.

In consequence of Messrs. Van de Putte and Van Delden being appointed Ministers, two seats in the Lower House have become vacant. The candidates for the vacancies are Mr. Blusse for Rotterdam, upon whom H.M. has conferred the order of the Netherlands Lion, and for Deventer, Mr. Van Bosse, who was lately appointed Minister of State. Both these gentlemen were, as you will remember, members of the former Cabinet. The King has also conferred the knighthood of the Netherlands Lion on Messrs. G. G. Van Harencarspel, Secretary of the Java Government, and on G. A. Pet, Government Engineer in Java.

At the general meeting of shareholders of the Steam Shipping Company, Nederland, held yesterday at Amsterdam, the following gentlemen were elected commissaries:—Messrs. E. Mohr, E. Fuld, C. J. A. den Tex, A. C. Wertheim, A. R. J. Cramerus, C. F. Quien, C. A. Crommelin, Jul. G. Bunge, P. C. Loopuys, M. M. de Monchy, G. A. Tindal, P. H. Holzman.

The formerly celebrated actor, Mr. A. Peters, died yesterday in the lunatic asylum at Delft.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The late advance in Coffee continues to be firmly maintained, owing to a steady demand, which imparts a further upward tendency to the market. Most other leading articles exhibit a weak appearance, and the business done has upon the whole been limited. Some improvement, however, has taken place in Tin.

COFFEE.—A very favourable tone continues to prevail for this article, but the reservedness of holders checks business, in consequence of which our market has exhibited but little activity. Good ordinary Company's Java is generally held for 47c., and it is difficult to meet sellers under this price.

RAW SUGAR looks very quiet, and no business has been doing in anticipation of the ensuing public sale on account of the Trading Company.

RICE without any transactions of note to report. The demand remains dull, and prices are but nominally supported. A shipment of 1,105 bags Java table (Indramayoo), ex Kosmopoliet, and 500 bags Java, ex Macassar, have been disposed of.

TOBACCO. (Java).—The following parcels were sold by secret tender:—1,030 bales Java head-mk. Kawi; 298 ditto, B. D.; 154 ditto, D.; 413 ditto, D./Kawi; 310 ditto, Tripa/Kawi; 1,026 ditto, Djambean; 100 ditto, Kotta/A. B.; 520 ditto, Kras; 312 ditto, F. A./Kedirie; 285 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, B.; 288 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, C.; 73 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, T.C.; 15 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, J.S.; 23 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, B.; 32 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, R.; 64 ditto, F. A./Kedirie, R.; 361 ditto, Tanna Wangie Malang; 630 ditto, P. A./Malang; 960 ditto, W.O.S.; 398 ditto, Blitar/K.; 226 ditto, J.

TEA.—The last public sales went off satisfactorily, but a portion of the quantity put up was bought in, owing to the elevated pretentions of holders.

SPICES.—Cloves continue to be inquired after at advancing prices. Some small parcels Nutmegs, ex Vrachtzoeker, have found buyers.

TIN has assumed a very firm tone, and sales of Banca have been making for usual prompt at f.95 to f.95½, and f.96., and for delivery ex the next autumn sale at f.93 to f.93½, and f.94; of Billiton, spot and afloat, at f.92 and f.92½, whilst Billiton afloat per steamer has sold to-day at f.93 to f.93¼.

COCOA-NUT OIL has been in partial demand, to meet small wants. Prime Ceylon sold at f.25½, and prime Cochin at f.27¼.

TORTOISE-SHELL.—The sale is reported of 12 chests Macassar, ex Vrachtzoeker.

INDIGO.—As soon as the 300 chests Java ex County of Ayr, have been sampled, more activity may be looked forward to in this article, but of late there has been but little doing.

RUSSIA.

A commission has for some time been sitting at St. Petersburg, for the purpose of revising the statutes of the "Russian Mercantile and Steam Packet Company," which has hitherto received a considerable subsidy from the Government, besides having the monopoly of the goods and passenger traffic on the Black Sea. The commission has presented its report, and its recommendations have an important bearing on commercial interests in Russia and her communications with the East. It considers that the establishment of a regular line of mail-steamers to distant Asiatic countries would be too costly, besides being unnecessary for the present requirements of the country. "The position of Russia in this matter is different from that of several Western States, such as England, France, Italy, &c.; and the commission is of opinion that the only point to be considered is the establishment of a permanent communication by means of steamers with Eastern Asia, chiefly for commercial objects." It therefore proposes that the Government should repay "to all Russian steamers which proceed from a Russian port to China or India, and return thence with at least a half-freight of Chinese or Indian products, such as tea, cotton, &c., the tolls they have to pay in passing through the Suez Canal." The object of the condition with regard to freight is stated to be that the Government wishes to prevent Russian ships from having any claim to repayment when they deliver their goods in foreign ports, as in such cases Russia derives no commercial benefit from the journey. The above proposal will, of course, virtually destroy the monopoly of the Company; and, as regards the postal service performed by its steamers in the Black Sea and the Mediterranean, the subsidy of 1,000,000 roubles (£130,000) hitherto received by the Company will be reduced by one-half from and after the year 1877, the date on which its present convention will expire. The commission also recommends that a postal communication should be maintained with Constantinople at least twice a week.

LITERATURE.

A most interesting and powerfully-written record of the rise, progress, and final fall of the Communist reign in Paris, from the pen of the Abbe Lamazou, one of the few of his order who survived to relate their experiences of the insurrection—has been translated by Mr. C. F. Audley, and published by Messrs. Burns, Oates, and Co. The writer was arrested with Monsigneur Darboy and the other clerical hostages, but was fortunate enough to escape being involved in the massacre, in which nineteen out of the forty confined in the prison of La Roquette perished. The narrative gives a clear and lucid account of the chief public acts of the Communists, and relates facts with reference to the doings of Ferré, Rigault, and others who were their leaders, which show that the extreme punishment with which their crimes were ultimately visited was by no means undeserved. The work has already passed through seven editions.

The same publishers send us a brochure containing two essays, by Lord Robert Montagu, of which the first is written to advocate the advantages of referring International disputes to arbitration by the pen rather than the sword. The second and shorter essay is in the form of a letter to the newspapers, and is professedly "A defence of the Commune," but in reality consists of a series of arguments in support of the International Society, to which we learn with some surprise the right hon. author himself belongs.

LONDON: MONDAY, JULY 15, 1872.

THE INSTITUTION KNOWN AS "LLOYD'S."

MR. DANSON, the writer of several letters, which attracted much attention in the shipping and insurance world, has chosen an opportune moment for their republication in a collected and revised form. The whole train of his arguments can now be examined at a glance, and his subject is one of such paramount importance that the compilation of such valuable information—much of which will be new to many of his readers—is nothing less than a public service. Making allowance for a little extra vehemence of style here and there, and an occasional tendency to give argument the support of sarcasm—which invariably weakens, instead of strengthening, well-founded arguments, the author of the pamphlet is entitled to unreserved praise. His object is plainly set forth, and he never suffers himself to lose sight of it. It is simply the reconstruction of "Lloyd's," so as to keep pace with the altered requirements of a time when the great bulk of underwriting business throughout the country has been absorbed by Marine Insurance Companies, and not more than one-third of the business of the country is transacted by private underwriters. Mr. Danson would have "Lloyd's" "a great national institution, rightfully holding and wisely using, all and more than all the powers it has hitherto, in effect, usurped." If this be effected, "Lloyd's" may continue to be, what it is, the greatest joint-stock office for private underwriting in the world. We are informed that a conference has already taken place between some of the more active members of "Lloyd's" and one or two of the Companies, with a view to the modification of the attitude, of the society towards underwriters outside. The effort thus made was merely tentative, and has, so far, proved abortive; but it indicates a readiness to deal with the subject, which needs but to be supplemented by a broader and more liberal view of the facts to lead to better results. The principal proposition advanced by the present author is, that the time has come when companies must be admitted as "members" in the sense of the Act of Incorporation at "Lloyd's," which was remodelled last year. The privilege of membership is not urged on any evasive system of economy; it is proposed to be paid for at full current rates, and all that the companies require in return is that they should have a pro rata influence in the councils of the ancient society. "An underwriting member of "'Lloyd's' now pays £100 entrance fee and twelve guineas "as annual subscription. Let this be deemed equivalent to "£20 a-year, and let a company paying £400 a-year have "twenty votes at general meetings and in the election of "committee men." This is a candid and plain proposal, which we can see no valid reason for the committee refusing to entertain. But our author goes further, and suggests that it should be provided that not less than one-half of the members of the committee should be private underwriters, and that they should have a separate sub-committee of their own to supervise the domestic arrangements of the society, and watch the interests of the private underwriters. If some such arrangement as this be not come to shortly, Mr. DANSON predicts that "Lloyd's" "will either shrink to the dimen-"sions and the uses of a mere trade club, or will complete "its existence as a miserable sham; a notable example of the "fate that attends a too obstinate retention of forms not "fitted for the age in which they are found."

THE BLUFF GARDENS AT YOKOHAMA.

WE have never had the satisfaction of sympathising more cordially with the views of our contemporary, the Japan Mail, than we have now in endorsing the sentiments expressed in it, on the occasion of the opening of the Bluff Gardens at Yokohama. This event, which took place on the last Sunday in April, was signalised by a flower show, which, for freshness, novelty, information, and thoroughly rational and intellectual enjoyment, may well excite the envy of the blasés visitors of our own Kensington and Regent's-park Gardens, with whom it is to be feared satiety and languor have conduced to make the tint of a ribbon, or the parterre on what Mr. BOUCICAULT calls "that part of the headdress which still retains the name of bonnet," of more interest than the newest development of horticultural science. The influence of flowers is boundless. There may be, indeed there must be, some small minority of hard-headed persons, who misinterpret being practical into being heartless, if we are not to disbelieve WORDSWORTH'S creation :—

> The primrose on the river's brim
> A yellow primrose was to him—
> And it was nothing more.

We, who have often stooped to pick off a daisy—not without a sense of some wrong done (as CHARLES LAMB has put it in another way), and who do not the less admire a cornfield because it is flecked with poppies and blue-bells—perhaps the finest moral lesson in the world, inasmuch as it shows how the garish and useless strut and push themselves among the "bread-winners"—believe that there is no line in British poetry in which more devotion, or more sense, is condensed than by POPE when he speaks of > Looking through Nature up to Nature's GOD.

Nothing, in fact, appeals to the mind with a more simple and touching, though forcible, plea for religion and faith than a flower. Its sprightly opening with the early morn, and its meek resignation to the night; its grateful odour to the sense, and its welcome harbour for the bee, mark the flower as essentially the missionary of nature—a missionary, too, whose doctrine goes straight to the heart. Among women's names many of the most truthful—as Rose, Lily, and others—have been culled from the parterre, partly as describing their need of culture, partly the joy they diffuse around them. There are, we learn from the Japan Mail, some few ascetics in Yokohama who would close the new Botanical Gardens on the Sabbath-day. We will not be so profane as to hint that, with equal consistency, they should compel all their female relations to wear mourning on that day; but we will express our sense of true devoutness so far as to remind this minority—which we are glad to learn is very small—that the most charming wild-flowers bloom on Sundays as well as all the rest of the week beneath hedgerows full in bud. On one point we are at issue with the Japan Mail. The editor calls this Sabbatarian sentiment peculiarly "Scotch." We cannot agree with him. The feeling is essentially monastic and misanthropic; but, though it has occasionally, no doubt, obtained something of a hold on the Scottish people—through their having formerly suffered so much from persecution as to make them jealous of their habits still—it is certainly not to the most enlightened Scotchmen of the present day, the pioneers of civilisation in the Far East—and the men who honour with such deserved fervour the names of BURNS and SCOTT, that we should look for bigotry or prejudice. If Providence had intended that the beauties of nature should be under an eclipse on Sunday, the sun would not rise, the birds sing, the corn ripen, or man rest, on that day. The time has gone by, when men are to be told that susceptibility to the influences of nature, in her most attractive form is inconsistent with devotion or religious duties. Do away with the "refreshment" stand by all means, we say with our contemporary; but do not close the gardens, on any excuse, on Sundays or any other days in the year. The exercise the ramble through them will afford, is far more healthy than that gained by walking round a billiard-table; the reflections suggested by the scene far more useful than those obtained by devoting the mind to the study, amidst breathless silence, of thirteen cards and the trump. The influence of the female visitors is also very beneficial. It is too much the habit of young men in these communities, to consider it a bore to cultivate an acquaintance with their own countrywomen, and to stick to the bachelor amusements of billiards, bowls, and smoking. On every account we wish the enterprise success, and we feel that the public of Yokohama, and the parents of young men who may be contemplating sending them there, will readily acknowledge a debt of gratitude to those who have initiated the "humanising influence of flowers" and the society of ladies by the formation of the Bluff Gardens at Yokohama.

ANTICIPATED RECEPTION OF THE JAPANESE EMBASSY IN ENGLAND.

FROM the indifference shown by our officials towards the members of the Burmese Embassy and Panthayan Mission now in this country, parties interested in our relations with Japan are apprehensive that a similar apathetic reception may be given to the Japanese Embassy, which is expected to arrive shortly from America. It must be taken into consideration that this is, without exception, the most important embassy that ever came from the Far East, and it behoves our Government, representing as they do the foremost nation among the Treaty Powers with Japan, to stretch out the hand of friendship and hospitality in the most cordial manner to its distinguished members. IWAKURA the Envoy and his colleagues are not to be ranked with the inferior class of officials composing the Chinese Missions to Europe, whose members were mistakenly allowed audiences of Her MAJESTY. These statesmen hold high rank in the Government, and have the confidence of their sovereign and legislature. Their mission is of more than ordinary diplomatic importance, for, besides the revision of the Elgin Treaty, they are especially commissioned to inquire into the systems of Government and political institutions of the different States to which they are accredited. If we may judge by the reforms effected in the new constitution of Japan, inaugurated since the revolution of 1868, it is evident that the British Constitution has been the model from which they have copied. And shall it be said that old England is wanting in hospitality to the representatives of her maritime counterpart in the Oriental Isles of the Rising Sun! We hope not, and that not only our Government but the commercial bodies interested in our relations with Japan, will give them a cordial welcome. Our cousins across the Atlantic have evinced the most praiseworthy desire to receive them with the highest honour, and it is a proof of success in entertaining and instructing their distinguished visitors, that the Envoy and his colleagues have made a sojourn already of nearly four months in the United States. It is our place in the comity of nations to make an equally favourable, if not a greater impression on the minds of these pioneers of Western civilisation in the East. It should not be forgotten that our Sailor PRINCE was received in the most friendly manner at Yedo, in agreeable contrast to his reception in Peking. Our Plenipotentiary, Sir HARRY PARKES, was the first Envoy to whom the Mikado gave audience. It is fortunate—if it has not been purposely arranged—that he is at present in England to aid Lord GRANVILLE in negotiating the revision of the Treaty. In his hands British interests will not fail to have an able advocate, and if we are not mistaken he will impress upon his lordship the policy of receiving the Japanese Embassy with the highest honours and hospitality.

IT is announced that, in spite of the universal opposition displayed by the merchants and shipowners whose interests are affected by the increased tonnage dues on the Suez Canal, M. DE LESSEPS and the Directors hold to their determination to enforce the revised scale. Meanwhile, a telegram from Constantinople repeats the statement formerly made from the same quarter, that the Turkish Government regards the increased rates as contrary to the terms of the concession granted to the Company, and declines to sanction the alteration. The London agents of the Company have published the reply of the Directors to a memorial which was addressed to them, protesting against the increased dues, in the form of a letter, which appears in another column.

The P. and O. Company's paddle steamer Delta, Captain EDMOND, which we have announced as intended for the Company's local service in China and Japan, left Southampton on Thursday with the Bombay mails. She will proceed through the Canal to Bombay, thence to Hong Kong.

WE understand that Monsieur LARRIEN, the concessionaire for the up-river navigation of Saigon, has completed the purchase of four steamers for the service. The George Reed has already sailed, and will be followed, during this month, by the Saltee, Atalee, and Varco.

Monetary and Commercial.

The directors of the China Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited) have declared a further interim dividend of 3s. per share on account of the profits for the year ending June 30, 1872. The directors of the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company (Limited) have declared an interim dividend of 6s. per share on account of the profits for the year ending December 31, 1872.

The annual general meeting of the Union Bank of London was held on the 10th inst., when the report was adopted and a dividend as previously announced, at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum for the six months, with a bonus of 2½ per cent. was declared. The net profits for the half-year were £129,611 15s. 9d., making, with the amount carried from previous account, £161,560 17s. 3d. After payment of the dividend and bonus, a balance of £41,560 17s. 3d. will be carried forward. It was announced that the directors intend to call a meeting in October, when they will propose the issue of 10,000 new shares, at the price of £30 per share, or £15 premium, in the proportion of one new share for every eight shares held by the shareholders on the register on the 30th September. £15 per share will be added to capital, making a total of £1,350,000, and the rest to the reserve fund, raising it to £450,000.

The report of the directors of the Consolidated Bank for the half-year ending June 30 gives the net profit available for distribution at £43,073 18s. From this the directers propose to pay a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, and to place £32,000 to the reserve fund (which will then amount to £66,000). At the meeting of the Alliance Bank, the directors will recommend a dividend for the past half year at the rate of £6 per per annum; adding £20,000 to the reserve fund.

A dividend of 10 per cent. per annum is recommended by the directors of the United Discount Corporation, a balance of £4,106 11s. 7d. being carried forward. The directors of the Ouvah Coffee Company report that after paying all expenses, and the interim dividend last February, an available balance remains of £8,769 13s. 9d., and a further dividend is recommended of 4 per cent., making 7 per cent. for the year.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce the subject of the proposed increase of dues on vessels passing through the Suez Canal came under discussion. The chairman explained that he had received a communication from the Chamber of Commerce of Newcastle and Gateshead asking the Chamber to co-operate with them in objecting to the increase, and a motion in accordance with the request was proposed and carried. The Glasgow Chamber has also resolved to take action in the matter and express its opinion in general terms that, in levying the increased rates, the Canal Company are exceeding the terms of their concession.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for the month of June show an increase in the declared value of exportations of £1,365,382, or more than 7 per cent. over the corresponding month of 1871, and more than 19 per cent. over 1870; but the course of business has been marked by variations, the cotton shipments presenting decrease of 3 per cent. in value and 5 per cent. in quantity as regards yarns, and of about ¼ per cent. in value and 8 per cent in quantity as regards the more important item of manufactured goods. Woollen yarns likewise figure for a diminution in value of 30 per cent., and the shipments of haberdashery exhibit a falling off of 6 per cent., and those of earthenware of 4 per cent. The most important items on the favourable side are coals, which show an increase of 53 per cent., iron and steel 24 per cent., machinery 21 per cent., hardware 18 per cent., and silk manufactures 8 per cent. As regards the importations of the month, the arrivals of wheat have been 2,559,448 cwts., valued at £1,594,284, against 2,453,851 cwts., valued at £1,468,647, in the corresponding month of last year; and that of other grain the value taken has been £1,863,044, against £1,684,052. Of cotton we have imported 1,191,270 cwts., valued at £5,233,965, against 1,016 717 cwts., valued at £3,426,732, in the corresponding month of last year. The total value of exportations during the first six months of the year has been £119,603,804, showing an increase of 17 per cent. on the corresponding half of 1871, and 23 per cent. on that of 1870.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The market has assumed a more settled position, as the prices ruling for all Black Tea are undeniably reasonable, and importers having about cleared out their holdings, it is not likely that there will be any further decline in old season's leaf. Though limited supplies of new Tayshan leaf have arrived, it is not saleable except at low rates. New Canton Scented Caper has been offered, and sales are reported of medium quality at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. Canton Scented Orange Pekoe to the extent of 2,000 boxes were sold, 5th instant., at auction without reserve, at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d. per lb., being a further decline of 1½d. to 2d. per lb. The new Black leafs are expected this week by the Deccan and Agamemnon. The Parnassus is reported a total wreck in the Red Sea, cargo estimated at 1,500,000 lbs. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 3,212,671 lbs. against 3,222,550 lbs. last year.

Black.—Siftings and broken leaf (sweet liquoring kind) can be had for 4d. to 6d. per lb., being exceeding low prices; Sayune Kaisow kinds at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. offer real good value, some desirable parcels ex Rollo selling at quotations; fine Kaisow has been sold at 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. Tayshan Leaf: Supplies continue far beyond current wants, and prices rule very low; some low spurious, in boxes, without reserve fetched 5¾d. to 6d. per lb. Black Leaf: Ordinary to good common is without change; fair to medium quality is scarce; good medium to fine at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. continues the cheapest Tea in the market; fine and finest has sold at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Souchong has rarely sold at such low prices, fine, at public sale, being obtainable at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Oolong: Some inquiry has set in for the New York market. Scented Tea: Scented Orange Pekoe sold at a heavy decline at public sale. Caper: Old leaf has sold at low rates, clean quality at 8d. to 10d. per lb., the new is selling at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Green: There is no change in country grown; Canton kinds have been selling freely, though at low prices, supplies for some time past being on a liberal scale. Japan, uncoloured leaf, has been in good demand, and prices rule firm at ½d. to 1d. per lb. in advance on rates a month since.

SILK.

There is less business doing in Asiatic Silk, but prices are firmly maintained. In China there seems a general disposition amongst importers to sell to arrive, and anything offered on reasonable terms is taken up, but in many cases the extreme cost of the Silk precludes business. In old Silk on the spot there is next to nothing doing, as buyers are waiting for the first unloadings of new Silk. Japan Silk is quiet again, but the deliveries are very large, and the stock of useful Mibash is much reduced. For Canton Silk there is still a good inquiry. Deliveries 1st to 10th inclusive:—China, 996 bales; Canton, 393 bales; Japan, 926 bales; total, 2,315 bales.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The slight improvement noticeable last week has not been maintained, buyers having shown rather less disposition to place orders. At the close the feeling is less favourable for sellers of goods, with increased desire on their part to obtain orders, but without undue pressure by more than fractional concessions from quoted prices. Yarns are in some counts sought after at full rates, and many spinners are under contract for the next six to eight weeks, with inquiry for further quantities to some extent for earlier delivery, but this is impracticable.

SUCCESS IN INDIA,

EFFINGHAM WILSON, Royal Exchange.

The writer is evidently well acquainted with the East, and the information afforded by him is both useful and interesting.—Daily News.

The honest yet hopeful way in which practical information is communicated in these pages concerning actual life in India will awaken the dormant enterprise of young men of education and ability, whose prospects may be somewhat indifferent at home.—Globe.

A valuable little pamphlet.—Morning Post.

The author of this very sensible work appears quite at home in his subject.—Financier.

We leave the little book with much the same impression as would be derived from the conversation of an intelligent and observant man of the world.—Bullionist.

A real and practical knowledge has been brought to bear upon the subject.—Money Market Review.

The author of the above-named pamphlet formerly editor of the Indian Examiner, and since on the staff of daily and weekly journals in London, seeks a re-engagement as editor in China, Japan, or Ceylon. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT
AND PILLS.—PAINLESS CURES.—Sores, wounds, and other diseases affecting the skin, are amenable by this cooling and healing unguent. It has called forth the loudest praises from persons who had suffered for years from bad legs, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Wherever the Ointment has been once used it has established its own worth, and has been eagerly sought after again. In neuralgia, rheumatism, and gout, the same application properly used gives wonderful relief. In the nursery it displays its curative power over the ills of infancy, with even greater prominence and more happy effect than over the chron complaints of maturity.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The dates extend to the 29th May. The outward French mail of 12th April arrived on the 27th May. The following summary is from the Japan Herald:—

The survey of the part of Yedo which was burnt in the large fire some short time since has now been completed, and the following breadths for the streets have been decided upon by the Government:—The main streets are to be fifteen ken wide (a ken is about six feet), and the cross streets eight ken. Good drains are likewise to be laid down the sides of all the streets, which are all to be made straight, and which will be a great improvement on the old crooked roads.

The Mikado's troops in Yedo seem to be in a deplorably demoralised condition; drinking and quarrelling appear to be the order of the day; the officers seem to have little or no power to control the men under them. Foreigners are insulted by impudent gestures and blackguard epithets. What can the Government be about to permit such a discreditable state of things to continue? The conduct of the police contrasts favourably with that of the swaggering, drunken insolence of the soldiery.

An old conventional restriction has been removed from the Japanese theatres. Until recently, in the representation of historical events, in which important families have been concerned, the use of fictitious names has been required, in order that the sensibilities of the descendants might not be wounded. Thus, for example, in the dramatic version of the well-known story of the Forty-seven Ronins, the time of action was transferred to the Shogunate of Ashikaga, and the hero's name was changed from Oishi to Oboshi. Henceforward, however, the actors will be permitted to use the actual names of participators in the events, and thus impart a more vivid reality, if possible, to their impersonations. By a Government decree all exhibitions of an indecent tendency in the theatres of Yedo are henceforth prohibited.

A most disgraceful fight between some American sailors and marines took place in the Yoshiwarra, and it was not until one man's head had been severely cut by a glass bottle or some such object that the Japanese police deigned to take any notice of the affray; when they did, they went about their work in such a stupid manner that most of the culprits—certainly the worst ones—escaped. We believe that such scenes are of frequent occurrence, and unless Japanese property is damaged or destroyed, the Japanese police generally let the combatants fight it out. It is a matter which ought to be seen to, as such scenes are a degradation to foreigners.

The operations of the Yokohama Gas Company have been much retarded by the late arrival of the plant. The pipes, &c., by the Oceana, Eastern Chief, and White Adder, are now about due. The engineer to the company anticipates being able to light the town with gas in about four months' time, as the retort house and other buildings have been for some time completed. After Yokohama proper has been lit, pipes will be laid on the Bluff and in the suburbs,—all to be completed within a twelvemonth.

The Japan Mail announces the arrival at Yokohama, per the P.M.S.S. America, of Mr. R. Grant Watson, who takes the place of Mr. Adams as Chargé d'Affaires during Sir Harry Parkes' absence.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to June 2; the P. and O. mail from London April 19 arrived out May 31, two days early.

The report for presentation to the fifth annual general meeting of shareholders of the Union Steam Navigation Company on the 3rd June shows that the earnings amount to Tls. 77,142.16. The actual net result of the six months' business is Tls. 66,031.49 and the net balance of working account at the end of the year is Tls. 89,330.36 unappropriated profits. The directors recommend a dividend on the capital at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, and payment of the usual bonus of 5 per cent, to contributing shareholders, together absorbing say Tls. 23,000; the writing off of Tls. 16,450 from the valuation of the steamer Glengyle, reducing same to Tls. 130,000; and the carrying forward of a balance of Tls. 49,880.36. Since March 31 the Rona has been lost; the insurance has been paid, but the result of the suit against the Ava is not yet known. The Tunsin has been docked and repaired, being now in a most excellent condition, and the Glengyle has een, and is, performing her work very satisfactorily. The fina payment on her was duly made at the end of February last. The development of the company's business and the reduction of its expenses have occupied the constant attention of the board, and their hope is that the coming year will show an even better result than the past one.

A somewhat sudden rise in exchange seems to have had the effect of checking business in Silk, and of causing the dealers to entertain more moderate ideas of the value of the article than they were previously disposed to indulge in. It has long been foretold that a scarcity of money would be felt when the produce season commenced, but probably few persons expected quite so high an exchange as 6s. 3d. in May. At the same time, if with an increasing trade the amount of bullion in circulation proves inadequate, it will require a rate of something like 6s. 3d. to attract supplies from abroad—and the resources of the country seem for the moment to be sufficiently drawn upo1. A high exchange, if steady, would be preferable to those violent fluctuations which from time to time occur, and which are so rejudicial to the interests of commerce.

The materials for the new Lyceum Theatre are, we observe, being rapidly collected on the selected site in the vacant ground to the north of Balfour-buildings; the ground plan of the building is being piled, and the works generally have an aspect of promising activity. The debentures for the building of the theatre have all been taken up, so that nothing now hinders the prosecution of the undertaking.

The English translation of the letter of the Council of Silk Merchants of Lyons to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce has been reproduced in a handy form by Messrs. Da Costa and Co., accompanied by a Chinese translation. This will make it exceedingly useful for circulation among the Chinese silkmen.

HONG KONG.

The dates extend to the 8th June. The outward French mail of 26th April are hourly expected.

The following summary of news is from the China Mail:—

Owing, we presume, to the absence of the major general commanding, the review last evening was on a scale which caused considerable disappointment to the vast crowd of foreigners and Chinese who had assembled to witness the manœuvres. Three feux de joie and a march past the saluting point, where H.E. the Governor, Lady Kennedy, Miss Kennedy, and others had stationed themselves, comprised the whole of the proceedings, which, considering that three days' notice had been given, were voted to be rather bald. The artillery and engineers did not put in an appearance, and the twenty-one gun salute was fired by the Murray battery in three instalments of seven each.

The vacancy in the Consular representations of the United States at the new port of Kiung-chow in Hainan, caused by the death of Mr. C. D. Williams, has, says the Courier, been filled by the appointment to the post of Mr. B. B. Lewis, long connected with the United States Consulate General at Shanghai, a gentleman whose energy, intelligence, and acquaintance with the native character qualify him in a high degree for the duties of his pioneer position.

A Chinese Customs' cruiser fired a few days since upon a snake-boat at Macao, containing a party of gentlemen out on a picnic, and wounded one of the crew in the leg. They returned to Macao and proceeded to inform his Excellency Viscount de S. Januario of what had happened. Next morning the Governor despatched a steamer with the harbour master and two of the party to the scene of the outrage, and on arrival there they were informed by the commander of one of the cruisers that they had express orders from the authorities at Canton to fire upon all the snake-boats they came across. We hope, for the sake of the cruisers, that similar orders will not be given as to hakows and pullaways in Hong Kong.

Viscount Januario is said to be doing wonders at Macao in the way of improvements. Amongst other matters to which he has given his attention is the erection of a proper slaughter-house, and the enactment of stringent regulations as to the quality of the meat exposed for sale.

We hear from Canton that the river was so high, during the latter part of last week, that several parts of Honan were flooded at high water. It is to be hoped that the next infliction by Joss on the paddy fields will not be inundation.

A notification from the Russian Legation draws the attention of Russian subjects to the prohibition forbidding vessels under that flag to carry coolies. Somebody has evidently been rousing them up in the North. Kamtchatka generally leaves us alone down here.

The steamer Venus has changed hands, and it is believed her present owners intend to run her as an emigrant vessel between Macao and Havana.

The Lingayen, 46 tons and 40-horse power, built by Mr. J. Jack, left on the 23rd for Manila. We understand that the enterprising firm who fitted her engines, Messrs. J. Inglis and Co., have two steamers being laid down in their yard, one of 60 and the other of 150 feet in length, both vessels to be built, engined, and fitted under their supervision. The Africa's broken shaft is being repaired in Messrs. Inglis' fitting shop.

We are glad to note by the Gazette that Mr. W. H. Alexander has been appointed a member of the Legislative Council. Mr. Alexander's long experience in the Colony, as Registrar, Acting Chief Magistrate, and Acting Colonial Secretary and Treasurer, conjoined to his thorough knowledge of the local records, will make him a valuable acquisition at the Council table. We understand that the appointment emanates directly from Lord Kimberley, and the compliment to Mr. Alexander is therefore he greater. It is seldom that the Colonial Office manages, of its own motion, to make a selection so generally acceptable as the one under notice. The disposition thereby shown to extend the range of official nominations is, we may also hope, indicative of an intention to shew a similar liberality as regards those of non-officials also. The Council now consists of five official and four non-official members, exclusive of H.E. the Governor. One of the gentlemen formerly holding office will, therefore, it may be presumed, return to his duties as a Legislator.

We hear that the representatives of the German Empire vis-à-vis the Chinese authorities demand and insist upon a larger measure of protection both for missionaries and converts than has been asked hitherto for British labourers in the same field. Our readers will remember that we chronicled, some eight months ago, the destruction of a German missionary chapel and station at Shek-lung, near Canton. A Roman Catholic station under French protection was destroyed at the same time, and for this a considerable compensation was demanded and obtained by the Fronch Consul. A sum was paid in compensation, deemed by the Chinese sufficient to recoup the entire loss, rebuild the chapel, and replace all in statu quo. The amount, however, not being deemed satisfactory, a demand has been made that a sum similar to that paid to the French representative be handed over to that of Germany. This betokens a firm determination on the part of the latter to enforce the fullest observance of the Treaty engagements made by China.

The launch of the screw steamer Conchita, from the building yard of the Dock Company at Kowloong, took place this morning at 9.30, in the presence of a few select spectators. The christening part of the proceedings was performed by Master Robert Duncan, Jun., and punctual to a minute the shores were struck down, and at the command of the Foreman Superintendent, "up daggers, down triggers," the hull of the vessel began slowly, but surely, to move. As she emerged from the launching ways and got safely afloat, the scene was one of great animation, and a round of cheers welcomed one of the most successful launches that have taken place in our port. The vessel has been built for a firm in Manila, and will be employed in bringing produce from up river down to the port of shipment. Light draught, being the greatest consideration, has been happily attained, as her draught, with machinery and boiler on board, is only 25 inches aft and 18 inches forward. Her hull is built on the composite principle with teak planking and decks, the whole being substantially secured to the iron frames with copper bolts. Her principal dimensions are—length, over all, 90 feet; breadth, extreme, 15 feet; and depth of hold, 7 feet.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The Siam Advertiser has the following items:—

There are rumours passing the rounds that three or four princesses and two servants have been accused of stealing gold chains, diamonds, and precious stones. The gold chains, diamonds, and other precious stones that were attached to the King's sword had been taken away, and imitation chains and precious stones had replaced them. These depredations, it is rumoured, were made during the late reign, but have only recently been discovered. Some say those accused of the theft have received ninety lashes each. The servants are to be executed, and the princesses disposed of as the law provides for persons of their rank, if found really guilty of the theft. Others say the ladies of rank who are implicated are being tried, and it is not yet known what their punishment will be. If there is any basis for the rumours, and princesses should be implicated and found guilty, their sentence will doubtless be death. The execution of princes and princesses would be at some prominent temple. They would be bound—fastened in a bag—a block of Chan-wood of triangular shape would be placed on the ground, the fastened body would be turned face down, so as to bring the neck below the chin on the triangularblock; at a given signal the first executioner, after raising his Chan-wood cudgel, would strike the fatal blow on the back of the neck and the three other executioners, similarly armed, would continue their blows upon the body till it entirely ceased to quiver. The bag containing the executed body would then be weighted and thrown into the river. This it is stated is the way in which his Royal Highness Kroma Luang Rak Konnaset was executed in 1849.

While his Highness the Pusamret Rajakan Pendin was absent at Petchaburi, performing the last duties of respect to the remains of his deceased sister, it seems an attempt was made to enter some part of his extensive buildings. The presumptuous person who aspired to perform so daring a deed was seized, and at first it is said received thirty lashes with a rattan. At another time he received sixty, and was again subsequently whipped by four distinct men. This mode of administering punishment gives us peeps at the manner in which this people are governed and kept in subjection.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

On the 24th Dr. Wm. Campbell gave a ball in commemoration of the Queen's birthday. On that occasion there was a large attendance of gentlemen and ladies, who passed away a very pleasant evening in beautifully decorated rooms, in one of which stood out in prominent letters made of leaves and flowers, "God Bless the Queen," and in the other "God Save the Queen. Subsequently Thomas George Knox, H.B.M.'s Consul-General, issued invitations to friends to dinner on the evening of the 1st of June. The evening was a fine one, rather warm, but free from rain. At the appointed hour, 6.30 P.M., the British part of the company had promptly assembled. The Siamese guests and band were a little behind the time; they arrived after the British guests had taken their seats at the table.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

The following translation of the memorial of the manager of the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company will be found interesting:—

That for more than seven years both the Chamber of Commerce and Industry here and private persons have made uninterrupted efforts to bring Java into more direct communication with the neighbouring country of Australia by means of a regular steam service.

That the advantages connected with such communication have been clearly shown in the printed reports and recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

December 7, 1864	...	...	...	No. 140
April 28, 1865	...	...	...	„ 77
November 11, 1865	...	...	...	„ 144
January 8, 1866	...	...	...	„ 44
March 24, 1866	...	...	...	„ 70
July 11, 1867	...	...	...	„ 55
June 3, 1868	...	...	...	„ 43
August 4, 1869	...	...	...	„ 47
December 13, 1869	...	...	...	„ 82

That all these recommendations proceeded from the supposition that a regular steam service with Australia is only possible by means of a pecuniary subsidy from Government.

That the Netherlands Government, convinced of this, has not hesitated to set down a considerable item in the yearly Budget of Netherlands India; and a large majority of the representatives of the people have just as repeatedly made known their sympathy for an undertaking which purposed to bring Netherlands India nearer to Australia by means of steam.

That the Netherlands Government and Parliament had, however, to make their liberality on this subject dependent on the pecuniary assistance which might with justice be looked for from the Australian Colonies.

That also more than once, and lastly in 1871, negotiations were entered into with the Governments of the various Australian Colonies by Mr. Fraser, head agent and representative of the N.I.S.N. Company, during a voyage expressly undertaken thither for the purpose.

That these Governments, however inclined to give him support, could only, with good result, ask the Colonial Parliaments for the money required, when the distance from Europe would be considerably shortened as to postal communication by the proposed line.

That it need not be proved that Australia, already in the possession of a direct line through Egypt, and another line to North America, would not be profited in its mail correspondence by a line passing Java.

That, therefore, pecuniary support from the Australian Colonies cannot be really reckoned upon.

That in the meantime the interests of Netherlands India more and more pressingly require that an end be put to the existing isolation, and regular steam communication be established with the fifth quarter of the world.

That the trade between Netherlands India and Australia will thereby make a stride, which can be measured only by comparison with the great development which the traffic between the various portions of the Indian Archipelago owes to regular steam navigation.

That many may still remember how Java, before 1845, received from Singapore nothing else than now and then a copy of the then appearing Free Press.

That traffic with Singapore has increased since to a hitherto unknown extent through a yearly more extended steam communication; the increasing number of travellers and quantity of merchandise carried between the places visited by the boats of the N. I. S. N. Company furnish the best proof of the proposition that the opening of steam communication is immediately followed by increase of trade.

That your Excellency, impressed with the proposition, will certainly willingly contribute to put an end to the unfortunate isolation in which the Indian Archipelago continues to be toward-Australia.

That the company represented by the petitioner possesses the means of co-operation.

That two of its boats, the Governor General Mijer, and William Mackinnon, are peculiarly adapted for navigation to Australia.

That it is intended to run these boats from Java to Adelaide Melbourne, and Sydney, and back by the said places, or Torres Straits.

That the voyage from Batavia to Adelaide may be performed in twenty-two days, from thence to Melbourne in two days, and from Melbourne to Sydney also in two days; the stay in Australia will not last more than fifteen days for taking in and discharging cargo.

That, however, the expenses in the beginning would be too high, should the boats depart once a month.

That the company would, therefore, give the preference to sending a steamer once in two months and a half. That in the beginning and by way of proof, this would satisfy in a great measure, the hitherto unsatisfied desires of the mercantile community.

These are the reasons for which the memorialist respectfully requests your Excellency to take this plan into consideration, and, in case of a favourable decision thereon, to be willing to grant a pecuniary subsidy of £12,000 a year.—S. VAN HULSTIJN.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 15th June. The outward French mail of 10th May arrived 9th June:—

There is nothing of any interest in our files beyond the opening of the Legislative Council and the Governor's speech, which we gave in our last number.

Satisfactory progress is reported in the operations of the "Chindrass Mining Company." The mines are situated about forty-five miles from Malacca inland, fifteen miles beyond the boundary of English territory, and the mines were worked hundreds of years ago by the natives for alluvial gold, but were subsequently abandoned for about forty years. In June last year Mr. J. Fisher inspected the ancient workings, and found hundreds of holes and excavations that had been made by the natives, showing they must have discovered something to pay them for their labour. After prospecting and taking observations Mr. Fisher commenced to sink a shaft at the foot of one of the numerous hills, and at a depth of 45 feet he came upon a lode or reef of gold-bearing quartz 4½ feet thick, running almost due north and south, with inclination to the west of about 45 degrees. He brought specimens to Singapore and formed the present company. A road has now been cut through the jungle from the boundary direct to themines, the machinery has been placed in position, and it is expected that operations will be commenced by the end of June next. Samples from the lode have been forwarded to London to be assayed, and the result is 4¼ oz. of pure gold to the ton of quartz. There are several other companies on the tapis, amongst which are a tin company in Malacca, and one in the territory of Siam. This last will probably be a very prosperous speculation, the mineral to be worked being "Galanea"—a composition of silver and lead.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—There had been a fair demand for Grey Cottons and at the close prices were slightly firmer with a good inquiry for 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings. Fancy Cottons and Woollens had met with but little attention. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., during the earlier part of the fortnight were weaker, and sales of best makes were made at Tls. 1.72, but at the close were in better inquiry at an advance of one candareen; 8¼ lbs freely sold at Tls. 1.88 to 1.94, closing firmer, and saleable at Tls. 1.89 to 1.95; 9¾ lbs. Tls. 2.55 to 2.75 per piece. White Shirtings: A few, small sales effected at former prices. T-Cloths in moderate request. without quotable change. Drills improving. English, Tls. 3 to 3.15; Dutch, Tls. 2.95 to 3.05 per piece.

Digitized by Google

FOOCHOW.—Sales were reported of Grey Shirtings; 8¼ lbs., 500 pieces at $2.82 per piece; 7 lbs., 500 at $2.50. T-Cloths, 7 lb., 2,000 at $2.10 to 3.25; 6 lb. 500 at $1.95. Lead, 400 pigs at $7.00 to 7.25 per picul to teamen.

HONG KONG.—The fortnight had been characterised by extreme dulness; there had been almost no demand for manufactures, and prices, although not showing much change, were weak, and to a great extent nominal. Yarn had met with some inquiry, and a limited business had resulted at about previous valuations. Clearances continued unsatisfactory, and gave evidence of a tight money market among the natives.

MANILA.—The market had been dull, with a declining tendency.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—During the early part of the fortnight the market for Piece Goods kept very quiet, but latterly there has been a better inquiry, which has been freely met by holders. In prices there has been no change of importance, the home advices continue in favour of holders. 39-inch Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs.: Sales of ordinary at $2.60 to some extent, and of inferior make at $2.57½; 7 lbs: neglected, and a sale at $2.20 marks a decline of 2½ cents; 6 lbs. dull at $2 to 2.02½. 45-inch, 9 lbs.: neglected and nominal at $2.90. 32-inch Grey T.-Cloths: 7 lbs. not much inquired for; common, $1.85; ordinary, $1.90 to 1.92½. Mexicans, 18 by 18, $2.10 to 2.12½; 6 lbs. $1.70 to 1.72½, and considerable sales made; light weights quite neglected. 32-inch Grey Madapollams: More wanted and steady at $18¾ for 2½ lbs., and $20¼ for 3 lbs. 36-inch Grey Supers: Moderate inquiry; No. 1, $2; common, $1.95. 36-inch White Shirtings, better enquiry for fine, and full prices made; medium taken to fair extent; no enquiry for low qualities. 45-inch wanted at $3.60 to 3.65 for 64 reed. Woollens.—Scarlet Long Ells: Out of stock, and worth 8¼ per piece; Assorted Lustings find buyers in small quantities; Brocade Lustres wanted, supplies not arrived; Scarlet Spanish Stripes firmly held for full prices. Grey Yarn: 18/24s dull, holders of 40s refusing to sell under $137½ to 140. Metals.—Iron continues in fair enquiry at about last rates, but the high prices now ruling put a check on consumption, and the business done is but trifling; in Govan Flat Bar no transactions are reported, and price is firm at $3.85 to 4; a sale of Staffordshire Bar, to arrive, at $3.85; Nailrods, $4; Swedish Flat Bar, $4¼; Yellow Metal, $27 to 27½; Copper Sheathing, in very little inquiry, holders asking $33; Zinc Sheathing, quiet at $8¼ to 9.

PENANG.—A moderate business had been done during the fortnight at previously quoted values.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—New Teas had been coming in freely, and a fair business had been transacted in them. High prices had ruled, but the tendency was to easier rates at the close, and a lower market was hoped for. Arrivals of New Tea had been about 3,000 piculs, settlements 2,300, and the stock was 446 piculs. At Hiogo the first arrivals of New Tea had been bought at figures $5.00 to 7.00 per picul over those of last year.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s report is as follows:—We last addressed you per French mail of 21st May, since which date a very fair business has been transacted, settlements for the intervening week amounting to 34,850 chests 42,624 half-chests, 24,613 boxes. Attention has been a good deal engaged with the inspection of the early settlements and the despatch of steamers. Much trouble and annoyance has been occasioned by the arrival of Teas in bulk, greatly inferior to chest muster. This arises from the hurrying down of one or two chests of young leaf to which extra care in manipulation has been given, the Tea in bulk being made up later. This objectionable practice is more in vogue this year than usual, and partly accounts for the very early commencement of the season. The Agamemnon, with 2,550,408 lbs. on board, left port on the 25th, having been one week only in port. She will probably leave the mouth of the river about the same time as the P. and O. steamer Deccan. The Erl King is expected to leave during the day, and will be followed by the Hong Kong and Gordon Castle. With regard to prices, settlements have been made as follows:—Fine to finest Ningchows Tls. 33 to 36, one or two parcels realising up to Tls. 40, medium to fine Tls. 26 to 33 per picul. Oonfars, Tls. 25 to 30; Cheong-sow-kais, Tls. 24½ to 30½; Toong-shans, 25 to 30½, one fine chop selling at Tls. 34½. Yung-tow-toongs, Tls. 23¾ to 28¾, other medium Oopacks and Oonams Tls. 20½ to 26 per picul. A few parcels of Shuntam Tea have been shown, and one or two sales are reported at Tls. 17 to 19½ per picul. These Teas are decidedly better than last year both in leaf and cup, but we think prices too high for safety. The above represent pretty nearly the present quotations for Teas, and considering the inferiority of the parcels now on offer we estimate an advance in value of from one to two taels over the lowest point.

KIUKIANG.—Settlements on the spot from the 15th to the 29th May had been 3,448 half-chests Ningchow at Tls. 33 to 38. Stock 2,481 chests, 26,880 half-chests, and 14,109 boxes, chiefly Ningchows and Hohows.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Musters representing about 7,000 chests had been placed on the market, but as yet teamen had not been willing to sell their Teas at such offers as had been made. The majority of the stock on offer consisted of Hohow Teas, and these were not so good as last season's crop, being deficient in both strength and flavour. Settlements for the fortnight, nil; re-shipments on owners' account, 10,100 chests; stock, about 6,400 packages. Green: There had not been any business to notice. The stock consisted only of 558 half-chests local-packed Tea, as before reported.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co.'s letter, dated 1st June, reports that since the 25th May a moderate business has been done at opeding prices, which were about 15 per cent. higher than last year. There had been some business in Oolongs, Flowery Pekoes, and Scented Teas. The steamer Malacca having sailed, and the steamer Canton being engaged full, buying was not general, and the market closed weak. Arrivals of Congou to date amounted to 180,638 chests, against 39,536 chests in same period last season. In Congous attention had been paid exclusively to the good medium to finest kinds. The crack chops had been sought after by the buyers for the Russian market, and settled at high prices—one "Kit Faung" having fetched Tls. 42½ short, or Tls. 7½ above last year. The general scale established for finest Sieu Mieu is Tls. 3 to 4 over last year. Choice Chiuy Wo's have been settled up to Tls. 38 short, and Panyongs up to Tls. 36. Yung Hows have been taken as high as Tls. 26, and Saryunes up to Tls. 26½ short. It was stated in the letter of 25th May that the quality of the crop was inferior to last year's; this must be modified, the later arrivals show it to be fully equal to last year's. Souchongs: Only two chops of common low country kinds have been shown. Oolongs have been in fair demand for England, and the quality of late arrivals is better. Flowery Pekoe: Considerable settlements of this description have been made by Continental buyers at high prices. The quality of the chop is fine. Scented Teas are, as usual with early arrivals, rather deficient in scent. Prices are about the same as last year. Quotations are:—Congou: Finest and crack chops, 2s. 3⅜d. to 2s. 7¾d.; fine to finest, 1s. 11½d. to 2s. 2¾d.; good medium to fine, 1s. 8⅜d. to 1s. 11d.; flavoury to medium, 1s. 2⅜d. to 1s. 7¾d.; dust, 7⅜d. Oolongs, 1s. 9¾d to 1s. 11d. Flowery Pekoe: Fine to choicest, 3s. 5½d. to 4s. 7½d. Scented Teas: Fine to finest, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 0¾d. Rates of freight are £4 10s. to £5 per ton of 40 cubic feet per steamer to London, on a scale for a passage of 50 days or under; the ship Duke of Abercorn has a considerable amount of tonnage engaged at £4 per ton of 50 cubic feet. The following steamers are in port: Canton, Glenzyle, Achilles, and Statesman, all for London; for the Colonies, Acacia, Emma, and Adelheid. The steamer Malacca sailed May 31st for London, with 1,261,253 lbs.

AMOY.—Further arrivals of Oolongs had taken place and there was a stock of about 13,000 half-chests on offer, representing 210 chops, which, when fully down from the country, will aggregate about 30,000 half-chests. Teamen were asking very high prices, but no disposition had thus far been shown by foreigners to begin operations.

SWATOW.—No further transactions had taken place in Tea, and there is nothing to report from this place in addition to what was given in our last issue.

CANTON.—The transactions during the fortnight had been to a fair extent, but were mostly concluded shortly after the departure of last mail. Latterly, quietness had prevailed in the market, and more discrimination being exhibited in selection, prices had ruled in favour of buyers. Canton District Congous: 200 chests sold at Tls. 16 to 23. Scented Teas: Scented Orange Pekoes commanded some little attention early in the fortnight, and purchasers of medium long leaf sorts at Tls. 22 to 25 fully supported previous currency, but more late settlements showed better value in this class; small parcels of finest had gone at Tls. 29 to 31 per picul. In new-make kinds, of fair quality, there had been settlements at Tls. 17 to 18½ per picul. Scented Capers were taken freely after the departure of last mail at extreme prices, considering the poor quality of the Teas; the demand, however, shortly subsided, and latterly buyers had chiefly turned their attention to well scented parcels. The fair to medium grades could be purchased at a decline of Tl. 1, but a further reduction would be necessary to induce much buying. Canton Greens: Of Gunpowders, good medium to fine sorts only were wanted for the English market, the few lots of lower class were for shipment elsewhere; in these there had been no change in value. Of Imperial, 4,000 boxes had been purchased for a Continental order.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skegg's Circular offers the following remarks:—Bale musters reached here on the 22nd May, and the market was opened on the 24th by small purchases of very common, and No. 5 Tsatlees at from 23s. 9d. to 24s. 9d., with inferior 4½'s at 25s. 2d.; since then exchange has advanced to 6s. 3d., and generally there has been very little desire shown to operate; one or two anxious buyers however have come forward and made a market for Red Peacocks at Tls. 500, and Kukee's Chin Jans at Tls. 520 at exchange 6s. 3d., 27s. 0d. and 28s. respectively. This has not been followed up, and dealers at the close are becoming anxious to sell at a concession of 10 taels per picul. The following are some of the principal settlements:—Red Peacocks, Tls. 500; Ching Hocks, 500; Chin Jans, 520; Blue Elephant, 520; Blue Flag 3rd and Black Lion, 515; Incense 3rd and Gold Lion, 540. With regard to the quality of the Silk we have to express a very unfavourable opinion, the arrivals so far having every character that is bad, coarse, foul, badly reeled and badly packed, but whether it is attributable to hasty preparation or is to characterise the season's produce remains to be seen.

CANTON.—The market has continued active during the fortnight at advancing rates; late arrivals were worse in colour and more knibby than those at first; this being more especially the case with regard to Nos. 4, 5, and inferior Tsatlees; notwithstanding this inferiority, transactions had been considerable, the French Mail steamer having taken about 530 bales, and settlements reported since her departure at 404 bales. The stock remaining was inconsiderable. A large business had also been done in Re-reels at very high rates considering the inferior sort purchased. Stock estimated at 70 bales Loongkongs, 250 bales Tsatlee reels, 80 bales Kowkongs, and 150 bales of inferior descriptions. At 4s. 6½d. Exchange the following were the laying down costs in London per Overland route:—Tsatlee-reel, best selected, 23s. 11d.; do., No. 1, 22s. 10d. to 23s. 2d.; do., No. 2, 21s. 11d. to 22s. 3d.; do., No. 3, 20s. 9d. to 20s. 11d.; do., No. 4, 19s. 1d. to 19s. 10d.; do., No. 5, &c., 18s. 3d. to 19s.; Loongkong, best selected, 23s. 5d.; do., No. 1, 22s. 5d.; do., No. 2, 21s. 6d.; do., No. 3, 20s. 6d.; do., No. 4, &c., 19s. 9d.; Re-reeled Cotengown, No. 1, 27s.; do., No. 2, 25s. 2d. to 26s. 4d.; Re-reeled Cumchuck and Lacklow, No. 1, 23s. 7d.; do., No. 2, 22s. 10d. to 23s.

STRAITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—Tin after the departure of the last mail was sold for China at $38.50 to 38.90 per picul, but owing to less favourable advices from that quarter, as well as from England, and a rise in Exchange the price had gradually declined to $37 to 37.25, at which sales had been made for England and America; stocks only about 300 piculs. Gambier had been very steady at $3.40 to 3.45. Black Pepper in very little demand, and declined to $11 per picul; White in good request at $21½ to 23½ per picul, and very scarce. Pearl Sago nominally worth $3 per picul, no buyers. Sago Flour: Singapore, $2.30 per picul; Borneo, $2.35; Sarawak, $2.31. Tapioca scarce and in good demand at $5 per picul for Flake. Bontyne Coffee: Arrivals of 2,000 piculs placed at $16.37½ to 16.50, and a resale reported of 500 piculs at $17 per picul. Cow Hides: Sales at $16 to 16½ per picul. Buffalo Hides in less demand, best $10½ to 11½, second quality $8 per picul. India-rubber scarce, and taken at $58 per picul. Borneo $40 to 41.75 per picul. Gutta-percha in less demand at $90 to 95 per picul.

PENANG.—Both arrivals of and transactions in produce had been limited during the fortnight, and prices at the close showed a slight decline upon those current for the last English mail.

MRS. SASSOON'S GARDEN PARTY.—Mrs. Sassoon received a fashionable company at a garden party at Ashley Park, Walton-on-Thames, on Monday afternoon. The band of the Coldstream Guards and the Tyrolese Singers entertained the company until dejeuner, which was provided by Duclos in a spacious marquee on the lawn. Earlier in the day the children of the Royal Caledonian Asylum and of the Newport-market Refuge had been provided with a good dinner and tea, and in the afternoon they marched round the grounds, headed by their bands. Among the guests present were Mrs. W. E. Gladstone and the Misses Gladstone, his Highness the Nawab Nazim of Bengal and son, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald, Sir R. and Lady Macdonnell, Sir Albert and Lady Woods, Sir John and Lady Lubbock, Hon. Philip Stanhope, Prince Iskander Baritsky, the Persian Minister, Sir Patrick and Lady O'Brien, Lord William Hay, Lady Hutt, Sir Patrick and Lady Colquhoun, Mr. and Lady Rose Weigall, Baron and Baroness de Stern, Baroness de Worms, Sir George and Lady Jessel, Misses Frere (2), Mr. J. Shaw Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Money Wigram, the High Sheriff of Surrey and Mrs. Sandeman, Count Metaxa, Baron von Donop, Baron D'Ecury, Colonel Wynne, Captain Warren Anderson, Admiral Hillyar, Colonel and Mrs. Terry, Mrs. and the Misses Bircham, Mr. and Mrs. De Michele, Captain Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Vicat Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Macrae Moir, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hickley, &c. The entertainment was concluded with a dance in the picture gallery to the music of Coote and Tinney's band. The company were conveyed to Walton by a special train, thence by private carriages to Ashley Park, returning the same way.

LABUAN COAL.—The Times says with regard to the supply of coal it seems extraordinary that while virtually inexhaustible mines of good quality are known to exist in the East, where labour is abundant, and where, owing to the extension of steam navigation, a supply is most wanted, no successful effort is made for their development. About a quarter of a century ago the discovery that our island of Labuan was one of the richest centres of this material attracted general attention; but although all subsequent reports have confirmed the representations as to its accessibility and quality, and it has since been shown that the adjacent coast of Borneo possesses equally large supplies, nothing has been attempted for their development beyond some small or questionable schemes under obviously incompetent management which have resulted in loss to all concerned. It must be borne in mind that no discovery of fresh supplies either in Europe or America would cause any decisive benefit, because the present difficulty is not from want of coal but from want of labour, owing to the fact that from the effects of intemperance, on the one hand, and Trades' Union influences on the other, the higher the wages paid the less is the work done. The East is the only quarter where labour is untrammelled, and it would be interesting to the English public to learn, as far as the coal question is conlerned, why, in a British settlement where labour and material are both in abundance, nothing can be accompshed to mitigate an evil which promises to become one of the mostliserious ever inflicted upon the in dustry of civilised nations.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, July 16.

An event of some importance has occurred here within the last few days, which cannot fail to interest your readers that have any commercial relations with this city, as it affects the existence of what is known as the Hamburg Bank Valuta. When I stated in a former letter that Bremen had resolved to adopt the new monetary system of Germany based upon an exclusively gold currency, which she has really put into execution from the 1st inst., I added my conviction that the axe was laid at the root of our old Banco money, and that as soon as the law became compulsory for the whole of the Empire it would be swept away like all the other different currencies, whatever attempts might be made to save and retain it. The Chamber of Commerce, a body elected by the Exchange, and containing some of our most long-headed and clear-sighted men of business and experience in financial matters, entertained from the beginning very decided opinions on the subject, and immediately after the final debate in the German Parliament, in which the Hamburg members pleaded forcibly, but in vain, for retaining the Bank Valuta, when they saw the hopelessness of doing anything more to save it, set themselves down to consider how the blow might be averted with the least possible injurious consequences to the commercial world. They therefore memorialised the Senate, suggesting the immediate conversion of Banco into the currency of the Empire at the fixed rate of 300 marks Banco for 150 thalers—as long as these were permitted to circulate—or 450 marks of the new gold money. This proposal met the general approbation of the Exchange, but was vigorously resisted by the Senate. To appreciate fully this opposition it may be needful to explain in a few words the composition of that body. According to the revised constitution of this city the Senate consists of sixteen members, eight of whom are lawyers and the other eight merchants or bankers or shipowners—in short connected with trade. They are all elected for life. Thus far they would be equally balanced, but by a side wind they have managed to introduce six other membess under various denominations, viz., three Syndici, two Secretaries of the Senate, and the keeper of the Archives, who have all seats and votes at the Board, and are all lawyers. It is, therefore, plain that on all questions of finance and commerce the mercantile members, who, of course, have the greatest practical knowledge of the subject, must be outvoted and left in the minority.

It cannot be said that the Senate hurried themselves to reply to the memorial of the Chamber of Commerce; but after the lapse of two months they did vouchsafe to return an answer containing something very like a snubbing, for they refused acceding to the proposal, describing it with a greater effusion of verbosity than logic, as "inopportune, neither legally admissible, nor advisable from the point of view of political economy." Further explanation they did not give.

But the Chamber of Commerce was not to be so easily put down and silenced; and it was therefore determined to bring the subject before the Burgerschaft, and appeal to the good sense of that body as the direct representative of the people. Accordingly, Herr C. Koyemann, who is the president of the Chamber of Commerce, and at the same time an elected member of the Burgerschaft, moved a resolution, signed by forty-eight other members as his seconders and supporters, praying the House to pass a Bill he brought in (embodying the proposals contained in the rejected memorial) and send it up to the Senate for their consent and approval. As the subject was not only of great importance, but urgently pressing, the House being about to adjourn for six weeks, it was placed at the head of the order of the day; but as a long debate ensued, and it was the last ordinary sitting, it was agreed to hold an extra sitting last Saturday, which was accordingly done, the result being that on the division the measure was carried almost unanimously—the numbers being 102 ayes to 5 noes. The House then adjourned till the 4th of September.

Thus the matter rests for the present, and it remains to be seen what the Senate will do. The Bill is so framed that they can accept and promulgate it immediately and without further application to the Burgerschaft, which is now no longer in session. But it is not generally expected that such will be their course of action, but rather delay giving any answer at all, as they have a great aversion to the appearance of being dictated to. I must confess that I also do not anticipate the Senate taking action, at all events immediately; because I happen to know that the senator who fills the Presidential chair this year, and is, moreover, the representative of Hamburg in the Bundesrath or Federal Council of the Empire—and consequently a personage of great influence—is violently opposed to the proposal. He is, besides, one of the above-mentioned lawyers, and of course has the majority at his command. He is a very shrewd and acute man of business, but cannot be expected, from the nature of his training, to have mastered such a difficult problem, and to understand the pros and cons of the theory of a subject which is an unfathomable mystery to at least nine-tenths of the Exchange.

From Copenhagen we learn that the Royal Commissioners appointed to inquire into the expediency of changing the currency of the country from silver to gold have terminated their labours, and urgently recommend the immediate adoption of the new German monetary system. The Bill founded on this suggestion has been read the first and second time and passed unanimously; but it will require some time before it can be practically put in execution, as the new gold coins must first be coined before the present silver rixdalers and skillings can be called in and put out of circulation. In consequence of this success, an agitation for a similar alteration of the currency has been commenced in the sister kingdoms of Norway and Sweden, and the proposal has met with the most enthusiastic reception. I may here add that the proposed alteration in the three Scandinavian kingdoms is not confined to the monetary system, but extends to the weights and measures, which are to be in strict accordance with the decimal metrical system.

Young lawyers of a certain standing and of the forensic rank of Gerichts-Referendaries are sought for by the German Government for the Consular Service abroad. Those who apply are to be sent out at once to China and Japan for two years to study the languages of those countries, at the end of which period, and after passing their examination, they will be employed at first as translators, and then be permitted to work their way up to promotion in the service.

COMMERCIAL.

There is but little to report to-day. Tea is perfectly quiet, as is also the market for cleaned Rice; of rough, 6,000 bags of the recent arrivals have been taken by the millers at former rates. The imports during the first six months of this year were only 63,000 bags, against 86,000 ditto in the corresponding period of 1871. There is a fair consumptive demand for Cassia Lignea at 10 sch. bco.; and a better feeling prevails for Pepper, which is a shade dearer, 7¼ sch. bco. having been paid for Singapore. A few transactions are recorded in Spelter, amounting altogether to 1,500 centners at 15 mks. 1 sch. to 15.5 for special marks.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 17.

The new Cabinet is a piece of good luck for the newsvendors in this dead season. There is the utmost want for any political fact of some importance; but, nevertheless, our journalists can easily fill their columns with more or less speculative contemplations about the vitality of the Cabinet. The Liberal press is generally well content with the Ministry de Vries; and only the Arnhemsche Courant entertains with me the fear that the struggle for the mastership between the official Premier and Mr. van de Putte will sooner or later become the stumbling-block. The Conservative papers become every day more furious that this occasion has passed without Mr. Heemskerk being able to take hold of the reins of Government. It is asserted—and I think it very credible—that the members of the Second Chamber will not meet in this Session for the despatch of business, and that the programme of the Ministry will be laid down in the Royal Speech, with which the new Session will be opened.

In my former letter I told you that either Mr. Blusse or van Bosse would be made candidate for the vacant seat in the Lower House. This rumour has proved to be somewhat unfounded. It is quite true that Mr. van Bosse has been put on the list, but he is not the serious candidate. Both our election clubs have, it is whispered, according to the wishes of Mr. Fransen van de Putte, promoted earnestly the candidature of a man whose name sounds extremely well in India, Mr. Otto van Rees. There is not the least doubt that he will be duly elected, now that his greatest competitor, Mr. Verniers van der Loeff, has declared that he will retreat. Mr. van Rees will certainly be one of the ablest members of Parliament, and the Colonial question will find in him a very warm and liberal promoter.

Up to this moment nothing transpired about official measures which would be taken in order that our colonies should be represented on the Vienna exposition. We, however, now learn by an Austria correspondence that Mr. Van Bosse, the former Minister, has co-operated with the commission in order that our colonies should be duly represented, whilst the Dutch Trading Company will forward a rich collection of samples of East India produces. The correspondent says nothing about the private traders and industrials, so that we are quite at a loss whether they will forward articles to this exhibition. In the same letter it is asserted that China will send all sorts of things. He says:—"Les nouvelles qui viennent d'arriver de la Chine sont aurri très favorables et font espérer une exposition des plus intéressantes. Toutes les classes de la société, les autorités, les industriels, marchands, etc., ont promis leur concours, et les travaux ovet commencè avec un yèle qui promet les meilleurs résultats. L'exposition Chinoise comprendra; l'industrie séricicole, articles de commerce, produits de poterie, vases et utensiles en porcelaine, instruments aratoires, chaussures, habits. tissus, tableaux, instruments de musique, etc. L'exposition universelle de Vienne sora la première qui offrira un tableau compret de l'industrie Chinoise."

The annual report of the Dutch India Railway Company has been published. The directors state that their task has become somewhat more pleasant, and that the dark clouds have passed away. They are of opinion that the means at disposal will be more than sufficient to construct the lines Samarang, Principalities and Batavia, Buitenzorg. The traffic of the lines cashed f.714,145.99, leaving a net balance of f.317,293.90. The number of passengers transported between Samarang and Bringin was 318,194.

His Majesty the King started the day before yesterday to Switzerland. Her Majesty is slightly indisposed, so that she cannot leave her seat near the Hague.

It is officially stated that seventy-nine students have passed their examination for the East India service, and of this number sixty were highly commended.

COMMERCIAL.

A quiet tone continues to prevail in business generally, as usual at this period of the year, but prices remain almost unaltered. The late advance in Tin has made further progress. The market for Sugar remained stationary, in anticipation of the coming Trading Company's auction. The valuations run between f.30 for No. 5; f.35¾ for No. 12; f.36¾ for No. 16; and f.37 for No. 20. Spices: More inquiry has manifested itself for Nutmegs, and prices advanced for No. 1 at 202 cs. Cloves have crept up a little. Rice looks very quiet. Kapok, 1,065 bales Java were offered for sale, but the greatest quantity was bought in; about 300 bales were sold at f.27 to f.37. Hides: Some lots ex Dunmore, Nestor, and Tiburnia found buyers. Cotton still dull. Arrack, 180 casks, ex Tiburnia, were sold.

LISBON, July 13.

The Royal family started on the 25th ult. on a visit to the Northern Provinces, and arrived on the same day at Oporto. Their Majesties received the day following all the persons who were in the case to appear before them. The concourse was very extraordinary. At night their Majesties went to St. Joao's Theatre, where they were received with enthusiastic cheering, many flowers, and waving of handkerchiefs. On the 27th they visited the Custom-House, Stock-Exchange and Military Hospital. They were warmly applauded through all the streets from the windows, and at night again in the theatre. On the 28th they drove to Vianna do Castello; they arrived at half-past seven in the morning at Villa do Conde, and started at half-past nine for Povoa: they reached at noon Necessidades, and they made their appearance at Vinana at half-past seven in the evening.

Their first steps were directed to the church, where a Te Deum was chanted, and they went afterwards to the house which was destined for their residence. Their Majesties and Highnesses were heartily welcomed amidst many cheerings and other demonstrations of rejoicing in that town, as well as in Villa do Conde, Povoa do Varzim, Barcellos, and the boroughs in their transit. On the 30th the Royal family started from Vianna to Braga, where they were received in all the streets with the greatest enthusiasm. As soon as they arrived there was chanted a Te Deum, and at night they went to St. Geraldo's Theatre. During their stay they visited the splendid chapels in Bom Jesus. Their Majesties were the object of the most enthusiastic and gorgeous manifestations of respect and sympathy that can be imagined. On the 3rd inst. they were at Amarante. On their entrance the town was adorned in every street with many signs of quiet rejoicing. At night Amarante was illuminated in a surprising manner.

On the 4th they were at Villa Real, and an immense concourse cheered their Majesties and Highnesses. Many people were received by the Royal family. Such was the enthusiasm and love for their Majesties that the majority of the people kissed their hands, and kneeled, evidently against the will of the Royal persons. On the 6th they arrived at Regna, where they visited Ponte Nova, the Quay, and the Baths of Moledo, amid the most energetic acclamations. On the 8th they returned to Oporto, going down the river. They arrived at Freixo at seven o'clock in the morning, accompanied by many boats and barges adorned with flags, which were to meet their Majesties beyond Avintes. In the palace of Freixo, belonging to a viscount of the same title, was prepared a magnificent lunch for their Majesties.

There was a ball given in honour of their Majesties. On the 9th the whole of the inhabitants of Oporto, in presence of the Royal Family, celebrated worthily the anniversary of the entrance of the Liberal army into that city. All the press commemorated that glorious fact, and the city was dressed in its best ornaments to grace it. On the 12th they started from Oporto to Coimbra, where they have been assisting at the Feast of the Queen Santa Isabel. On the 15th their Majesties are expected in Lisbon from their tour.

The Commission named to study the causes of emigration from Portugal have held a meeting, in which the contracts of colonisation and the passages of emigrants on board the vessels and steamers were discussed. The Commission resolved to ask, through the Foreign-office, the consular and diplomatic agents, the laws on emigration in Brazil, United States, England, and Germany.

The Queen of Sweden, who had come here to pay a visit on the 24th ult., has already left. I was told that she was so pleased with the beauties of this country that she promised to come again next year, to stay some weeks. Her Majesty visited the splendid mansion on the Pena, in Cintra, belonging to his Majesty D. Fernando, father of the King of Portugal, and the Palace of Monserrate, belonging to Mr. Cook, honoured two years ago by the King with the title of Viscount of that same place. The Queen was surprised at the form of the building, and at the exquisiteness and richness of the ornamentation of those palaces and gardens.

On the 6th ult. the corvette Estephania and the steamer Lynce received orders to sail for a secret commission. The corvette has been expecting until now the last determination of Government. I was told that Government were informed of an important debarkment of guns to be made in our territory with destiny to Carlists. Others say that Government feared some revolt during the stay of their Majesties at Oporto.

The new Treaty of Commerce between Germany and Portugal has been in force since the 10th, but the first cargoes that arrived in Portugal have not profited by its provisions through not having the necessary certificate from the ports of departure.

TESTING CONSULAR PASSPORTS IN CHINA.

MR. BABER'S adventure at Nanchang has demonstrated in the most practical way the truths of the ill reports brought by travellers of the officials and people of that city. The idea of stripping Mr. BABER of his official rank, and of sending him in the guise of a private individual to test the temper of a Nanchangese was a happy one, and completely answered the desired end. His experiences tally accurately with those of missionaries and others who have from time to time had the ill-fortune to visit that city. His arrival was the signal for the collection of a stone-throwing crowd, over whom the Mandarins, who were amongst the rioters, professed to have no control. Willing to ascertain the feeling of the higher authorities Mr. BABER forced his way to the Governor's Yamen. Here at first he was met with the same excuses and prevarications as he had encountered on first landing, and it was not until he had drawn the Governor's attention to the Chinese version of his passport, and had warned him of the consequences of refusing him protection, that that functionary at length consented to provide him with an escort to protect him on his way back to his boat. Here, then, we have another instance of the determination of the Mandarins to ignore the provisions of the Treaty. And it must be remembered that but for the facts that Mr. BABER was quite prepared for all contingencies, and was able to speak Chinese, the disturbance might very possibly have had a far more tragic ending. We trust that this event will add a further inducement to our Government, to press on the audience question, for it is certain that a satisfactory settlement of that all-important point, will alone put an end to the outrages to which foreigners travelling in China are now constantly subjected. As long as the Foreign Ministers are excluded from the Imperial presence, so long will the provincial Mandarins treat Western travellers as subjects of inferior powers, and so long will the lives and property of foreigners, when beyond the reach of the Consular authorities, be in imminent peril.

IN our last number we announced the names of the successful candidates for the three vacancies for Student Interpreters to be Messrs. FRASER, HOLLAND, and PLAYFAIR. An open competition will be held on the 30th inst. for five more vacancies. The examination will be in the following subjects:—Obligatory.—1. Handwriting and orthography. 2. Arithemetic (including vulgar and decimal fractions). 3. English composition. Optional.—1. Precis. 5. Geography. 6. Euclid (books 1 to 4.) 7. Latin. 8. French. 9. German. 10. The elements of Civil and Criminal Law; the text books being Smith's "Mercantile Law" and Archbold's "Pleadings and Evidence in Criminal Cases." Candidates failing in any of the obligatory subjects will not be admitted to the further examinations. Applications to be examined in the obligatory subjects at Dublin or Edinburgh will be specially considered.

THE P. and O. steamer Deccan, Captain Soames, with the first of the new teas, arrived and docked on the evening of the 16th, followed by the Agamemnon the next evening. The Deccan left Woosung on the 29th May, and the Agamemnon the day before, the respective passages being forty-eight and fifty days. The Deccan brings 2,500 tons, and the Agamemnon 3,500 tons of tea. The freight by the former was £6 10s. and £7, if under forty-five days, out of which the Company had to bear the freight down from Hankow. The Agamemnon loaded at Hankow at £5 per ton. The Malacca, with the new teas from Foochow, is reported at Gravesend, and the Sunda, from Canton, arrived on the 20th. The Deccan will shortly take her place again on the Indian side. Several steamers are proceeding out via the Suez Canal, of which particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

WE believe that the departure of Mr. PAUNCEFOTE, the Attorney-General of Hong Kong, has been postponed until the second mail in August, arriving in time for the opening of the Court on 12th Oct. Chief Justice SMALE will, we understand, proceed about the same time.

THE Board of Trade have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, an extract from a despatch from Her MAJESTY'S Minister at Peking, reporting that arrangements have been made for opening the port of Kiungchow in the island of Hainan, to foreign trade.

WE understand that Mr. C. W. HOWELL, the Secretary to the P. and O. Company, who has been thirty years in the service of the company, retires, and will be succeeded by Mr. BETHUNE, formerly superintendent at Bombay, and lately assistant managing director in London.

CHINA CONSULAR REPORTS.

The missing commercial reports of Her Majesty's Consuls in China for the year 1870 have just been published:—

SHANGHAI.

Mr. Consul Markham reports a falling off in British imports of £263,958. This decline is chiefly in Cotton Piece Goods, but Woollen Goods also decreased slightly. Metals show a small increase, mainly in Lead. The import of Coal, Coke, and Needles decreased; as did miscellaneous goods from the Colonies. There was, however, an increase in the importation of Opium from India. Taking the imports from all foreign countries together, we find a decrease of Tls. 2,744,190, viz., Tls. 52,453,448 in 1870, against Tls. 55,197,642 in 1869. The British export trade shows an increase of Tls. 802,385, viz., Tls. 25,114,202 in 1870, against Tls. 24,311,817 in 1869; but it appears that the export trade to Hong Kong was omitted in 1869, so that, if this be deducted from 1870, there was a real decrease of Tls. 2,000,000. The total export of silk declined 900 bales. The gross value of the trade of Shanghai for 1870 was Tls. 106,425,772, showing a decrease of about Tls. 3,500,000. 730 British ships entered the port in 1870, against 863 in 1869. The whole number of vessels, British and foreign, entering the port, shows a falling-off of about 200 ships. As there was a decrease in the general trade, there was of necessity a decrease in the amount of duties received; but, the import of opium having increased, the total duties collected was about Tls. 60,600 more than in the previous year. A falling-off in the import and export of treasure direct from foreign countries is perceptible by about £1,300,000, but the indirect trade in this item shows an increase of about £400,000. The decrease in the importation of coal from Great Britain is owing to the successful working of the Takusima mines, near Nagasaki, the coal from which is every day coming into more extensive use, and to the consumption of native coal by the two lines of steamers plying on the Yangtsze. The cost of British coal ruled at about 50s. per ton; the price of native coal ranged from 25s. to 30s. The cultivation of the poppy is reported as daily increasing, and the price of the native drug is therefore likely to be steadily reduced until Indian opium is driven out of the market altogether, unless it can be placed in the consumer's hands at a lower price. There is no obstacle whatever to the cultivation of opium throughout the length and breadth of China.

Mr. A. Davenport, Acting Vice-Consul, and Assessor of the Mixed Court, reports the working of the Mixed Court as unsatisfactory. The jurisdiction of the Court is too circumscribed; the rank and pay of the Sub-Prefect too low; there is considerable prejudice in the minds of the natives that great difficulties lie in the way of their obtaining justice in cases brought against British subjects; the inadequacy of the punishments inflicted amounts to an incentive to crime; and the reckless manner in which many British subjects give credit to natives is another main cause of the failure of the mixed Court. Mr. Davenport recommends that the Court should be placed under the direct authority of the Intendant of Circuit; that all cases between Chinese and British subjects should be tried by the Consul and Intendant without assessors; and that the unsatisfactory nature of the punishments should be remedied by a system of hard labour, at the expense of the Municipal Council. Mr. Davenport sums up an exceedingly interesting and exhaustive report by observing that, if his recommendations are adopted, the relations between the natives and ourselves would re-assume the friendly tone which existed many years ago, but which cannot be restored so long as the offices of Intendant of Circuit and District Magistrate are filled by mere popularity hunters, exhibiting uncompromising hostility to foreigners.

The export of Black Tea from Shanghai for the year 1870 amounted to 63,025,983 lbs., against 59,990,709 lbs. in the preceding year. Green Tea also rose from 29,656,149 lbs. in 1869, to 31,265,267 lbs.

The population of the native city and suburbs may be put down at about 320,000.

CHINKIANG.

This port is at present under the jurisdiction of Shanghai. Looking back over the history of the past four years, Mr. Markham is of opinion that its reduction from the rank of a consulate in 1867 was premature. Sir Rutherford Alcock, who recommended the measure at the time, changed his mind on the subject, and advised its restoration to a consulate in the following year. In no port open to foreign commerce in China has the trade shown such powers of expansion as in Chinkiang. At its present rate of development Chinkiang will become one of the most important emporiums of foreign commerce in China in a few years. One of the most promising features in the future of this port is the cultivation of Silk. Teas are also largely grown in the neighbourhood, and, from a political point of view, Chinkiang is of very considerable importance, situated as it is close to Nanking, the seat of the most powerful viceroyalty in the Empire. During the past few years almost all the political disturbances that have occurred in the central provinces have had their origin in this vicinity. It is very desirable to have a Consular officer of such rank at Chinkiang as can call upon a viceroy at Nanking, and settle any differences that may arise in the interior or on the coast. Shanghai is too far away for this purpose; and the Consul there can only visit Nanking after a considerable delay, and at much inconvenience. The entire value of the British trade at this port in 1870 was £6,000,000, the Consular fees steadily and rapidly increasing and it is hoped that it will now be restored to its old footing as a full Consulate.

TAIWAN (FORMOSA).

Mr. Acting Consul Hewlett reports the full realisation of the favourable anticipations he expressed in his last report as to the development of this district. The year 1870 shows the highest figure that the returns have reached since the opening of these ports since 1864. In shipping and tonnage there was, in spite of the discouraging political events of the year, a most marked increase; and there sprang into existence, moreover, a direct trade between Taiwan and the British colonies of Hong Kong and Australia. British vessels, however, cannot compete successfully in the coasting trade with those under foreign flags, owing to the lighter draught and larger carrying capacity, in which North German and Danish vessels have a decided superiority.

A large quantity of opium comes to Formosa in junks. The importer in foreign vessels is at a disadvantage as compared with the shipper in native craft. The latter pays no import duty, and is, consequently, able to undersell the foreign merchant by £46 5s., the amount collected under tariff.

There was in 1870 an increased demand for Woollen and Cotton Fabrics, the consumption of which exceeded that of the preceding year by 21,525 pieces, valued at £19,856.

Treasure imports rose from £26,133 in 1869, to £133,335 in 1870—the increase being occasioned by the large export of sugar, and by the comparatively low rates at which Opium sold during the year.

It is calculated that only one-fifth of the Rice grown in Formosa leaves the island in foreign vessels; nevertheless the export of this article in 1870 exceeded that of the previous year by 5,794 piculs, valued at £5,449—an increase which is only £500 less than the total value of the Rice exported in 1868.

The chief product of the island, and that on which the commercial prosperity of these ports mainly depends, is Sugar. The returns for 1870 show an amazing increase in the export of this article, the Sugar exported in that year having nearly trebled that in the year preceding. The shipments were chiefly to Japan, where, owing to the failure of the crop, they sold at highly profitable rates.

The event of the year which excited the most interest was, of course, the proposed disestablishment of the foreign Consulates and the consequent closing of the island to foreign trade. Against this proposal the foreign residents protested, and Mr. Hewlett supported their arguments in a memorial, which must be fresh in the recollection of our readers. The result of the trading of 1870 proves beyond doubt the justice of Mr. Hewlett's views and the value of the port to us. It must be added to that, although the Formosan officials are generally rapacious, when foreign interests do not affect their personal aggrandisement, there is not much to complain of in them. As soon as intelligence of the Tientsin massacre reached this place, the Taoutai took steps to prevent any popular outbreak, and repressed any rumours calculated to inflame the popular mind against missionaries. There is only one Protestant mission in Formosa; its members belong to the English Presbyterian Church. They own no property away from the Treaty ports, all chapels at inland ports being registered in the name of Chinese converts. By exercising great caution in the admission of native members, and by rigidly abstaining from interfering in the temporal concerns of the converts, they disarm suspicion, conciliate the authorities, and move about the country unmolested, if not unnoticed. The Roman Catholic missionaries are believed to be equally impressed with the importance of avoiding collision with the native authorities. In connection with the Presbyterian mission, and supported by its funds and voluntary contributions, are two hospitals, in one of which relief was afforded to 2,000 natives in 1870, and the other is equally appreciated, the Taoutai having presented a donation to it, and declared that the authorities would willingly subscribe to such institutions.

The constant shipwrecks on the Pescadores make the erection of lighthouses on those dangerous islands of urgent importance, not only to the local shipping, but to all vessels of the larger class engaged in the China trade.

TAMSUY (FORMOSA).

Mr. Vice-Consul Gregory reports, the import of British manufactures as maintained, and, on the whole, increased. The exports show a large increase as compared with those of the last five or six years, mainly owing to the rapid growth of the tea trade. This trade may be said to have commenced in 1866, when 180,824 lbs. were exported; by a rapid and steady development it has now attained seven or eight times that amount. The manner of conducting the trade differs from that which prevails at other ports. Here the British merchant buys the tea in an unprepared or partly-prepared state, and in small quantities. It is then prepared for exportation on his premises and under his direction. One cause of the rapid growth of the trade may be found in the care and the honesty with which the tea is prepared by the British exporters. Another cause is the advantage of climate and situation. The greater part of the tea exported goes to America. Until 1871 there was no inland tax on tea in Formosa. The lekin tax was then imposed amidst much discontent and opposition. Notwithstanding this check Mr. Gregory believes the export will show a continued increase. The tax, after several tentative reductions, has been fixed at the moderate rate of about a farthing per lb.

Rice was in 1870 the second export in point of value—which was greater than in any year since 1864. Camphor showed a larger export also, reaching 17,239 cwt. The overthrow in 1868 of the monopoly of this article greatly lowered the price and increased the trade. An attempt to levy a small lekin tax on this article was not persevered in in consequence of the opposition it met with. Mr. Gregory is of opinion that, from the peculiar character of the camphor manufacture and trade, a well-managed and honestly worked official monopoly under European superintendence might be advantageous.

Coal is exported almost entirely from Keeling, and not from Tamsuy itself; the export of 1870 was much smaller than that of any year since 1868. The collection or manufacture of the sulphur of Tamsuy is prohibited by orders from Peking. It is much to be wished that the manufacture of this product was established under official sanction, either on Government account or otherwise.

The total value of imports and exports in European vessels, excluding treasure and re-exports, was £314,000, about £180,000 of which was British or British Indian. The rice-fields of Bangka, ten or twelve miles from this port, yield two harvests per annum; the first crop is reaped in July, the second in November. The rice bears a high character in the Chinese market. Tea planting is on the increase in the inner country near the aborigines' borders. Windmills are unknown, but there are flour mills worked by the overshot water-wheel.

JAPANESE NAVAL ARMAMENTS.

A report by the captain of the Russian corvette Boyarin, published in the Constradt Messenger, gives some curious details on the present state of the naval armaments of Japan. On the 14th July, 1871 (he says), five Japanese ships of war entered the harbour of Yokohama. One of these ships is a corvette of English construction, armed with six long cast-iron guns and two bronze guns. The second ship is an ironclad ram, the Stonewall Jackson, formerly part of the American Confederate fleet. It is armed with a 300-pounder and two Armstrong rifled 70-pounders. The three other vessels are screw gunboats of English construction, each armed with three guns. The crews of these vessels are composed exclusively of Japanese, with a uniform exactly the same as that of English sailors. On the 28th March a casemated Japanese corvette, the Reuzeokan, armed with eight guns, also entered the harbour. The railway between Yedo and Yokohama (continues the report) is now quite finished, and will shortly be open for public traffic. The telegraph is already being used along the whole of the line, and a second telegraphic wire is being laid between Nagasaki and Yokohama. The Japanese army is equipped and armed in the French manner, and its rifles are according to the Albini system. In the Gulf of Yedo there is an arsenal, situated on a terrace cut into the side of a mountain; this arsenal is provided with a large dock, 407 feet long, 82 feet wide, and 21 feet deep. The largest ocean steamers can enter it for repairs. The water of the dock is exhausted in ten hours by three large steam-pumps. Its construction occupied eighteen months, and cost the Japanese Government 240,000 Mexican dollars. Thirty vessels have already been refitted in this dock. Another dock of smaller dimensions is being constructed by the side of the first for ships of small tonnage. The Admiralty also has a rope manufactory, a foundry, a boiler manufactory, a mechanical forge, a steam sawing-machine, and all the necessary appliances for repairing ships. Engines and boilers are now being constructed for river steamers. The buildings are all of wood; they are not supplied with much machinery, but what they have is sufficient for the wants of the harbour. This small establishment will evidently never become the naval arsenal of Japan, but it forms an excellent nucleus for the young Japanese fleet, and will afterwards be of great use for the squadron which the Japanese Government is apparently about to keep up in the neighbourhood of the capital. The arsenal was built by a French engineer, M. Verny, who has been retained as manager of the establishment. Thirty Frenchmen are attached to it in the capacity of foremen, assistants, and instructors. The maintenance of the works costs $00,000 Mexican dollars a-year; and since they were begun, five years ago, the expenses of the establishment have amounted to 1,500,000 dollars.

EXTRACTS FROM LANMAN'S JAPANESE EMBASSY.

THE GIRLS SENT FOR EDUCATION.—The names of this delegation of Japanese girls are as follows:—Lio Yoshimas, aged fifteen; Tei Wooyeda, aged about fifteen; Stematz Yamagawa, aged twelve; Shinge Negai, aged ten; and Ume Tsuda, aged eight years. They represent in their persons five distinct families, and while they are not immediately connected with the Imperial Family of Japan, they do belong to that particular class which would, in this country, be called the aristocracy of intellect and wealth combined. How these particular girls happened to be selected is not important; and, although their fathers or friends were abundantly able to send them abroad, they have in reality come to this country as the wards of the Japanese Government. Their fathers are all connected with the present Government, and rank as follows:—Yoshimas, retainer of a Prince of Tokzyawa; Wooyeda, second secretary of the Department of State; Yamagawa, first chamberlain to the Prince of Adzu; Nagai was formerly a retainer of the Tycoon, but now holds allegiance to the ruling power, and has a public position; Tsuda is one of the secretaries of agriculture, as well as a geologist and civil engineer. They were consigned to the care of the Japanese Minister, Mr. Mori, in Washington, and in view of very numerous applications that were made by educational institutions throughout the country to take them in charge, and while debating what was best to do with the girls, Mr. Mori resolved to keep them for a few months under his immediate protection, and obtained comfortable and cheerful homes for them in Georgetown, under the general supervision of the editor of this volume. With regard to the kind of education which the Government of Japan would have bestowed upon these girls, that is a question which will probably be decided by Mr. Mori, and his personal views have been freely expressed in Washington society. He would, in the first place, have them made fully acquainted with the blessings of home life in the United States; and, in the second place, he would have their minds fully stored with all those kinds of information which will make them true ladies.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT, BY MR. ENOUYE.—The Government is influenced to a great extent, not by the opinions of a King, or what is worse, those of a few ambitious politicians, but by the mighty voice of an almost infallible people. It is evident that the Government thus situated will be more faithful in the execution of its duties than in monarchical countries, where the character of the Government depends a good deal on the disposition of the sovereign. Another strong point in a republic is the bicameral feature of its Government. One body acts as a check on another, and if their characters are different, for instance, the first Radical and the second Conservative—the course of legislation will be neither too progressive, with which the people cannot keep pace, nor so Conservative as to interfere with the enterprises of the country. The right to struggle for fame, for learning and wealth, is the grandest heritage of humanity, and this right is most scrupulously respected in almost all the republican countries of the present day; hence the poorest and humblest can have fair play to become superior in position to any other. Beholding a republic with her weakness and strength before us, and a monarchy with hers in the same position, we shall fear the latter as our enemy, for she is strong, but the former we shall love as we love the truth; we shall encourage as we would an inexperienced youth, for her strength is not yet as fully developed as that of her elder sister, monarchy.

THE POSITION OF WOMEN IN JAPAN.—Whatever customs have been introduced among the lower classes through the pernicious teachings of Chinese literature, they have been constantly resisted by our better classes. Never original to Japan, our efforts have been to eradicate them as fast as possible. In proof of these assertions I refer to our ancient history, showing that out of 124 sovereigns, rulers of Japan, eight Empresses are included in the list. These ladies ruled long and wisely. Under the rule of an Empress Japan attacked and conquered Korea, after a brilliant campaign, which country she held as a dependency for over 600 years, when, finding it had become more care than value, we voluntarily relinquished it. Under the rule of an Empress Japan attained high literary culture, religion was inculcated and respected, and facilities for general education were greatly improved. China never had an Empress. Throughout most of the countries of Europe and Asia lines of hereditary descent have been wholly male; but I am happy to say Japan has prospered under eight such reigns. Finding our ancient practice confirmed by the experience of Western nations, Japan need not hesitate now to enforce among all classes that respect and consideration for women that has never been wanting about her court and among her better families. Thus may Japan hope to insure the stability of her civilisation, and regain her early chivalry, and, by enlisting the assistance of educated mothers and daughters, secure a noble future.

THE JESUITS AND EARLY MISSIONARIES.—The Christian Missionaries, seeing their growing influence over the consciences of the people, commenced to meddle with the politics of the state, whereupon the Dutch warned our people of the danger from this. Acting upon this suggestion the Government prohibited its propagation and compelled all foreigners, except the Dutch, to leave the country. At the siege and subsequent fall of Osaca the final victory of the ancestors of the Tokungawa family was gained, andmany leading officers who were in the city escaped to Shunabarra, near Nagasaki, where the people generally professed Christianity, and excited them to open insurrection, by deluding them into the belief that the Government intended to prohibit Christian Worship. Those people, labouring under this delusion, rebelled against the Government, and maintained their position for over two years; and soon after they were overcome they still continued to be rebellious and fanatical, mixing their religious belief with party spirit. This caused the Government to take steps to prohibit this worship entirely throughout the empire; therefore, on this account, and not on account o the belief itself, it was prohibited. This is further proved to have been the motive by the fact that Buddhism was not also prohibited, which is not the faith of the Mikado, he being Sintoo, in his faith. These things occurred about the year 1630. At the time Commodore Perry entered Yeddo the Tycoon made the Treaty with him in opposition to the sentiments of several of the great daimios, who, having long been jealous of the Tokungawa clan (of which the Tycoon was a member), took advantage of the anti-foreign sentiment of the people, then prevailing, and pretending also to make war to uphold the religion of the Mikado rebelled against and overthrew the Tycoon, and put his majesty the Mikado on the throne in his stead. In fact, they made use of the Mikado as a puppet to execute their desires in his name, and seemingly by his authority. The present Government, owing to its declarations, was necessarily severe against any who followed any foreign religion. Against those who professed Buddhism, which being generally professed in the empire, they took measures only against the priests, who were deprived of many privileges hitherto granted to them. Whatever promises may have been made by it, relative to the mild treatment accorded to native converts, their punishment continues to be severe and cruel. Under the late Government the punishment was the crucifixion of the convert, but by the law of this Government the punishment extends over eight families, to wit, parents, grandparents, elder and younger brothers and sisters, uncles, aunts, sons, daughters, grandchildren, and male and female cousins of the convert, and is death. It certainly has done away with the punishment by crucifixion, but simply doing this can hardly be called mild treatment. Those converts who were imprisoned year before last would have been killed according to this law, but for the remonstrances of the foreign representatives.

Monetary and Commercial.

Advices from Constantinople confirm the news of the Porte's objections to the increase in the Suez Canal tonnage dues, and state that the project for cutting a second canal with English capital is again being mooted. It is asserted that, as the new canal could be made at less than one-third the cost of the present one, it would pay the shareholders a fair dividend, even if it were used only by British shipping.

Telegrams have been received from Singapore, anouuncing the failure of the well-known Chinaman Whampoa. A compromise has been arranged at 55 cents. The firm of Smith, Harrison, and Co., in which Whampoa was a partner, have also had a meeting of creditors, and agreed to pay in full. Mr. Harrison the London agent, has not stopped payment.

The tenders for £600,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £432,000; to Bombay, £163,200; and to Madras, £4,800. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10¼d. on all the presidencies, and tenders on each at 1s. 10⅜d. will receive about 96 per cent. These results show a slight increase of demand for means of remittance to the East.

Messrs. Schroeder and Co. announce the payment of the interest on the Japan Customs Loan due on the 1st August.

The China clipper Ariel, which left London Feb 4, for Sydney, had not arrived out on June 20, 135 days. Fifty guineas premium has been paid on her.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Mongolia, which left Southampton on the 18th inst., was, in gold —to Galle, £100; to Singapore, £1,000; to Bombay, £5,000; to Madras, £801; in silver—to Singapore, £25,500; to Hong Kong, £13,250; to Shanghai, £2,675; to Calcutta, £1,000; total, in gold, £6,901; in silver, £41,925.

There is but little doing in Bar Silver, the supplies on hand being limited. The current price is 60 3-16d. per oz. standard. Mexican Dollars show no alteration. We quote the old coinage 62¼d., and the new 59¾d. per oz. The large amount known to be on its way from Mexico will probably arrive early in August.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since last mail the tone of the Market has been barely so steady, and producers have shown more disposition to induce business by accepting somewhat lower rates, which has, however, failed to bring about renewed activity. At the close the desire to make sales has rather increased, and both spinners and manufacturers, but more particularly the latter, have laid themselves open to offers, but they have resisted any material decline, and although prices generally are easier, there is an absence of depression.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular:—

The market for old season's Teas during the week has been very quiet, the chief sales making being at public auction, without reserve, prices showing but little alteration. Further arrivals of new District Congous and Scented Teas have also come to hand, but have met with but little demand. Capers have realised rather better prices than Orange Pekoes, but both show a reduction on last week's rates. New District Congous have also again sold in favour of buyers. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 2,865,540 lbs., against 3,097,378 lbs. last year.

The arrival of the Deccan, in dock, on the evening of the 16th, and of the Agamemnon on that of the 17th, have been the chief feature of interest. The Teas by the former were placed on the market on the 17th inst., and those of the latter yesterday. They have not met with much demand; the finer Teas have alone found competition, the medium to fine kinds having been prejudiced by the declaration of about 2,000 packages for public sale, without reserve, for to-day and to-morrow. The quality on the whole we consider about the same as last year, certainly showing no improvement. The sales have amounted to over 10,000 packages, from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 10d. for fair to good, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 6d. for fine to finest, in chests and half-chests, and 1s. 11d. for good, and 2s. 1d. to 2s. 8d. per lb. for fine to extra fine, in boxes. A parcel of finest Pak Lin, in boxes, arrived overland, has been taken at 2s. 9d. per lb., the quality being considered superior.

Black: Red-leaf kinds: Siftings show no change. Broken-leaf kinds sold rather easier. Fair to good common remain firm; fair to good and fine Kaisows and Pak Lin kinds show no change. Black-leaf kinds: The low qualities show no improvement, good common have been quiet, fair to good kinds show no alteration. In fine to finest old season's there is nothing to report; of the new we have written above. New make Canton kinds: Common to fair have sold ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower, good 1d. per lb. lower, the demand being limited, fine have been rather firmer. In Oolongs, Souchongs, and Flowery Pekoes there is no new feature to report. Scented Teas: Canton Capers, further supplies of new season have been freely offered, both by public and private sale, and prices show a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb., prices ranging from 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 6d. for fair to good quality. Canton Orange Pekoes have been sold with difficulty at a decline of fully 1d. per lb., at public sale, for good quality, fine at 1s. 10d. also show fully 1d. per. lb. decline. Foochow kinds show no change. Uncoloured Japans have been steady at previous prices. Green: In the absence of fresh arrivals the market has been firm, but business has been small, prices showing no alteration.

SPECIAL REPORT ON NEW SEASON'S TEA.

Canton Teas.—The steamer Antenor brought full supplies of all kinds. Of new make Congou, Tay-Shan leaf, sales have been made of fair quality strong burnt at 11d. to 1s. per lb., and strong malty burnt kinds at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d. per lb., fine at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; finest at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. are neglected, being interfered with by new black-leafs.

Canton Scented Capers.—It is seldom the out-turn has proved so inferior, as with few exceptions Teas are largely mixed with "lie tea" and other matter, and most parcels are wanting in scent. The few small lots of truly fine quality were briskly competed for and realised high prices, say 2s. 6d. to 3s. per lb.

Scented Orange Pekoe.—The quality of this class of Tea is fairly good, and quite equal to last season's, but prices rule lower, as there has been great haste shown by importers to sell, and prices rule very moderate, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. for good medium strong scented, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d. for fine, and 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. for finest.

Black Leaf.—The steamer Deccan's samples were offered on the 17th inst., and, contrary to general ideas, the market opened at a very fair range of prices, but buying has not been continued; with the cargo of Agamemnon on offer, and a great desire on the part of importers to sell, a thorough collapse took place, and transactions were on a small scale, at fully 1d. to 2d. per lb. decline on sales made the first day for second quality teas; finest rule tolerably firm, and doubtless the loss of the Parnassus (reported to have the bulk of the crack Ningchows) will tend to keep this grade up.

The quality of the crop, on the whole, we consider slightly preferable to last season's, as the infused leaf is of good quality; most chops, however, owing to hasty curing, are much mixed, and not properly twisted.

SILK.

Business during the interval has been restricted to actual wants, and the trade have been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the new China Silk. Sales "to arrive" have been more difficult to make, and prices are barely maintained; for silk on the spot there is little demand, and that only for the better descriptions of Tsatlees, the lower classes being neglected. In Canton Silks there have been sales "to arrive," in market No. 1 Tsatlee reel at 19s. 3d. to 19s. 6d., the stock on the spot of such descriptions being very small; some of the new season's Cantons have arrived (50 bales), and a larger quantity is expected. In Japan Silk there has not been much doing, and Bengals have been very quiet. The deliveries have been well maintained, being from 1st to 17th July:—China, 1,536; Canton, 587; Japan, 1,012; Bengal, 351; total, 3,486 bales.

COFFEE.

The tone of the market for Plantation Ceylon during the past week has been quieter than of late, and the supplies at public sale have met with less demand, and have been quitted at lower prices that have of late been current, the ruling rates being as follows:—Triage, 72s. to 77s.; small, 77s. 6d. to 79s. 6d.; low middling, 80s. to 82s.; middling, 82s. 6d. to 84s.; good middling, 86s. to 88s.; peaberry, 94s. 6d. to 96s. 6d. In Native Ceylon there are no transactions reported, either in public sale or privately.

SUGAR.

Extreme dullness has again been the prevailing characteristic of the market. Scarcely any business has been done, and the few transactions effected establish a further decline of 6d. on the spot, and 2s. 6d. in floating cargoes.

CAMPHOR.—Privately 100 cases China have been sold at 79s. per cwt.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Privately the market is steady and fairly active at £38 10s. for Cochin, and at £34 10s. to £35 for Ceylon, and afloat 50 tons Ceylon September-October shipment have been sold at £35 15s. In auction of 443 casks Ceylon offered 8 pipes fair sold at £34 10s., and 123 hogsheads yellow to mixed partly good at £32 15s. to £33 15s., the rest being bought in at £34 to £34 10s.

CUTCH.—No transactions reported.

COIR GOODS.—The small supplies of Yarn offered by auction have consisted wholly of Ceylon in dholls, which met a steadier demand, and sold at firmer prices; 60 tons Ceylon Yarn in dholls sold—common £28 to £28 15s., good common to middling £29 5s. to £30 10s., better qualities from £32 to £39; 26 bales Cochin Fibre sold at £22 10s.; 25 bales (1½ tons) Ceylon ditto and 159 coils Ceylon Rope were withdrawn.

GAMBIER.—The market continues to improve. On the spot 150 bales have been sold at 22s., 200 bales block at 21s. 9d., 400 mats fine pale cubes at 26s, and 50 tons arrived in dock at 21s. 6d. ex ship. For arrival 100 tons April shipment have been sold at 21s. 7½d., 50 tons May sailing at 21s. 6d., and 100 tons June at about 21s. per cwt.

HEMP.—A large supply of Manila of recent import, amounting to 3,364 bales, was offered at the periodical auctions, but there was little demand and the bulk was bought in, only a small portion finding buyers at a decline of 20s. to 30s. per ton. Of the whole 550 bales sold, sound fair to good £47 10s. to £49, good £49 15s., Sorsagon £50, Boluzan £51, first-class sea damaged fair to good £47 10s. to £49 10s., the remainder being bought in, mixed to good fair roping £47 to £49 10s., good to superior £50 to £52, good white (of which 611 bales were offered) mostly Quilot at £63 to £65, Lupez at £100, except 10 bales which sold at £62 and £80 respectively.

PEPPER.—Black: In public sale Singapore has met a moderate demand at the previous value; of 1,472 bags offered, only 300 bags sold at 6¾d., the remainder being bought in at 6¾d, and 263 bags dust at 3¾d.; small lots of Penang have changed hands on the spot at 6d., but for future delivery a fair business has been done, including 500 bags October at 6d., and for arrival 200 bags July-August shipment at 5⅞d. White: On the 17th inst. unusual excitement prevailed in the market, and considerable fluctuations in prices occurred; at public sale 650 bags Singapore were all sold, commencing at 1s. 2⅞d. to 1s. 2½d., and rising gradually to 1s. 3¼d., when a brisk competition caused a very rapid advance, and the last few lots brought 1s. 8d., after which 109 bags Penang sold, commencing at 1s. 4d. and receding to 1s. 3½d. Since the auction sales of Singapore have been effected at 1s. 3¼d. to 1s. 3½d.; contracts for delivery in September have been made at 1s. 3¼d. to 1s. 0d.

RICE.—The market has continued quiet. On the spot middling white Bengal has realised 10s. 10½d., Askoolie 10s. 9d. to 11s., Ballam 8s. 6d., fine Java 16s. 6d., and old Rangoon 8s. 10½d. to 9s. 3d. The floating cargo per Maddalena Vassalo, 870 tons Bassein, April sailing, has been sold at 9s. 7½d. open charter, and the floating cargo per Catalina, 830 tons Necransie, April sailing, at 9s. 4½d. open charter. Sales have also been effected "to arrive" of about 3,000 tons Burmah late shipment (August or September), viz, two cargoes of Rangoon at 9s. 9d., and one Necransie at 9s. 3d. open charter.

SPICES.—The market has shown little or no alteration since our report of last week. Cinnamon: Of 7 bales Ceylon offered 2 bales sold at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 7d. Chips: 46 bags middling sold at 5d. Cloves: In auction 20 cases fine Penang were bought in at 1s. 5d. Nutmegs: 36 cases limed Singapore sold at about the previous value, average 72 nuts to the lb. at 3s. 2d., 80's 3s. 1d., 99's at 3s. 11d., 110's 2s. 10d. to 2s. 11d., 160's shrivelled 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d.; 42 boxes Penang 105's were withdrawn. 14 cases Grenada sold, 88's at 3s. 1d., 115's at 2s. 9d. Mace: In auction 35 cases Penang and Singapore met less demand, and only 7 cases sold at easier rates, low middling red and dull 3s. 10d., pickings 3s. 5d. to 3s. 6d., the remainder withdrawn.

TIN.—The market has shown some fluctuation in prices during the week, although there has been a good demand and transactions have been extensive. The closing quotations—which exhibit a slight reduction upon those of last mail—are Straits on the spot £154, for forward delivery, £152 to £154, Banca, £161, Billiton nominal, there being no stock.

TOBACCO.—In the sales on Thursday 175 bales Japan leaf sold at 5⅜d. to 9d., one lot 2½d., 180 ditto ditto damaged 2½d. to 7½d., twenty ditto China ditto 2⅜d. to 3d., two ditto Java at 9d., fifteen ditto ditto damaged 7½d. to 7¾d.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA.—Though the former disease remorselessly attacks the young and the robust, and the latter ruthlessly selects its victims from the weak and delicate, the same medical treatment will infallibly cure both complaints. After the affected parts have been diligently fomented with hot brine, and the skin has been dried, Holloway's Ointment must well and perseveringly be rubbed in for a few minutes twice a day, and his Pills must be taken according to the printed directions wrapped round each box of his medicine. Both Ointment and Pills are accompanied by instructions designed for the public at large, and no invalid, who attentively reads them, can now be at any loss to doctor himself successfully.

The writer is evidently well acquainted with the East, and the information afforded by him is both useful and interesting.—Daily News.

The honest yet hopeful way in which practical information is communicated in these pages concerning actual life in India will awaken the dormant enterprise of young men of education and ability, whose prospects may be somewhat indifferent at home.—Globe.

A valuable little pamphlet.—Morning Post.

The author of this very sensible work appears quite at home in his subject.—Financier.

We leave the little book with much the same impression as would be derived from the conversation of an intelligent and observant man of the world.—Bullionist.

A real and practical knowledge has been brought to bear upon the subject.—Money Market Review.

The author of the above-named pamphlet, formerly editor of the Indian Examiner, and since on the staff of daily and weekly journals in London, seeks a re-engagement as editor in China, Japan, or Ceylon. Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

TIENTSIN, MAY 26, 1872.

The late floods with which we have been visited have done no particular damage to foreign houses here. The rains found out the weak places on the roofs of houses and godowns, and the water from below came through the cellars to the height of about two feet—otherwise little damage was done. About Tientsin the plain on both sides the river is still covered with water, but it is subsiding—most likely by evaporation—for hereabouts nothing has been done which should have been done in the way of drainage. Li' Hung Chang, our British Minister tells us, is an energetic man; but if so, in these quiet peaceable times, he has not shown much energy about Tientsin. The plain around us admits of easy drainage into the Peiho, and the land now under water for so long would, if drained, have produced most excellent crops, as other flooded lands in the neighbourhood have done; the cultivation of these lands would have given employment to many hundreds, and the produce of these lands would have been sufficient to feed many thousands, but the country all round the city and settlement—where we must regard drainage in a sanitary point of view—remains under water, and the consequences are now, as were to be expected, people half-starved and half-clothed and unsheltered during the inclement winter. They are now said to be dying at the rate of upwards of one hundred every day in and about the city, and ten to twelve of these poor people are being buried in a trunk at one time without coffins. Several bodies may, it is said, be seen almost daily floating down the river. During winter the poor people get only about two-thirds to three-fourths of their normal allowance of food from the mandarins. A good deal of clothing was sent up from the south, but little compared to what was required by those who had lost their all. Most of the foreign residents have generously subscribed considerable sums, which were distributed by the foreigners personally at several of the villages round Tientsin, and were most thankfully received by the poor people. On my visiting the city one day a poor man asked me if foreigners were going to do anything to assist them. I told him the foreigners had subscribed a large sum of money, which would be given to the poor by-and-by. The man said he hoped it would not be given through the mandarins, as the poor would then see but little of it. All through the winter season about one-sixth of the entire space within the city walls was covered with ice, with filthy water below. The population within the walls cannot be more than 80,000, but city and suburbs, the latter extending for miles on both sides the river, are estimated to contain in all about 500,000; as large, if not larger population, than Peking has. The latter city by travellers and residents has been variously estimated to contain from 800,000 to 900,000 souls. About the country outside the south walls of the city lie many of our brave soldiers who helped to take the Taku Forts, and who fought their way to the walls of Peking. The monuments have almost entirely disappeared, and the better-class tombstones are much defaced by the action of the frost and water. I hope the British Government will see to the stones being raised and enclosed—once the waters have subsided.

With regard to foreign affairs Mr. Low, United States Minister, has lately stood up manfully for his Treaty rights with respect to a chapel purchased by the American missionaries. The censor of the district claimed the right to prohibit foreigners from going into the Chinese city to open chapels; hitherto they had confined themselves to the Tartar city. He has several times tried hard to get Mr. Low to give it up, and give up the title deeds, but this the Minister has refused to do. The chapel has been opened, and preaching carried on in it, but the affair still remains undecided. The present censor's time of office expires in a couple of months, and it is thought the Court will, for peace sake, put in a less crotchety individual, and that Mr. Low will gain his cause. Had not the middleman in the affair—who was a convert to our English mission—been severely beaten, after Prince Kung gave his word of honour that the man should not be punished in any way, the affair might not have been carried out so bravely as it is now being done. It is only by taking a bold stand on Treaty rights—such as Mr. Low is now doing—that any good for China or the Chinese ever will be accomplished. It is to be hoped that you are correct in the statement that the new French Minister has orders to deliver into the hands of the Emperor, and into his alone, the letter of M. Thiers in answer to the Emperor's about the Tientsin massacre. Should M. Geoffroy act in accordance with his instructions, and demand an audience, he will gain a just end. Relative to this visit of the French Minister, H.E. Chung How is said to be ill at case. It is believed he has promised, or led the French to infer, that more would be granted than the Government are willing to grant.

The Emperor is to be married in October, and we may then consider he has come of age. Little of the Boy Emperor is known to foreigners; the best that is known about him is that he is self-willed, and may therefore act for himself. Augen, his late tutor now dead, was the head of the anti-foreign party and his wife and concubine are also from anti-foreign stock—whether this foreshadows the policy to be followed out remains to be seen. A change of some kind must come, and that change must be for the better. If the Emperor is of the same mind as his late tutor, a war, either native or foreign, not unlikely both, may precede the change. Some foreigners resident in Peking, who have great opportunities of knowing the state of affairs at the capital, take a hopeful view of things, and consider that material progress cannot now be much longer delayed.

I see from extracts from the Peking Gazette that it is proposed to have a line of steamers to carry the tribute grain to Tientsin, the junks being old and unserviceable. This is a step in the right direction, but I fear we have comparatively few men who are bold enough to advocate foreign improvements, although there is no doubt a good many of them who oppose while seeing the need of new appliances. On the other hand, we have a great many who are unable to see anything except that foreigners are in the way, and these do all they can to sow distrust amongst the people, even when foreigners are doing their best for the suffering poor. An instance will explain. Of money subscribed by foreigners for the relief of the poor part was used in hiring a house, making it warm and comfortable, and keeping a supply of hot water for those who cared to take up their quarters in it; the house would accommodate seventy or eighty when full. A few days after it was opened some petty mandarin spread a report that foreigners were offering to house them only for their own bad purposes, and that shortly there would be a scooping out of hearts and eyes, &c.—a repetition of the massacre story over again. The consequence was that the poor wretches demanded some 300 cash a day to go and take up their quarters in the house so kindly provided for them. They did not dare, although homeless, to disobey their mandarin, unless paid for it. So long as the officials live by squeezing, so long will it be their interest to keep the people in ignorance. Pay these officials a fair salary for their work, and let their promotion be according to merit alone, and their excuse, bad as it is, would be taken from them.

The Japanese have sent over here to have the treaty made last year readjusted, especially with reference to the offensive and defensive clause. It is also reported that the Japanese Ambassador has committed hurakiri, because his Government was not satisfied with the treaty he made. Will H.E. Chung How do the same?

The river steamer that was got out to shelter natives here has unfortunately not yet arrived at its destination, Shanghai being unable to find a vessel to bring it on to Tientsin. This delay is very disappointing to all concerned. Many of the Chinese have seen the wagon marquees, and approve of them. Several of the officials also say they are in favour of them, but until actually here and in working order little can be said as to the success or non-success of the project. Personally I believe it will eventually succeed, although opposition from interested parties may give some trouble at first.

On the Foreign Settlement, the "British Concession," as it is called, but in which all foreigners now reside, improvements are going on steadily—although not rapidly; but, unlike several others of the late new settlements, it has no vacant houses, and has ten new hongs now building for residents, besides some other less pretentious buildings.

The new French Cathedral, built on the French Concession adjoining the British Concession, is externally almost finished. The Cathedral stands in the centre of the grounds. At one end is the residence of the priests, and at the other that of the sisters and orphanage. Of foreign sisters we have unfortunately none here at present. It is also intended to build a foreign hospital, either in or adjoining the British Concession, in connection with the French Mission.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to June 9; the French mail from London April 26 was due the day this mail left. The following items of intelligence are from the Courier:—

The Customs' Gazette for the first quarter of 1872 published yesterday gives evidence of a fairly satisfactory state of trade at the ports. In articles of foreign importation there has been a falling off in the business in Grey Shirtings at the outports—Tientsin, Chefoo, and Hankow; but the imports into Shanghai for the quarter are also considerably below those of 1871. At Chinkiang the imports both of Shirtings and T-Cloths are doubled; while other kinds show little alteration. At the out-ports generally T-Cloths have improved in favour, and at Tientsin and Cheefoo there has been a large increase in these, as well as in Drills. The Northern Ports continue to take off needles in large quantities. The transit past system, by which natives and foreigners alike may avail themselves of the Treaty privilege, so long as the goods are foreign, has been made use of freely at Shanghai, Chinkiang, and Kiukiang, while at Hankow the transit business continues to be very much what it was before the new order came out. It would be difficult to estimate how much of the increase of business at Chinkiang is due to the transit pass facilities, but at Kiukiang, where an unprecedentedly large quantity of foreign goods have been sent inland under transit pass, the total quantity of foreign goods imported there in the quarter is not greater than for the corresponding period of last year. Mr. Commissioner Drew, however, partially explains this by the fact that the system was not practically introduced until after China New Year—9th February—when half the quarter was gone.

The rice trade at Swatow is reported by Mr. Huber to have been an unfortunate one, owing to over-trading. Taking the number of people who were in want of rice as "one fourth of the entire population of the Chao-chow-fu prefecture, which altogether does not exceed a million souls,"—a slight ambiguity here—"and taking the consumption of rice as being only a catty a day per head as an average"—Mr. Huber comes to the conclusion that there were not enough hungry people in the district to consume the rice that was sent, hence enormous loss, and many failures were expected among the traders. An increase in the opium duty is reported both north and south. At Swatow the le-kin of 10 taels per chest has been raised to Tls. 14, the increase going by the name of Tie-shiang, which is for the support of the troops of General Fang. This General Fang is a popular personage with the gentry of his district, for he keeps order in the country, and has put a stop to highway robberies and the clan fights which were so injurious to peaceful commerce. At Newchwang the opium tax is raised from Tls. 0.1.8.6 to Tls. 0.3.2.2 per catty, by order of Li-hung-chang; and at Chefoo it is raised from Tls. 21.2.8 to Tls. 35.7.4 per chest, to meet the expenses entailed on the authorities by the Tientsin distress of last year. This is doubtless the reason for the new levy at Newchwang also.

The meeting of the Union Steam Navigation Company was held on the 3rd June. The report—which was summarised in our last issue—recommending a dividend for the six months at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, with a bonus of 5 per cent., was carried, and the retiring directors were re-elected.

The foundation stone of the new British Consulate and Supreme Court was laid on the 1st of June. About noon the Judicial and Consular staff marched in procession towards the scene of the great fire, where the foundation-stone was waiting to be placed in its proper position. A few pieces of coin, English and Japanese (China having none), were put into a tin vessel, which was put under the stone. Miss Goodwin gracefully spread the mortar, and the stone was finally got into position amid the enthusiastic cheers of those present. In similar ceremonies at home it is usual to place along with the coins under the foundation-stone the leading newspapers of the day, but in the present instance this part of the programme was omitted. After the ceremonies the officials present were entertained by the architect at a sumptuous tiffin. We most sincerely hope that this new building will escape the melancholy fate of the old Consulate.

Mr. Douglas Cooper, who from 1862 to 1865 practised as a solicitor in the Courts of Shanghai, has recently resumed the practice of his profession at this port. Mr. R. T. Rennie, for some years the leader of our local bar, has left for Europe. Mr. R. W. M. Bird, barrister, has also left Shanghai, and his business will be carried on by Mr. Alex. Myburg.

Count Mejan, who for the past four years has been French Consul-General at Shanghai, has been transferred to a similar appointment at Havana, and Count Chappedelaine will act as Consul-General till the arrival of M. Godeau, who has received the appointment.

A singular emeute took place at Chinkiang on the 30th May. There was some kind of religious festival going forward, and people had been flocking in thousands from the surrounding districts on the two preceding days. Soon after noon on the day mentioned they thronged the bund of the foreign settlement to the number of about 3,000, probably having a look at the foreign belongings visible thereabouts. A number of foreign gentlemen were sitting on a verandah, and one of them took up a binocular glass, and was looking across the river, when some one in the crowd pointed to the foreigner, and cried that he was going to shoot. A panic at once seized the crowd, who fled along the bund towards the city, those who were able scaling the walls of the various compounds to seek shelter behind. But when no report of a gun followed, the people gradually gained confidence and returned. So far the affair would have been harmless; but, unfortunately, in the stampede old people and children were thrown down and trodden under foot, and we hear of at least one life lost, and many severe injuries were inflicted. A great number also were robbed. In about half-an-hour after the first alarm a second panic was created by a cry being raised that the notorious Chen-kwo-jui and his old confederate, but now mortal enemy, Li, were coming with their braves to fight it out on the foreign Bund. Again the people fled; again the infirm were trodden on, and again many robberies were committed. The explanation given of these occurrences seems very probable:—viz., that they are caused by a band of Yangchow desperadoes at present infesting Chinkiang for the purpose of plundering. With the same object fires are got up in the city almost every night.

The cups given by the brokers as a Prize for club fours at the last autumn S. R. C. Regatta have recently arrived from England. They are exceedingly massive and elegant, and all the particulars of the victory are engraved on each.

H.M. gunboats Cochchafer and Firm were sold at auction, on the 3rd June, the former realising $5,600; the latter $5,800.

A case of some interest has been decided in the Supreme Court. Messrs. Geo. Barnet and Co. sold to a Chinaman a parcel of T-Cloths which should have had three pink stripes in the margin, whereas it turned out they had only two. A portion had been delivered. The contract contained a clause that there was to be no claim made for any difference after delivery was taken. The plaintiff, however, claimed for loss on the whole lot. Defendants had on discovering the difference as to the stripes (though it seems the actual value of the goods delivered was the same as that claimed under the contract) paid into Court Tls. 60 as compensation on the portion not taken delivery of. His Lordship ruled that the clause in the contract concerning the delivery rendered it impossible to claim on the portion taken away, and with regard to those still in godown the jury awarded the sum of Tls. 60 paid into Court.

The eclipse of the sun on the 6th June was well seen, for a fair portion of the time it lasted, though the weather was cloudy at times. It was at its height at about 11 A.M., when nearly a quarter of the sun's disc was obscured.

HONG KONG.

Advices extend to June 15; the French mail from London, April 26, arrived out on the 8th, and the following P. and O. mail of May 3 on June 9. The weeks' news contains few items of interest to home readers. We take the following from the columns of the China Mail and the Daily Press:—

Apropos of the opening of Hainan to foreign trade, somewhat startling intelligence of a revolt has just reached us from native sources. A correspondent of the Hong Kong Chinese Mail writes that on May 25 the inhabitants of Tam Chow, a large town south-west of K'iung Chow, rose against the officials, and that the Ling Shan district city has fallen into the hands of the insurgents. We understand that pressing application has been made to the Viceroy of Canton for aid, which will, it is presumed, necessitate the services of some of the steam gunboats. We are not aware of the exact importance of the outbreak, but, judging from the fact of help being asked from Canton, are inclined to believe it to be serious. Can the news that K'iung Chow has been thrown open to the barbarian have anything to do with it?

A meeting of shareholders in the Union Steam Navigation Company was held on June 3rd. The accounts showed a net profit on the half-year ended in March last of Tls. 66,031, raising the net disposable balance at the end of the year to Tls. 89,330. It was resolved to declare a dividend of 6 per cent. for the half-year, to return the usual bonus of 5 per cent. to contributing shareholders, and to write off Tls. 16,450 from the value of the Glengyle, carrying forward the balance of Tls. 49,880. The Rona account is not yet closed; only Tls. 63,000 of the Tls. 75,000 at which she was valued is recoverable from insurance; but the remaining Tls. 12,000 must not be considered a clear loss, as she had made two profitable trips in the interval. Messrs. Francis, Brown, Ringer, Hayes, Hip Mow-hong and Amook were re-elected directors.

Mr. Baber has taken charge of the Tamsui Consulate, Mr. Fraser going home on leave. We learn that Tamsui is fast becoming an important port. The indigo fields have this year been planted with tea, which ensures three years' tea trade. The tea production has been rapidly increasing for the last five years, and promises to attain very large proportions. Oolong is the only variety, and most of it finds its way to the United States. Two new houses have been established, and altogether both foreigners and natives are jubilant.

A visit has been paid by Sir Arthur Kennedy to St. Saviour's College, the Hon. C. C. Smith and Captain O'Callaghan accompanying him. The English, Portuguese, and Chinese schools were inspected by the Governor, who expressed himself obliged for the courtesy showed by the Principal and the other gentlemen attached to the institution.

The P. M. S. Company's steamer Colorado, which leaves on the 27th June, will be the first of the fortnightly service. Curiously, too, she was the first which crossed from San Francisco to China, so she deserves to be the pioneer vessel in this extended development of American enterprise.

We learn that the American ship Congress has been arrested at Swatow by the authorities, for an infringement of the laws relating to the carrying of coolies. We also learn that proceedings have been instituted against people connected with the affair.

The Cobra de Capellos are beginning to show themselves, two specimens having been caught at a compound a little distance up the hill westward and one at Kowloong.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings dates from this port to the 24th June; the outward P. and O. mail of May 17 was received on the 16th June, and the following French mail of 24th May was hourly expected. We are indebted to the Singapore Daily Times for the following items of intelligence:—

We understand the Government is about to put the Contagious Diseases Ordinance into operation, working by degrees, so as not to excite opposition. As the object is only to benefit those who will be affected by it, there is no ground for alarm, or for serious opposition to it.

The members of the Exchange have taken into consideration the suggestion of making every Wednesday a half-holiday for the next five months, or so long as the arrival of outward and homeward mails necessitate work on Sunday. The proposal was unanimously agreed to, and every godown will henceforth be closed on every Wednesday at one o'clock accordingly.

The steamer Luzon has, we learn, been purchased by Chinese merchants here for $8,400, and is now undergoing repair. She will probably ply between Singapore and Penang. The British steamer Sunfoo has been purchased by the Singapore Steamship Company for the sum of £35,000, and it is intended to run between Singapore and Jeddah.

Singapore is to be honoured with a visit fron His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Alexis Alexandrovitch of Russia, who is on his way in the Russian frigate Svetland, attended by the Imperial Russian Squadron. He is expected here in a few days hence. Singapore will, we trust, give his Royal Highness a fitting reception.

Mr. Fentum, who has been so long and favourably known in the community as the organist of St. Andrew's Cathedral and a professional musical instructor, and to whom the public are indebted for a number of excellent musical soirees, has given a farewell concert at the Town-hall, previous to his departure for Shanghai. The entertainment was under the patronage of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Ord, and was an excellent one.

In the latest number of the Sarawak Gazette there is an item of news that may prove of interest in connection with the suggestion of ex-Governor Hennessey to incorporate Labuan with the Straits Settlements. The Gazette says the loss of the Sooloo trade to Labuan was owing partly to the war with Spain and partly to restrictions imposed by the late Governor's creation of monopolies of opium and tobacco. It is well known that no very good feeling existed between the Sarawak authorities and Governor Hennessey, and the latter's policy has been unsparingly criticised. It may be, however, that there is a great deal of truth in the charges made against him, and should the question of the union be taken up by the Colonial-office, the most searcking inquiry should be made, no merely to ascertain whether the revenue of Labuan is at present sufficient to cover the expenditure, but the effects of the policy of its late Governor upon its trade and future prospects.

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Manufactured Cotton Goods.—Owing to the extremely high rates for Sterling Paper, holders had readily submitted to a decline of a few candareens per piece in order to effect sales for cash, and a fair business had consequently been done in most articles. Grey Shirtings were in steady demand at Tls. 1.8.3 to 1.9.2 for 8.4 lb. chops, and Tls. 1.6.4 to 1 6.7 for 7 lb. White Shirtings and T-Cloths were also saleable to a fair extent at a fall of about 2 candareens per piece on last quotations. Values of Drills showed little change; English were quoted Tls. 3. to 3.1.0, Dutch Tls. 2.9.0 to 2.9.7, and a small sale of

P. M. C. American cloth was reported at Tls. 3.4.7. In Woollens and Fancy Cottons no alteration of importance had transpired.

HONG KONG.—Fair settlements of Raw Cotton had been made at previous rates. Cotton Yarns were receiving some attention, and were firmly held. Manufactured Cotton Goods had been but sparingly taken, and values were unchanged. Blankets were still wanted. Metals had been comparatively neglected.

SAIGON.—The market was almost unaltered; the demand was somewhat better, but transactions had only been made amongst the Chinese. Quotations were as follows:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.70 per piece; 7 lbs., $2.35 to 2.40. Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.70 to 2.75; No. 120, $1.60 to 2.65. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.75; 5 lbs., $1.50; 4¼ lbs., $1.30; 4 lbs., $1.10.

SINGAPORE.—The market had shown little or no alteration. The closing quotations were—40s Mule Twist, $137½. 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, $2.60; 7 lbs., $2.22½. 5 lbs. T-Cloths, $1.40 to 1.37½; 6 lbs., $1.72½; 7 lbs., $1.90. Cambrics, 15s and 16s, $32½.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report of June 4 says:—Since May 27 settlements (at exch. 6s. 5d., and frt. £5, adding Tls. 3 for duty, &c.) have been made as follows:—5,569 chests, 14,724 half-chests, 4,838 boxes at Tls. 25 to 32; 7,611 chests, 11,701 half-chests, 3,490 boxes, at Tls. 20 to 24½; 1,160 chests, 6,914 half-chests, at Tls. 14 to 17; 1,386 chests, 882 half-chests, contracts; total 15,726 chests, 34,221 half-chests, 8,328 boxes. Ningchows have ruled from Tls. 24½ to 32; Oonfars, Tls. 23 to 29; Cheong-sow-kais, Tls. 24½ to 27; Soong-yongs, Tls. 22½ to 30; Yong-low-toongs, Tls. 22 to 25½; Flavoury Oonams, Tls. 20 to 25.60; and Shuntams, Tls. 14 to 17 per picul. Total settlements to date as compared with the same number of days last year are:—113,893 chests, 192,836 half-chests, 75,737 boxes; against 156,102 chests, 95,123 half-chests, 21,283 boxes. Shipments to Shanghai on native account 7,700 chests, against 17,500 chests. Stocks 30,000 chests, against 21,000 chests. We previously advised an advance in prices of about two taels; this was maintained for several days, but since the departure of the steamers we make the market easier. There is however very little Tea with quality now on offer. The later arrivals of Shuntam kinds are very inferior, and they are only realising about Tls. 14 per picul. The delivery of chops inferior to chest muster has been so general that meetings have been held by the native brokers and the foreign community to propose some means by which it may be checked next year. The result of these proceedings is not yet officially announced, but with the assistance of the Consuls and the native authorities it is thought quite possible to prevent in future the transit of chest musters from the Tea districts in advance of the full chops. A great many of the Shanghai buyers have now returned and we look for a quiet business in the coming fortnight. During the week the Hong Kong, Gordon Castle, and Parnassus have left the port, leaving only the Galley of Lorne, which is loading for Shanghai, and the Russian steamer Tchihatchoff.

SHANGHAI.—Black: During the past week a moderate business had taken place on this market, settlements equivalent to 3,348 chests being reported. The larger proportion of the purchases consisted of Hohows, at prices ranging from Tls. 21½ to 24 for fair medium to medium to Tls. 28½ for fine, and a few parcels fine Ningchow had been taken at Tls. 32½ to 34. Reshipments had been 3,800 chests, and the stock (not including some 15,000 chests in course of shipment), was about 30,000 chests. Green: Two chops new Pingsuey, equal to 877 half-chests, had been taken at Tls. 66 and Tls. 42 respectively, the former parcel being of very fine quality and assortment; musters of ten chops were on the market. So far as could be judged the Teas were about equal in make to those of last year, but fresher and of better quality in water. For New York the clipper ship Chinaman had been circulated at £4 per ton of 40 feet. For London, the steamers Colombo, Diomed, Cheops, and Enterprise, are loading at this; and the Drummond Castle and Hong Kong were the only steamers from Hankow with disengaged space; rate £5 from Hankow and £4 from Shanghai per ton of 40 feet. The following clippers were circulated at £4 per ton of 50 feet:—Cutty Sark, Argonaut, Thermopylæ, Undine, and Lahloo.

FOOCHOW.—Since the date of our last week's report—June 2—there had been continued activity, the daily settlements averaging over 9,000 chests Congou. Prices had not materially changed, although there had been a downward tendency all the time which had encouraged settlements. Arrivals of Congou to date amounted to 260,000 chests, and it was thought that 50,000 to 60,000 chests more would complete the supply of first crop, so that the second crop would be coming to market in two or three weeks from date. Already they were picking the second crop in the Pakling district, we hear, buyers having left this port for the purpose of purchasing second crop leaf. Finest Souchongs had been taken at Tls. 35.8 to 38.8 o.b., or at about last season's figures. Some of the chops compared favourably with last season's, but there were hardly enough parcels on hand to judge correctly of the crop. Oolongs continued to be taken (as we understand, for England) at Tls. 23.8 to 32.8 o.b. for common to superior cargo. Arrivals to date amounted to nearly 20,000 half-chests; but it would seem as if the Teamen were sending down their worst parcels first, for nothing strictly deserving the name of fine had made its appearance. The teas to hand were rough in appearance and more or less wanting, and many smoky in liquor. Scented teas had met with moderate inquiry. Energetic measures were being taken to settle the dust question, and it was stated on good authority that both the English and American Consuls at this port were endeavouring to induce the local mandarins to waive altogether the internal tax on dust and siftings, in order that teamen might be induced to bring them for sale separately instead of mixing with the whole leaf. This duty levied on Tea not being ad valorem makes the dust cost relatively more than higher grades laid down at this port; but whether the Consuls succeed or not, it was believed that Oolongs would be cleaner this season than of late. It is reported that highs price were being paid for Oolong leaf up country in consequence of the abolition of the duty in the United States, but the report is doubtless somewhat exaggerated. The steamers Canton, Glengyle and Achilles had sailed, the Statesman would follow on the 11th June, and the Lord of the Isles was loading. The steamer Colombo had been circulated to call at this port for Tea. The sailing vessel Duke of Abercorn was said to be fully engaged at £4 per ton.

AMOY.—The market was opened on the 6th June; purchases had since been actively proceeded with, all desirable parcels having been settled. Prices were very irregular, but were higher than last year. It was difficult to form an exact idea of the advance, as the Teas were finer and much more desirable than last year, owing to the diminution of the proportion of dust, but it was considered, as an extreme, to be about $4 to 5 per picul on grades under finest, and $5 to 8 on the choice and choicest kinds. Many Teas, however, had been bought under, but none over these figures. Opening rates were $38½ per picul for a parcel a little better than superior cargo, and purchases up to date had, on an average, been on a par with these. Settlements were stated at 30,000 half-chests, about a third of which had been "to arrive." Quotations were: Good cargo, $29 to 34; superior, $35 to 39; fine, $40 to 45; finest, $47 to 50; choice and choicest, $52 to 60. Arrivals to date had been 20,384 half-chests. Congous had not been dealt in and no offers had been made for them. In quality they were much the same as last year; arrivals had been 2,366 half-chests.

CANTON.—The market remained quiet, and prices were a shade easier. The quality of the musters shown continued poor, and a further decline in rates was expected to take place before any considerable amount of business could be done.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—A comparatively large business had been done, the settlements aggregating 2,000 bales. The prices paid showed a decline of Tls. 5 to Tls. 10 on the opening figures, but this fall had been more than counterbalanced by the further advance in Sterling Exchange. With regard to quality the opinion expressed was the same as that referred to in our last issue, the further arrivals having apparently the same faults as were then spoken of. Total settlements since the opening of the market had been 3,500 bales, and the unsold stock was estimated at 3,500 bales.

CANTON.—No change had taken place in the state of the market; some further contracts had been entered into, the particulars of which had not been made public. Several musters of second crop had arrived, but they were not very clean; an improvement in quality, however, was anticipated later on. The present (French) mail steamer took 210 bales. Since the opening of the season some 300 to 400 bales No. 2 waste had been purchased at $70 to 71. Quotations were unchanged.

Staff Captain Jabez Loane has been appointed Master Attendant and Queen's Harbour-master at Chatham dockyard. He served in the Driver in the Yangtaze river in 1842, and was second master of the Agincourt, 72, flagship, in the East Indies, and in charge of the second barge in the expedition to Bruni, Borneo, and subsequent service in 1846, for which he was promoted to the rank of Master. In 1857 he was appointed to the Princess Charlotte on the China station, and in 1858 removed into the Calcutta, flagship, on the same station. He subsequently obtained command of the Hesper storeship, also at China, and remained in her until appointed, in 1860, acting Master Attendant at Hong Kong, which post he held until 1861. He was then transferred to the home station, and has since 1869 held the post of Assistant Master Attendant at Portsmouth dockyard.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 24.

The thermometer marks ninety degrees in the shade, and the heat is quite insupportable and makes one quite unfit for work. Everything has come to a standstill; politicians have left the Hague to recruit themselves in the mountain-air of Switzerland and Italy, and merchants and bourse-men are following their example. There is thus a lull in both politics and commerce, and even the issue of the monster loan of the French Republic is not sufficiently attractive to induce financial men to remain in town. All who have the means and the opportunity are leaving their occupations to find a refuge from the heat. Notwithstanding the excessively high temperature our public health continues good. Of cholera and other contagious diseases peculiar to the season nothing is heard, except that the Asiatic epidemic is raging in St. Petersburg, and that fears are entertained that it will reach Berlin, where the authorities are terribly careless in sanitary matters. It might have been reasonably hoped that the knowledge of these facts would serve as a warning to our Government to take such measures as should prevent the introduction of the epidemic through our seaports, but up to this moment we hear nothing about the enforcement of the necessary quarantine regulations.

The only member of the new Ministry who has shown any sign of life is Mr. van Limburg Stirum. Your readers will remember the scandalous behaviour of Lieutenant Keyser, who was formerly in garrison in Leeuwarden. The late Minister of the War Department was of opinion that he possessed no power to summon that officer before a military tribunal. Mr. Stirum, however, has other ideas with regard to the matter; in a very short time Lieutenant Keyser's shortcomings will be submitted to the judgment of his brother officers. Of course this question must seem to your readers to be one of but little importance, but I can assure you that here it is regarded as a concession to outraged public feeling, and the measure taken by the Minister proves that he is a promoter of right and justice, and that he possesses firmness of character. The Minister of the Colonial Department, Mr. Fransen van de Putte, remains at Marienbad. Rumours were current during the early days of his accepting office that he intended to change his Secretary General, but it is now evident that they were without foundation. If Mr. van de Putte had any intention of appointing a new Secretary General he would not linger so long at a watering place. The Conservative press is spreading the rumour that Jhr. Sypestein will be charged by the Minister of the Colonial Department with a mission of high importance. We are at a loss what this may mean. The new functions of this member of the Opposition are not named, we are only assured that they will oblige him to give up his seat as M.P. It becomes more and more probable that the members of the Lower House will not meet before the opening of the new session, and I am glad to state that it is now almost certain that Mr. Otto van Rees will then appear among the members. He is practically the only candidate in this district.

I regret to state that in several towns more or less serious strikes are being organised. I think, however, that in the end they will be of slight consequence, notwithstanding that our Conservative and Ultramontane papers are crying out almost every day that we must prepare ourselves for the Commune when the leading members of the Internationale Society hold their forthcoming Congress in the Hague. But our nation is too cool, too prudent to take much notice of the clamorous proceedings of these social revolutionists.

The Thorbecke meeting has been held at Utrecht, and it was decided that a monument should be erected in the Hague to the memory of the great statesman. Very strange and curious projects (viz., to make dry land of the Zuyderzee, and to name the new province thus created Thorbecke; to provide every Dutch town with a statue of the late statesman, &c.) were brought forward, but they, of course, were dropped. I regret that there is still a vehement opposition displayed against the Bill granting the daughters of the late Minister a pension of f.4,000, This is not creditable to the Opposition press.

De Standaard tells us the news that Prince Frederic will shortly resign his office as Grand Master of the Freemasons, and that another Prince will be elected in his place. Who this latter Royal personage may be I don't know, because I hear that none of them are members of the craft. Another report says that Mr. Sloet van de Beele is the Grand Master in spe.

Scheveningen, our beautiful watering-place, is crowded; amongst the many strangers there is Mr. Ruysenares, our Consul-General in Egypt. Some days ago he dined with the Queen, whose illness has passed away.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

There is not much alteration to report in the general feature of our market for Colonial and Foreign produce, the business done having been upon a limited scale, and prices of most articles remain the same. The Trading Company's July sale of Java Sugar took place at Amsterdam yesterday, and gave a satisfactory result.

COFFEE remains in a healthy position, and rather more inquiry has prevailed to meet the consumptive wants. The reservedness of holders concurs to impart great firmness to prices, and good ordinary Java is not on sale under 47c. The business done since my last embraces 1,520 bags ex County of Ayr, 400 ditto ex Susanna Johanna, 104 bags Macassar ex Macassar.

SUGAR has remained very quiet, in anticipation of the Trading Company's July sale of 65,256 baskets Java, held at Amsterdam, which has gone off at the following prices:—

No. 5...	... —	No. 9	... —	No. 13	... f.36½	No. 17	... f.37

„ 8...	... —	„ 12	... 35½	„ 16	... 36⅝	„ 20	... 37

According to these prices the value of the Dutch standard has been fixed by the brokers as follows, to which I add, for the sake of comparison, the currency established at the late March and May sales:—

Monetary and Commercial.

The result of the first ten days' working of the new tariff on the Suez Canal was that on thirty four vessels which passed, the receipts amounted to f.574,520; under the former system the sum would have been f.384,890; the increase consequently has been f.189,630, or over 49 per cent. The hearing of the suit brought by the Messageries Maritimes, contesting the right of the Canal company to make the change, has been postponed.

The directors of the London and County Banking Company have decided on paying the usual dividend of 6 per cent., with a bonus of 4 per cent., being together 10 per cent. for the half year ending 30th June last, and equal to 20 per cent. per annum, carrying forward £10,634 to profit and loss new account. A dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum is recommended in the report of the London and Provincial Bank. The available balance for the half year is £7,766 4s. 10d.

The report of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company for the year ending the 30th June last states that the underwriting accounts have resulted in a profit of £97,000, and of this sum it is proposed to carry £25,000 to the reserve fund, which will then amount to £225,000. The directors recommend a dividend of 2s. per share and a bonus of 6s., making, with the distribution on account in January last, 10s. per share, or 25 per cent. for the year.

At the meeting of the Credit Foncier of England, the directors will recommend the payment of a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, being 2 per cent. more than last year, and that £50,000 shall be added to the reserve fund, thus increasing it to £100,000.

The official liquidators of the London, Bombay, and Mediterranean Bank (Limited) have, with the sanction of Vice-Chancellor Wickens, declared a third dividend of 1s. in the pound (making 4s. 6d. in the pound).

Bar Silver is lower in price, and may be quoted as 60 1-16d. per oz. standard. The supplies on the market are very small. Mexican Dollars are scarce, and prices remain as last quoted.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

Trade from first hands has been rather slow, and the market is quiet at previously ruling prices. A public sale, comprising some 6,000 half chests Green, Oolong and Japan, has been held, but, as the offerings consisted for the most part of undesirable parcels made up of broken invoices and odds and ends, the bidding was without spirit, and only about one-third of the catalogue was worked off. Under the circumstances, the prices realised affords little or no criterion of the market. We annex the particulars. 332 half chests Hyson sold at 31½c. to 59½c.; 446 do. Young Hyson, 50c. (to 90½c.; 551 do. Gunpowder, 49c. to 96c.; 244 do. Imperial, 36c. to 78c.; 215 do. Oolong, 40c. to 68c.; 267 do. Souchong, 16c. to 45c.; and 125 do. Congou, 45c.

Coffee.—There is still little or no inquiry for Brazil from first hands, though dealers are distributing a fair amount of stock; the demand, however, since the 1st inst., has been scarcely up to the expectations that were formed previous to the removal of the duty. Stocks are held firmly, notwithstanding the absence of demand, importers being strengthened by the receipt of mail advices from Rio to 11th ult., noting higher values and a firm market there, and subsequent telegrams quote the enhanced prices maintained. The receipts there, however, are increasing, from which we infer that the new crop is beginning to come forward. The demand for Java is confined to jobbing lots, at unchanged prices, viz., 19½c. to 20c., for Government 20c. to 22c., for mats. Singapore is quoted 16c. to 18c., Manila 17½c. to 18c. Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. The withdrawals from warehouse since the 1st July have been Padang, 177,594 mats; Batavia, 49,176; Singapore, 10,276; Samarang, 6,059; Ceylon, 7,116 bags; Ceylon, 602 casks.

Cordage.—The market is steady at the following prices:—Manila, sizes above 12-thread, 19½c.; 6-thread and 9-thread (¼ inch and 5-16 inch diam.), 20½c.; 12-thread (⅜ inch diam.), 20c.; Manila Hay Rope, 20c.; do. Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 21½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 22½c.; Tarred Manila, 19c.; fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 20½c.; Sisal Rope, sizes above 12-thread, 17c.; 6-thread and 9-thread, 18c.; 12-thread and Hay Rope, 17½c.

Camphor.—China is quoted 18c. gold in bond.

China Preserved Ginger rules at $8.25 currency, duty (50 per cent. ad val.) paid.

Essential Oils.—Aniseed is quoted $2.75 to 2.87½ gold, and Cassia $2.12½ gold, duty paid.

Fire Crackers.—Nothing doing; quotations nominal.

Hemp.—In Manila there has been some movement within the past three days, the sales embracing 2,000 bales from store at about the rates previously current, viz., 12c. to 12½c. gold.

Indigo.—Market very quiet at 95c. to $1 currency for Manila.

Rice.—Rangoon is in fair demand at $7 to 7.37½ currency duty paid, and $3.20 to 3.25 gold in bond.

Sugar.—There has been an improved demand, a concession in prices, together with quickened movement and better returns for refined goods, having induced refiners to stock more freely. The offerings have been pretty large, and the market is somewhat irregular, especially on refining grades. We have no transactions to report in East India descriptions.

Spices.—There is little or no demand for whole parcels for consumption, and the market is heavy. For Pepper there continues to be some inquiry for export, and sales have been made of 2,000 bags Singapore and 300 bags Sumatra in bond, on private terms. Mace is held with more confidence, owing to an advance of 4d. to 6d. in the European markets. Nutmegs and Cassia are dull and weak. Cloves, Stems, and Zanzibar Red Peppers are firm, with an upward tendency. The additional accounts from Zanzibar leave no room for doubt but that the supply of Cloves and Clove Stems thence will be small for the next three or four years. Pepper is steady. The distributing demand is very moderate. We notice sales to the trade of Mace at $1.15 to $1.22½; Nutmegs, 88 to 90 cents: Pepper, 17 for Sumatra and 18 for Singapore; White Pepper, 35; Cloves, 19½ to 20¼; Stems 9½; Mace, 10¼; and China Cassia, 26 to 26½, all gold.

Tin.—The market is a little firmer, Straits being held at 35 to 35½ cents gold for August delivery, and 36 to 36½ on the spot.

MORE MISSIONARY MISTAKES IN CHINA.

THE Roman Catholic missionaries in China are either very unwise or extremely unfortunate. To the minds of most people the Tientsin tragedy would be deemed of a kind not easily to be forgotten, and the lessons it inculcated not lightly to be ignored; and yet, before even the negotiations to which it gave rise are completed, instances are reported from different parts of China of the repetition on the part of the missionaries of two principal indiscretions which led up to that terrible outbreak. From Chin-Keang we learn that the appearance at that city of a boat containing Père MASSA and a number of orphan children, on their way from Yangchow to an orphanage at Tantu, gave rise to a report that the cargo was the result of a fortunate kidnapping expedition. This was enough to set the whole town in an uproar. The boat was attacked, the crew were made prisoners, and the children were taken under the friendly protection of the mob. Père MASSA, on the first symptoms of disturbance, rushed off to his Consul, and afterwards to the District Magistrate, from whom he received protection and shelter. Meanwhile, the children were removed to some native orphanages in the town. Fortunately, thus far the affair passed off without any serious consequence; but the necessity of extreme caution in all that relates to orphanages cannot be too strongly impressed on the Roman Catholic missionaries. Foreigners are perfectly aware of the uprightness of their intentions, but Chinamen are not; and as the good opinion of the latter is more important than the approbation of the former, it behoves them to avoid outraging their prejudices, however mistaken they may be. The other report to which we have referred reaches us from Peking, and is to the effect that much irritation has been felt in the capital by a claim advanced by the Roman Catholic missionaries for the possession of some land, which in former times belonged to their Jesuit brethren. This is also a question which requires most careful handling; and, as in another massacre even the same amount of discretion as was exercised at Tientsin in the choice of the victims may not be observed, we should be glad to hear of a display of a little more forbearance and a great deal more wisdom on the part of the priests.

FORMOSA.

ALL our experience of China goes to furnish a remarkable illustration of the truth of the adage that—"Second thoughts are best." Some two years ago a proposal was very nearly being carried into effect—the Formosan Consulates would have been dis-established, and that fertile island and its resources consequently closed to our trade. Against this proposition Mr. ARCHER W. HEWLETT, Acting Consul at Taiwan, had the courage to protest, in a report, in which he explained the resources of the island, and drew the most encouraging inferences from the prospect of our future trade and intercourse with it, provided, of course, that our relations with it were not suspended. In consequence of Mr. HEWLETT'S timely remonstrance and the representations of the London merchants engaged in the China trade, the disestablishment of the Consulates was postponed. The result has proved the utter shortsightedness of the officials who would tamper with, and endeavour to circumscribe, British trade in the Far East. It is now some 180 years ago since the unprincipled genius known as GEORGE PSALMANAZAR passed himself off as a Formosan convert, educated by the Jesuits, and imposed upon no inconsiderable section of English learned society a pretended language, alphabet, and grammar of that island, together with a new division of the year into twenty months and a new religion, which he said prevailed among the natives. How this PSALMANAZAR'S ignorance was detected by his being requested to translate a passage from CICERO into his pretended Formosan language twice—the first copy being withheld while he attempted to execute the second—the elder DISRAELI has told us; but it is doubtful whether the ignorance of PSALMANAZAR concerning the island was half so injurious to the world as the unreflecting blindness which recently prompted the disestablishment of our Consulates there. Every line in Mr. HEWLETT'S latest report—which will be found included in our general resume of the China Consular Reports—goes to prove the sagacity with which he discerned the opening development of trade and intercourse with Formosa, if they were duly encouraged and protected. It is not too much to say that Mr. HEWLETT has added to—or at least has prevented being removed from—the commerce of the world an island which would have been deserted by the Western Powers, of whom we are supposed to be the pioneers. We will not detract from the importance of Mr. HEWLETT'S services in this matter by another word of comment on the report in which he describes Formosa as "a country which already imports no small amount "of the productions of Great Britain and its possessions, "which offers great scope for British industry and enter-"prise, and which promises to afford another outlet for the "increasing wants of our mercantile marine." We hope that something in Taiwan will be named after the man, who foresaw its value to the Western world; and, on that place, when he who founded it shall have departed, may well be placed a tablet in the words of the epitaph of the great architect—"Si monumentum quæris circumspice."

THE REPORT ON THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

THE Report on the Diplomatic and Consular Services, a résumé of which will be found in another column, illustrates a curious phase in our Parliamentary system. As long ago as 1858 a Parliamentary Committee was appointed to inquire into the condition of the services above mentioned. After long consideration and lengthy examinations of numerous witnesses a report was framed in which, while the general efficiency of the services was well spoken of, certain recommendations were made—amongst others, that a system of Consular education and promotion should be established, and that the Consular service should be organised and classified. From the report of the present Committee it appears that no notice has been taken of these suggestions, and, in fact, that the recommendations of the 1858 Committee have never been seriously taken in hand or considered by the Foreign-office. The probable fate, thus foreshadowed, of the result of their own deliberations, coupled with the very contradictory nature of much of the evidence which was brought before them, seems to have robbed the present Committee of all inclination to advocate any but very half-hearted measures. They reiterate some of the recommendations of the former Committee, and referring especially to China and Japan, "they think the frequent "changes in the amounts of salaries attached to higher posts "are unsatisfactory and discouraging, and owing to the un-"healthiness of the climates, they recommend a special system "of superannuation." This is well so far as it goes, but there appears to be a tendency throughout the report to suggest a reduction in the number of Consular officers employed, and this must only be listened to on the understanding that the other part of the recommendation, viz., that the pay of those who remain in the service be increased, will be carried out. Sir HARRY PARKES affirmed that the Consulates in Japan were efficiently worked with a smaller staff than in China. And it is possible that under a new system a small reduction might be made in the number of officers employed in the latter country. It is well known, however, that for years the Consular officials in China have considered themselves aggrieved at the low rate of pay they received, and at the general want of consideration which has been shown towards them. Men in this frame of mind are not likely to do more work than they are obliged to, but it is possible that were the Government to issue a more liberal scale of pay, and to provide—as recommended by the Committee—a special system of superannuation, they might find the work performed with equal efficiency, with fewer men, and at, perhaps, a smaller cost. We fear, however, that in all probability the recommendations of the present Committee will meet with as little consideration as did those of the Committee which sat in 1858, and that the only good which will arise from their investigations will be to show Parliamentary economists that no further reduction can be made in the pay of men who are serving their country faithfully, and who are risking health and life in an ill-paid and ill-constituted service.

THE PEKING HOSPITAL.

HOSPITALS are the only institutions of foreign growth which Chinamen can be brought to regard with unmixed approval. The Merchants' Hong is in their eyes the foremost foe to their cherished policy of exclusiveness, and in the missionary schools and churches they see, or fancy they see, thanks to the mistaken conduct of the French priests, hotbeds of sedition and temples of unholy rites. To a Chinaman's mind the idea of men rendering the gratuitous services of a lifetime for the good of their fellow-creatures is so entirely foreign that, when undoubted cases of such disinterestedness is forced on his attention, he is all the more likely, in the words of Captain CUTTLE, "to make a note of them." The object with which merchants come to China is obvious enough; and just sufficient ground has been given by the French Missionaries for the suspicion which is so widely spread among the Chinese that the real aim of their labours in China is to secure for themselves an earthly as well as a heavenly crown. But not even the most jealous son of HAN can attribute to the medical superintendents of the hospitals which are now dotted about at the foreign Settlements any motives than those of the purest philanthropy. The continuance and growth of this feeling is of importance with regard to our future relations with China, and nowhere is its encouragement more essential than in the capital from whence is directed the course of political action throughout the Empire. "The Tenth Annual Report of the Peking Hospital for 1871," which lies before us, encourages us to hope that in addition to the relief which has been afforded to suffering humanity at Peking, this end has been largely attained. Dr. DUDGEON announces in its pages the receipt of the two first Chinese donations in money which have been received since the foundation of the hospital. This is a hopeful sign, and though, owing to various causes—the Tientsin massacres, and the floods which inundated the country around Peking during the winter months of last year among others—the numbers of patients prescribed for during 1871 shows a falling off compared with the numbers attended in 1869, being 10,128, against 14,420 of the latter year, yet here is abundant evidence to show that increased confidence in the skill and philanthropic motives of the foreign doctor is gaining ground among all classes in Peking. Unlike all individual attempts to improve the moral and social condition of the Chinese which are confined to the few who can be immediately reached, the hospitals prove centres from whence are carried to all parts of the Empire by restored patients the enlightening influences of Christianity and science. Thus year by year an ever-widening circle of the most useful knowledge is spread throughout the length and breadth of the land. To be engaged in such a work is to fulfil a noble mission, and we congratulate Dr. DUDGEON on the success which is attending the part he is playing in this great undertaking.

REPORT ON THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

We have received the Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the Diplomatic and Consular Services; the following is a résumé of the contents:—

In 1858 a committee sat for the same purpose, and the r report which was of a favourable character with regard to the efficiency of the service, was accompanied by the following recommendations:—

1. The establishment of a system of Consular education and promotion, chiefly with the view of preventing the necessity of employing any other than British subjects in the Levant and North Africa.
2. That Consuls should be prohibited from trading
3. Diminution of the number of Vice-Consuls in Europe, and gradual abolition of their licenses to trade.
4. Organisation and classification of the service.
5. Appropriation of all fees to Government account (except in case of unpaid Consuls) and collection of those fees by means of stamps if practicable.
6. Revision of Consular instructions.

The evidence given by Mr. Hammond, Under-Secretary State, and Mr. Wylde and Mr. Murray, of the Foreign-office, hav now tended to show:—

1. That during the last fourteen years no steps have been taken to establish any system of education and promotion such as was recommended.
2. Prohibition to trade has become the general rule of the service; but it does not appear that any general rule has been laid down which would separate the places where a salaried Consul prohibited from trading is or is not required.
3. The dimnuition of the number of Vice-Consuls seems to have been going on, but not in any regular or comprehensive plan.
4. Nothing has been done as to organisation or classification of the service.
5. The payment of fees into the Exchequer has only been imperfectly and occasionally enforced.

The recommendations of the former Committee never having been seriously taken in hand or considered by the Foreign-office, the present Committee consider that paid Consuls should be separated by some definite mark or title from those whose unpaid services are accepted, and that, until this is done, it is impossible to make use of unpaid service to the extent required without raising the objections of rival merchants.

In China, Japan, and Siam (the Report proceeds) the well-known close system of entry, education, and promotion works well. It appears beyond question from the evidence of Sir H. Parkes that the Consulates in Japan are efficiently worked with a smaller staff than in China. Mr. Medhurst recommends the abolition of the class of interpreters, and the amalgamation of the office of Chief Judge of the Supreme Court of Shanghai with that of Hong Kong. Sir Rutherford Alcock would reduce the number of students at Peking to six. Mr. Alabaster, late Acting Consul at Bangkok, considers there should be a marked reduction in the establishment in Siam. All the witnesses, however, complain of the inadequacy of the pay, especially in the case of juniors; they think the frequent changes in the amounts of salaries attached to higher posts are unsatisfactory and discouraging, and, owing to the unhealthiness of the climates, they recommend a special system of superannuation.

Mr. Brackenbury, H.M.'s Consul at Lisbon, thinks that the more nearly our Consular service is assimilated to that of France the better. The French system is simply that of making the service a profession. On the other hand, Mr. Crawfurd, H.M.'s Consul at Oporto, is opposed to any introduction of the French or Russian systems, which, he thinks, would lead to an "injurious esprit de corps, ambition, over zeal, and desire for change." "Consular officers," he says, "are already too prone to attempt brilliant services in the domain of politics." "The motives to a quiet and unambitious existence (the ideal of a Consul's career—according to Mr. Crawfurd) might be seriously interfered with by holding out prizes to ambition or vanity."

The success of the mission of Mr. Kennedy, the present head of the commercial department in the Foreign-office, in reducing the estimates of the Consulates in Turkey and Egypt, suggests the propriety of similar experiments being tried in the Levant, the North Coast of Africa, France, the Baltic, Italy, and the Peninsular, with a view to the consolidation of the Consulates there into Consulate districts. Mr. Kennedy is of opinion that all needful increase of salaries can be obtained by the reduction in the number of officers—excepting in the United States, where an increased vote will be required.

The Committee describe the fees chargeable in respect of duties connected with shipping as exceptionally low; it is a matter of complaint that the habits of British sailors are such as to cause disproportionate trouble to the Consuls, and it is recommended that greater power to deal with refractory seamen should be given to them.

Whether it would be better to revise the scale of fees, or to substitute for them a tonnage duty, is a matter which deserves attention. The notarial duties of Consuls should, it is agreed on all hands, be paid for by the parties availing themselves of their services. These notarial duties might be extended, and probably the scale of fees increased.

The revision and consolidation of the rules and instructions issued by the Board of Trade is imperatively demanded; and, when this is done, perhaps the returns and forms filled up by Consuls may be simplified, and thus reduce the work imposed upon them.

The gross sum charged in the current year's estimates for the general service is £168,147, which is reducible by anticipated extra receipts to about £135,000 nett. These estimates exhibit a reduction of about £5,000 as compared with those of the previous year, which again were lower by £7,300 than those of 1869-70. The universal complaint of insufficient pay would alone press on the Government the necessity of looking about for some means of retrenchment to be set off against the increased cost of salaries. If better retirements, classification, leave of absence, promotion and other like advantages are to be conceded, the service must, give up its stationary and residential character, and be subject to more frequent change at the discretion of the Foreign-office. This may not be considered an unmixed advantage by the Consuls themselves.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular is as follows:—The new season's Teas have arrived in quantity during the past fortnight; the steamers Antenor and Hector, with Canton district, Deccan, Agamemnon, and Hong Kong, with black leafs, Malacca, with red leafs, besides, imports, per French mail steamers. The quality of the black leafs in the infused leaf is better than last season, and the crop would have been very fine, but the outturn is depreciated by hasty curing; the result is, many chops are much mixed, and the dry leaf uneven twisted. Fine quality has sold at full prices, and closes firm, but all second-class Teas rule lower than opening rates by 1d. to 1½d. per lb., and are difficult of sale. The red-leaf crop, from the few parcels inspected, does not appear any better than last season's. Sales to a small extent have been made; second quality, Sayune and Ankoi kinds 1s. 6d. to 1s. 11d., and finest Kaisow 2s. 2d. to 2s. 4d., Pakling at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 9d. per lb. For the Continent buyers are picking up the finest quality only, and appear quite willing to pay extreme rates of 2s. 4d. to 2s. 8d. per lb. for true Ningchows. The loss of the steamer Parnassus, reported to have the finest chops of Ningchow, has helped to establish the high range current for this class. To New York and Canada but little has been done.

Black: Old season's red leaf generally shows no alteration in price. Of new leaf, transactions so far are limited at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. for second-class, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d. for finest Kaisow. Paklings: Full supplies are offering, finest sell readily up to 2s. 9d. per lb. Taysham leaf: The Antenor cargo, only a small portion has been sold at 11d. to 1s. for strong burnt, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d. for malty, and 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. for fine. Black leaf: Since arrival of new leaf, little has been done in old season's. Quotations for new season's close at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. for good medium to fine Oonams, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d. for strong Pekoe flavoured kinds, 2s. to 2s. 8d. for fine to extra quality. Souchong: No change. Oolong: New leaf is moving off slowly, and the few sales at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. are lower than opening rates of last season. About 2,000 packages are in course of shipment to New York. Scented Tea: Supplies of Canton kinds have been very large, and great difficulty is experienced in effecting sales either of Orange Pekoe or Caper, except finest quality, which is selling at satisfactory rates. Foochow district: No new has arrived. Green: The chief business has been in Canton district growth, arrivals of which have been on a liberal scale; fine and finest, Tayshan district sells at full rates of 2s. to 3s. 6d. per lb., the leaf being very well made and quality in the cup equal to country-grown. Common to good medium sells slowly at 10½d. to 1s. 5d. per lb. Japan leaf: There has been less doing.

An auction of 2,585 boxes new season's Canton scented tea, per steamer Sunda, was held Thursday; 1,313 boxes scented Caper sold at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 7½d., 1,272 ditto Orange Pekoe 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 4½d. These prices mostly show a decline of about 1½d. per lb. as compared with those paid for similar kinds at the auctions of the 15th instant. A small sale of finest new season's Green will take place on the 31st inst.

SILK.

The market has been quiet during the week, and there is very little business doing, as buyers generally are awaiting the next arrivals from China. The market is nevertheless firm, and deliveries are very good. In China Silk the business to arrive has sensibly decreased, and for Silk on the spot there is little or no demand; a few bales of new Silk have come in, but they are of an inferior description. Japan Silk is neglected, and prices for the present seem on the decline. Canton Silk is without alteration. Deliveries 1st to 24th inst. inclusive, China, 2,134 bales; Canton, 918; Japan, 1,269; total, 4,321 bales.

COFFEE.

The market continued quiet for a few days subsequent to our last report, but latterly an improvement has set in. Fair supplies of Plantation Ceylon have been placed upon offer and have met a good demand at full rates, extending in some instances to an advance of 1s. to 2s. 6d. per cwt. The latest prices paid have been, triage, 72s. 6d. to 77s. 6d.; small, 79s. to 81s. 6d.; fine fine ordinary grey to low middling, 80s. to 82s.; middling, 83s. to 84s. 6d.; good middling, 86s. to 87s.; fine bold, 92s. 6d.; pea berry, 97s. 6d. to 101s. There have been no offers of Native Ceylon in public sale, but privately a quantity of fine ordinary quality has been quitted at 75s. per cwt., also 1,000 bags at 73s. 6d. for good ordinary, and 75s. 6d. for bold. The sale is reported of 200 bags pale Manila damaged at 72s. to 74s. per cwt.

The deliveries last week showed an important improvement, and exceeded those of the corresponding week 1871 by 630 tons; as, however, the landings were the largest in any week this year, and nearly 2,000 tons larger than last year, the surplus in the stock is increased to 2,300 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 120,374 cwt., against 266,392 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1871; Native, 19,775 cwt., against 34,615 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-nine weeks ended July 29, 1872, was, of Ceylon, 20,677 tons, against 20,371 tons during the corresponding period of 1871; of all descriptions, 35,943 tons, against 36,799 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 6,024 tons, against 6,179 tons; of all descriptions, 10,560 tons, against 10,949 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 13,096 tons, against 17,401 tons; of all descriptions, 25,504 tons, against 33,147 tons. The stock on July 20 was, of Ceylon, 10,688 tons, against 10,396 tons; of all descriptions, 19,803 tons, against 17,501 tons.

SUGAR.

The market continues to exhibit a very depressed tone, and at public sale a fair supply of refining qualities met biddings only at a further reduction of about 6d. per cwt., and only a few lots found buyers at lower prices. By private contract scarcely any inquiry has appeared and business is almost suspended. Not a single transaction in East India kinds has been entered into either publicly or privately; an offer of 2,430 bags soft brown China (duty 4s.) was bought in at 26s. 6d. per cwt.

A further addition has been made to the previous light stock by the large landing of 6,760 tons last week, which is 3,400 tons larger than in 1871. The deliveries were again small, and barely one-half the amount recorded in the previous year, so that the deficiency in the stock is reduced to 28,200 tons. Stock, July 13, 41,835 tons, against 76,225 tons; July 20, 46,207 tons, against 74,469 tons. The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-nine weeks ended July 20, 1872, was, of Penang, 1,985 tons, against 974 tons in the corresponding period of 1871; of Manila, Java, and China, 14,759 tons, against 13,470 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,559 tons, against 2,245 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 17,019 tons, against 17,741 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 70 tons, against 164 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 949 tons, against 1,013 tons. The stock on July 20 was, of Penang, 813 tons, against 1,541 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 8,859 tons, against 22,480 tons.

CAMPHOR.—The market has been dull during the past fortnight, and the only sale to report is of 100 cases old China at £4 per cwt. re-weights.

CARDAMOMS.—No transactions in Ceylon.

CANES.—At the sales of 115,000 Borneo offered only 11,000 sold at 3d., the remainder bought in at 3d. to 3¼d. Of 52,000 Partridge offered about 31,000 sold at 3d. to 4¼d., mouldy 2⅝d. to 4¼d.

CHINA MATTING.—At auction 250 rolls, chiefly sold—6/4 white 33s. 6d. to 51s., 4/4 white 33s., 4/4 red at 34s. to 35s. 6d., 6/4 red at 51s. per roll.

CUBEBS continue quiet, and there is no business to report upon.

COPRA.—Penang remains firm, but there is little or nothing doing.

CUTCH.—There is somewhat more inquiry manifest, but there is as yet no activity in the market, and business is still almost suspended; in auction 1,420 cases good to fine Pegue were all bought in at 25s.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The demand for Cochin has been sluggish at £38 to £38 10s., while that for Ceylon has been more active at rather firmer prices, a good business having been done at £33 10s. to £35 for ordinary to fine on the spot, while £35 15s. has been paid for July to September shipments. The public sales held since our last went off as follows:—Of 340 casks Cochin 25 hogsheads sold at £38 15s.; the remainder withdrawn or bought in at £38 15s. to £39. Of 217 casks Ceylon 171 casks sold—dull to good in pipes £33 10s. to £34 15s., brown to fair in puncheons at £33 to £34 5s., very yellow to good in hogsheads at £34 5s. to £35; the rest bought in at £35, at which price 20 tons were afterwards sold.

COIR GOODS.—Extensive supplies have been brought forward, comprising 3,483 bales and 360 tons in dholls Yarn, 410 bales 4½ tons Fibre and 25 tons Rope. The demand for Yarn was almost equal to the supply, and nearly the whole was disposed of; medium to good qualities of good colour and make went off with more spirit at steady rates, but low and ordinary coarse kinds in dholls were difficult of sale, and prices were in favour of buyers. Good and fine qualities of Fibre also sold well. Rope met a steady demand, and was all sold. Of Yarn 8 bales good Ceylon sold at £36 10s.; of 150 tons ditto about 120 tons sold, very common £26 5s., fair common to low middling £28 to £29, middling to fine £31 5s. to £39, superior £47 5s. Of 410 bales Cochin Fibre 270 bales sold, middling to good £22 to £29 10s., fine bright £31 15s., superior £35, 656 ballots (4½ tons) ordinary Ceylon chiefly sold at £10.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market very dull; an offer of 27 packages fine quality was retired.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is lower, there being sellers at 9s. per lb., at which and at 3d. higher some 50 cases have been sold. In public sale 14 cases offered and 2 sold at 9s. 6d. Cassia: Stock concentrated in one hand, and 6s. 3d. paid. Nutmeg quiet; none offered. Cinnnmon scarce, and wanted. Citronelle quieter; 74 cases at auction retired. Lemon Grass firm, but inactive.

EBONY firm, and scarce; no offers during the interval.

GALLS.—China are dull at a slight decline, about 300 cases being sold privately some days since at £2 14s. to £2 15s., and 120 cases subsequently at £2 13s. per cwt. In public sale offers of 440 boxes were all retired. Japan are scarce, and in good demand.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam firm for good kinds, but supply of common large; two cases at auction sold; fine drop and block at £18; brown second at £10 10s. Sumatra steady, and of 54 cases at auction, one-half sold at £7 17s. 6d. to £9 for middling reddish to very good seconds. Copal: Lower and dull; of 930 cases at auction a small proportion only sold; hard, partly scraped little drossy and dark 33s.; more drossy 30s.; soft yellow 24s.; run 20s. Damar flat; of 106 cases offered only a small proportion sold at previous value. Gamboge steady; a new parcel sold at £15 10s. for fine.

GAMBIER.—Prices continue to advance, and there have been large sales of floating parcels near at hand at 21s. 6d. up to 22s. 7½d.; distant at 21s. to 21s. 9d., with all faults, ex ship.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—Market very dull, and arrivals in excess of demand; 625 baskets and cases, 546 blocks and 3 tons loose at public sale retired.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is quiet, but the last-quoted values are steadily maintained. Of 608 bales offered in auction, the sound portion was bought in at €40 10s., £48, and £50; and 14 bales damaged sold—first class £48 5s., second class £46 15s. per ton.

HIDES.—No business to report.

HORNS.—Market firm; about 6 tons Siam offered and sold; horns averaging about 3 lbs. at 36s. to 37s. per cwt.

INDIA-RUBBER.—The market generally is lower. Assam dull; 171 bags in sale retired, except a few bags foul and earthy sold at 1s. 0½d. per lb.; Borneo flat at 1s. 9½d., and fine Java scarce and wanted.

ISINGLASS.—There is a good market for fine qualities. Nothing of consequence has been done since the sales reported on in our issue of the 15th inst.

JAPAN WAX.—Market quiet, and of 340 cases at auction, a very few only sold at the sale, and subsequently, at the former value, viz., £4 7s. 6d. for fine saucers.

MUSK.—In fair demand at previously ruling rates.

PEPPER.—Black has continued very firm at precisely previous figures, but only a small business has been done on the spot, say 2,000 bags Singapore at 6¾d., Penang at 6d.; July to September delivery at 6d., to 5 15-16d.; of 3,250 bags offered in auction, chiefly Singapore, small part sold at same figures. White has been speculatively dealt in to a very large, but at the same time, greatly magnified extent, and nearly all the reported "bear" contracts were bought back at from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.; last week the price of good Singapore in auction was worked up to 1s. 8d.; for a lot or so (the bulk selling at 1s. 2⅞ to 1s. 4d.), but without the desired result, there being almost immediately an overwhelming number of sellers at about 1s. 3d. on the spot and for early delivery, and the market has since gradually become very quiet, fair Penang, to fine Singapore selling in auction at 1s. 1⅞d. to 1s. 2¼d. per lb.

PLUMBAGO.—Fine Ceylon very firm, but other qualities continue in moderate demand; of 542 barrels at auction half sold, lump fine bright bold 36s., low and ordinary 16s. to 22s., chips fine 22s., dust middling to fine 10s. 3d. to 13s.

RATTANS.—Market firm and prices unchanged.

RHUBARB.—Of 160 cases China at public sale half sold at 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb. for fairly trimmed medium and boldish fair pinky fracture, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 11d., ditto duller coat, and mixed with small root, being 2d. lower.

RICE.—The market on the spot has been quiet at last quoted rates; the floating cargo per steamer Mary 850 tons Rangoon, June sailing, has been sold at 10s., ex ship London.

SAGO.—Market quiet; in auction 904 bags and 100 boxes were retired. Flour steady, with fair private trade in good at 15s. 9d. At public sale 1,030 bags were retired.

SAPANWOOD shows a declining tendency; of 61 tons Manila offered in auction a small portion was quitted at £8 per ton for medium quality. Of Ceylon 40 tons have been offerdd and retired.

STICKLAC.—Siam is steady at the recent decline; about 200 cases fine quality have been sold at £4 8s. per cwt.

STAR ANNISEEDS continue dull, and large arrivals have tended to further depress the market; 70 cases at auction were retired.

SHELLS.—Mother'o Pearl continue very scarce, and are in active request at £13 for Manila and £14 for Singapore. Tortoise are quiet at the previous value.

SPICES.—Cinnamon steady at the previous value. Cassia Lignea: market steady, but quiet, with large stocks. About 1,000 cases unworked sold privately at 86s. per cwt.—the former value. None at auction. Buds: Quiet, and 17 boxes at auction retired. Cloues: steady, but quiet. Nutmegs steady: 90 cases at auction, chiefly sold; fine Penang 71 to the lb. at 3s. 7d.; 103's at 3s. to 3s. 1d., but chiefly limed at proportionate recent values. Mace: quieter and little done. Of 106 cases at sale a very few only sold at 3s. 5d. to 3s. 10d. per lb. for broken dull to fair.

SOY.—No transactions.

TAPIOCA.—The market is quiet at the previous value; at public sale, of 369 bags Singapore offered, part sold; damaged at 1½d. to 2d.; 102 bags Pearl brought 22s. for fine small; 25s. 6d. fine large, and 26s. to 27s. medium.

TURMERIC.—China steady; Java very dull.

TIN.—The active demand has continued, and an advance in prices of about £2 has been established. The current quotations are—Straits on the spot £156, afloat or for forward delivery £154 to £156; Banca £161, Billiton £154 per ton.

VERMILION.—Market steady at last quoted rates.

Scotch Pig Iron Warrants have reached the extraordinary price of 137s. per ton. Copper is dull, and in order to effect sales lower prices have been accepted. Market closes firmer. Spelter quiet. Lead rather easier.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since last mail this market has continued inactive, and prices have favonred buyers. Considerable irregularity has prevailed according to the position of producers, but Goods generally have been more pressed for sale than Yarns. There are some symptoms that prices have almost touched a point that will cause a revival in demand, but the offers so far made have in most cases been too low to find acceptance, and only a limited business has resulted.

ADMIRALTY NOTICE.

Sulu Archipelago—Bazilan Group—Newly Discovered Rock—The Netherlands Government has given notice, that a rock has been discovered by the Captain of the Dutch barque Wilhelmina Frederika, in the passage between the Basilan and Sulu groups. The Wilhelmina rock is partially covered with sand, and is awash at high water, with no bottom at 30 fathoms near it. Position, lat. 6 deg. 25 min. N., long. 121 deg. 22 min. E.

Pangutarang Group—Position of Teomabal Island.—Also from the same authority, it is said that the Island of Teomabal, of the Pangutarang group, lies N. by E. 7 miles from the position assigned to it on the chart, and that the reefs on the north side of the island extend 12 miles in a N.N.E. direction.

THE steamer Japan, lately launched by Messrs. C. Mitchell and Co., Low Walker, underwent a trial trip on the Tyne last week. The vessel has been built for Messrs. Apcar and Co., of Calcutta, and is intended for the India and China trade. Her principal dimensions are—length, 350 feet; beam, 37 feet 4 inches; and depth, 28 feet; she is built to the highest class at Lloyd's, and is fitted with a pair of compound surface-condensing engines, combining all the latest improvements for economy of fuel. The Japan proceeded along the coast as far as Hartlepool, the speed by log being over eleven knots. The vessel afterwards proceeded to London, to load for Calcutta.

THERE has been launched from the building yard of Mr. Thomas Seath and Sons on the Clyde a handsome paddle steamer, for the King of Burmah. The vessel, which is intended for the navigation of Irrawady, is 140 feet in length, 22 feet in breadth, and 7 feet deep. It is fitted with a pair of oscillating engines of 70-horse power, and has two circular boilers. It is to be employed in the service of the Burmese Government, and if found suitable for the purposes for which it is designed there is a probability of a number of similar vessels being built by the Messrs. Seath.

THERE has been launched from the shipbuilding yard of Messrs. John Fullerton and Co., Merksworth, Clyde, a fine screw-steamer of 200 tons register, named the Vaïco—the name of a river in Cochin-China. The dimensions of the vessel are as follows:—Length of keel and forerake, 135 feet; breadth of beam, 19 feet; and depth of hold, 9 feet 6 inches. She is classed A 90 at Lloyd's, and will be propelled by compound engines of 40 nominal horse-power. The engines are to be fitted up by Messrs. Young and Co., Vulcan Works, Ayr. The Vaïco has, we understand, been transferred to a French firm, who intend employing her in the transport service of France, running between the French ports and Saigon.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

TEN DAYS' LATER VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer America arrived at San Francisco from Yokohama June 22. The following items have been telegraphed to the New York papers:—

The Mikado leaves shortly on a tour of inspection to several ports, and on his return will depart for France, via the Suez Canal.

Terashima Tozo has been appointed Japanese Minister to London. Yuzi, the late Governor of Yedo, goes to Paris to prepare the way for his Majesty.

The Japanese fleet, consisting of three vessels, will shortly leave for Hong Kong.

Katzawa, formerly Admiral-in-Chief of the late Tycoon, has been reappointed to that position.

The railroad to a distance of fifteen miles, is in working order, and takes well with the natives, although the rates are 50c. and $1.50, and the time occupied in the passage is thirty-five minutes.

Serious disturbances at Nee-e-gata, where some 40,000 persons, high and low, were implicated in an attempt to restore the late Tycoon, have been quelled after a loss of many killed.

Mr. Watson, the new Chargé d'Affaires for England, refuses to meet the Mikado unless he stands in his presence instead of squatting down. Terashima Tozo, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, refuses to accede, and in consequence Mr. Watson will wait for instructions from home before he will present himself.

The United States frigate Colorado has sailed for Hakodadi, with Gen. Capron on board, to take a look at Yezo and the Kurile Islands.

The Tunisian steamer Zadkia, being now a treaty vessel and in debt, has been seized by the Japanese governor. The Tunis officer has protested against the right of the seizure, and will hold the Japanese Government responsible.

New Silk has arrived at 700 per picul. The total settlements for the season were 14,700 bales, with but 100 bales in stock.

New Tea is arriving freely, and is of superior quality. Business is brisk.

The steamer America has engaged freight enough to fill her, and three vessels have been engaged for San Francisco. Vessels are scarce.

The exports of Tea to America from the 1st of July to date, 11,500,000 lbs.—2,000,000 lbs. less than last season.

YOKOHAMA.

Dates by the present mail are to the 12th June; the outward French mail of 12th April arrived on the 28th May, and the following P. and O. of 19th on 2nd June. The Japan Mail has the following items:—

It is reported that a large meeting of Buddhist priests has been convoked at Yedo, and is to be held next week. It is conceivable that in some shape or another the question of the toleration of Christianity may directly or indirectly be discussed on the occasion. But nothing like religious reform or an advance in religious toleration can ever be expected from an assembly of priests in any part of the world. A reforming priest is always looked upon by his brethren as a wounded porpoise is by his. He is immediately killed, or what amounts to the same thing in ecclesiastical procedure. Statesmen must always lead such reforms, in view of the necessity for them, and the possibility of carrying them.

It is generally understood that Terashima has been appointed Minister Resident in London, and that Wooyeno is shortly to return to England.

On the 6th June the race between the Sappho and the Will o' the Wisp took place. The distance was round the lightship and back to a lighter moored off the French Hatoba. The Will o' the Wisp was manned by a crew of six Japanese, all strong men, four of them having formed part of the crew of the Hibernia at the regatta, and the other two part of the crew of the Will o' the Wisp. The Sappho was manned by the crew of the captain of the Colorado's gig, and, having a great reputation as a fast boat, and, besides, having two oars more than the Will o' the Wisp, was backed heavily. Indeed, beside the stakes, $150 a side, there was considerable speculation on the relative merits of the two crafts. The sea during the match was far from fit for shell-boat racing, but this was supposed to be in favour of the Sappho, although the Will o' the Wisp had a piece of canvas stretched over her bows to keep the water out. The boats started evenly at a few minutes past ten, and in the first hundred yards the Will o' the Wisp managed to draw clear from her opponent. As they proceeded, however, it appeared from the starting post that the Japanese took a very bad course, far away to leeward, and it was confidently expected that the Sappho would round the lightship in advance. But the Will o' the Wisp soon made up its leeway, and was round before the Sappho had commenced to turn. The race was then practically over. The Sappho pulled a gallant stern race, but was easily defeated by 1 min. 44 secs., or with time allowance for oars, by 2 min. 04 secs. The time of the race was 37 min. There is no doubt that the Sappho was overloaded for such a heavy sea; at the same time, it must be remembered that the Will o' the Wisp beat the Sappho on both occasions when they met at the regatta. This seems to prove that a native crew can beat men-of-war's men in shore boats in any weather. Whether or not a different result might be attained if there were only six men in the Sappho we do not know, but we understand there is to be another race between the boats.

The Colorado and Benicia will leave for Yedo. Admiral Jenkins and several other officers will be presented to H.M. the Mikado. Mr. Shepard will accompany the party.

On the 1st June a handicap rifle match was shot off at the rifle range at 200, 300, and 500 yards, Mr. Benson proving the winner. He was in receipt of eight points, but won by one point from Capt. Hill without his allowance.

The P. M. S. S. Co. have purchased the Japanese steamer Osaca, which has been lying on the Kanagawa beach, where she was blown during the typhoon of August 24, 1871. Vigorous efforts have been made to float her, and she was moved about twenty-four feet, and will no doubt soon be safely afloat again. She is to undergo a thorough overhaul, and when finished will most likely be put on the Hakodadi branch of the Company's line.

The Daijiokwan notifies that the great work of telegraphs all round the world is nearly complete. The object of these telegraphs is to make rapid communication all over the universe; and it is a work to which the Government of Japan gives its heartiest approval and support. In a short time the people will learn to appreciate it also. But as, since the erection of poles from Nagasaki to Yedo, discontented people have often destroyed the poles, cut the wires, and otherwise damaged them, notice has been given to all Kens that they should employ officers to keep a vigilant eye over them for their protection. Any persons guilty of destroying telegraph property will be very severely punished.

All makers and traders in silkworm eggs throughout the country are hereby notified that:—

"Although certain rules for manufacturing silkworm eggs were laid down in the proclamation of the 4th month of last year, the manufacturers and sellers of silkworm egg cards are disposed to take little trouble, and, it is said, are disobediently making the eggs roughly. The value of this celebrated article of production is thereby importantly diminished, and silk is unfit for export. As it is a mistake that dealers in this industry should be encouraged in their diminishing the production, it is hereby forbidden to trade in carelessly manufactured cards. It is forbidden to sell what are laid upon common cards—bad silk eggs—as Yotsziki Natsako or eggs of second birth, mixed eggs, &c.

"Any persons desirous of manufacturing silkworms' egg cards, and buying cocoons signing the cards with his own name, the producing district will not be known. Therefore, if silkworms' egg sellers buy cocoons of other people, the cards they manufacture must be signed with the name of the original seller of the cocoons.

"The above must be proclaimed in every ken and district. And the inspectors and officers must make the rule known in all the villages.

"Any persons disregarding this proclamation will be punished according to the previous laws upon silkworms' eggs manufacture."

HIOGO.

Attention is being drawn to the defective quantity, and most objectionable quality, of the water supply of the Foreign Settlement, and the Consuls are to be urged to apply to the Japanese authorities for the grant of a suitable site for a reservoir, into which streams from the hills can be conducted. At a meeting of the Municipal Council on the 29th May $600 was voted for the laying out of the Cremation Ground as a public garden; and $1,000 for loaming and turfing the Bund. The Kami or Governor of Hiogo Ken, in reply to a question about the application to Government for land for a recreation ground, said he had as yet received no answer from Yedo. Mr. Hart, Municipal Engineer, and Mr. Cobden, Municipal Superintendent, having both resigned, it was resolved to advertise for gentlemen qualified to do the duties of both offices, with a salary of $3,000 a year. The News advocates the adoption of some uniform for the Municipal police, and points its moral by instancing a native fire brigade whose uniform bears a badge composed of a blending of the flags of different foreign nations. How this idea percolated from the communi sigillum of the Shanghai Municipal Council to the Japs of Hiogo does not appear. Visitors to the Kioto Exhibition are becoming more numerous, and should they continue to do so its closing may be postponed even beyond the 5th of July, which is the date at present announced for its close. But intending visitors are urged to do so before the hot weather fairly sets in. Several Japanese at Osaka have been burned by incautiously opening a cannister containing sticks of phosphorous, which was picked up by a lad at ebb tide in the bed of the river. A decidedly improved steamer, as compared with the wretched native craft, is about to be started between Osaka and Kioto by Mr. Segar. Hiram S Wilkinson, Esq., of the Inner Temple has taken his seat as H.B.M. Acting Vice-Consul for Hiogo and Osaka.

After six months' delay, caused by the Hiogo Ken demanding from the Railway Department $40,000 for the privilege of carrying the line across the old race course; the department has diverted the line past the course, and the works are being prosecuted with vigour.

TIENTSIN.

Under date of May 28th the correspondent of the North China Daily News writes as follows upon the transactions of the Roman Catholic priests at Tientsin:—

The ground in the Eastern suburbs, formerly occupied by the Sisters of Charity and the establishment called by the Chinese Ying-tsze-tang. has been, during the last twelve months, covered with Chinese shops and residences; the Roman Catholic priests have furnished the necessary funds for the erection of the buildings, from which they will of course receive a yearly revenue. The Roman Catholic church, commenced last year, is now covered in, and will, I imagine, be completely finished in the interior in another month, and be then opened for public worship. It is situated close to the north extremity of the British settlement, and to the west of the Custom House. It has been very well built, costing, owing to the great quantity of stone-work about it, a good deal of money; the building, however, speaks highly in favour of the architects and work people, as it is really a very beautiful and strong structure. The Consul for France, I understand, is at present negotiating for the purchase of the ground adjoining the Customs to the north and north-west; and as I do not hear of French merchants having arrived at Tientsin to establish themselves in business, it may be true, what the Chinese people affirm that the Priests are going to erect shops and residences on the land, to let to ship compradores, and to other Chinese people who employ themselves in providing for the wants of the shipping class. The Priests were at one time desirous of establishing an hospital, for Chinese within the British settlement, and asked H.B.M.'s Minister for permission to do so. I have reason to suppose that a change has taken place in their views in that respect; and we shall no doubt see the hospital erected on the land which they are about purchasing. If a cemetery is made at the north part of the land, the requirements of nautical people will be complete and well combined within one piece of ground.

Last year, or earlier, the Priests purchased lot 11 in the British Settlement, originally purchased from the British Government by Smith Kennedy and Co. in 1862. They are at present erecting on it a two storied dwelling-house and a godown, rented by one of the resident mercantile firms. They are the largest land-renters at this port, and judging from the number of buildings they have already erected, appear to possess considerable funds for investment in buildings and land. Their action in the building way has created considerable life in the settlement, and in the adjoining ground to the north.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to June 16; the French mail from London April 26 arrived out on the 13th, and the following P. and O. mail of May 3 on the 15th June. The following items of intelligence are from the Courier:—

The French Despatch war-steamer Linois arrived on the 12th June, having on board H.E. M. Geoffroi, the new French Minister to Peking. The Linois has called at Swatow, Amoy, Foochow, and Ningpo, so that H.E. will have had a passing glimpse of the various foreign Settlements on the coast, which, cursory as it must necessarily have been, may prove of some value when he reaches the diplomatic seclusion of the capital.

A well-known owner and agent of house property in the settlement, having apparently instructed his compradore to affix to an untenanted foreign hong in a leading thoroughfare a notice in Chinese equivalent to our "No admittance except on business," there duly appears on the gate of the house in question an intimation that "the barbarian proprietor forbids all Chinese," etc. Can the compradore of a respectable firm be so ignorant as to mistake the word barbarian for the word foreigner? Can he mean deliberately to apply an insulting name to his employer? We need scarcely ask whether the employer knows that his own servant has styled him a "barbarian."

The 10th June being the annual festival of the dragon boats (Tuen-u-tsit), many of our Chinese neighbours devoted themselves to religious observances and subsequent social enjoyment. From time to time boats gay with banners and gonfalons, propelled by a small sail of blue silk edged with crimson and by five oars on each side, shot across the harbour, while a man, apparently a bonze, in the stern sheets, beat a hollow wooden instrument, giving, according to Chinese ideas, a religious character to the excursion. The rowers were also dressed in the greyish-yellow worn by the native monks, but were really, we are told, laymen gone a mumming.

The last meeting for the season of the local branch of the Royal Asiatic Society has been held. The Rev. G. E. Moule sent a paper on "The Obligations of China to Europe, in the matter of Physical Science, as acknowledged by eminent Chinese." Mr. Stent followed up his racy account of Chinese Ballads by one on the kindred topic of "Chinese Legends;" while Dr. Macgowan briefly showed that the Chinese were ahead of Dr. De Jongh and his Cod Liver Oil, by explaining their "Use of Shad or Samlai in consumption." Thereafter Judge Goodwin explained some hieroglyphs which were laid on the table. This fourfold bill of fare had variety enough to suit many different tastes; and the subjects, with the remarks they elicited, made it an unusually interesting meeting. It was announced that Mr. Goodwin, being about to leave for Europe, resigned his position as president, and a very cordial vote of thanks was awarded him for his services to the society. Many valuable books were presented to the library, and a collection of shells and other specimens of natural history to the museum.

The P. and O. steamer Hindostan, which left the harbour on the 8th June, did not get away from Woosung till the following day. She drew 21 ft. 10 in., and as the tide was the highest of the springs and calculated to give 22 ft. 6 in. on the Bar, no difficulty was anticipated. But on getting in sight of the signal tower it was seen that only 20 ft. 6 in. was hoisted, and it became necessary to anchor. The difference in depth was due to a change of wind. Tugs and lighters were at once sent for, and by relieving her of a considerable weight of coal and water she got over the bar, and having again taken her load on board she sailed as above mentioned.

The frigate lately launched at the Kaou-Chang-Meaou Arsenal is being rapidly fitted up. Two of her four boilers, together with the cylinders, have been already put on board. A sister frigate, made, indeed, from the same moulds, has been for some time on the stocks, and is expected to be finished in about twelve months, with machinery complete. Besides these there are in course of construction two iron steamers, 60 feet long by 12 feet beam and 4 ft. 9 in. depth of hold. These were laid down by the express orders of the late Viceroy Tseng-kwo-fan, who intended to use them as despatch boats between Soochow and Nankin. They are to be fitted with twin screws, the two points to be aimed at being great speed and light draught; each to carry an 18-pounder rifled gun. Besides these, there is to be built a large iron steamer—the first of her class—about 220 feet long by 32 feet beam, and calculated at 1,300 tons measurement. The plates for her have arrived from England, and she will be commenced immediately. The powder works at Lungwha (near the Pagoda) are being pushed forward, as also a factory for making ammunition for breachloaders. In the small arms factory, under the direction of mechanics from Enfield, rifles, &c., are produced equal to any in Europe.

The annual meeting of the municipality of the French concession was held in the Municipal Hotel on the 11th June. There were present M. le Comte de Chappedelaine, Acting Consul-General for France, M. E. Morel, Acting President of the Council, M. Forbes, Vice-President, MM. Galle and Aymeri, members, M. Sayn, secretary. The unofficial taxpayers were represented by M. Baron. The Budget, showing a favourable balance of Tls. 4,423, was passed.

The Courier has been publishing a series of very long and exhaustive articles on the "tonnage dues," and, like other productions of the sort, they contain a good deal that is very true with much that is inaccurate. The writer quotes some remarks by Mr. Hart in his memorandum of January 31st, 1867:—

> The coast of China, notwithstanding its fogs in spring, its typhoons in autumn, and its heavy northerly blows in winter, is comparatively free from the shoals, sunken rocks and dangerous headlands which in other parts of the world contribute so much to swell the amount of losses by shipwreck. (19) A properly-prepared résumé of the marine mishaps of the last five-and-twenty years would go far to show that, typhoons excepted, the causes must be looked for not so much in the dangers of the navigation as in the carelessness of those on watch, resulting in collision, fire, or stranding, and in the reckless competition which has sent goodly vessels to the bottom with all sail set. Much, therefore, as the appropriation of funds to the purpose of lighting the coast may do towards insuring against the few dangers that do exist, it may almost be said to have for its objects the convenience of navigators rather than the security of life and property at sea.

Upon this, the writer in the Courier adds a note detailing the casualties, during the present year, of the Suwonada, Chukiang, Peiho, Hailoong (got off), Ulysses (slightly injured); Norna (got off), Rona, and Douglas, and to this list prefixes the following astounding statement:—"The losses by shipwreck on the Chinese coast during the last year or two have been so great as to induce all the local Insurance Companies to cease taking any risks on ships, whether steamers or sailing vessels. Whence he derived this information we cannot say, but we may remark that every one of the above, which sailed from Hong Kong, was insured, and that so far from Insurance Companies declining risks, they take them as freely as ever. It is a pity that misstatements of this sort should abound in otherwise able essays."

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to the 22nd June. The outward French mail of 10th May arrived on the 17th June. The following summary is from the China Mail:—

The return of Mr. Hart, from Canton affords the Colonial Government a last chance of ascertaining from him personally the intention of the Chinese authorities as to the Blockade question—a question in which our mercantile community feels naturally a vivid interest. As this is a subject upon which Mr. Hart is the peculiar and legitimate adviser of the Chinese, his opinion is of value. We can hardly believe that so able a man is blind to the unnecessary annoyance at present inflicted upon local trade by the Customs' cruisers, or that he desires to take up a position of direct antagonism to the colony, when so many alternatives are open whereby the Customs revenue can be efficiently protected, while deprived of the hostile aspect attending the existing system.

We understand that H.M. Vice-Consul elect for Hainan, Mr. Allen, will remain at Canton, pending receipt of instructions from Peking respecting the course to be pursued in view of the difficulties and delay now interposed in regard to the opening of the port of Kiung Chow.

It is rumoured here, among Chinese usually well informed, that the Canton Viceroy is about to take serious measures in respect to the removal of the guard boats and stations by Governor Sam Januario from the vicinity of Macao. Unless these boats are immediately allowed to resume their posts and their duties, it is said that all native trade with Macao, from Canton or the coast, is to be strictly interdicted.

The Boletim do Governo publishes two invitations to tender, which will be received up to June 25, the first for the privilege of selling salt, and the other for opening the Waiseng lottery for the term of three years, commencing on Sept. 27 next. For the latter licence the highest offer above $22,000 will be accepted.

We have received the report of the girls' school at the Roman Catholic Convent in Caine-road. The average foreign attendance during the past year has been 80, and their progress is stated to be satisfactory. Of other schools two for Chinese provide for 40 infants and 88 older girls; 20 attend one in Wanchai and 48 are enrolled in the St. Enfance at Spring Gardens; 220 are said to be fed, clothed and cared for by the sisters of the convent; and some 15 are instructed under the direction of the Portuguese ladies.

Amongst the passengers by ohe Meikong for Europe were Mr. and Mrs. J. McL. Browne, from Peking, and Mr. A. Frater, H.M. Acting Vice-Consul at Tamsui.

A Commission has been appointed consisting of the Hon. Charles May and the Hon. P. Ryrie, to inquire into the working of the opium monopoly in Hong Kong. It may be recollected that statements were made to the effect that the amount received from the opium tax in Hong Kong was far short of what it ought to realise, and though opinions varied on the subject, there seemed to be considerable reason to conclude that the amount paid was smaller than it should be. It is to be presumed that this point, which is of much importance to the financial welfare of the colony, will be set at rest by the investigation.

The following is the account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong during the month ending 31st May, 1872:—

IN ADMIRALTY.

(Before His Lordship the Acting Chief Justice, with Captains Hewlett, R.N., and Barnet, R.N., as Assessors.)

The Rona } Cross Suits.
The Ava }

Mr. Drummond, instructed by Mr. J. J. Francis, appeared for the Rona, and the Acting Attorney-General, instructed by Messrs. Caldwell and Brereton, for the Ava.

His Lordship delivered the following judgment to day :—

These were cross-causes of damage arising out of a collision which occurred at about a quarter to eight on the evening of the 14th April last, when the colliding vessels were about twenty miles S.S.W. of Turnabout Island. The colliding vessels were the Ava and the Rona. The Ava was one of the French mail packets, at the time of the collision carrying the mails from Hong Kong to Shanghai; the Rona was the private property of a Merchant Steam Company, and, at the time of this sad accident, resulting in its total loss, the loss of the lives of several on board and the whole of the cargo, was sailing under the British flag from Shanghai to Swatow.

Now I am of opinion that the most convenient course for determining this case on the merits is to examine the questions proposed to the nautical Assessors and their general replies to them. The questions are as follows:—Was there such negligence or want of ordinary care or caution on the part of the Ava, the Rona or both, as but for such negligence or want of care or caution, the collision would not have occurred? Was the collision in your judgment occasioned by inevitable accident—understanding by the term inevitable accident whether the collision could not possibly have been prevented by proper care and seamanship under the particular circumstances of the case? If you answer the first question affirmatively, be pleased to state in what in your opinion such negligence or want of care or caution consisted. After due consideration with the gentlemen who have assisted me, the Court is of opinion that there are no circumstances or facts proved before it which could range the present case under the category of inevitable accident. That question therefore is altogether disposed of, and brings us to the next. Were both vessels to blame for the collision? That question is answered by the nautical Assessors in the negative, and the Court fully concurs in the conclusion at which they have arrived. The only remaining question therefore is, which of the two vessels, the Ava or Rona, is solely to blame for the collision? The Court is satisfied the Rona is solely to blame, for the following reasons:—First, there was want of proper care and caution on her part in carrying sail and maintaining such high rate of speed when her lights and those of any vessel approaching from the opposite direction would obviously be obscured by her smoke. Secondly, there was neglect in not porting the helm of the Rona at the instant of seeing the Ava's lights. This the Assessors advise me was in their opinion a case of meeting nearly "end on," and each having the other (according to calculation) not more than a point on the bow.

There appears to have been further neglect on the part of the Rona in not causing her engines to be stopped, when danger was imminent. I think it proper to add that both Assessors give it as their opinion in distinct terms that no blame for this unfortunate accident can be imputed to the Ava.

Applying my own judgment therefore to the advice tendered to me by the Assessors, I pronounce the Rona solely to blame for this collision, and decree accordingly. The costs in both causes will follow the event.

A. MCLEOD v. THE HONG KONG DISTILLERY COMPANY.

His Lordship delivered the following judgment in this case:—

I am of opinion that the filing of a Bill on the equity side of this Court against a shareholder, under the circumstances set forth in the pleadings, afford no answer to an action by a party against this Company for refusing to register the shares transferred to him by such shareholder, and that such party is entitled to a mandamus commanding the transfer.

Amongst the Articles of Association of this Company are to be found the following, and upon the construction to be put upon them, the case must be determined:—

Clause 28 is in these terms:—

Clause XXVIII.—The company shall have a first and paramount lien upon all the shares of any shareholder, for all money due to the company, either from him alone or jointly with any other person; and where a share is held by more persons than one, the company shall have a lien thereon, in respect of all moneys so due to it, from all or any of the holders thereof.

Clause 36 provides:—

Clause XXXVI.—The company may decline to register any transfer of shares, whilst the shareholder making the same, is either alone or jointly with any other person, indebted to the company on any account whatever.

Now, giving to these clauses my best consideration, I am unable to follow the Attorney-General to the conclusion that a claim for a breach of trust confers a lien which it is in the power of this company to enforce within the meaning of that term in Clause XXVIII., or can be considered a debt which, so long as it remains unsettled, can authorise the company to refuse the registration of a transfer. The case of R. v. Pitt, reported in 10 Adol. and Ellis 272, which was cited in the course of the argument, in reality does not affect the question. There the Court of Chancery was, to use a legal term, seised of the case, had already acted, and had full jurisdiction to do all that ought to have been done. Lord Denman, C.J., therefore, might well say that into such a case a Court of common law ought not to intrude its jurisdiction. Another authority furnished to me since the argument would tend to confirm me, if my mind required confirmation in the propriety of the judgment I am delivering. The case to which I refer is re the London, Birmingham and South Staffordshire Bank, 34 L. J. Ch. 418. There was an actual subsisting debt due to the Company by the intending transferor. such debt being for money lent and advanced, and which said debt was only suspended during the currency of a Bill of Exchange accepted by the intending transferor. The Master of the Rolls, after time taken to consider these, of course decided that there were moneys due to the Company from the intending transferor when the deed of transfer was presented for registration. and that the Company by virtue of the Articles of Association, which were nearly similar to those we are considering, were entitled to receive a lien. The circumstances of the present case, however, are in every respect different. Judgment must be entered for the plaintiff.

Mr. Drummond, instructed by Messrs. Caldwell and Brereton for the plaintiff, and the Acting Attorney-General, instructed by Messrs. Sharp and Toller, for the distillery company.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings dates from this port to the 30th June; the outward French Mail of 24th May was received on the 24th, and the following P. and O. mail of 31st May, on the 29th June. We are indebted to the Straits Times for the following items of intelligence:—

The Legislative Council has held two meetings during the past fortnight; its time has been mainly occupied in remodelling the Police Ordinance passed last year. The Honourable Mr. Greenshields, at the meeting on the 27th June, proposed a resolution that the Chinese element should be more largely represented in the force, but the Attorney-General's amendment, limiting the increase in the Chinese element to the Detective force, was carried. The Bill now under consideration is mainly merely a modification of the one passed last year and now in force; but if any opinion can be formed from the limited experience the public have had of the new law, there is still great room for improvement before the police force will be brought to any degree of efficiency. One much needed improvement in connection with the police force, namely, providing the members and their families with proper quarters, is, we are glad to see, to be carried out, the barracks at the Sepoy Lines having been fixed upon for the purpose, and the Council having sanctioned the necessary alterations. Another matter of public interest is the proposed change to be made in the treatment of prisoners in the jails; the correspondence relating to this question was placed before the Council at the opening of the session, and later memorandums on the same matter have since been published, detailing the changes to be made in the discipline, the staff necessary to carry them out, and the cost of the alterations required in the jail buildings. The Council have approved the estimate for the alterations and the proposed establishment, and ordered the sums to be placed on the supplementary estimates for the year.

Among the measures introduced at the opening of the session was a Bill for the "Regulation of Ports and Harbours," which the "objects and reasons" state was prepared as far back as 1867, but was held in abeyance, owing to the press of more important matter for legislation. The colony has not suffered materially by the delay, and unless the Bill be redrafted, and some of its provisions left out altogether, it would be more to the public advantage that it should be put aside for another five years—containing as it does sections not required here, proposals to farm out the fishing stakes and the Government beaches, &c., &c.

The last mail brought out Earl Kimberley's despatch to the Governor on the question of the New Harbour Railway, in which his lordship expresses his readiness to allow the work to be undertaken by a company, providing one can be formed to carry it out on the basis decided upon. This decision has given great satisfaction to the community, who were certainly averse to the employment of public money on the railway; and it is all the more gratifying when it is considered that his lordship at the time fully believed that the chairman of the public meeting held here, the speakers, and all who voted for the resolutions, were either directors or shareholders in the Tanjong Pagar Company—his lordship's informants having been Messrs. Ker and Co. The various interests concerned have now an opportunity of showing their faith in the financial success of the railway by subscribing the capital and beginning the work without further delay.

Telegraphic communication with the Australian colonies has been at last established, by bridging over the gap in the land lines by means of a horse express. An experimental express having proved successful, the first regular one started on the 25th June. The distance to be travelled is, we believe, only about 175 miles, which is constantly being shortened by the extension of the telegraph wires, and, should the weather prove favourable, it is expected the lines will be completed soon.

Some anxiety is felt here regarding the Spanish steamer Emiliano, which left Manila two days before the Manila mail steamer, the latter vessel having been here now four days. It is possible she may have met with some accident to her machinery, or have put back to Manila.

The arrivals via the Suez Canal have been—the Sarpedon from Liverpool, Russia and Craigforth from London, on the 16th June, Macgregor from Leith on the 24th, and Cyphrenes from London on the 25th. Departures homeward have been the Hindostan, Achilles, and Parnassus for London, and Turn for Toulon on the 18th June, the Statesman for London on the 20th, Una for London on the 25th, Tchihatchoff for Odessa on the 26th, and Diomed for London on the 27th.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—A fair business had been done during the interval in Cotton Yarn and in Grey Shirtings, and prices of both, owing to scantiness of supplies, had advanced. As regards other Cotton Goods, Turkey Red Shirtings had been quiet. T-Cloths and Drills were neglected, and the demand recently shown for Blankets had ceased. Woollen Goods were quiet, at unchanged rates, with the exceptions of Alpacas and Mousselines, for which some inquiry had been manifested, at $9 to 9.80 for the former and 21c. to 24c., plain, 25c. to 35c. printed for the latter. The closing rates were—for Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $43.75 to 44.25 per picul; No. 28 to 32, $46.25 to 46.75; No. 38 to 42, $44 to 44.75; G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 38½ yards, 39 in., $2.32½ to 2.37½ per piece; do., 8 lbs., $2.52½ to 2.57½; do., 9 lbs., $2.85 to 2.90.

HANKOW.—The sales reported showed a considerable business in Grey Cottons for the fortnight, whilst those of other fabrics continued on a most limited scale. Grey Shirtings: Small sales of 7 lbs. at Tls. 1.70 to 1.73; medium makes of 8¼ lbs. in favour with buyers at Tls. 1.89 to 1.91, the market closing weak; Eagles had not attracted so much attention, 9¾ lbs., Tls. 2.63 to 2.75 per piece. White Shirtings: Sales small. T-Cloths: 6lbs. saleable with difficulty at 2 to 3 candareens reduction; 7 lbs. also slightly weaker with fair sales; 8 lbs. realised Tls. 1.81 to 1.89 per piece. Drills: An advance of about 1 mace has taken place, but owing to free supplies prices were not strong. Fancy Cottons: Sales very limited. Woollens and Worsteds: Sales almost entirely confined to Long Ells, Scarlet being most readily saleable. Lustres: Former values maintained with sales to a moderate extent. Metals.—Lead: Steady at Tls. 4.65 to 4.75 per picul. Quicksilver: Weak at Tls. 75 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—At the reduced prices lately established a fair business in Grey Shirtings and T-Cloths had been done, but a considerable quantity of mildewed Goods had been disposed of by public auction. This had satisfied immediate wants, and the market closed very dull. The monetary pressure had continued, and it had been most difficult to get goods cleared. The rate of exchange on London having declined, and the Native money market looking easier, an advance in the price of goods, and a better feeling generally was looked for. Stocks of the leading staples showed no diminution whatever since the beginning of the year. Fancy Cottons: Scarlet ground and small pattern Chintzes had been in fair inquiry, but Dyed Goods were neglected. Woollens: The market was very quiet, a few sales of good assortments of Figured Orleans were reported, and Plain Black Lustres were still sought after for Japan.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been, 1,950 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, at $2.85 to 2.87½ per piece; 300 pieces 8 lbs. at $2.75 per piece. T-Cloths, 8 lbs. 400 pieces at $2.75 to 2.80 per piece; 7 lbs. 1,850 pieces at $2.12½ to 2.50 per piece; 6 lbs. 300 pieces at $1.92½ per piece. Lead, 400 pigs at $7 to teamen.

HONG KONG.—There had been no improvement in the market for manufactures. The stagnation which had existed for a long time past continued without any sign of change for the better occurring. The late Rice famine had evidently disorganised trade more than was at first expected. Money was scarce, and the small inquiry which existed for Piece Goods had been met in a great measure by auction sales of mildewed Goods, supplies of which were on the increase.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—39 inch Grey Shirtings: Demand for 8¼ lbs. improved and considerable clearances effected at $2.57½ to 2.62½. Sales of 7 lbs. at $2.20 to 2.22½, principally at the lower price. 6 lbs. in large stock, and demand very limited. 45 inch: 8 lbs. wanted at $2.65; 9 lbs. in poor request at $2.90 to 3. 32 inch T-Cloths continued in good demand; 6 lbs. most wanted at $1.70 to 1.72½, good business done; 7 lbs. in better enquiry at $1.90 to 1.92½; for lighter weights only trifling demand. 32 inch Grey Madapollams: Fair demand for 2½ lbs. at $18.50 to 18.75; 3 lbs. $20. 36 inch Grey Supers: Common makes in moderate demand at $1.92½ to 1.95 for No. 1; no enquiry for best qualities; No. 3 in some request at $2.20. 36 inch White Shirtings: Better inquiry for fine at previous rates; Medium are hardly so active, low unsaleable. 45 inch: Little enquiry. White Spots saleable to small extent at $2.60 to 2.62½. White Brocades are quite neglected. Woollens: Camlets firmly held, but few sales effected. Scarlet Long Ells in some request at $8. Sales of Spanish Stripes at 85 cents, and stock low. Brocade Lustres quieter. Assorted Lastings taken in small quantities. Grey Yarn: 40s had been in good enquiry during the early part of the fortnight at $137½, but demand having subsided prices were about $2 lower. Nothing done in 30s. Iron firm. Govan flat bar worth $3.90 to 4, no sales. Nailrods held for $4½. Hoop advanced to $4¾ to 5. Swedish flat bar, $4½ to 4¾. Lead is weaker; L B sold at $6.20.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Native dealers having considerably reduced their pretensions, a large business had resulted, and settlements since May 23 amounted to about 5,500 piculs, consisting principally of good medium grades; there had been very little of the choice kinds on offer, as it was yet early in the season for them. Supplies had come in freely, and further large arrivals were expected; the stock of new Teas was about 2,500 piculs. The quality was fair, and there was every prospect of an abundant crop. The last P.M.S.S. steamer for San Francisco took 209,234 lbs. for New York, 45,330 lbs. for San Francisco, 11,775 lbs. for Boston, and 2,374 lbs. for Chicago. Quotations:—Common, good common, medium, nominal, good medium, $35 to 39 per picul; fine, $40 to 44; finest, $45 to 50; choice, $52 to 60.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says:—Since the issue of our report for the French mail, dated 4th June, we have had rather a fluctuating market. The easier tone of things then noticed continued till a reduction of from one to two taels took place, but a recovery at once ensued, latest settlements showing the market to have returned to fully its previous firm position. The Teas on offer are low to fair medium kinds, ranging at a laid down cost in London of from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 10d., prices which offer but little prospect of a favourable outturn. Lee-lings, Wun-kais, and other of the inferior Oonam kinds are selling at the lower price, and the higher rates are commanded by Cheong-sow-kai, Soong-yong and Toong-shan teas. Good useful Oonfar Tea can be bought at Tls. 23 to 24, at which prices they offer the best value, but the cost in London, say 1s. 8d. to 1s. 8½d., is too high for safety. The transactions of the week amount to 20,519 chests, 15,737 half-chests, 4,358 boxes, viz.:—At exchange 6s. 3d., and freight £5 adding Tls. 5 for duty, &c. The Customs export to 7th June, made up for the Chamber of Commerce Circular, is 19,155,728 lbs., against 12,029,625 lbs. last year, and 12,575,240 lbs. in 1870. It must be remembered, however, that there is a difference of a week's business in the above figures. Our estimate of shipments to date, including Ningchows, compared with the same number of days last year, is 27,900,000 lbs., against 23,200,000 lbs.

KIUKIANG AND SWATOW.—No business had been transacted at these ports.

SHANGHAI.—Buying of Black Teas began on June 3 by the settlement of two parcels of fair medium Hohows at Tls. 21½, and since then a steady business had been done. The reported settlements amounted to the equivalent of 18,836 chests, and comprised Hohows at Tls. 17 to 28½, Oopacks at Tls. 25½ to 35, and Ningchows at Tls. 26 to 35 per picul—a range of prices which does not differ materially from those current at the corresponding date last season. Reshipments were estimated at 13,610 chests, and stock at 56,337 chests, against 36,000 chests at about same date last year. The market for new Pingsueys opened on June 5—a week earlier than last year—by the settlement of a parcel of very fine quality and assortment at Tls. 66 per picul, and a fair amount of business had since been transacted at prices ranging from Tls. 42 to 61, the total settlement reported being equal to 8,284 half-chests. Since the departure of the American mail steamer on June 12, for shipment by which some of the earlier settlements were made, holders had been asking more moderate prices than when the Teas were first placed upon the market, and in some instances had accepted offers considerably below those which they had previously declined to entertain. Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular says:—"We consider the crop, so far as we have seen it, to be superior in quality to that of last season, the Teas being fresh in water, and of good flavour. In the make little difference is noticeable; but it would seem that somewhat more attention than usual has been paid to the appearance, a fair proportion of the chops offered being of bright and attractive finish. The present range of prices is higher than the opening rates of last season; but we estimate that it varies little from the values at which the bulk of the business took place ac the season advanced—making allowance for the improvement in quality before alluded to. The stock is 19,939 half-chests, of which 1,000 half-chests are local-packed Teas."

FOOCHOW.—The Congou market had been rather more active; in a measure owing to the entrance of Australian buyers, and a gradual concession on the part of holders had encouraged settlements. Prices of all but the finest grades were quoted one to two taels lower. In the Pakling district some second crop leaf had been purchased at prices which were about two taels higher than last season's, and Teas from this as well as from other districts were expected to arrive in a week or ten days from date. Souchongs had commanded prices within about one tael of what was given last year, while the Teas of this season were rather preferable in quality. Settlements of Oolong had amounted to nearly 6,000 half-chests, a portion being intended for the American market, but, with the exception of two or three small parcels in boxes, they include cargo grades, and in fact musters of fine chops had not been shown, the same being kept up country until the usual strings are completed. The Oolongs to hand so far were in many instances rather irregular in make, and mixed with yellow leaf. Scented Teas had been settled to the extent of about 9,000 boxes, and they had dropped one to two taels in value. Settlements had been:—Congou, 133,352 chests at Tls. 7.8 to 8.8 o.b. for dust and siftings; Tls. 11.8 to 13.8 o.b. for broken leaf; Tls. 16.3 to 18.8 o.b. for ordinary to common; Tls. 20.8 to 27.8 o.b. for medium to good medium; Tls. 28.8 to 42.8 o.b. for fine to choicest. Souchong, 5,841 chests at Tls. 27.8 to 32.8 o.b. for low medium to fine; Tls. 35.8 to 39.8 o.b. for finest. A few fancy parcels commanded Tls. 43.8 and 62.8 o.b. Oolong, 5,746 half chests at Tls. 23.8 o.b. for common cargo; Tls. 29.8 to 32 8 o.b. for superior cargo and fine. Scented Tea 8,802 boxes at Tls. 28.3 to 35.3 o.b. for medium to finest. Flowery Pekoe, 3,491 chests at Tls. 30.3 to 94.8 o.b.

Amoy.—The market opened on June 6 by the purchase of about 5,000 packages at rates equal to $4 over last year's opening prices. Musters had since been shown representing 53,200 packages. Settlements amounted to 24,382 packages, and being almost entirely in strings comprising different qualities, approximate quotations for the different grades can only be given, say:—Choicest, $48 to 60; finest, $42 to 47; fine, $38 to 41; superior, $34 to 37; good, $30 to 33.

Canton.—A steady business had been doing during the fortnight, resulting in rather a large aggregate. Prices, on the average, had not varied much; fair to medium Scented Capers were at one time selling at cheaper rates, while Gunpowders had realised very extreme value. Scented Teas: Of Scented Orange Pekoes, the assortment of long leaf sorts had not been at all attractive, and, quality considered, in many instances full prices had been paid; a fair proportion of the settlements, however, were comprised of new make kinds, which had been selling at Tls. 16½ to 17 per picul. Scented Capers, of fair to medium quality, were purchased at the full decline advised by last English mail, but the stock of desirable leaf being much reduced, holders were showing more firmness; the finer kinds had throughout maintained their value. Canton Greens: Gunpowders had been taken at very full prices, compared with the early settlements, and were dear, taking in view the depressed state of the market in London for this description. A few Young Hysons had found buyers at Tls. 19 to 20 per picul; and further purchases of Imperial were reported for the Continent. Settlements from 5th to 19th June:—Canton District Congous, none; Scented Orange Pekoe, 12,000 boxes, at Tls. 16½ to 31; Scented Capers, 28,000 boxes, at Tls. 16 to 30. Canton Greens: Gunpowder, 5,000 boxes, at Tls. 19 to 28; Imperial, 500 boxes, at Tls. 22; Young Hyson, 1,200 boxes, at Tls. 19 to 20. Stocks estimated at:—2,000 boxes Canton District Congous, 10,000 boxes Scented Orange Pekoes, 25,000 boxes Scented Caper, 15,000 boxes Gunpowder, 2,000 boxes Imperial, and 15,000 boxes Young Hyson.

SILK.

Yokohama.—About 300 bales had been settled during the interval—nearly all of Oshu kinds—at unaltered prices. There remained no stock on offer, and the season was considered to have closed, the settlements having reached a total of 14,600 bales.

Shanghai.—Messrs. Skeugs and Co.'s Circular says:—Our last issue was published on the 1st June, since when we have had a very active market; prices continued to range about the same until the departure of the French and American mails, when exchange began to show symptoms of weakness; this, coupled with news of the failure of the Italian crop, gave a fresh stimulus to buyers, and settlements for the fortnight have reached nearly 6,000 bales, including a few held over from last English mail; prices close firm at an advance of 10 to 15 taels. The quality of Silk appears to be improving, and the size somewhat finer, but most of it is still very foul and cased. Telegraphic advices have been received reporting sales of new Silk to arrive, Red Peacocks, 25s. 6d. to 25s. 10½d., Black Lion, Blue Elephant, and Chin Jan, 26s. 9d. respectively. Incense and No. 1 Dancing Bear, 27s. 3d., thus showing a margin of loss on present purchases of 1s. to 1s. 6d. per lb.

Canton.—The second crop produce began to arrive on June 15; very high rates were ruling in the country, and this, coupled with the fact that 60 per cent. of the produce was Yellow Silk, has put a stop to business. The Silk was in all respects better than the first crop, but still not clean or fine enough, although of good colour. Natives reported an unusually large crop, anticipating that fully 3,000 bales short reels would be sent down; a portion of this (say about 500 bales) would be re-reeled, leaving 2,500 bales available for shipment to Europe. Settlements of 3,000 boxes re-reels are reported at previous quotations. The stock was estimated at 50 bales Loongkongs, 200 bales Tsatlee reels, 70 bales Kowkongs, 20 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 150 bales of inferior descriptions.

THE HARGREAVES CASE.

IT is with feelings of regret, on every account, that we find the painful scandal which resulted in the conviction of Mr. HARGREAVES last year at Shanghai revived in an unsatisfactory sort of paper war—we cannot call it a correspondence—which has been originated by the ill-judged defendant himself. We could have hoped that the interval of suffering which Mr. HARGREAVES has had to submit, to in consequence of his own acts, would have furnished opportunity for such calm reflection as would have convinced him that the position he assumed was morally untenable, assured him that the sentence arrived at after patient inquiry was not more severe than public justice demanded, and persuaded him to employ his unquestionable talents in a more legtimate way on his release. Mr. HARGREAVES cannot but be aware of the pain which was felt by the community by the utter absence of any satisfactory method of clearing up, or accounting for, the nature of his transactions. It is painful to speak severely of any man who has paid the penalty of his misconduct—we had much rather agree with DICKENS's Mr. MADGWICK, in "Great Expectations," when that reformed convict says, "Never mind what I did in them days—all that's worked off." But it is still more painful to find a culprit afflicted with a moral obtuseness, which Mr. MADGWICK would have disdained, and appealing to popular sympathy in the face of facts.

Mr. HARGREAVES's "address to the mercantile community "and others at Shanghai, and other trading ports of North "China," can only be regarded as a blunder tacked on to a crime. Its arguments are sophisms, as wire-drawn as they are obstinately clung to; and the sole consequence of his present manifesto will be to prejudice him in the minds of those who, from old associations, had hoped that his conviction in law would have been attended with the moral conviction which he vainly attempts to repudiate. "Go; and sin no more!" was the reflection which Mr. HARGREAVES's best friends could have wished him to have seen inscribed on the prison door, when it released him after expiating his wrong-doing, and sent him into the world again, as we hoped, "a wiser and a better man." We do not propose to follow Mr. HARGREAVES through the mazes of his apology. Indeed, we are not sure that Mr. THORBURN, notwithstanding the provocation he received, has not devoted too much labour to demolishing with such elaboration so flimsy an argument. Public justice was satisfied; the verdict of the jury, and the sentence of the Judge, had been fully confirmed by public opinion; and, when Mr. HARGRAVES rushed into print on his release, we think Mr. THORBURN could very well have afforded to "let him alone "most severely"—as SYDNEY SMITH says. We, who, at the time of his trial, expressed the regret with which we found ourselves compelled to concur in the justice of the sentence, shall not be suspected of any undue leaning towards Mr. HARGREAVES. We now feel similar regret that he should have taken a false step, which may probably tell to his disadvantage on his re-entering the commercial world.

"——— The past
Is past, and, profitless to memory,
Had better be forgotten,"

is ever the feeling of society when it is accompanied by pity and evoked by manly contrition for an avowed fault. But where the contrition is absent, and the fault glossed over, society is apt to keep its pity in its pocket.

JAPANESE FARMERS.

IN commenting recently on the rapid political changes which have taken place within the last few years in Japan, we expressed our belief that the very rapidity of the onward movement would inevitably give rise, from time to time, to reactionary protests on the part of those who deem their own particular interest jeopardised by the reforms introduced. The mail just arrived from Japan confirms the truth of our remark. Agriculturists are, as a rule, more opposed to change than any other body of men, and in this respect the Japanese do not differ from the rest of the world. To the farmers then, the progressionists are peculiarly distasteful, and it is from them that the first appearance of dissatisfaction has come. According to advices received, it appears that the farmers at Hasa-zama-mura, and Kawama-mura suddenly rose in arms against the authorities, and marched towards Nii-gata, with the intention, it is asserted, of murdering the foreigners resident there. Fortunately the Governor of Nii-gata was equal to the occasion, and by the adoption of prompt measures, succeeded in entirely suppressing the revolt, before any serious mischief had arisen. The immediate cause of the outbreak is described as having been the imposition of a tax for the purpose of making a canal, but the real cause of discontent is revealed in the announcement that the rioters were under the command of "five or six "leaders, who assumed the names of old warriors, styled "themselves by titles of high rank, and were dressed in the "old warriors' dress, and armed with long swords." The Japanese Government is to be congratulated on the ease with which this outbreak has been put down, and the officials are deserving in every way of the support of the Foreign Ministers for the anxiety they evinced for the protection of the lives and property of Europeans. In carrying out the changes which have been introduced into the constitution of Japan, mainly by the advice of the foreign representatives, and notably by that of Sir HARRY PARKES, it is but natural that the Government should look to the latter for continued counsel and help. It will be some time before the MIKADO's advisers will be able to throw off their leading-strings, and until that time arrives, constant watchfulness should be exercised by those who have undertaken to guide them. Mr. GRANT WATSON, who has recently taken charge of British interests in Japan, will find it no light task to act up to the rôle so ably played in this respect by Sir HARRY PARKES, but it will behove him to see, both in the interest of natives and foreigners, that the position we have assumed in the conduct of Japanese affairs be maintained, and not allowed to slip into a second or third rate place as China.

THE SINGAPORE RAILWAY.

IN the Straits Times of 22nd June we find a copy of a despatch from Lord KIMBERLEY to Governor ORD on the subject of the New Harbour Railway, the last paragraph of which evidences so much ignorance of public opinion in Singapore, and takes what we believe to be so dangerous a view of the functions of Government, that we hasten to make a few remarks upon it. Our readers need not fear a dissertation upon the merits of "the long line" and "short line." These have been decided upon by the Legislative Council of the Straits, and in their decision we concur. Two companies were in the field willing and eager to construct their favourite line. The Council gave the preference to the long line, thinking it desirable that all the private wharves in New Harbour should share the advantages of easy communication with the town. The stipulations which Government require are not unreasonable; they are, indeed, only such as have been willingly adopted in other instances, and we should have thought that there was now an end of the question, but for the clause in the despatch referred to, which seems to imply that the Colonial Secretary has reason to think, that the parties who but a few months since expressed themselves anxious to construct the railway are now likely to abandon the undertaking. Lord KIMBERLEY writes:—

"In the event of no company constituted in a manner which "I can approve being formed, I continue to think that the "financial condition of the colony will justify the Govern- "ment in executing a work which, independently of the "conflicting interests of rival traders, is obviously of great "public importance.'

Now, against such an argument as this it is incumbent on the Straits to raise an immediate and decided protest. Government has enough, and more than enough to do without shouldering the pickaxe. Even if it were demonstrated that the work would be remunerative, and that revenue from it would accrue to the State, we should still strongly demur to the Executive taking from private persons any enterprise in which they were ready to engage. In the opinion of a certain class of politicians, the State is nothing more than a machine to supersede that individual enterprise and personal emulation to which England owes so much. A glance at the proceedings of Parliament this session will prove what we say. The vast reforms needed in our judicial and penal system have had to make way for endless chattering about the preservation of fish, the merits of Scotch Catechism, and the age at which a child may drink beer! Government is to be an educational machine, cramming so many children with the "three R.'s"—a police machine dictating the hour at which we must be home at night—a sanitary machine, deciding on what we are "to eat, drink, and avoid." In short, it is to do everything but the one thing it should do—leave us alone. We are to be brought into the condition of France and its paternal government.

The beginnings of a policy such as this should be most narrowly watched and criticised, whether in England or the Colonies; and we warn the Straits Settlements that the moment they lose faith in their own enterprise and accept aid from Government, they will have entered on a path which must end in disaster. It may be answered that the success of Government assistance to the railway in Ceylon militates against what we are saying, but we need hardly point out the difference between the two cases. Because a line like that from Kandy, absolutely essential for the conveyance of produce to the harbour, was saved from utter ruin by Government taking it over at about half its cost, and working it, is hardly an argument for Government undertaking in Singapore that very part of the work which proved so ruinous in Ceylon, viz., the construction of the line. If the company that proposes to make the New Harbour railway should find itself bankrupt, when the work is finished, we quite admit that the propriety of Government interference will then be a point for consideration.

This brings us to consider the grounds upon which the Colonial Secretary bases his opinion that Government may themselves fairly undertake the job of making the railway. We say job advisedly, because every one knows that a work of this sort undertaken by the State, costs twice as much as when managed by private individuals. Lord KIMBERLEY says that the surplus revenue of the colony, and "the great public im-"portance" of the work, have led him to the conclusion he has adopted. We fear we are very obtuse—because his lordship remarks that the great public importance is "obvious." Now, this is the very point we want to be satisfied about. Lord KIMBERLEY may be blessed with an intuition to which we can lay no claim; we can only form our poor judgment upon the evidence, which is unmistakably against the view adopted by the Secretary of State.

A public meeting was held last February in Singapore to protest against Government meddling with the railway. The Straits Times remarked upon this meeting that Lord KIMBERLEY has "been grossly misinformed" regarding its character. As to the employment of surplus revenue Lord KIMBERLEY's words should be a warning to the Straits. The "finances are at present in a good position," says the Hon. Mr. GREENSHIELDS, when speaking in the Council last month; "they look well on paper; but they are subject to many vi-"cissitudes, and we cannot, looking to the sources from which "they are derived, look with perfect confidence to their con-"tinuance in that position." Words well worth consideration these. A surplus to the Colonial-office is like ham to Chinese servants, they cannot keep their hands off it. We recommend all our colonies to keep no ham in the house. When they have a surplus let them invest it in works that will be of lasting benefit to all classes of the population. Singapore has no need to look far for worthy objects on which they may spend every cent that can be spared from the Exchequer. The town is without a proper supply of water; the river is silting up with mud, and the effluvia from it at low tide is becoming insupportable; the lunatic asylum, and the hospital accommodation and attendance is a disgrace to any English settlement. The seeds, in fact, are being sown which may germinate at any moment, and ruin the sanitary character and the revenue also of Singapore in a day, by decimating it with fever and cholera. We plead for all classes in the colony—not for the European only, but the Asiatic. We ask that these latter may be guarded against the frightful ravages which a pestilence would undoubtedly create among them.

THE announcements of the P. and O. Company, to be found in our advertising columns of steamers to be despatched through the Suez Canal, taking freights to India at 45s., and passengers at £60, is a very practical confirmation of our statement a few weeks since, that the managing directors intend to enter into a most thorough competition with all private lines. This is the only way by which they can maintain their position and give a profitable return to their shareholders. The Company intend despatching at intervals during the present year the following vessels through the Suez Canal to India and China:—The Malacca, Hindostan, Hydaspes, Mirzapore, Khedive, and Pekin. Homewards the following vessels are expected—the Pekin, with the next mails, the Simla, Mirzapore, and Khedive.

WE understand that the Appendix to the Report of the Select Committee on the "Diplomatic and Consular Service," containing the written evidence of Major CROSSMAN, Mr. Consul MONGAN, and others, will be printed and ready in about three weeks.

AN unfortunate error occurred in the printing of our Tientsin Correspondent's letter, which we published last week. The first line of the sixth paragraph should have read, "The road-steamer, which was got out to show the natives here," &c., &c.

WE learn that the Japanese Ambassadors left New York for Liverpool on board the Cunard steamer China on the 31st July, some days in advance of the date named for their departure.

A REPORT of the meeting of the Suez Canal Company will be found in another column. It will be seen that the maintenance of the increased rates has been decided on by a large majority.

CHINA CUSTOMS RETURNS.

The returns for the quarter ending with March last have been published; the following is our usual resume of them:—

TIENTSIN.

Mr. Commissioner Hannen reports the revenue as having declined from Tls. 43,398 to Tls. 40,150. The number and tonnage of the vessels entered, however, rose in comparison with the same period in the previous year. In imports, grey shirtings continued to decline, but t-cloths showed the enormous increase of from 28,315 pieces in 1871 (and about 92,000 in the two previous years) to 223,000 pieces this year. English drills had similarly advanced from 11,350 pieces to 56,871, though Dutch and American drills were also imported in greatly increased quantities. Jeans and twills show no less than 26,741 pieces compared with 1,345 the year previous. Velvets, velveteens, and fustians, continued their steady increase. Woollens showed an increase, chiefly owing to lustres and orleans; but this was greatly counteracted by the falling off in woollen and cotton mtxtures.

NEWCHWANG.

Mr. James H. Hart, Deputy Commissioner in charge, reports that, owing to the plentiful crops of last year, the amount of native produce brought from the interior of the province to this port for exportation was considerably above that of previous years. There is therefore reason to anticipate a prosperous year's trade. The stock of beans was estimated at 500,000 piculs, being in excess of that of former years by about 200,000 piculs; 230,000 pieces of bean cake, and 310,000 piculs of bean oil, were also in store. During the early part of the quarter an additional local tax was levied on opium; the total tax now levied, fees, &c., included, amounts to kup'ing taels 0.3.2.2 per catty, or nearly twice what it was under the old régime.

It must be confessed that the remainder of what Mr. Hart euphemistically calls "the statistics of the trade of this port for the first quarter of the year 1872" are exceptionally meagre, there being literally no return of the amounts of imports, exports, or revenue for the period in question. In the face of such deficiencies it is difficult to attach so much importance to this report as we could wish.

CHEFOO.

Mr. H. E. Hobson, Deputy Commissioner, reports a favourable reaction in trade, the market for chief staples, iron and sugar excepted, being materially improved. Cotton goods arrived to the extent of 259,737 pieces, as against 247,901 last year. While grey and white shirtings were short as compared with the deliveries in the corresponding quarter of last season, figured descriptions, together with T cloths, drills, and jeans were in excess by 4,421, 37,890, 9,945, and 3,119 pieces respectively, The importation of woollens amounted to 9,488 pieces, against 5,617 in 1871, and 8,522 in 1870, but these fabrics do not appear to have passed off so easily as cottons. In exports a good business was done, and more might have been had there been sufficient shipping in port to meet the demand. The demand for shipping continued during the whole three months, and those vessels which were fortunate enough to visit this port secured handsome freights The revenue, which fell from Tls. 71,735 in 1870 to Tls. 69,216 last year, now rose to Tls. 110,044.

The cold experienced during the quarter was more severe than usual, the ice sometimes preventing communication with the shipping. Snow fell on fifteen days.

HANKOW.

Mr. Commissioner A. Macpherson reports a large decrease in the import of grey shirtings and in raw cotton. Trade was in a state of stagnation. The revenue, however, showed Tls. 82,413, against Tls. 87,313 last year, and Tls. 53,829 in 1870, though there were but 73 vessels entered, as against 120 last year.

KIUKIANG.

Mr. Commissioner E B. Drew reports that there were no settlements in tea during the quarter, and the export to Shanghai was trifling The total export in black was remarkably large (nearly 3,000,000 lbs. in excess of 1870-71), owing to the increased cultivation of tea much nearer to Kiukiang. The falling off in the export of green tea, as compared with last season, amounting to 558,533 lbs., is simply evidence of the continued and growing preference of the Ningpo to the Kiukiang route. The vessels entered were 95, against 108 last year. The imports of shirtings and T-cloths, however, showed an increase of nearly 30,000 pieces. Woollens fell off. Opium recovered the amount of the same quarter in 1870. The revenue fell from Tls. 33,077 to Tls. 20,269.

The Transit Table now, for the first time, shows the result for an entire quarter of the free issue of passes to Chinese and foreigners alike. It is not worth while to institute any comparison with previous years, when the issue of passes was restricted to foreigners. But, summarising the quarter, 544 passes were issued, covering twenty-seven different kinds of goods, besides eight others too insignificant in quantity to require mention. The entire value of the articles which availed of the passes was Tls. 174,546.40. The value of the import trade—goods of foreign origin—last year was for four quarters Tls. 2 567,449. This gives some notion of the present proportion of imports sent into the country under pass. Goods have been sent to twenty-seven places in Kiang-si; these include all but one of its fourteen department capitals, not excepting Nanugan-fu, the remotest, in the extreme south 1,320 li (say 440 miles) from Kiukiang. To the S.E., Ning-tu chow is the farthest point; to the S.W. Tuan-chow; and, to the E., Kuang-hsin. The extreme points to the N.E. and W. are in Ngan 'Hui and Hu Pei Every one of the important tributaries of the Kau, and every one of the rivers which, independent of Kau, belong to the basin of this province, has now been traversed actually up to, or very near to, its head of navigation, by goods under the pass, and as, but with few exceptions, the towns of Kiang-si are on navigable rivers, there seems to be no longer any check upon the full opportunity of testing what will be the consuming power of this large province under a new and very simple form of way-taxation for the goods, after the rate of it has been considerably reduced in amount, and universally as to place. The places of distribution in Ngan 'Hui are the Wu-quan and Kien te—tea districts—and Ngan-king, T'ai-hu, and T'sien-shau, the last-named being the most remote towards the N.E. In Hu-pei, T'ung-shan-shien to the W., in the black tea districts is the farthest from here. The principal articles for which passes have been availed of are grey shirtings, T-cloths, lead, tin, pepper, seaweed, and sugar.

The record of passes issued affords a certain means not formerly possessed of knowing the current of trade in the interior, and the relative business importance of the different towns. As yet our returns are not sufficient to found any opinion upon; but they are useful in that direction. Nauchang Fu is much the greatest market, both in the variety and quantity of goods taken. It receives more than half of the cottons and woollens, and a fair proportion of sixteen other articles. Most of the tin also goes there.

Mr. Commissioner Drew concludes one of the most interesting and exhaustive reports we have read, by mentioning that, on the 20th January, the U S gunboat Monocacy arrived at Hu-kow, where she lay nine days without communicating with this port. About this time the Yangtsze had fallen so low that the deeper draught vessels ceased to ascend above Hu-kow. Mr. Drew adds:—

"In several former Gazettes I have mentioned disturbances which indicate the existence of certain secret societies in Kiang-si. It would appear that those societies—the Ko Lao 'Hui more especially—cause the authorities considerable trouble and uneasiness. Arrests are occasionally made in different cities. . . There is no reason for apprehending any serious or general trouble."

The repairs of the stone building, so long demanded, had not even been commenced on the 1st April.

CHINKIANG.

Mr. Commissioner Detring reports that the year has opened under the most favourable auspices. The slackening of trade usually attending the Chinese new year was this time hardly noticeable, nearly every article of import shows a considerable increase, more especially grey shirtings, T-cloths, assorted piece goods, and opium. The enormous exportation of grain has surpassed the most sanguine expectations as to the productiveness of the soil in this part of the Empire. It is estimated that, besides 855,811 piculs shipped to the southern ports in foreign vessels, about 130,000 piculs were sent to Shanghai in junks. At the end of the quarter a large stock remained in the market, prices ranging low.

The pass system was extended to native merchants on the 30th March. Ownership is, therefore, no longer of any weight.

The number of vessels entered was 234, compared with 160 in the same quarter last year. The revenue shows Tls. 113,319, against Tls. 16,984 in the same time.

SHANGHAI.

Mr. Commissioner Dick reports an increase in the revenue from Tls. 681,836 to Tls. 750,554. The number of vessels entered was 472, against 351 in the corresponding quarter of last year. In imports there was a falling off in grey shirtings, and an increase in T-cloths, drills, sheetings and lustres. In exports the most noticeable item is rice, which rose from 8,140 piculs in the corresponding quarter of 1870 to 258,084 piculs in the first quarter of last year, and the astounding quantity of 1,642,874 piculs this last quarter. The total export of silk for the three months was 5,792 bales, of which all but 47 were sent to foreign countries—Great Britain taking 3 449.

Mr. Dick's concluding paragraphs are very, perhaps too, laconic. They run thus:—

Occurrences.—Nil.

NINGPO.

Mr. Commissioner White reports a satisfactory trade, especially in piece goods and opium, the latter showing an increase against 1871 of piculs 301.03. Sugars were neglected, the scarcity of tonnage greatly affecting the trade. The export of tea was fairly maintained. Wheat was in demand for Amoy, and 5,108 piculs had been shipped there, against a nil export last year. The tonnage shows a decrease—inwards of 3,619 tons, and outwards of 4,292 tons. The total revenue collection again exhibits an increase of Tls. 6,944, under only three headings, however—opium duties, and inward and outward transit dues.

FOOCHOW.

Mr. H. Nöetzli Deputy Commissioner in charge, reports revenue Tls. 226,755, as against Tls. 330,389 in the corresponding quarter of last year. The tonnage entered rose from 25,677 to 31,611. In imports T-cloths maintained their average, and grey shirtings showed a marked increase over last year. Here again we find the unsatisfactory phrase—"General remarks.—Nil."

TAMSUI (FORMOSA).

Mr. Commissioner de Champs reports the steady increase of the revenue from Tls. 8,179 in the corresponding quarter of 1870 to Tls. 14,596 last year, and 17,013 now. Twenty-eight vessels entered this port against seven last year. The import trade in cottons and woollens had been very slow. Exports were active, especially coals, of which 153,231 piculs were sent off in the three months—very nearly half as much as was exported in the whole of last year. Ships of large tonnage find no difficulty, through want of water, in gaining access to Kelung harbour. The export of rice was more than double that of the same quarter last year.

TAKOW (FORMOSA).

Mr. Cartwright, Deputy Commissioner in charge, reports the continuous increase in the foreign trade of South Formosa fully maintained. Opium was imported at the rate of 504 piculs, against 433 piculs for the first quarter of 1871. Owing to the large accumulation at the close of last year the importation of piece goods was comparatively small, but a fair amount of business was done, and the old stock entirely cleared off. The continued scarcity of rice was the subject of grave anxiety. In January an official notice was circulated among the Chinese merchants ordering the suspension of shipments until prices should become more equable, and the export was afterwards prohibited by proclamation. The retail price was two-and-a-half times the normal rate. The new spring crop stood greatly in need of rain, and the consequences were expected to be serious if the dry weather continued. The revenue rose from Tls. 35,591 in the corresponding quarter of last year to Tls. 40,896.

AMOY.

Mr. Commissioner Hughes reports tonnage 46,000 entered against the same quantity last year. Imports of piece goods show an enormous falling off compared with the corresponding quarter of last year. The revenue, however, shows Tls. 100,835 against Tls. 88,350, through an increase in opium and general exports. General remarks.—Nil.

SWATOW.

Mr. A. Huber, Acting Commissioner, reports a very large importation of rice, especially from Shanghai, and very high freights obtained, reaching sometimes as much as $1.18 a picul for steamers, and $1.3 for sailing vessels. The total quantity of rice imported from the Treaty ports and foreign countries was piculs 624,492.16. If to this quantity we add the rice imported since 1st April last year, we find the total amount landed in twelve months 1,400,000 piculs, not counting the imports by native junks over which the Foreign Customs-office has no supervision. This was much more than was required, and a great deal was spoiled by moisture and fermentation. Thus the article fell to the disastrous price of $2 70 a picul, and many failures were expected. The prospects of the next rice crop in the prefecture of Chao-chow-fu were good.

Last year was a most unfortunate one for this prefecture, owing to the failure of the crops of rice and sugar. To this, and the scarcity of money must be attributed the falling-off in the export trade and of nearly all the articles of import—foreign and Chinese—except those of food, which were absolutely wanted, and opium, which shows an increase of 200 chests over the corresponding quarter last year.

12,700 free emigrants left for Saigon, Singapore, and Siam, which makes a total of 26,506 for the last two quarters; had sailing vessels been less scarce, numbers more would have emigrated, as they were nearly starving. Many did emigrate in junks, being unable to find accommodation in foreign ships.

The war, or lekin, tax on opium was raised from Tls. 10 per chest to Tls. 14, which was the more readily paid because the benefit of the large body of troops, and the order they enforced, were fully appreciated. The fees on seagoing junks leaving this harbour were reduced by two-thirds, but it was doubted whether this measure would encourage them, though the shipment of free emigrants by junks—hitherto prohibited—was also allowed.

The vessels entered were 156, against 80 in the corresponding quarter of last year. The quarter's revenue was Tls. 101,993, against Tls. 112,503 in 1871.

CANTON.

Mr. Bowra, Acting Commissioner, reports the revenue as Tls. 165,535, against Tls. 214,709 in the corresponding quarter of last year. Vessels entered, 257 against 191. The imports of cotton and woollen piece goods show a serious falling off. The exports were also below the average. "General remarks.—Nil."

TOTALS.

The total import duties for the quarter from the fourteen ports amounted to Tls. 372,655; import duty on opium, Tls. 456,632; export duty, Tls. 853,694. The total revenue, including tonnage dues, coast trade, duty, transit dues, [and duties collected on native craft, were Tls. 1,852,315.

Monetary and Commercial.

Yesterday, the 5th inst., was a Bank Holiday, under the provisions of Sir John Lubbock's Act. In addition to the banks, the Stock Exchange, Lloyd's, and all the other leading establishments were entirely closed, and business generally was entirely suspended.

The P. and O. steamer Pekin, which brought the homeward mails to Suez, comes to Southampton through the Canal, and has on board £519,000 in gold.

An institution named "The Merchants' Association" has been formed. Its objects are to facilitate the action of consignees, shippers, holders of bills of lading generally, in prosecuting claims against shipowners for bad, deficient and wrongful deliveries; injuries done to merchandise through bad stowage, or injuries to owners of goods by improper transhipments, deviations on the voyage, and other acts for which underwriters are not liable, and also to resist unjust demands advanced by shipowners, and to take any steps the committee may think desirable for the protection of shippers, holders of bills of lading, and consignees generally.

The ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Suez Canal Company was held in Paris on the 31st ult. Five hundred and eight shareholders were present, representing 61,130 shares and 2,173 votes. The chairman, M. de Lesseps, read the report, according to which the revenue last year was f.13,726,074, and the expenditure f.15,918,000. During the first six months of 1872 the revenue was f 7,240,000, and the expenditure is estimated at f.1,300,000 a month, or f.16,000,000 up to the 31st of December. The estimated revenue for the year is f.22,000,000, leaving a profit of f.6,550,000, in consequence of the new mode of applying the tariffs; 887 vessels passed through the Canal during the first six months of 1872, producing f.7,244,000, or an increase of 45 per cent. on the preceding half-year. Ships of the largest tonnage can pass through the Canal without any fresh works having to be executed. The calculation of the tariff on the basis of the gross tonnage instead of the net tonnage has produced since the 1st of July an increase of 50 per cent. in the receipts. After reading the report several shareholders moved a resolution proposing—1st. The dismissal of the present board of directors. 2nd. The substitution of the cubic metre for the gross tonnage in applying the tariff. The first proposal was rejected without discussion, and the second was rejected after an animated debate. The meeting voted, by 1,410 against 669, a resolution maintaining the increased tariff as applied since the 1st ult.

The meeting of the London and County Bank has been held. The net profits for the half year amounted to £103,086, making, including £7,548 brought forward, a total of £110,634. A dividend of 6 and a bonus of 4 per cent. were declared for the half-year, free of income-tax, leaving £10,634 to be carried forward. It was also resolved to issue the 10,000 shares remaining of the 20,000 authorised in 1867, at the price of £30 per share, or £10 premium.

At a meeting of the general court of directors of the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company it was resolved that a dividend of 12s. 6d. per share, being at the rate of 10 per cent., for the half-year ending 30th June last, should be declared.

Bar Silver is firm at 60¼d. per oz. standard. Mexican Dollars are arriving in considerable amounts, the West India steamer having brought about £230,000, and the Erin, from New York, about £400,000. The demand for China has been sufficiently active to absorb these amounts, which have been purchased at 62¼d. per oz. for the old coinage, and 60¼d. per oz. for the new, this last showing a rise of ¼d. per oz.

OPENING THE P. AND O. SERVICE FROM VENICE.

The Ceylon, Capt. Evans, the first vessel for this service, left Venice on Friday, the 26th ult. Captain T. Black, the company's superintendent at Southampton, was sent out to represent the company and make all the necessary arrangements. The opening of the new line was made the occasion of a series of festivities at Venice, and the "Queen of the Adriatic" appeared resolved to resume somewhat of her former state of commercial activity and life. The Ceylon was thrown open to all comers on Wednesday, the 24th, and was visited by 4,000 or 5,000 people during the day, the trim appearance of the noble vessel being universally admired. In the evening Captain Black, Captain Evans, and the officers of the ship were entertained by the Chamber of Commerce at a grand banquet, presided over by the Syndic of Venice, the vice-chair being occupied by the Vice-President of the Chamber of Commerce, its president being absent through illness. The English guests experienced a very hearty and cordial reception. On the following day Captain Black gave a grand dinner of sixty covers on board the Ceylon, the company including the Syndic of Venice, the Town Council, the representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Provincial Deputation, the First President of the Court of Appeal (Comm. Tecchio,, the Prefect, General Mattei, the Swiss and other Consuls, Mr. Delahoute (of the Adriatic Oriental Company), the directors of the National Bank, the commercial companies, and the Post office, Signor E. Barrera, and representatives of the leading Italian newspapers. Two bands, the civic and the military, played alternately during the proceedings. Captain Black, who spoke in English, said he had met so much kindness in the reception given him at Venice that he felt as much at home as in his own country. He proposed a toast to the prosperity of Venice, of the Italian nation, and of the King of Italy, which was received with loud applause, the band playing the Italian National Hymn. The Syndic (Dr. Fornoni) proposed, amid great cheering, "The Queen of England," and the band played the English National Anthem. In his remarks the Syndic said he interpreted the desire of all to send an expression of thanks to Mr. Sutherland, of the P. and O. Company, to whose earnest and continued exertions was owing the happy success of the negotiations with the Italian Government.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The market has been very quiet during the week, the large number of samples of new Teas showing have been more than buyers could give proper attention to, and they have only selected those parcels which have had something striking to recommend them, for which they have paid fair to full prices; but all other kinds have been neglected, and, we should say, that out of the heavy arrivals since the 18th ult. very little more than one-fourth has been sold. Public sales have been small, comprising only about 7,300 packages, all of which sold without reserve at prices generally in favour of buyers. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 2,991,600 lbs., against 2,514,000 lbs. last year.

SILK.

The market has continued quiet, but prices are steady, and there are no alterations of consequence in quotations. The first arrivals of the new China Silk have come to hand, and some little business has been done at former rates; but there is no activity, and the trade at large probably await more important arrivals and a choice of stock; the quality of the new Silk, so far as it has at present been seen, is satisfactory, particularly of the better grades of Tsatlee; the Silk appears decidedly cleaner, though perhaps somewhat coarser in size, than that of last season. Of new Canton Silk some few parcels are in, but chiefly those "sold to arrive," and there are no sales on the spot to record, but business will probably commence so soon as there is a more general stock at hand; there is no change in quotations, market Tsatlee being 19s. to 19s. 6d., as before. In Japans very little has been doing; the lower grades are very flat and dull of sale, but good and fine qualities find occasional demand at full rates. The deliveries in July were very satisfactory, having been:—2,815 China, 1,008 Canton, 1,423 Japan, and 593 Bengal; total, 5,839 bales.

COFFEE.

No alteration has occurred in the tone of the market during the week. The supplies of Plantation Ceylon at the public sales have been limited in extent, but the whole of the offers have been taken at the advanced prices established last week; the rates paid being triage and ordinary 72s. to 78s., small 78s. 6d. to 81s., low middling grey to dull 80s. 6d. to 82s. 6d., middling 83s. to 85s., good middling 86s. to 86s. 6d., pea-berry 95s. to 99s. No offers of Native Ceylon have been made at the auctions, but privately about 2,500 bags have been taken at 73s. to 73s. 6d. for good ordinary, and 75s. 6d. for bold, also 1,000 cwt. price not reported, and 1,000 bags now landing at 74s. 3d. An offer of 2,013 bags Manila at public sale was all bought in, pale greenish Indian sort at 75s. to 75s. 6d., pale Zamboanza at 73s. 6d. per cwt.

SUGAR.

The market continues in a very weak condition, and public sales, consisting chiefly of good and fine qualities, have gone off with unusual depression, and prices show a further reduction of 6d., and for crystallised fully 1s. per cwt. from last week's quotations. Lower prices have again been accepted for floating cargoes of West Indian, making a total decline of nearly 4s. per cwt. from the recent highest point, at which there has been more disposition to buy, and a larger business has been effected than for some time past. At auction 1,071 bales Siam concrete (duty 4s.) were bought in at 25s. 6d. to 26s. 6d.; 4,988 bags clayed Manila (duty 4s.). ex a previous auction, were sold at 27s. 6d., also 534 bags Taal unclayed at 23s. 6d., 4,941 bags soft brown China (duty 4s.) were offered and bought in at 24s. per cwt. No private business in East India descriptions is reported.

Camphor.—There has been no business during the week. The arrivals of China have been heavy, and unless improved deliveries are shortly seen, it is probable that the present prices will not be maintained. Stock 7,862 packages against 11,000, last year.

China Grass.—There is an entire absence of inquiry, 155 bales offered in public sale were bought in at £55.

Cocoa-nut Oil.—The market has shown somewhat more firmness. In public sale 221 casks Ceylon yellow to fine sold at £34 5s. to £35, a few lots £35 5s., rather dark and inferior £33 10s. to £34. Since the sale 50 tons have been sold privately on the spot at £35; also for arrival 35 tons July-August shipment at £35 10s., and 50 tons Oct.-Nov. shipment at £35 15s.

Coir Yarn.—Very extensive quantities, principally in dholls, have been brought to auction, and the whole sold at fully previous value for good and fine, but common coarse has been difficult to dispose of. Latest prices—Cochin, very fine to fine, £45 to £55; good, £35 to £40; low and common, £21 to £28; Ceylon, very fine and superior, £50 to £60; fine, £40 to £45; good, £33 to £36; low and common, £24 to £27.

Cutch.—There is only a retail demand, and sales are most difficult to effect, even at low prices. The whole of the offers during the past week have been withdrawn.

Dragon's-blood.—Offers of Singapore lump retired at £7 10s. to £10 10s. per cwt. for earthy and dull to good fair bright quality, rather painted and made up.

Essential Oils.—Speculation has again set in for Aniseed and Cassia; the former has advanced to 8s. 9d. on the spot, and 8s. 6d. for September-October delivery, and the latter to 6s. 3d.

Galangal Root.—Quiet at 17s. to 17s. 6d. per cwt.

Galls.—China have been freely offered, and have again slightly declined; about 400 cases have been disposed of at 54s. 6d. to 55s. for good but rather dark, and 53s. for medium quality. Japan in good demand, but no supply.

Gambier.—The demand has shown no abatement, and prices in all positions have advanced. Sound bales, ex warehouse, have realised 23s. per cwt., and small lots 23s. 6d., arrived in dock, ex ship, all faults, 22s. 6d.; March sailing afloat, 22s. 6d. to 23s.; 100 tons July-August, 22s. per cwt.; June, ship declared, 22s. 9d. There is considerable inquiry, and every probability that the market will still further improve, shipments at Singapore being light.

Hemp.—Manila has been dull and difficult to dispose of; fair to good roping may be quoted at £47 10s. to £49 15s.; Sorsagon £50, Boluzan £51, Quilot £63 to £65 per ton.

Hides.—The market has been liberally supplied with East India, especially with ordinary and inferior qualities, which have barely maintained former rates, whilst good slaughtered hides, which are comparatively scarce, have advanced fully ¼d. per lb. on the average, and for these a good enquiry exists at the advance. Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow have sold without quotable alteration in value; the sales comprise 9,304 hides; light 9½d. to 10¾d.; heavy 7½d. to 9d.; thirds 6d. to 7d.; fourths 4½d. to 5¾d. per lb. Singapore and Penang Buffalo are in fair demand at fully previous rates to a slight advance on the best qualities about 30 lb. and under. The sales of the month reach 2,246 hides—slaughtered, average 30¼ lb., seconds 6d.; fair to good, average, 29 to 30¼ lb., best 6⅛d.; seconds 5⅝d.; average 14½ lb, best 6⅜d.; ordinary and inferior, average 29½ to 27½ lb., best 5½d.; seconds 4⅜d. to 4⅝d.; average 12¾ lb., best 6⅜d. per lb. Batavia Buffalo are in fair demand at the reduced rates recently accepted. 3,602 hides have been sold as follows: fair to good, average 20 to 22⅝ lb., best 7d. to 8¼d.; average 12⅜ lb., best 7⅞d. per lb. Ordinary Javas, average 26¼ lb., seconds 5½d. per lb.

Horns.—Deer have sold freely at from last sale prices to 2s. per cwt. advance. Buffalo: Siams are still neglected, whilst other descriptions have met with a good demand at an advance of 2s. to 4s. on heavy, and 2s. to 5s. per cwt. on light averages. Ceylon Deer rule at 67s. to 73s.; Siam Buffalo, at 39s. 6d. per cwt.

Japan Wax is very quiet at £4 7s. 6d. per cwt. for fine saucers.

Mother o'Pearl Shells.—Market steady for all descriptions; no auctions have taken place, Macassar are quoted £13 to £13 10s. per cwt.; Manilla. £13.

Pepper.—Black—A large supply has been brought to auction, and Penang met an active demand at a further advance of ¼d. per lb., but Singapore went off slowly at former rates. Of 2,730 bags Singapore only 500 bags sold, sound at 6¾d. Of 2,342 bags Panang 1,830 bags sold, chiefly West Coast at 6½d., a few 6⅝d., ordinary light 6⅜d. For future delivery contracts have been made at 6½d. for September-October, and 6⅝d. for September. On the spot about 600 bags have been sold for the last four months of the year at 5⅞d., November-December at 5⅞d., December-January 5 11-16d. For arrival 40 tons West Coast Penang, per Una, have been sold at 6½d. White—The market is dull, and in auction of 505 bags offered only 270 bags sold at lower prices; of 384 bags Singapore 200 bags sold at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 2½d., of 121 bags Penang 71 bags sold at 1s. 1⅝d. to 1s. 1¾d., 50 bags have been sold for September delivery at 1s. 1½d.

Rhubarb.—China has slightly advanced; 55 chests at public sale being quitted at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. one lot 1s. 5d. per lb.

Rattans.—At auction 2,300 bundles Singapore sold at 3s. 9d. to 4s. 9d. (including Gambier damaged) per 100 canes, 114 bundles Ground Singapore were bought in at 6d. each. Other Canes: Of 58,500 Malacca about 11,000 sold at 2¼d. to 4¼d., the remainder bought in at 2d. to 3¾d., 53,500 Borneo bought in at 1d., and 6,000 Iron at 3d. each.

Rice.—On the spot the market has been dull at last quoted prices, but a fair inquiry has been manifested for floating cargoes, and the following have been sold. The Centaur 1,620 tons Necransie March sailing at 9s. 1½d. ex ship London, or 9s. 3¾d. ex quay. The Chiara, 950 tons Necransie, arrived off coast, at 9s. 1½d. for the Continent. The Johann 560 tons Necransie at 9s. 1½d. Continental terms. The Florence Braginton 570 tons Rangoon arrrved off coast at 10s. 6d. Liverpool terms. Otterburn (steamer) 1,500 tons Rangoon June sailing at 10s. 1½d. for Italy. The John Tucker 1,420 tons Rangoon at 10s. 4½d. Liverpool quay terms.

Sago.—At auction 751 bags small pearl were all sold at about the previous value, good bright 17s. to 17s. 6d., greyish 16s. to 16s. 6d.

Soy.—China is held for 2s. 6d. per gallon, which price buyeres decline to pay.

Star Anniseeds are in full supply, and buyers will not quote over £5 7s. 6d.

Tapioca.—Only 20 bags Singapore have been offered and sold at 2d. Flour: 340 bags Penang bought in at 2½d.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The market is quiet and somewhat irregular for Oolong and Japan, with a moderate demand for invoices at prices somewhat in favour of buyers. Green is steady. There is a fair line trade doing at previously ruling prices. By auction, 500 half-chests Green sold at 37½c. to 85½c.; 925 do. Oolong, 34c. to 85c.; 500 do. Japan, 56c. to 81c.; 35 do. Souchong, 36c. to 39c.; and 120 do. Congou, 37c. to 53c., 4 mos.

SILK.

Mr. O'Donoghue's Circular says the dullness that prevailed in the Silk market at the date of our last issue continued through the first fortnight of the interval, since which, a general resumption of business is apparent, and settlements of large quantities of all descriptions of R. R. Shanghai Silks have been made at quotations. In Canton Re-reeled we have to report little inquiry, buyers preferring to await the arrival of the new Silk, first shipments of which are expected about first proximo. Usual Reel Tsatlees and Taysaams have sold freely, and there is now no stock in the market. Japans continue without demand.

Prices current for China and Japan Raw Silks currency six months' terms; Tsatlee, re-reeled, best $8.75 to 9.00; fair 8.50. Taysaam, re-reeled, fair $7.75; med., $7.50. Haineen, re-reeled, best, $9.00 to 9.25; fair, 8.75. Szechuen, Shantung, med., $7.50 to 7.75; Kopun $5.75.

Coffee.—A reduction of three quarters of a cent per lb. on Brazil has brought with it no increase of demand, and, in the absence of business, quotations, though further reduced one-quarter of a cent, remain as nominal as before. Dealers find a fair distributive trade, but are not in the market at present, as most of them are understood to hold fair supplies. For other kinds the market is irregular, and quotations have declined ½c. to 1c. per lb. There have been no transactions in Java or other East India.

Camphor.—China is quoted 18c. gold in bond.

China Preserved Ginger rules at $8.25 currency, duty (50 per cent. ad val.) paid.

Essential Oils.—Aniseed is quoted $2.75 to 2.87½ gold, and Cassia $2.12½ gold, duty paid.

Fire Crackers.—Sales have been made of 1,000 boxes, extra No. 1, in bond, at $1.25 gold; 500 ditto, $1.30 gold, in bond; and 1,000 half-boxes, on private terms.

Hemp.—Manila is dull, and there has been no business transacted during the week; the nominal quotation is 11½c. to 12c. gold. There is none expected till September, but manufacturers are using their previous stocks and are not in the market, hence the dullness.

Indigo.—Market very quiet at 95c. to $1 currency for Manila.

Rice.—Rangoon continues in fair demand at $7 to 7.25 currency duty paid, and $3.20 to 3.25 gold in bond.

Sugar.—The improved feeling shown in the market last week was soon lost, as a disposition to sell carried prices down again, and the whole advance was speedily lost. Most holders are firm, especially of good refining Cuba and grades above that, but the stock is large, and in some quarters pressed on the market; hence the duller feeling and lower prices. The demand is almost entirely from refiners, who purchase only for the supply of their immediate wants. There are no transactions to report in East India descriptions.

SPICES.—There has been some movement in Nutmegs, but the particulars have not transpired; prices, however, are firmer, and it is now difficult to buy prime Penang below 95c. Cassia is a little firmer, and we advance our quotation to 27c. to 27¼c. Pepper is selling freely at the prices before current. Cloves are strong, and the stock is offered sparingly at the present price. The other descriptions are steady, with an improved trade demand. Sales have been made from store of Mace at $1.15 to 1.22½, Nutmegs 90c. to 92½c., Pepper, 17c. for Sumatra and 18c. for Singapore, in bond 12¾c. to 13c., White Pepper 35c. to 35¼c., Cloves 20c., Clove Stems 9½c., all gold.

TIN.—The market remains very quiet, and we hear of no business. For immediate delivery 36¼c. to 36½c. gold is asked for Straits. For delivery after August 1, a considerable advance on the previous rates is demanded, 35½c. to 36c. being the ruling price for Straits.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Advices from this port by the Pacific mail extend to the 22nd June; the French mail, with London dates to the 26th April, arrived out on the 16th, and the following P. and O. mail of 3rd May on the 17th June. The following summary of the news is from the Japan Mail and Japan Herald:—

In accordance with the announcement to that effect previously made by the Government, the railway between Yokohama and Shinagawa was opened for traffic on the 12th June. A party of high Japanese officials, headed by the Prime Minister Sanjo, Okuma Sanghi and Ito, and accompanied by the Minister of Public Works and the Chief Commissioner of Railways, came down on the previous evening and made a formal inspection of the line preparatory to its opening. There had been so many delays, so many rumours of the line being opened, which turned out to be canards, that an official announcement was gladly hailed by all, and it was expected that quite a numerous company would take passage by the first train. But, on the contrary, those who went for the mere gratification of curiosity were very few—only three foreigners—while some nine or ten others made use of the line to go to Yedo on business. By five minutes to eight in the morning some hundred persons, including several Japanese officials, were in the train, and as the clock struck the hour the whistle sounded, and amid the cheers of the passengers, the train drew out of the station. To describe the journey to Shinagawa is to be done in a few lines. The passengers had scarcely become accustomed to the motion and settled in their seats ere Kanagawa was reached—four minutes from the start. Then, entering upon a long straight run through the paddy fields, they soon passed Tsurume and then Kawasaki—fourteen minutes past eight. A short stop at this station and once more en route, crossing the bridge over the Logo, and in a few minutes through the cutting and out on to the Shinagawa embankment, the whole journey occupying thirty-four minutes only. There the train remained for some twenty-five minutes, and the passengers having taken their places, were carried back to Yokohama in thirty-three minutes. The carriages composing the train were six in number, two first, two second, one third, and the guard's van, one each of the first and second-class carriages being for smokers. The plan upon which they have been built differs somewhat from that in use either in England or America, the seats running along the sides of the carriage as in an American street car, and the first-class carriages being divided into three compartments by sliding doors. The second-class carriages have cane seats, and are not divided, while the third class carriages are at present merely baggage cars with seats, no proper third-class carriages having been constructed. The narrowness of the gauge, which many expected would make the carriages unsteady, failed to have that effect, and the travelling was as smooth as that on most English lines. On the whole there can be no question as to the success attained by opening the line.

For the present it is not intended to cultivate the intermediate station traffic; passengers will therefore only be taken from the Yokohama terminus to Shinagawa station, and vice versa. Nor will goods be taken until the trains run through to Yedo, which, should the season prove propitious, may, we are assured, be expected to take place some three months hence, the rails having been in great part laid along the embankment. An engine has already run through. The station at Yedo is well forward, and by such time as the line is fit for through traffic the goods sheds and warehouses will be completed for use. With the object of reducing the risks of collision to which a railway having only a single line of rails upon which the up and down traffic has to be worked, the system of "blocking" the line by telegraph between any two stations has been adopted. The working of the plan is thus explained: When a train, for instance, is about to leave Yokohama station, the station-master gives orders to the telegraph clerk to block the line to Kawasaki; this is done by first calling attention by a single stroke bell, which is acknowledged by Kawasaki station. Then by a single needle block instrument, the Yokohama clerk holds over his handle, which places his needle to "train on line," which indicates the same at Kawasaki. Then the clerk at Kawasaki puts in a pin which secures the needle to "train on line;" this remains so until the arrival of the train at Kawasaki. When the train is either in the siding, or clear of the main line, the station master gives orders to the telegraph clerk to "clear line." This is done by first calling attention of the Yokohama station, which is acknowledged by the bell, then Kawasaki station releases the pin and holds his handle over to "line clear;" this is acknowledged by Yokohama station, then the needle hangs perpendicular. The line is clear. If this "block" system is faithfully observed the accident of trains meeting or running into each other is rendered an impossibility. It is an admirable plan for adding to the safety of those who travel. The stations that have been erected are unpretentious in character, inexpensive, and fairly convenient for a moderate amount of traffic. On the first day only two trains were advertised to run each way daily, but the authorities have since put on four more. The fares that have been fixed have called forth universal disapprobation on account of their exorbitancy—the first-class equalling something about fourpence per mile! We hear, however, that the charges are to be lowered.

A contest is going on between the foreign diplomatic representatives and the Japanese Government respecting the way in which the Mikado should give audience when presentations are made. Heretofore it has been customary for his Majesty to give audience sitting, Japanese fashion. Mr. Watson, the new British Chargé d'Affaires, is of opinion, however, that the Mikado's attitude towards the representatives of Sovereign Powers is not sufficiently respectful, and requires to be changed. This view, upon a conference, has been concurred in by the other Ministers. The point of etiquette, however, is stubbornly debated, Terashima Toza being especially obstinate on this trivial matter. Mr. Watson is prevented from presenting his credentials until the affair is satisfactorily adjusted by the concession of what is required. Terashima Toza upon occasion manifests a stubborn spirit of obstruction. It was he who particularly busied himself on the Christian question, and displayed an intolerant bigotry during the many interviews and long correspondence with Ministers which took place on this subject some two years ago. It would have been better for Japan had a more judicious selection of Minister to England been made; of somebody, at all events, who had not distinguished himself in the maladroit way that he has done. An inveterate opponent of Christianity is an awkward choice to send to Christian England. But whilst he is so staunchly Conservative, insisting on the Mikado not observing the rule observed by other Sovereigns when receiving foreign representatives, the ground has been quite cut from under his feet by the Mikado at an audience given the other day to Admiral Jenkins, of the United States navy, standing erect, instead of observing the undignified squatting posture heretofore observed by his Majesty on these occasions. After this we shall expect to hear of the British Charge d'Affaires being received in the manner to which he is entitled as the representative of the sovereign of a great nation.

The Mikado has expressed his intention to visit different parts of his empire. He starts on his tour on the 28th June. He first visits Osaka, after which, proceeding via the Inland Sea, he will reach Nagasaki. It is not yet decided in which vessel his Majesty will travel, but the whole of the Imperial fleet will accompany him.

Teroshima Toza has been gazetted as Charge d'Affaires of Japan to England for the term of three years, but it is not improbable that this will be ultimately changed to six.

The Japanese Government has issued a long explanation of the recent revolt near near Nee-e-gata. It states that it was really fomented by ronins from the former provinces of Aidzu and Yonezawa, and that the secret motive was political, although the pretended causes of action were the oppressive labour forced upon the people in the construction of a canal; the substitution of the Shinto for the Buddhist faith, by order of the Government; the increased commercial facilities granted to foreigners, and finally the imposition of heavier taxes than were exacted under the rule of Tokugawa. A facsimile of the banner of the insurrectionists is given, the inscription on which calls for the restoration of the Shiogun. It is admitted that 40,000 persons were concerned in the outbreak, and that many officials, some of high rank, were killed before it was suppressed.

The department of religion has called another conference of Buddhist priests at Yedo, to be held there on the 26th June. The object of the gathering is not stated, but none but priests of the "most learned and virtuous character are to attend." The priests who were summoned have arrived at Yedo. Several notifications concerning the Buddhists have been published. It is announced that hereafter all priests are to be permitted to eat flesh and to marry, as well as to wear foreign clothes.

The Government is paying great attention to its settlements in the island of Yeso. On the 22nd May the Government despatched a steamer conveying a company of artisans, among whom were carpenters, masons, and others, to the number of 568 persons, to the island, where quarters have been prepared for them. In a few weeks hence another company of five or six hundred more persons will be sent to the same place. A manufactory for the purpose of making bricks by steam has been established near Yedo.

The new kinsats, which have been manufactured for the Government at Frankfort, are now being issued. The kinsat forgers still seem to be at work. Two Japanese merchants of Yedo have been seized by the police, charged with making 800 rios' worth of kinsats. It appears that after they had made that amount they got nervous, and destroyed all the tools, implements, and the balance of the blanks by fire, hoping to thus conceal their crime from the authorities. They then equally divided the 800 rios' worth that they had made, but were arrested in attempting to pass them.

Complaints are being made of extortion practised upon foreigners who travel by Japanese steamers running between Yedo and Yokohama, from whom double rates are collected, although they receive no more accommodation than the natives. This is exceedingly low and mean, especially when it is well known that on foreign mail steamers the rates for Japanese are not raised. When the Imperial Ambassadors of the Mikado went to America, the passage money paid was the usual first-class rate. No advantage was taken of them to extort extra passage money. This should be well noted by Japanese, and foreigners treated with more justice hereafter. At present the universal custom in Japan is to ask foreigners three or four times as much as the natives of the country are expected to pay.

Serious disturbances have taken place in the Karatz district, said to be caused by a rival clan seizing upon a treasury chest containing 50,000 rios. Six hundred Imperial troops have been despatched to the scene of the riot.

A school for the children of the poor has been opened at Shiba, Hikangicho, Yedo. The children have to pay only the small sum of one boo each per month, and they are supplied, free of charge, with school-books, pens, paper, ink, &c. The salaries of the teachers, rent of building, and other expenses, are chiefly borne by some wealthy merchants of Yedo, the balance being paid by the Government. The children are taught reading and writing in English, French, and their own language. The schools in Yedo—both Government and private—now amount to nearly 200, whereas four or five years ago there were but few,—a sure guarantee for the improvement of the people.

It is announced that the streets of Yedo are to be widened—the main street to fifteen ken, and those running parallel with it to twelve ken. Cross thoroughfares are to be eight ken. Trees are to be planted along the sides of the principal avenues, and side-walks are to be introduced in some cases.

An extraordinary report has been received in Yedo, stating that a sort of panic has arisen among the lower classes in Aki and Nagato, in relation to the telegraph. It is believed to be a diabolical device, that the wires are coated with the blood of young girls, and that a census now going on is in order to ascertain the number of available young girls for this purpose.

It is stated by tea growers that the crop this year will not equal by one-half that produced last year, in consequence of the severe winter they have had; but, notwithstanding this, the amount that will be brought into the market will be five times as much as that offered five years ago, owing to a much larger area of soil being put under tea cultivation.

The annual regatta held in honour of Her Majesty's birthday came off on the 29th May with great success, notwithstanding an almost incessant downpour of rain on that day. An attempt has been made to revive the ancient English sport of hawking, but the result was a complete fiasco.

The supposed assassin of Hirosawa, a high official who was murdered last year, has been captured, and will be executed should his guilt be established.

Uri, Chiji of the City of Yedo, has been ordered by the Government to join the Embassy now visiting America and Europe.

A new order has been issued against the sale of land in any part of the Empire to foreigners, and also against the offering of land as security for loans.

Complaints of the negligent manner in which the Government carry on the postal service still continue to be made.

Three new telegraph stations are about to be opened in Yedo shortly—one near Niphon Bashi, another a short distance from the Asakusa temple, and the third near Riongoku.

Hail storms have taken place in the province of Shimosa, the stones being described as equal in size to rifle bullets. Great fears are entertained that the crops in that district have been destroyed.

Burglaries are again of frequent occurrence in the foreign settlements, and the native police do not seem to be of much use, very few depredators being captured.

LATER ADVICES BY PACIFIC MAIL.

The Pacific mail steamer Colorado arrived at San Francisco on the 28th ult., with advices from Yokohama to the 7th July. The following is the summary of news brought by this steamer as telegraphed to the New York press:—

The Mikado left Yedo on the 28th June, accompanied by eight war steamers, intending to visit Kioto and other portions of the southern country, and return in forty days. This is the first time in Japanese history that a Mikado has embarked on such an excursion, and much good is expected to result from it.

The Japanese Government has decided upon the promulgation of a new form of religion upon careful consultation with the most noted exponents of each sect, and all will be compelled to conform thereto. The new religion will be enlightened, simple, and adapted to common sense, and is likely to meet the approval of all classes.

Telegraphic communication between Yedo, Nagasaki and the outside world is to be completed within five weeks. The Japanese Mint has been closed for extensive additions.

The Pacific mail steamers are unable to meet the requirements of shippers. Three sailing vessels are under charter for San Francisco. The Polly Lewis is laid on for New York. Three hundred and fifty bales of new silk have been shipped, which showed a marked difference in quality from last shipments. There is business enough offering from Yokohama alone to supply cargoes for four steamers per month for the summer season.

The Tunisian steamer Zadkia being unable to pay her debts, the Japanese Government has ordered her to be sold, the captain protesting.

The rates of exchange have advanced, and six months bank bills on London are firm at 4s. 9d.

Tea is in good demand at advancing prices.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, 15th June, 1872.

I last wrote on the 14th ultimo, since when nothing of importance has transpired to report upon. The news I have to send you in this letter amounts to nothing. The new teas are not expected to arrive here for some time yet, owing, it is said, to their being held up country for high prices. A few small lots have come down, but the bulk has yet to be received. The rainy season is unusually late this year, and instead of the hot, damp weather usually prevalent here in June, we have had a fine bracing northern wind, which has made the temperature like October.

The sailings for London since my last letter have been the British ship Lahloo, via Shanghai, on the 1st inst., and the North German schooner Santos on the 6th. The manifests as published give the cargo of the former as 3 164 packages tea, curios, &c., 73 tons, and 200 tons of dead weight which means old bronze guns, I believe, but there appears to be a desire at the present time on the part of some folks to be very mysterious, and the cargo of the Santos is understood to be private and not to be published, all particulars being refused. Business at present is at a standstill in almost everything except coals, and these are being sent forward freely—each chartered vessel arriving obtains her cargo and sails again with very quick despatch. Rates of freight are lower, but we have no available tonnage in this harbour at present. In consequence of the dullness, the quotations for drafts on London, Shanghai, &c., and also those for nebus and the new coinage, are quite nominal.

The latest mail advices to hand from England are by the English mail of April 19, which arrived on the 2nd inst. by H.B.M.S. Salamis in forty-four days.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The only change noticeable during the interval had been an increase in the demand for Cotton Yarns, prices of which had advanced in consequence, the closing quotations being:—16-24, $44.75 to 45.25; 28-32, $48 to 48.75; 38-42, $48 to 49. Grey Shirtings were in moderate request at a slight advance for 8¼ lbs. and 9 lbs. weights, 7 lbs. being, on the contrary, somewhat lower. Turkey Red Shirtings had been in fair demand without alteration in prices. Other Cotton Goods had shown no change. For Woollens there was little or no inquiry, except for Blankets and Mousselines. Metals were without alteration. Quotations—G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 38½ yards, 39 in., $2.32½ to 2.36 per piece; 8 lbs., 4 to 8 lbs., 6 yards, $2 55 to 2.60; 9 lbs., 44 in., $2.87½ to 2.92½. G.E. White Shirtings, $2.40 to 2.85. T-Cloths, 6 lbs. to 7 lbs., $1.80 to 2.15. Turkey Reds, 24 yards, 30 in., $0.85 to 1.00.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—The general tone of the import market had been rather better during the month. Cotton Yarn: There had been a fair enquiry for the medium and lower counts, Nos. 38/42 not being in request. Grey Shirtings had been dealt in to a large extent, quotations showing a slight decline on those last given. Drills had been enquired for at improving prices. Turkey Reds: Previous rates were fully maintained. Black Velvets were higher, and readily saleable at quotations. There was a moderate demand for Victoria Lawns. Woollens: Scarlet Camlets and Plain Orleans had advanced in value, a fair amount of business having been transacted at quotations. Plain Mousselines de Laine were slightly lower, with but little enquiry. Long Ells were quiet, Scarlet having been purchased to a small extent. Tin Plates had been asked for, but there was no stock. Lead: Quite unsaleable. Closing quotations ruled as follows: Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, $132 to 133; 28 to 32, $142 to 143; 38 to 42, $129 to 130 per bale. Cotton Piece Goods: GE Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 38 yards, 39 inch, $2 35; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., ditto, $2.55 to 2.58; 9 lbs., 44 inch, $2·75 to 2.80 per piece; GE White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, 40 yards, 36 inch, nominal; 64 to 72 ditto, $2.60 to 2.70; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.75; Drills. Dutch 40½ yards, $4; English, 15 lbs., $4.25 to 4.50; Brocades and Spots, White, $2.50 to 2·75; Dyed, $3.50 to 3.75; Chintz, Assorted, 24 yards, 30 inch, $1.75 to 2.50; Turkey Red, $2.50 to 3.50. Turkey Red Cambrics, 3 lbs., $2.70 to 2.80; Camlets, SS Scarlet, $21 to 21.50; Black, $13.50 to 14; Assorted, $14 to 16.

NAGASAKI.—The Piece Goods market had been very dull during the month, the supplies of most descriptions of Cotton Fabrics being in excess of the demand. 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings had changed hands in small quantities at quotation, and Turkey Red Cambrics were wanted, but holders refused to sell at ruling rates. Yarns: No. 16 to 24 continued in demand at $24 per picul, and with but small stocks higher prices were expected to rule. Quotations in Mexican Dollars.—Duty paid: Gray Shirtings: 7 lbs. $2.15 per piece; ditto 8¼ $2.50; T-Cloths: 6 to 7 lbs. $1.90; Yarn: Grey Mule: $42.00 per picul.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Business in this market had been somewhat curtailed in consequence of the difficulty in obtaining freight, otherwise there would have been large settlements. There had been 3.300 piculs settled since June 9, making total since last American mail about 8,800 piculs, consisting for the most part of good medium leaf; prices had ruled much the same as last quoted, but the market closed firm with an upward tendency. Supplies had continued to come in freely, and the stock had increased; the quality is reported to be fair, but not improving. There had been no export but that reported by last mail. The current quotations were:—Common, good common, and medium, nominal; good medium, $35 to 38 per picul; fine $40 to 44; finest, $46 to 50; choice, $52 and upwards.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Business had been continued on a liberal scale at prices showing a marked decline from those paid for the earlier shipments, the scarcity of tonnage, with large receipts, being the cause of this fall. Prices were $4 to 6 lower than at same period last season. The arrivals to date had been about 6,500 piculs, settlements 4,000 piculs, leaving an estimated stock of 2,500 piculs.

NAGASAKI.—In the early part of the month some transactions in old leaf had taken place at easier rates, and stocks were almost exhausted. A few sample lots of new season's teas were on offer, but, as they came from the immediately adjacent districts, they had not afforded much indication of the general quality of the bulk of Nagasaki teas. One or two small parcels of imitation Uji or Yokohama leaf had been sold at as high a price as $33 per picul. No large arrivals of new crop teas were expected till after the rainy season, which would be over in about a month from date.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for July show a large increase in the declared value of exports, the total being £23 005,330, against £19,817,991 in July, 1871, and £17,446,764 in the corresponding period of 1870. The increase is very equally distributed over most of the leading items, a large share falling, as usual, to metals and minerals. Among the principal changes are the following:—There is an augmentation under the heads of alkali, apparel, chemical products, coal and coke—60 per cent. in value; cotton manufactures—19 per cent.; earthenware, haberdashery, hardware, iron and steel—33 per cent.; lead, linen manufactures, machinery, silk yarn and manufactures, telegraphic wire, woollen and worsted manufactures, and unenumerated articles. Cotton, linen, and woollen yarns have fallen off. The imports show a decrease in wheat and cotton, which is due in each case to diminished receipts from the United States. The total declared value of imports last month was £29,972,027, against £31,257,465 in July, 1871, and £24,690,140 in July, 1870.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

PARLIAMENT.

THE SUEZ CANAL DUES.

Mr. Gourley asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if any negotiations had been entered into with the Turkish Government relative to the navigation of the Suez Canal, and the increase of dues imposed by the Company since the 1st July; and whether he could inform the House if it was not a principle stipulated for in the construction of the Canal that its international neutrality as a highway to and from the East should be preserved for the use of the shipping of all nations.

Lord Enfield replied that, in consequence of communications from the Italian Government and from other quarters on the subject of the intended imposition by the Suez Canal Company of tonnage dues of 10 francs on the gross tonnage, Sir Henry Elliot was instructed to ascertain the views of the Turkish Government, and he reported that the Porte was at first disposed to think that the Company were not justified, under the terms of the concession, in considering the total capacity as gross tonnage; but it appeared from a further despatch that the Porte had come to the conclusion that the Company might charge gross tonnage dues, making some allowance for engine and coaling space. That was the view taken by our own law officers. With regard to the second part of the question, there could be no doubt that the international neutrality of the Canal was provided for in one of the stipulations of the Treaty. (Hear, hear).

Mr. Norwood asked the President of the Board of Trade whether a statement that appeared recently in a public print was correct, viz., that the Board of Trade, in replying to a communication from the Suez Canal Company informing the British Government of its intention to levy dues on the gross tonnage of shipping instead of the net tonnage, used words to the following effact:—"I am to add that the Board of Trade are glad to find that the company have come to this decision, as the Board of Trade believe that the principle of charging dues on the gross tonnage of all ships is correct;" and further, if he had any objection to lay upon the table of the House the correspondence that had passed during the present year between the Board of Trade and the Suez Canal Company.—Mr. C. Fortescue said that a letter had been addressed lately by the Suez Canal Company to the Board of Trade, and an answer had been returned to it. It contained such a passage as that which his hon. friend had read. The passage contained an opinion of a theoretical kind in favour of measurement by gross tonnage strictly speaking, that being not a question of the amount of duty to be raised but of the amount of measurement. It would not be suited to the circumstances of this country at present, considering the Dock Acts under which charges were levied at some of our ports. As far as he understood the intentions of the Suez Canal Company, they neither intended to adopt the system of gross tonnage pure and simple, nor one that pointed to the adoption of the English practice, but they favoured a system which would be neither the one nor the other.

INDIAN FINANCE.

(6th.) On the motion for going into committee on East India revenue accounts Mr. Grant Duff (Under Secretary for India) proceeded to make the annual statement in reference to the finances of Hindustan, remarking that the prospect on the whole was satisfactory, as the income for the year ended the 31st of March, 1871, had exceeded the expectation formed of it, while the expenditure had been less than was anticipated. Fifty-one millions of revenue had been anticipated, and £51,413,000 had been realised, while the payments were less than had been provided for. The grand result was that, instead of having a surplus of £1,083,000, they had realised £1,482,000, showing an increase on the preceding year of £512.000. The principal items of increase had arisen from assessed taxes and customs duties. Commenting next upon the balances in hand, both here and in India, the hon. gentleman contended that such were the peculiar features of Indian finance that it was absolutely necessary to keep a large balance to meet the sudden demands that might be made upon the Secretary of State. Proceeding then to trace the financial history of the country since the period of the mutiny, he showed that, whereas the excess of expenditure over income in that interval had been only £7,500,000, India had received value in the shape of public works of a reproductive character of £37,500,000. The whole local taxation of India, upon which so much stress had been laid, was only £5,500,000. and the whole of this had been devoted to local purposes. Passing next to the political condition of the empire, Mr. Grant Duff insisted that the murder of Lord Mayo had no political significance whatever, and that if the people of India were in a chronic condition of discontent the Government of India were ignorant of the fact. The possibility of danger always attended the administration of that vast empire, and at any moment some unregarded trifle might lead to trouble and alarm. But, having made that admission, he must give a most emphatic denial to the statements made in society and in the press that the present condition of India was marked by exceptional discontent. Party passions raged there as furiously as in any country, but the alarmist statements with regard to India were simply the exaggerations or the fabrications of persons who had their own particular ideas to advance or their own particular interests to forward. His noble friend at the head of the India-office was in the closest communication, private as well as public, with all those who held in their hands the threads of the Indian Government, and he knew whatever was to be known of the affairs of the country. The religious revival which had prevailed in the west of Europe had found its way to the Mussulman world, and that was a fact in Indian affairs which must not be ignored, although it would be easy to overrate its importance. The influence of extended education and of increased communications with Europeans had raised up—he would not say an Indian public opinion, because that would probably be premature—but an Indian class and section of opinion upon which it was quite necessary for Government to reckon. The railway and the telegraph, although they had considerably added to our power, had nevertheless added to the power of those who "loved us not," and it was necessary that we should "walk warily and not boast of the morrow." The experiment of India government, with all its faults, was the noblest and the most beneficent experiment in the way of government that the world had ever seen. It was working most satisfactorily, and at this moment there was no more cause for uneasiness than was usually the case. In 1869 Lord Mayo found the income-tax non-existent, but after a lapse of two or three months he re-established it. Six months passed over, and Lord Mayo and his advisers got the reluctant acquiescence of the Secretary of State to double the income-tax and increase the salt-tax. After another six months the income-tax was further increased, so that in the autumn of 1870 Lord Mayo had, in the course of eighteen months, re introduced, doubled, and trebled the tax which of all taxes in India was the most unpopular with those who made opinion—namely, our own European officers, and that influential class which wrote in the newspapers. Very general discontent did certainly prevail in India last year, but since the reduction of the income-tax that feeling had lessened, and the state of things had entirely changed. If Lord Mayo had altered his opinion in 1871 with regard to the income-tax, how much more cheerful would his opinion be now under the improved state of Indian finance, and when the lowered income-tax was applied to a smaller class of persons! If that were so, what became of the first half of the foundation of the hon. gentleman's resolution? It was sapped and destroyed, leaving the unfortunate resolution in the uncomfortable predicament of having nothing to do with the actualities of 1872. With regard to the finances of India in the coming year, it was impossible for anyone either in or out of India to form an opinion that would be worth having. He had no idea what opinion Lord Northbrook would come to in regard to the income-tax. Lord Mayo, in his latter days, inclined against the income-tax as permanent, but at the same time he placed it merely there among the matters that called for change, and would have been disposed to deal first with a modification of the salt duty. Within three weeks of his lamented death, his opinion in regard to the wild stories of oppression in connection with the imposition of the income-tax, was in accordance with those which General Barrow entertained. It was easy to say that the finances of India were susceptible of improvement. He did not stand there to say that the system of Indian taxation was by any means perfect, but any one acquainted with the subject knew that in times past the taxes had been ten times more burdensome than they were now. (Hear, hear). He did not see that the House could derive any light on the subject from the remarks that the hon. member for Brighton was going to address to them—(a laugh)—as these remarks must be founded on an imperfect knowledge of the facts, and the select committee, in their interim report, had expressed, with only one dissentient voice, namely, that of the hon. member for Brighton, the opinion that the evidence given before it had not, as yet, been such as to enable it to arrive at a just conclusion. If any half-dozen members, similarly in a minority, acted in the way the hon. member was doing, they would have it in their power to stop the whole business of the House.

Mr. Fawcett (L.) moved—"That this House, considering the statements of the late Lord Mayo that 'a feeling of discontent and dissatisfaction exists among every class, both European and native, in our Indian Empire, on account of the constant increase of taxation which has been for years going on,' and that 'the continuance of that feeling is a political danger the magnitude of which can hardly be over estimated,' is of opinion that the income tax, which is generally admitted to be unsuited to the people of India, might during the coming financial year be dispensed with; and that other taxes exceptionally burdensome to the people of India might be considerably reduced if the finances of that country were administered with adequate care and economy." The hon. gentleman said that as an independent member he had given notice of this motion in order to do what he could to prevent the discussion of the Indian Budget from being a farce. No one who had the smallest acquaintance with the feelings of the people of India could doubt that this shelving of the Indian Budget to the fag-end of the session would be regarded by them as showing a determination on the part of Government to treat their affairs with neglect. The peculiarity of the finances of India was the elasticity of the expenditure and the inelasticity of the revenue. The land, the most important item of revenue, yielded about £21,000,000 in gross, and £18,000,000 net. At least one-fifth of this, that yielded by permanently settled districts, was absolutely fixed; the rest was settled for 30 years at a fixed rent, and could only slightly be increased as the estates fell in. Mr. Campbell, Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, had said this increase would be counterbalanced by a reduction of revenue in Madras, the land of which was let direct to the ryots, who were too highly assessed. Salt, the next most important item, yielded £6,000,000, which every competent authority concluded could not be increased. A lower tax might cause greater consumption, but as the duty varies between 500 and 2,500 per cent. upon the cost it could not be raised. Opium, the next most important source of revenue, yielded between £6.000,000 and £8,000,000. The Government virtually traded in this, and obtained the highest possible price for it; but according to Sir Rutherford Alcock, our late Minister in China, no revenue could be more precarious than that obtained from opium. Although desirous of dealing with opium as a financial question only, he could not refrain from expressing the fear that some might think us hypocritical in forcing a deleterious drug upon the Chinese in our anxiety to obtain revenue and profit from opium while members of the Legislature permitting it made moral speeches and took infinite credit for restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors at home. Sir R. Alcock stated the Chinese regarded our cultivation of opium with great jealousy, were increasing the cultivation of it themselves, contemplated prohibiting its importation in the hope of stopping its growth, and now taxed it 100 per cent.; the reduction of this tax he assumed would inevitably reduce our revenue, and he concluded by stating that had he been able to make concessions in the shape of restricting the importation of opium from India he might have secured almost any terms from the Chinese in the treaty he was negotiating as regards "admitting English commodities." Nothing, therefore, could be more uncertain than the revenue from opium. The other sources of revenue, including those from duties on drugs, import duties, and tributes from princes, could not increase, and this being so, he invited the attention of the House to the enormously increasing cost of Indian administration. Summing up all the conclusions, the result was that they had a most elastic expenditure and an avowed policy of the Government of undertaking new and enormous liabilities, against which he asked the House to protest. No more striking corroboration of his argument could be found than the emphatic statements of Mr. Massey, who maintained that the inexpansive nature of the revenue rendered rigid economy in Indian administration absolutely necessary. That gentleman also stated that all the sources of taxation had been used up, and that there was nothing left to rely upon but the income-tax. Like embarrassed traders, the Government had been devoting capital to income. In 1869 and 1870 there appeared a miscellaneous receipt of £340,000, as an ordinary item of income, but this was discovered to be a portion of the capital of the military funds, and the controller of finance was obliged to admit that the item was put down to cover the prodigality of army expenditure. The Malta and Alexandria Telegraph had cost the Indian Government £115,000, but the cable turned out to be absolutely worthless, and was sold at an enormous discount, the proceeds of the sale being put down to income. The Government of India was now so arranged as to reduce the guarantees of economy to a minimum. There were four or five spending departments, and there was an absence of that personal and specific responsibility which was essential. The office of the Secretary of State, too, was so constituted that there was no adequate protection for the interests of India. The holder of the office changed with parties, and when he had acquired some practical knowledge of Indian affairs, he was liable to be transferred to another office. India appeared to be too often regarded as a country created to increase English trade and to supply cotton. All over India was to be seen the same disastrous policy of guaranteeing and carrying on works at the public expenditure. If he were asked to propose a remedy for the waste and extravagance that were going on in India, he could suggest no better one than that the English people should thoroughly awaken to the responsibility of the trust reposed in them when they undertook to govern 150,000,000 of people, and the magnitude of the stake which they held in India. The amount invested in India under a system of guarantees, and in one form of public undertaking or another, was £180.000,000. It was necessary the English people should be reminded of the great stake they had in India, and of the critical condition of Indian finance. Much might be done by educating public opinion with regard to lessening expenditure in India, and introducing greater economy. He was aware that a resolution passed in that House had not the authority of law. It was only the expression of the opinion of the House of Commons, and the Indian Government might attach what value the pleased to it. It was the opinion of Mr. Massey that, if the military expenditure of India were properly supervised, one million sterling, at least, might be saved; and Lord Sandhurst, before he left India, stated that the amalgamation of the separate armies of Bombay and Madras would not only insure greater strength and efficiency, but that without such amalgamation it was hopeless to expect economy. (Hear, hear). No Finance Minister of India, except Sir R. Temple, could be quoted in favour of the income tax. Sir C. Trevelyan, Mr. Laing, and Mr. Massey had all spoken strongly against it. Mr. Laing had asserted that for every rupee that came to the Treasury as the proceeds of the tax two rupees were taken from the people by various means of extortion or corruption. Mr. Massey said no power on earth would induce him to become Finance Minister if the Secretary of State imposed on him the condition that the income-tax should be retained as part of the financial system. There was evidence that the tax fell most heavily on the poorest class of the cultivators, and that in Bengal that class had shown a desire to emigrate to Nepaul. Mr. Inglis, in a speech in the Legislative Council in India, had asserted that for one man who was legally liable to pay the tax as many as twen y were illegally assessed. Mr. Robinson, another official member of that Council, testified that the tax was producing a sullen feeling of discontent throughout the country. This very year the income-tax could easily be dispensed with. It was only necessary to check the expenditure on public works and overhaul the military expenditure. The system of Government guarantee and State expenditure in regard to public works was quite uncalled-for, and had the effect of crushing private enterprise in India. What India needed in the matter of public works was rest. A decentralised system of Indian finance had recently been introduced which would only have the effect of greatly increasing the amount of taxation. Local taxation was a much more insidious evil than imperial taxation, as it was much more likely to escape detection.

Mr. Torrens (L.) seconded the amendment, declaring that the statement of the Under Secretary for India was no budget at all, and that it ought to be the object of the Government to give effect to the pledge given by Lord Mayo that India should be governed for the benefit of the people of India.

Mr. Eastwick regretted that the Budget had not been brought on at an earlier period of the session, as many gentlemen who took the greatest interest in the subject, and were most entitled to speak upon it, were missed from that debate. He altogether dissented from the very unfavourable opinion which had been expressed in some quarters as to Sir R. Temple's Budget for 1872-3. That Budget showed a surplus of £230,000, and proposed to defray all the extraordinary expenses of the year without raising a single shilling by way of loan, besides exhibiting a cash balance of over £24,000,000. He regarded the Budget as by far the most promising that had been presented for the last seven years, and felt sure that the present surplus was due to the invincible determination of the late Lord Mayo to bring the public expenditure within the public income. With regard to opium, nothing could be more uncertain than estimates founded upon that traffic, for an Indian Finance Minister, with all the advantages accruing from his office, was unable to calculate within two millions what the opium traffic would be. At present Sir R. Temple anticipated from the ensuing year a falling off of over £1,500,000, and all that could safely be predicated of that estimate was that for some reason or another it was sure to be wrong. The opium traffic was the disturbing element in Indian finance, and we should never have a correct estimate as long as this drug was one of the chief sources of the revenue. We ought, therefore, to be always prepared for a deficit, and as in India we could not impose any new tax without encountering a very serious opposition, the only remedy was to prepare for this deficit by a reduction of expenditure.

Mr. R. Fowler admitted that it would be well if an income-tax could be dispensed with in India. Opium was, however, a more objectionable source of revenue, both on financial and moral grounds. Mr. Laing and Mr. Massey looked upon the revenue derived from opium as satisfactory, because in their opinion it was permanent. But to his mind it was most precarious, for what guarantee had we that the Chinese might not grow sufficient opium for their own consumption? That, however, was not the only ground on which he condemned the tax. The history of the opium revenue was most discreditable, and a distinguished authority had said long ago that no amount of revenue would justify us in inflicting such harm as was done by the opium trade.

The debate was continued for some time, but eventually Mr. Fawcett withdrew his motion, and the budget as introduced by Mr. Grant Duff was passed.

GERMANY.

Hamburg, Aug. 6.

In one of my last letters I stated that the German Government intended to engage young lawyers as student-interpreters in China and Japan, where, after passing their examination in the language of the country they would be attached to the Consulates there, and eventually be admitted to the Consular Service. At the present time of day, when parents find it so difficult to find a career for their children, it was thought that the number of applications would be legion, and that the Government would have the pick and choice of the most intelligent and promising; but such is by no means the case, and for once Prince Bismark is at fault in his anticipations, for only a very few have applied for the appointment. This has been variously accounted for, but, according to my humble opinion, the Consular Service —I speak of the Consules Missi—is by no means popular in Germany. In the first place, the salary is fixed on a very moderate scale, though it is true there are certain additional perquisites or allowances which vary according to the locality; but these are not be relied on as regular income. Secondly, the fees received for passports, certificates and shipping have to be accounted for to the Government, and are not allowed to go into their private pocket, as is the case with the unsalaried merchant Consuls. But I think the greatest objection of all is that whilst in most other countries the Consular Service is considered as the nursery or infant-school of diplomacy, by the German system the door is shut in their faces, and there is no connection between the two branches of the service, so that the paid Consuls have but a very limited sphere of action, and still less chance of promotion or opportunity of distinguishing themselves by superior zeal, knowledge, or efficiency. This of course tends to discourage young men of good university education possessed of sufficient ambition to make a career for themselves. On the other hand, I am inclined to think that the bugbear of distance from home or unhealthiness of climate no longer creates any alarm in the German mind. I once heard a gentleman say that Scotchmen and rats were to be met with in every country in the world, to which a Hamburger added "and Germans also." Promotions from the Consular to the Diplomatic Service belong to the most rare exceptions, and are then more the result of influential connections than brilliant public services, the only case on record being that of Count Keyserlingk, at present the German Ambassador at Constantinople, who was suddenly pitchforked into his present high position from the comparatively inferior appointment of Consul-General at Bucharest, in consequence of his being nearly related to the wife of a certain distinguished personage. In the meantime it is a well-known fact that there is a great scarcity of suitable persons, and that is the reason why so many Consulates are at this moment vacant. This is the case at St. Petersburg, Rome, Odessa, Christiania, Bahia, and others, whilst the lately established Consulate at Algiers, which was also going a-begging, has just been given to Herr von Soden, a young Wurtemburg jurist of good family, who has only recently quitted the University, and is of course without any practical knowledge of his duties or experience of the service.

The monthly statistical returns compiled and issued by the Board of Trade give a very satisfactory proof of the great increase of the navigation and trade of this city. Up to the end of July the number of vessels that had arrived here was 3,405, with a tonnage of 801,820 lasts (of two tons each), against 3 023 vessels with 684,300 lasts in the corresponding seven months of last year. The number of vessels arrived from European ports has risen from 2,583 to 2,880, and from Transatlantic countries from 356 to 525. Steam navigation seems destined to absorb the whole trade in time; already the number (1,569, against 1,310 last year) exceeds one-half of the vessels and three-quarters of the tonnage, and in spite of the lately opened new accommodation for loading and discharging at the quays, the authorities have the greatest difficulty in finding room for all the new arrivals. It is under these circumstances of the utmost importance to execute without delay the works for the new open docks mentioned in one of my recent letters.

It has been the custom here from time immemorial for the merchants to make presents in money at Christmas to their bookkeepers and clerks, and this has hitherto been done in a gold coin made expressly for the purpose, and called a Hamburg Ducat, of the value of about eight marks currency. They are coined or re-coined every year, bearing the date of the following year, and being just issued from the mint have a bright and glittering appearance, much valued by the youthful recipients, and this makes them reluctant to spend them. It is well known that these Christmas donations have formed the nest eggs of many colossal fortunes made since. In the face of the forthcoming alteration of the currency it has not escaped the vigilance of our keen-eyed chamber of commerce that a corresponding change will also soon be required, and it is proposed to replace them next Christmas by the new ten-mark gold pieces. On inquiry at the Bank, where they were issued, it was ascertained that the number thus given away ranges between 50,000 and 60,000, and varies according to the magnitude of the business, length of service, and the general state of trade.

The coinage of the new gold currency goes on but slowly. Down to the 13th of July there had been coined 203,965,180 marks in twenty-mark pieces, and 8,155,060 marks in ten-mark pieces. In the week from July 14 to 20 the Mint at Berlin turned out 3,121,270 marks, Hanover 1,004,940 marks, Frankfort 2,104,860 marks, Munich 1,196,920 marks, Dresden 1,224,780 marks, Stuttgart 552,420 marks, and Carlsruhe 250,000 marks,—making together a total of 221,575,430 marks, which, however, is but little more than one-tenth of the sum required for the currency of the country, which is estimated to be 2,000 million marks, besides the needful amount of the smaller silver and copper coins for change, to say nothing of bank notes to an unlimited extent. Almost every week large quantities of gold arrive here from England and America; thus last Saturday bullion from London of the value of $8,500,000, which was forwarded to the mint at Frankfort to be turned into German money.

Last week the Prince and Princess von Bismark celebrated their Silberne Hochzeit, or twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. It was known that the Prince wished to pass the day quietly in the bosom of his family at Varzin, and his wish was of course respected, and there was no ovation or public display; but he received a hundred and ninety-two telegrams of congratulation on the auspicious occasion from the Emperor, the members of the Royal Family and other distinguished friends. The Prince and Princess, with their daughter and two sons, as well as some intimate guests staying in the house attended Divine service at the parish church of Wossow, where the villagers had decorated the family pew with a gay assortment of flowers and wreaths.

It has been notified to the Foreign office that the Japanese Government intend to establish a permanent Embassy at Berlin, and that the person designated for the appointment is the Vice-Minister Jamajathsi, who is now on his road to Europe as member of one of the Japanese Special Missions.

The former so-called "correspondence cards" have now been replaced by a new issue called simply "post cards," the postage on them is reduced from one to half a groschen, and being much smaller and handier have become a very favourite means of communication, and are much more extensively used than the first issue.

We learn from Venice that the British steamer Bivouac has arrived at that port from Rangoon with 14,000 bags of rice, consigned to the house of Angelo Rosada and Co., it being the first cargo that has arrived at Venice from the Birman Empire via the Suez Canal.

COMMERCIAL.

Business to a moderate extent continues to be done in both black and green teas at former rates. The finer descriptions of table rice were in demand, and higher prices are willingly paid, whilst inferior qualities are neglected, and might be had a shade cheaper; no sales of rough. There is a lively demand for Cassia Lignea, and Pepper moves off briskly at 7⅛ sch. bco. for Singapore, 6⅛ for Penang, and 17 for white.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, August 7.

A sharp contest for the election of two members to the Second Chamber has ended in a defeat of the Conservatives. In this district Mr. Otto van Rees was returned by 834 votes, his principal opponent receiving only 383 votes. In Deventer Mr. P. Blusse van Oud Alblas defeated the Conservative candidate by a large majority, the numbers being 688 against 199. I need not add that general satisfaction is expressed in our Liberal papers at these results. This being the only political matter for the Tory press to comment upon, journalists of that party have had to seek for other subjects, and have raised a seemingly endless discussion about the next meeting of the Internationale Society, which, as you already know, is to be held in the Hague. If we are to believe the exaggerations of the Dagblad, our towns are on the eve of being burnt down by Communists and petroleuses, our social system is to be upset, and disorder generally is to prevail. It is, therefore, necessary that the meeting should be prevented. The Liberal press on the contrary maintains that these Internationalists are as free as other men, that they come to a free country, and that as long as they do not do anything by which they are brought into collision with the police, they must be permitted. It is suggested, however, that one condition be imposed, which is that the debates be held publicly, that no secret session be tolerated. And indeed there are no grounds upon which the Internationalists can be refused admission here. The Dutch have no open ears for their exaggerated opinions and false principles. It is true that from time to time we hear about strikes—and these certainly are organised by the Internationale—but generally the disputes are speedily settled. There is only one movement amongst our workmen, which threatens to become of a serious character, that amongst our compositors. They ask for higher wages—which they are quite right in doing—and as the masters refuse any concession it is very probable that some newspapers will be obliged to suspend publication. Nothing has transpired about the doings of the new Ministers, except that the Budget of Mr. Fransen van de Putte—who returned a few days ago from Marienbad—will show a very large expenditure, as will also that of the new leader of the War Department, a fact which will be the cause of much grief to our economical Minister of Finance, who would like to come before Parliament with low figures. But these are only on dits, which will perhaps prove to be without foundation. More credible is the rumour that the new Minister of the Colonial Department will at once propose to abolish flogging in the army, as he abolished in 1865 that shameful punishment in the Civil Service. Other rumours are current about new measures, but I think it prudent to wait for their confirmation before repeating them. It is even asserted that the results of the mission of Messrs. Motke and Uytenhoven will already be visible in this Budget. If this proves true, then certainly no more complete denial could be given to the assertion of the Batavia correspondent of the Arnhemsche Courant that their mission is a total failure.

The Staats Courant of the 3rd August has published the returns of the trade and shipping of Java and Madura, during the year 1871. The figures are generally satisfactory, and they show that the private trade is gradually increasing. Both imports and exports have greatly augmented, and the returns of shipping bring to light the important fact that produce is carried more and more by vessels under foreign—especially English—flags, a result of the protection which our shipowners have enjoyed so long that all their enterprising spirit has departed. I have repeatedly told you that our East Indiamen are either lying useless in our harbours, or that they have been sold for other purposes.

By a Royal decree of 12th Aug., 1869, a commission was appointed in Java, charged with the important task of making a draft for the revision of the Colonial Laws. The report of that commission has just been published. Complaints are made that the Budgets always arrive out too late, because the States-General are so long in debate upon them, and the commission recommends that henceforth the Budget should be fixed by Royal decree solely. Several reforms are proposed, with the view to simplify the Governmental system. It remains to be seen whether the important work of the commission will be of any practical use.

Mr. J. J. Blankenhagen, who lately arrived from Java, has been released from his duties as Consul for Austria at Batavia, and Mr. van Delden, President of the Batavia Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed Consul-General.

In a few days will be published the first number of a Democratic paper—Het Vrye Volk. I am glad to find that the staff includes some respectable authors.

I have but little change to report in the general features of the Produce Market. Prices of Coffee continue to be well maintained in the proportion of 47c. for good ordinary Java of the Trading Company supplies, but there is but little stirring in the market. The August sale will probably be held on the 21st inst., but it is not yet announced. The Sugar Market has continued to exhibit a quiet appearance, and no transactions have taken place. The business done in Spices has been confined to some sales of Nutmegs at steady prices. Rice remains unaltered. The demand is dormant. Hides continue active at steady prices. Important parcels ex Jason, Cornelis Gips, and Tyburnia have been sold. The demand for Tin is lively; Banca has sold for usual prompt at f.95¾ to f.96. Tea is quiet, but prices are well supported.

LONDON: MONDAY, AUGUST 12, 1872.

THE REPORT ON THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

IT is said that, in the House of Commons, the votes on any question under discussion are in no wise affected by the speeches made, for or against the measure, and, were we to accept the Report on the Diplomatic and Consular Services as a fair specimen of the results of Parliamentary Committees, we should feel inclined to add that no evidence taken before a Select Committee, in any way effects the political bias given to the proceedings by the promoters of the enquiry. The present Committee was called into being at the request of certain Parliamentary economists, not with the intention of considering the real welfare of the service, but of cutting down every item of expenditure, which by any shadow of excuse might be curtailed. This intention is revealed in every line of the Report. With their commendations, which do not cost anything, the Committee are lavish. "The direct testimony thus given is, on the whole," they say, "very favourable to the character of the Consuls, and to their efficient conduct in the discharge of their duties. . . It is clear, therefore, that the appointments to Consulships have been, on the whole, creditable to the appointing authority; that the character of the Consuls stand high throughout the world; and that their duties are generally discharged in an adequate and satisfactory manner." In all cases where reductions are possible they are prompt and decided; of the changes suggested by Mr. KENNEDY of the Foreign-office, in the Consulates in Turkey and Egypt, by which a saving of about £3,000 per annum may be effected, they say, "These changes your Committee recommend for adoption;" when Mr. ALABASTER gave evidence as to the possibility of a marked reduction in the establishment at Siam, they recommended its adoption; and the proposals of Sir R. ALCOCK and Mr. MEDHURST that the rank of Interpreter should be abolished in China, and that the number of students at Peking shall be reduced to six, met with their approval; while a strong point was made of Sir HARRY PARKES' statement that the Consulates in Japan are efficiently worked with a smaller proportion of staff than those in China. But when they were met by evidence which forced on them the consideration of recommending an increase of pay on account of the increased cost of living they were obdurate. "Your Committee," they say, "are strongly opposed to a general and indiscriminate raising of salaries. The cost would be too great, and the operation would inevitably require to be repeated a few years hence. In fact, the same statements of pay inadequate to expenditure, and of prices having been raised 100 per cent., appear to have been made to the Committee which sat fifteen years ago." It is difficult to understand this reasoning. If it is true that fifteen years ago the cost of living had largely increased, that since then it has been further enhanced and is still rising, surely it is the duty of the Government to do something towards protecting public servants from the difficulties which must overtake them. Is it just that the pay of a Consul, that is to say the relative value of his pay, should decrease the longer he serves? and yet that is what a fixed salary and a yearly increasing expenditure in the necessaries of life amounts to. When pressed on all hands in favour of the juniors in the Consular Service in China the Committee gave way, but even then in a grudging and illiberal manner. They recommended that personal allowances should be made to the juniors already appointed, and that due notice should be given to future nominees that during the period of their apprenticeship the pay they receive will not be equal to their necessary expenses.

In the above remarks we have touched on the main features of the Report, of the further recommendations nothing need be said. So entirely have the energies of the Committee been devoted to the consideration of reduction of expenditure, that on some points they appear to have entirely misunderstood the constitution of the Services upon which they are called to report. For instance, they say that in China, where promotion is the great inducement, and is indeed almost the privilege of the juniors, an opening should be made for earlier and more rapid promotion, by employing juniors as assistants to the superior officers. As this has been the rule in the Service in China since its formation the remark is weak and meaningless. In an article last week on this subject we expressed our belief that the Report of the Committee would become a dead letter, and a further consideration of its pages only makes us earnestly hope that we may be right.

OUR CHARGE D'AFFAIRES IN JAPAN.

IF the latest news brought from Yedo by telegram via New York is to be accepted as correct Mr. WATSON, our new Chargé d'Affaires, has made a most unfortunate début on the stage of Japanese politics. The substance of the telegram is to the effect that Mr. WATSON refused to be presented to the MIKADO unless he were allowed to stand in his presence instead of being obliged to squat down, and that TERASHIMA TOZO, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, having objected to this arrangement, Mr. WATSON had sent home for instructions, pending the arrival of which he had notified his intention of absenting himself from Court. We cannot help suspecting that there must be some mistake in all this. It is scarcely possible to believe that after all that has been done in Japan a reactionary policy is about to supersede the wise counsels and progressive liberalism of the MIKADO and his Ministers. Reform has lately been marching on with such rapid strides under their guidance that we are almost tired of taking notes of the various changes effected in the internal administration of the country. By the mail just arrived we have reported a list of improvements effected and contemplated within fourteen days, the like of which may be vainly looked for in as many years in China. And is it probable that when they are just about to reap the fruits of their enlightened policy the MIKADO'S advisers should turn sharp round and throw themselves into the arms of the small anti-foreign section of the community? The only other alternative consistent with the correctness of the telegram is that Mr. WATSON has been guilty of an egregious blunder. This, until we receive more definite information, we must hesitate to believe. It is difficult to understand how the negotiations as to the attitude he was to assume in the Audience Chamber arose prior to his being presented. The course he would naturally pursue would be to follow the precedent laid down by his predecessors in office, and to take it for granted that the same courtesy which was shown to them would be extended to him. We are so unwilling to accept either of these alternatives, that, knowing how sometimes the most substantial looking telegraphic reports dwindle down, on closer inspection, to the shadows of their former selves, we prefer suspending our opinion on the question until we shall be in receipt of fuller and more exact information.

Since the above article was written we have received advices by the Pacific mail confirmatory of the telegraphic report, but the position of affairs indicated that the matter would be satisfactorily settled.

THE chief officials of the Japanese Embassy arrived in Liverpool on Saturday by the Cunard steamer China. The remaining members of the Embassy, forty in number, have deferred their departure from the United States, and will probably arrive here about the 17th inst. The Japanese Chargé d'Affaires in Paris has been authorised to inform the Embassy that the French Government is prepared to give a favourable reception to the representatives of Japan, and to render their stay in France as agreeable as possible.

THE Panthay Ambassadors will leave England in the course of next month, having, we understand, failed in securing the objects towards which their negotiations with the Government were directed. The Embassy will be accompanied on its return by Mr. T. T. COOPER, who is now engaged in obtaining the opinions of the Chambers of Commerce in the manufacturing districts as to the best means to be adopted for opening up a trade with Yunan.

The Burmese Government have determined to establish a Consulate in London and the appointment of Consul has been conferred upon Mr. Edmund Jones.

JAVA TRADE STATISTICS.

The Dutch official paper (de Staats Courant) of the 3rd inst. publishes returns of the trade and shipping of Java during the year 1871, compared with the results of former years. The imports on private account during 1871 amounted to f.53,876.320, and on Government account to f.16,264.820, making a total of f.70,141,140, or $6,157,630 over the total for 1870. The value of the private imports was from Holland f.20.808,330, against f.19,352,145, in 1870; from England, f.7,454.648, against f.7,534,175; from China, f 1 090.643, against f.991,757; from Manila, f.624, against f.97,057; from Japan, f.87.568, against f.82,577; from Singapore, f.8,796,803, against f.6,349,401. The import of cotton manufactures was valued at f.18,076,694, against f.16 024,770, in 1870; provisions, f.2,917,124, against f.2,854.401; wines and spirits, f.2,320,586, against f.2,470,569; ironwork and machinery, f.1,150,236, against f.731,705. The value of the cotton goods imported from Holland was f.10,414,046 (f.7,825,491, with certificate of origin), and from England f.4,996,335. The imports of iron manufactures and machinery from Holland, with certificate of origin, amounted to f.202,526; and from elsewhere, f.947.710.

The total value of the export of merchandise was f.126,785,502, viz., on private account f.89,516,822, on Government's account f.37,268,680, showing, when compared with the previous year, a favourable balance of f.19,025,306. The prospectus has been issued of the "East Indian Civil, Military, and Commercial Agency, Limited," with a capital of £200,000, in 40,000 shares of £5 each. The first issue to be 20,000 shares. The prospectus says:—

This Association has been formed for the purpose of supplying what has been long and painfully felt as a want by all Departments of the Indian Services, as well as the Anglo-Indian public generally. The business it will undertake will consist of banking and agency in all its branches connected with the East, at adequate commissions. Success will depend more on the credit and character of the Company than upon a large capital; and, as the business will be at once safe and comprehensive, the profits ought to admit of handsome dividends being realised for the shareholders. The Banking operations of the Company will be conducted with the view principally of attracting the more profitable agency business of the Civil and Military Services, and the accounts of professional and other persons who are not engaged in large commercial transactions, coupled with the Insurance accounts and other agencies, which must follow such a line of business. The civil and military, covenanted and uncovenanted, servants of the Indian Government are now a very large body, and the different members of the Government services in that country are in receipt of liberal incomes. Many of these gentlemen frequently require temporary accommodation, which they have difficulty in obtaining, unless at usurious rates; and to make such advances, when covered by adequate collateral security, will be one of the principal objects of this Company; in the different presidencies there are a large number of gentlemen, European and native, in receipt of moderate allowances, which are paid with the greatest punctuality, and who might be advantageously assisted under the careful system of management which will characterise the business to be conducted by this company. A moderate commission on the collection of Furlough pay, and pensions of the Indian Government constituents will, in itself, afford a good income. The following classes of business will also be undertaken by this agency:—1. To receive and remit pay, salaries, pensions, dividends, fund allowances, and every other description of income. 2. To undertake the agency of H.M.'s service (Army and Navy) and others, both in India and England. 3. To make remittances to and from India at the exchange of the day. 4. To keep current accounts on the principle adopted by London bankers, with or without commission, and with or without an allowance of interest, according to agreement, and to receive fixed deposits at agreed rates. 5. To secure passages by the steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, the Austrian Lloyd's, the Messageries Maritimes, and the Societa d'Adriatico Italiano, and by all other vessels running to and from India. 6. To execute orders of every kind, both at home and in the East, including the transport and warehousing of furniture and baggage, taking houses and apartments, and similar services.

Co-operative Store Departments, under the direction of this agency, will be established in India. As this is a field at the present time undeveloped, and much required, it is only reasonable to anticipate that a success equal to that achieved by such establishments in England will result, and a large connection will in consequence be secured for the Company. Many Indian families in this country reside in the West-End of London; it is therefore proposed to open a branch there also, and to secure accommodation for the especial reception and warehousing of baggage, &c., &c.

The receipts of the Great Northern Telegraph Company's European lines during the month of July amounted to 124,293 francs, against 105,385 francs for the corresponding period of last year. In consequence of an interruption on the Russian land wires, the returns of the traffic of the Chinese-Japanese lines have not yet arrived.

Mr. Emile Levita (of Messrs. Levita and Hudson, of London and Manchester) has joined the direction of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China.

Lord Westbury has appointed Messrs. Mercer and Mercer solicitors, and Messrs. Young and Price official liquidators, under the European Arbitration Act. Business has been discontinued at the company's offices in Waterloo-place.

Tenders for £600.000 in bills on India were received on the 7th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £436,400; to Bombay, £160.000; and Madras, £3,600. The minimum was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10¼d. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10⅜d. will receive about 71 per cent., and on Bombay at that price in full. No change of importance is observable compared with the last occasion.

The quotation for Bar Silver remains the same as last given, 60⅛d. per oz. standard. The Mexican Dollars by the Erin, £400,000, have been delivered, and have been disposed of at former rates; the New at 60d. per oz., and the Old at 62¼d. per oz.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Sunda sailed from London on the 10th inst. for China direct, via the Suez Canal, with a full general cargo, and bullion to the amount of £606,575.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rheden's Circular is as follows:—

The business transacted has been on a fair scale, but at great irregularity in prices; at one time, tarry Oonams, at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. were dearer, and finest Ning Chow at 2s. 5d. to 2s. 8d. in active demand; the market, latterly, has been inactive, with a great weight of Tea offering, but any further decline in prices has been partially arrested, by telegrams from China, giving an unfavourable opinion as to the second crop, with instructions to importers not to sell Teas now here at a loss, and this is in a measure being acted upon. Buyers for the Continent have bought Finest Ning Chow at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 8d. per lb., but their wants for the time being seem to be filled up, as during the past few days nothing of note has been done; to New York and Canada new Oolongs have been taken at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. The deliveries stand thus:—

Home consumption for London from Jan. 1 to July 31.	... 53,850,000 lbs.	52,233,500 lbs.
Export do. do.	... 23,000,000 ,,	21,456,000 ,,
Sent coastwise do.	... 20,920,000 ,,	20,802,500 ,,
Total delivered ...	97,770,000 lbs.	94,492,500 lbs.

Black.—Old season's red-leaf has been sold chiefly at auction without reserve at previous rates. The new does not sell readily, quotations closing at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 8d. for Sayune and Ankoi kinds, 1s. 9d to 2s. for fine Kaisow, and 2s. 1d. to 2s. 4d. per lb. for finest, this latter being the only grade in any demand. Pakling leaf is selling at declining rates, export requirements, it would seem, being less than usual. Taysham leaf:—Limited business, the few sales at no change in prices. Black-leaf: Old leaf, ordinary common stands at 7d. to 8½d., medium 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d.; the new season's have sold to a rather large extent, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. for medium quality, chiefly Oonam district, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d. for fine, 2s. to 2s. 8d. per lb. for finest and extra quality. Oolong: Sales have been made at slightly improved prices, the bulk of late imports being bought for export. Souchong: Two parcels of finest sold at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 8d., fine 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d. per lb.; these are full prices, but arrivals so far are on a small scale. Scented Tea: Canton kinds continue dull of sale. Foochow scented orange Pekoe, new, fine and finest quality sells 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb. Green: The market is all but cleared of country grown, the stock on hand is now at a very small total, that of Young Hyson barely equal to 15,000 half-chests. A high range of prices is current here, but not up to the scale being paid in China, which we believe was never so high. Canton kinds have sold to a fair extent, true teas, that is, pure leaf, doing especially well. Japan leaf, of common to fair there are plenty, which is not readily saleable, quality being undesirable; medium to fine is scarce.

SILK.

The market is extremely quiet, and very little business of any kind is doing; the new Chinas are fairly on the market, 2,000 bales having arrived, but the trade at large do not seem at all disposed to buy, and beyond two or three consumers, who have purchased for actual wants, there has been really nothing doing. Quotations are unchanged. Deliveries 1st to 7th inst. inclusive — China, 560 bales; Canton, 102 bales Japan, 187 bales; total, 849 bales.

Camphor.—China continues dull, with a declining tendency; 57 cases at auction were taken at £3 17s. 6d. to £3 18s. 6d., and at the close the lower quotation is alone obtainable. Japan continues scarce.

Cardamoms.—Nothing has been done in Ceylon.

Cocoa-nut Oil.—There has been a continued good demand for Ceylon, and prices show a further slight advance, the quotation on the spot being firm at £35 per ton, while for arrival sales have been made at £35 15s. Aug.-Oct. shipment.

Coir Goods.—Only small quantities have been offered at the auctions, and mostly found buyers at previous rates; 75 bales Cochin Yarn sold, low middling at £30 5s., middling £31 15s. to £33 5s., of 38 tons ditto 33 tons sold, low coarse £25, damaged roping £21 10s. to £22 10s., good common £28 to £28 10s.; of 45 tons Ceylon 30 tons sold, very common £26 15s., common to low middling £28 5s. to £29 10s., good middling to good £34 5s. to £36 5s.; 14 bales Madras sold at £25 10s.; 110 bales Cochin Fibre sold, coarse and dull at £15 15s. to £16 15s., brush £29 5s. to £33 5s.

Copra.—No transactions.

Cubebs.—Market very quiet.

Cutch.—Though not much inquiry is experienced prices remain steady, and sales of about 800 to 1,000 boxes have been effected at 24s. 6d. to 25s. per cwt. for fine Pegu.

Dragon's-blood.—Very dull, and no business done since our last report.

Ebony.—Ceylon is very firm, being in limited supply; no transactions.

Essential Oils.—Aniseed: Since our report of Tuesday last prices further advanced to 9s. 10d. to 10s. 1d., but speculation has ceased within the past few days, and the closing price is 9s. 1d. Cassia: The entire stock is in the hands of one firm, and is held for 6s. 3d. per lb. Nutmeg: Firm at 8d. per oz. Cinnamon: scarce, and wanted. Citronelle and Lemon Grass quiet, but firm; none offered.

Feathers.—At public sale 200 bales China sold at 1½d. to 1⅝d. per lb.

Galangal Root.—Quiet at last quotations—17s. to 17s. 6d. per cwt.

Gambier.—The upward movement in this import has made further progress, owing to the small quantity which has been offering. The value of block has risen to 23s. 6d., at which there are few sellers, and for arrival March shipment realises 23s., May 22s. 9d., May-August 22s. to 22s. 3d. per cwt. Cubes pressed sell at 23s. 6d., and free at 26s. to 26s. 9d. per cwt.

Gums.—Benjamin: Siam firm for good kinds, but supply of common large; of 32 cases at auction few sold; fine drop and block at £19 to £21 10s.; siftings £6 7s. 6d. to £8 10s., small to good. Sumatra cheaper, and of 220 cases, one fourth sold at £7 10s. to £8 10s. for middling to fair 2nds. Copal: Steady; of 1,313 cases at auction the bulk sold at the sale, and subsequently; Hard part good pale and dark scraped, with a little drossy and weak at 34s. 6d to 36s.; soft fine yellow 32s.; drossy soft 23s. to 25s. Damar: Flat; 346 cases retired. Gamboge: Steady; of 40 cases at sale three-fourths sold at £14 10s. to £15 5s. for good and very good in sorts part run.

Gutta-percha.—The market continues very dull; 700 baskets and 26 cases were brought to auction, and all retired except the cases, which brought 2s. 6d. per lb. for good genuine a little mixed.

Hemp.—Manila continues very quiet; no public sales are reported, and privately only limited business has been done at £49 per ton for fair roping.

Hides.—A good general demand prevailed for East India Kips at the last public sales, and the greater portion found buyers. Singapore and Penang brought previous rates. Buffalo: Singapore met a steady demand, and sold at extreme rates to a slight advance. Batavia were again withdrawn.

Horns.—At auction 3,962 Ceylon Deer sold, 1,100 to 1,350 horns to a ton, at 67s. per cwt.

Isinglass.—Market firm. The monthly sales are fixed for the 13th instant.

Japan Wax.—The market continues quiet, and prices show a slight decline in public sale; of 100 cases offered, about one fourth were quitted at £4 5s 6d. to £4 6s. for good saucers; no private transactions have been entered into.

Musk is rather cheaper, but in fair request. The public sales have embraced 83 caddies Tonquin, which were nearly all placed, fine selected pods in good condition at 37s. 6d. to 38s. 6d. per oz., rather rougher 34s. 6d. to 36s., rough and bally fair 19s. 6d., middling 15s. to 16s. 6d. Pickings wet 19s. to 22s. Of 8 tins Grain a few sold at 56s. to 59s. 6d. for fine.

Pepper.—Black: Singapore has been steady, with sales to a moderate extent at 6⅞d. privately and at auction. For Penang the ruling price has been 6⅞d. to 6½d. Afloat 40 tons West Coast steamer shipment quitted at 6½d., and considerable trade done in Penang for forward delivery, from 5 11-16d to 5¾d. for January next up to 6½d. and 6⅝d for September. At auction a very small proportion of 4 141 bags found buyers—Penang at 6⅝d., West Coast at 6⅝d down to 6⅜d, and the market closes without animation. White has been rather dull: Singapore 1s. 2d. to 1s. 2¼d; Penang, 1s. 1⅞d. to 1s. 1¾d, showing no change in value. Small sales have been effected in good Singapore for September delivery at 1s. 1½d.

Rattans.—Market firm, and several shipments placed privately at £24 to £25 5s. per ton; 7,113 bundles at auction brought the previous value.

Rice.—The demand on the spot has continued small, but a fair amount of business has again been transacted in floating cargoes. MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since last mail this Market has been quiet, and the business transacted has been on a limited scale. Towards the close the tone has somewhat improved, but there is not much increase in demand, and although producers have adhered to, and in some cases slightly raised, their quotations, there is a want of activity in sales. The greater steadiness in the Cotton Market has made both spinners and manufacturers less anxious to sell, and buyers also show more confidence in present prices.

No. 5, DENMARK-STREET, SOHO, LONDON, W.C.

Messrs. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

PROTECTORS OF HEALTH.—In the hand-to-hand struggle for existence in the present day, good health is everything. Holloway's purifying digestive, and gently laxative Pills are admirably adapted for restoring soundness to invalids whose functions are so feebly performed that life itself seems most precarious. The stomach may have its many maladies removed by a judicious use of these Pills, the torpid liver is roused to active secretion, and every other organ subserving digestion is placed at its natural standard, and better fitted for its duties. It is impossible to have a doctor at our elbow at all seasons and places, but these Pills will supplant that loss, for they universally act beneficially in every ailment.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Advices extend to the 23rd June; the French mail from London, May 10, was due the day this mail left. The following items of news are from the Courier:—

The conspiracy lately discovered at Soochow seems to have its origin with the Hunan soldiery whom Tseng Kwo-fan had introduced in considerable number into his viceroyalty. Perhaps because the province is rather poor, Hunan seems to be a chief recruiting ground for the Imperial army. We hear of Hunan men wherever fighting is going on, and the constant habit has imbued them with a liking for camp life. Tseng Kwo-fan's influence in Central China is well known, and it was not unnatural that he should choose men from his native province to form his army. Whether to increase his influence, or from whatever motive, he had assembled a considerable force in his viceroyalty. Several thousands of Hunan soldiers are encamped near Nanking, among other places; and there is a camp also at Soochow. Since Tseng Kwo-fan's death, we believe, there has not been the same desire to have this force in the province, and a number of men have been disbanded, in the way in which disbandment is effected in China—some get money and some don't; some go home, and some become loafers in the place where they have been soldiers. At any rate, the disbanding has occasioned discontent, and the men still in harness naturally sympathise with their comrades. A conspiracy, having plunder probably as its chief object, seems to have been the result. A man was discovered in the Futai's Yamen, at Soochow, with the suspected design of murdering that high official. A number of the ringleaders in the conspiracy were captured and executed, and the garrison was moved outside the city. Here the matter ends for the present. The Chinese seem to think that there is no danger of an insurrection, nor any man of note among the malcontents capable of heading one. But there are the disconted and turbulent men, willing to follow a leader who could command their confidence, if one should present himself—and an element of disorder in themselves. There is an uneasy feeling, therefore, though no immediate apprehension.

A vague Chinese rumour has been pervading the Settlement during the week that a foreign-armed steamer has been preying on junks at the mouth of the Yang-tse for some weeks. Some add that the marauder was captured by the three foreign-armed gun-boats from the Arsenal. But, as these gun-boats are at present engaged in conveying the remains of Tseng kwo-fan to Hunan, foreigners are disposed to think that their simple absence from the Arsenal has been twisted into the above story by the grotesque fancy of the Chinese. But many Chinese allege that the pirate steamer was in the interest of the mutinous movement at Soochow.

We learn, on good authority, that the Swiss Federal Government, having terminated the arrangement by which the French diplomatic officials in China secured for citizens of the Swiss Republic the advantages of the Treaties with foreign Powers—conditioned by the corresponding responsibilities—recently made application to the United States Government to perform for them a similar service. The United States Government having agreed to do so, subject to the consent of the Chinese Government, the new arrangement either has already, or will shortly, come into force.

It is said that Mr. John A. T. Meadows has been invited by Chung How to return to his former position as Superintendent of the Tien'sin Arsenal; but we have not learned whether, or in what way, Chung How's new position as a member of the Tsung-li-Yamen affects his connection with the arsenal. Our previous information led us to believe that it was now under the control of Li-Hung-Chang, whose previous experience at Shanghai and Nankin eminently qualifies him for the task.

On the 20th June Her Majesty Queen Victoria completed the thirty-fifth year of her reign, and the men-of-war in harbour, of all nationalities, loyally recognised the occasion by displaying the appropriate flags; and at noon the United States steamer Alaska fired a salute, which was duly followed by the French Corvette Linois, and the United States steamer Monocacy. That the ships that themselves bear the time honoured flag of St. George's Cross should not have done equal honour to the occasion, is, of course, easily explained by the fact that the expenditure of a few pounds of gunpowder would be regarded as a serious offence by an economical Admiralty.

We have already recorded two successful trips to the Hamilla Mitchell, and the recovery of some $17,000 by the expedition which arrived a few months ago from England. Two more trips have since been made to the wreck, but with less success; the divers having succeeded only in recovering about $1,500 more, after prolonged search and blasting. We believe they have now decided to give up further attempts. The result actually attained, however, is satisfactory, and creditable to their enterprise

We understand that the United States steamer Alaska is likely to remain in Shanghai during the summer, and it is understood that her ample decks will be the scene of a quiet celebration of Independence Day, on the approaching "glorious 4th."

The 10th June, being a general holiday, a few of the most influential residents of Chefoo inaugurated a regatta, which turned out a complete success.

HONG KONG.

The dates by this mail extend to the 29th June. The outward P. and O. mail of the 17th May arrived on the 23rd June. The China Mail says:—

We learn that the Government has granted permission for erecting the boat house at the proposed site, subject to the approbation of the Military Authorities, who object to the plan of the buildings attached to the petition, because if constructed as proposed they will overlook the married quarters of the soldiers. Modifications will therefore be made in them. The swimming-bath (the plans of which are approved) will be moored some 200 yards in front of the boat-house. It will be floating, and will have a grating for non-swimmers extending over a portion of its area under water. The plans as at present drawn would involve considerable expense, and will also undergo important alterations. The next step is to get the money.

A suggestion has been made to us, in view of the failure to open Kiung-Chow, which seems, at all events, worthy of attention. Why should not the Chamber of Commerce urge upon the Minister the exchange of that port, which produces and consumes but little, for Pakhoi, the port of the West of China? This latter has already a fair trade existing and capable of indefinite development If the Chamber possessed the necessary data (which we fear it does not—it never was much on geography)—this proposition might be worth discussion.

A fairly well-attended meeting has taken place at the City Hall, his Excellency the Governor being present, and Hon. P. Ryrie in the chair, to discuss the question of establishing a school Some lively speaking took place, Sir Arthur breaking the ice. The speakers were the Hon P. Ryrie, Revs. T. H Kidd and J. Piper, Messrs. Stewart, Francis and others. Finally a Committee were appointed, comprising Hons. J. Greig and P. Ryrie, Messrs E. R. Belilios and F. Stewart, Captain Sands; Mr. Muncherjee and Mr. Rosario, and they were requested to obtain statistics as to scholars, and probable income, inquire into the status of St. Paul's College, and then lay the matter before Government.

The public will have appreciated the extension of the interval between arrival of the home P. and O. mail and the departure of the upward steamers. The China arrived early on Sunday morning, and the Shanghai and Yokohama steamers left yesterday at ten A.M., and noon respectively. This is as it should be, and the superintendent of the P. and O. Company, and others in authority, deserve well of the community for the courteous regard of the public convenience thus shown.

The Gazette notifies the appointment of H.E. Wodehouse, Esq., provisionally, vice A. Lister, Esq., resigned An overseer of waterworks is stated to be required in the Surveyor General's Department.

The following is from the Daily Press:—

We understand that the submarine divers went down yesterday, at 4 P.M., to the wreck of the Dunmail, and, as anticipated, found the hull nearly covered with mud. Eighty pounds of powder were taken over for the purpose of blowing it up, which was planted in the hold, with the electric battery attached, and at a given moment it exploded, much to the astonishment of a number of gentlemen present on board the Dock Company's Launch, which was some thirty yards off It was expected some manœuvring would be enacted, instead of which, a spring was touched and they were suddenly bounced two or three times off their feet. After all was over, it was found the eighty-pound charge of powder had done little good. It is understood a much larger charge will be used to-day or to morrow.

With reference to the decision in bankruptcy it will be seen from the correspondence that the sole agent of Mr. Gair in Saigon distinctly wrote to the captain of the Lady Turner that his powers to act for Mr. Gair were withdrawn, and consequently that Messrs. Gair and Co. did not exist in Saigon—in fact, that the bankrupt could not carry out the contract. The decision in the Bankruptcy Court is based entirely upon Mr. Gair's letter to Mr. Rozario, and makes no reference to the much more important letter of Mr. Rudhmann, Mr. Gair's agent in Saigon, in which Captain Vincent is clearly informed that there is no one in Saigon to carry out the contract—as Messrs. Hogg and Co. said they knew nothing about the matter. As it was never denied that Mr. Rudhmann was Mr. Gair's agent, what more positive and unconditional repudiation could be made, it is somewhat difficult to conceive, but nevertheless we find the judgment sets forth that there was no evidence of any such renunciation, and on this ground the Court refused to admit the claim. Looking at the facts in the same spirit as would be adopted by a jury, we take it as pretty plain that the letters indicate a distinct declaration of inability to carry out the contract. As to no evidence being given of a notice of readiness to receive cargo, it appears that such a notice was given in fact; but it might be reasonably considered somewhat superfluous to produce it, seeing that Mr. Gair's agent had refused the necessary money for disbursing the ship, and distinctly declared that after the 29th April there was simply nooody representing the charterer of the vessel in Saigon, in point of fact, nobody to whom notice could be given, as the captain could not be supposed to be ready to receive cargo from the charterer till he had been paid the necessary money to disburse the ship, and not a halfpenny had he received on the 1st May, when he was coolly told that his consignees at Saigon no longer existed. If not being in a place either personally or by agent is not, to use the euphonious if slightly tautological words of the judgment, an "absolute, unconditional, positive renunciation and repudiation" of a contract to fulfil the terms of a charter-party at that place.

THE MACAO WEI-SING CASE.

Below we give the protest noted by the Chinese purchasers of the Wei-sing farm at Macao, to which we recently made allusion. Since the protest was sent in to the Government the farm was resold at a profit of $50,000 on the original price; hence the reason for the alleged breach of contract:—

Be it known and made manifest unto all people, that on the 24th day of June in the Christian year 1872, personally came and appeared before me William Henry Brereton, notary public, duly authorised, admitted, and sworn, residing and practising at Victoria, in the colony of Hong Kong, Tak Cheong, of Hong Kong aforesaid, a member of the Wohang Hong, and Ahoy, of Macao, but at present of Hong Kong aforesaid, trader, who did severally duly and solemnly declare and say as follows, that is to say:—That on the 12th of September in the Christian year 1871 these appearers, by the said Ahoy, made application to his Excellency Vice-Admiral Antonio Sergio de Souza, the then Governor of Macao, for the privilege or licence of carrying on the Wai-sung lottery at Macao for the period of three years, for which they offered to pay to the said Government the annual rent of $5 000, being $2,000 more than had been previously paid for the like licence, as by the written proposal or application of the said Ahoy, now in the archives of the Government of Macao, and a certified copy thereof in these appearers' possession, appears:—

That on the 20th day of Sept. in the said year the said application was approved of, and according y such licence or privilege was, without any reservation or right of recision whatever, granted unto these appearers by the said Government, on the terms aforesaid, for the said period of three years, to commence and take effect from the day of expiration of the then existing licence, that is to say, from the 27th day of Jan., 1872. That on the 25th day of Sept, 1871, these appearers paid into the treasury of Macao the sum of $1,666 66c., being one third of the said yearly sum of $5,000, and four months subsequently, that is to say, on the 6th day of May, 1872 paid into the treasury a further sum of $1,666 66c. on account of the said licence, as by the archives of the Government of Macao, the certified copy of the entry of the said contract in such archives, and the receipts for the said instalments of the said licence, in these appearers' possession, fully appears;

That placing full confidence in the good faith and probity of the said Government, and relying upon the due fulfilment of its said contract, these appearers made the necessary arrangements for proceeding with the said lottery, which involved a large expenditure of money and labour;

That these appearers have duly performed and fulfilled their part of the said contract up to the present time, and are ready and willing to perform and fulfil the said contract during the remainder of the said terms;

Digitized by Google

That notwithstanding the said contract so as aforesaid solemnly entered into, ratified, and confirmed, and partially performed by the said Government, the said Government have, contrary to equity and good conscience, intimated to these appearers its intention to ignore and set aside the said contract, and in breach of its said contract have by advertisement in the Government Gazette of Macao declared its intention of setting up the said licence to competition by public auction to the highest bidder on the 25th day of June inst.;

That finding that the said Government so intended to ignore the said contract, and deprive these appearers of the benefit thereof, these appearers, on the 1st day of June instant, presented a memorial to his Excellency the said Governor of Macao, setting forth the facts hereinbefore stated, and praying the Governor to carry out and complete the contract so entered into with these appearers as aforesaid; and accordingly to order and direct that the said license should not be withdrawn, but be continued until the expiration of the period of three years, for which the same had been so granted as aforesaid, and that no such public auction do take place. That no answer was returned to the said memorial until the 22nd day of June instant, when a notification was received by these appearers from the Government, that the prayer of the said memorial would not be granted, and that the said Government would persist in withdrawing or cancelling the said licence, and setting up the same by public auction as hereinbefore mentioned.

That such cancellation and withdrawal, or pretended cancellation or withdrawal of the said licence, if carried out, will be productive of great loss and injury to these appearers, inasmuch as they will thereby not only lose the profits and emoluments resulting from such lottery, but be deprived of the means of recouping themselves the heavy pecuniary outlay they have already expended on account of such lottery, which can only be repaid to them at or about the expiration of the second year for which the said licence has been granted to them, whilst as regards the profits resulting from the said lottery, such can only be realised during the last year of the said term.

Wherefore these appearers, and each of them, and I, the said notary, at their request and on their behalf, do and doth protest against the right or assumed right of H.E. the Governor of Macao, and of all and every other officials or official, officers or officer assisting in the administration of, or acting in or under the said Government of Macao, and of all Juntas or Councils of or in connection with such Government, to ignore, alter, vary, rescind, or cancel the said contract, or to withdraw the said licence or deprive these appearers of the benefit thereof, without the appearers' consent, which they now withhold and have always withheld.

And these appearers further say that the said licence is now their lawful property, wherefore they and each of them, and I, the said notary, at their request, and on their behalf, do and doth further protest against the assumed right of the said Governor or Government, or any person or persons on his or its behalf, or acting under his or its authority, from revoking or depriving them of such licence, or setting up or attempting to set up the said licence to such public auction as aforesaid, or doing, attempting, or purporting to do, any act in breach or derogation of the said contract, or in any wise prejudicial to the interests of these appearers, as such licensees, all and every, of which acts they, and I, the said notary, on their behalf, do hereby declare to be absolutely null and void as against these appearers, holding his Excellency the said Governor of Macao, and the said Government of Macao, and all and every other officials and persons acting under him, or it, or whom these presents shall or may concern, responsible for all loss, damages, and expense that they have incurred, or may incur, for or by reason of the premises.

Thus protested in due form of law at Victoria, Hong Kong, the day and year aforesaid, a translation into Portuguese of the foregoing being hereunto annexed.—Before me, WM. H. BRERETON, Notary Public, Hong Kong.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says:—The business of the past week has again been on an extensive scale. Settlements since June 11, the date of our last, being 19,198 chests, 16,371 half-chests, and 3,576 boxes, viz:—At exchange, 6s. 4d., and freight £4, adding Tls. 5 for duty, &c. 784 chests, 1,596 half-chests, 1,454 boxes at Tls. 25 to 29¼ per picul, equal, 1s. 9¼d. to 2s. 0¼d. per lb; 6,345 chests, 8,276 half-chests at Tls. 20 to 24¾ per picul, equal, 1s. 6¾d. to 1s. 9¼d. per lb.; 10,738 chests, 6,299 half-chests, 118 boxes at Tls. 13.30 to 19¾ per picul, equal, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6¼d. per lb.; 1,331 chests, 200 half-chests, 2,004 boxes, contracts. Shipments to Shanghai on native account for the same period, 8,524 chests, 5,868 half-chests, 684 boxes. A considerable competition has taken place to secure the last few good parcels offered, prices showing a general advance of about a tael, and in the case of Oonfars, which have been most in request, of fully one and a-half. At time of writing the market is cleared of nearly all descriptions, even the few remaining Shuntam Teas being taken at higher rates than they could have been bought at last week; only a few small lots remain on offer, and all the first crop leaf may now be considered to have arrived. At one time it was thought the total quantity would largely exceed that of last year, we are happy to say, however, that such has not proved to be the case, total arrivals to date being 27,300,000 lbs. while the first crop last year was 27,000,000 lbs.; the increase is therefore under half a million pounds. These figures do not include Ningchow leaf, the total quantity of which settled at this port shows an increase of more than a million pounds over that of last year. The Teas have kept up in quality throughout, and should do well, provided there be no undue haste to realise on the home market. The second crop Teas are expected towards the end of the present week, which is about the same time that they were placed on the market last year. Teamen will not offer them until the full crops arrive, an arrangement that, after the recent trouble and annoyance, must prove satisfactory to all parties. In the total absence of supplies, quotations are entirely nominal. Oonfars, which could be bought three or four days ago at Tls. 21 to 21½ per picul, have latterly been realising Tls. 22½ to 23 per picul, one or two parcels of better quality selling up to Tls. 25 per picul. Oopacks have been taken at from Tls. 21 to 24 per picul, flavoury Oonams, at Tls. 17 to 20 per picul, and the last parcels of Shuntam packed at about Tls. 13½ per picul.

FOOCHOW.—During the week a steady business had been done. Congou: Settlements, 50,341 chests at Tls. 5 to 36; Tls. 40 had been given for a small chop of half-chests. Medium to fine teas showed an advance of Tls. 1 to 2; common to flavoury remained much as before. Second crop teas were beginning to arrive; arrivals, 30,500 chests. The following were the current quotations, the cost at which Teas lay down in London being calculated at Exchange 4s. 6½d., and freight £4:—Dust and siftings, 7¼d. to 8½d.; broken leaf to ordinary, 10¼d. to 1s. 0¾d.; fair to good common, 1s. 1¼d. to 1s. 2¼d.; flavoury to medium, 1s. 3d to 1s. 6¾d.; good medium to fine, 1s. 7¼d. to 1s. 11¼d.; fine to finest, 1s. 11¾d. to 2s. 4¼d. Souchongs: A considerable business had been done, settlements generally showing no change, but for fine in some instances an advance of Tl. 1 had been paid. Settlements, 4,136 chests, at Tls. 20 to 45; arrivals, 8,000 chests. Oolongs: 916 half-chests settled at Tls. 27 to 30, showing no change; arrivals, 5,200 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements, 7,935 boxes, at Tls. 24 to 31½; arrivals, 12,492 boxes. Flowery Pekoes: Settled, 832 chests, at Tls. 27½ to 60. Freights: to London, steamers, £4 per ton of 40 cubic feet; sailing vessels, £4 per ton. Loading: For London, Black Adder, Northfleet, Colombo, S.S., Cheop, S.S., and Star of the North. Expected: Sir Lancelot, and Grenadier. For New York: Deerhound.

TEA.

Messrs. Beebe's Circular says, During the past month our market for Tea has ruled without animation, and at the close prices in most descriptions show a further decline upon those current at the date of our last. Sales from first hand for the month are estimated at 52,700 half-chests, including 16,600 half-chests Green, 21,600 half-chests Japan, 10,600 half-chests Oolong, and 3,500 half-chests Souchong and Congou. Of the Japans about 4,500 half-chests are new crop, to hand, via Pacific Railway. The first three or four small parcels of these realised extreme prices; a decline of fully five per cent. has, however, since been submitted to, and the market closes unsettled and weak for those as well as for blacks generally, and old crop Japans. Greens are held with more confidence, but buyers, as a rule, are not inclined to add to their stocks until the demand for consumption becomes more active.

The following are the current quotations (in gold, duty 15c. paid):—Greens (Moyune, Teenki and Fychow, in chops): Gunpowder, first quality, 80c. to 92c.; second, 57c. to 65c.; Imperial, first, 60c. to 70c.; second, 47c. to 55c.; third, 34c. to 40c.; Young Hyson, first, 67c. to 78c.; second, 54c. to 65c.; third, 37c. to 45c.; Hyson, first, 60c. to 70c.; second, 47c. to 55c.; third, 35c. to 40c.; Hyson Skin, 20c. to 28c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 26c. to 33c.; superior and fine, 36c. to 45c.; finest, 50c. to 70c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 26c. to 33c.; superior and fine, 36c. to 45c.; finest, 50c. to 60c.; Souchong and Congou, good, 20c. to 22c.; superior and fine, 27c. to 38c.; finest, 45c. to 55c.; Japans, common, 27c. to 30c.; medium, 33c. to 37c.; good medium, 39c. to 41c.; fine and finest, 44c. to 55c.; choice, 58c. to 63c.

SILK.

There is a quiet market, with only a jobbing trade. The first arrival of new crop has arrived, comprising Cantons in fair supply, and a few bales usual reel Chinas—all imported at high cost. Cantons are tending downwards, but Tsatlee and Hanieen Silk are very firm. We quote good Cantons $6.75 to 7.50, Kotnegon $7.75 to 8.25, Tsatlees $8.75 to 9.25, Hanieen $9.25 to 10.

COFFEE.—A reduction of one cent per lb. in the values of Brazil has induced a better inquiry for home use, and the market may be written a little steadier at the decline, closing with more tone. For the other kinds there has continued a fair inquiry, and the market may be called steady at previous rates, but it lacks animation, closing sluggishly, prices being without improvement. The sales are 1,000 bags Government Java, and 900 bags native Ceylon on private terms; also 7,000 mats Java, per Scharnhorst, in lots at last quoted prices.

THE statement made by the correspondent of the New York Tribune, that Admiral JENKINS, of the United States Navy, has been the first foreigner received by the MIKADO with a ceremonial in accordance with European usage, is wholly incorrect. When granting audiences to Sir HARRY PARKES, our Minister in Japan, the MIKADO received him in a standing position. The reception of Mr. WATSON, our present Chargé d'Affaires has been conducted in a similar manner.

THE Portuguese mail steamer Don Pedro arrived at St. Paul de Loando on the 2nd July, and was put in quarantine for fifteen days on account of five cases of small-pox amongst her convict passengers. Lieutenant-Colonel Almeida crossed the Zenza or Bengo river on the 6th of June under a severe fire of the Dembas tribe of natives. The following day the force under his command attacked the Dembas, and after a severe engagement, which lasted eight hours, drove them from their position, and followed them into the interior. Up to the 5th July no further information had reached St. Paul de Loando as to his further operations.

THE "EDINBURGH REVIEW" ON JAPAN.

Under the title of "Reform in Japan" the Edinburgh gives a review of "The Japanese in America," the new work of Mr. Lanman, American Secretary to the Japanese Legation in Washington. The following is a résumé of the article :—

The reviewer commences by contrasting the situation of the two beautiful and fertile groups of islands which are separated from each other by the whole breadth of Europe and Asia. The Japanese islands lie between the 31 deg. and 45 deg. of north latitude, and the British between the 50 deg. and 59 deg. The parallel of 40 deg. north latitude, which cuts through the middle of Japan, also cuts through Sardinia, Minorca, and the centre of Spain and Portugal. Notwithstanding this considerable difference in the latitude, the climates of the two groups are nearly allied in some essential features. Facts, authenticated by contributors to the Gardener's Magazine, indicate marvellous likeness in the midst of considerable diversity of outward form and volcanic soil. It strikes the imagination vividly that this analogy is not without its counterpart in the social and political world.

Marco Polo in the thirteenth century was enabled to give an account of an Eastern country called Zipangri, and of the great wealth of the island, particularly in gold and pearls, to a half-doubting audience, Genoese and Venetian, who gave him the sobriquet of "Marco Millione." It was this account which stimulated Columbus to the discovery, not of Japan, but of a new world in America, while searching for Zipangri.

In the middle of the sixteenth century Mendoz Pinto appeared in Japanese waters, under the guidance of the Chinese captain of a corsair junk ; and he and his friends were undoubtedly the first representatives of Europe and a Western race who had ever reached these shores. Of Koreans, Chinese, Malays, and Siamese, Japan had gained some knowledge, but it had never seen or heard of a Western race. What the Japanese were at that date as a nation unspoiled by any foreign contact or influence, Mendez Pinto has himself related in the narrative of his own adventures.* We are told that the Japanese, though vigilant and on their guard, manifested no reluctance to admit the strangers. But when, 150 years later, Kœmpfer, the physician, naturalist, and philosopher, and the most conscientious of chroniclers, came on the scene in the suite of his Dutch trading patrons, he found that no foreigners were allowed free access to any port in Japan. All except the Dutch had been expelled, and these were only admitted to an island prison at Decima in Nagasaki harbour. Little more than a century had sufficed to imbue this friendly people with implacable hatred and fierce intolerance towards the foreigners who, instead of wise and temperate men, had sent them filibusters, over-reaching traders, and fiery ultramontane priests—Jesuits and Dominicans, grasping at both temporal power and spiritual supremacy. The first act of this melancholy drama closed with the fall of Simabara, and the extermination of every man, woman, and child, acknowledging the symbol of the Cross. A century later the same catastrophe was repeated in China on a larger scale.

A few years after Pinto's landing in Japan, Francis Xavier visited it with a fresh relay of missionaries and merchants, who were all received with open arms. Not the slightest objection was made to the introduction of either commerce or religion. Christianity was permitted to be openly preached, and the Portuguese were allowed to go where they pleased in the Empire. Subsequently a Japanese Embassy composed of three princes was sent to Pope Gregory XVIII., with letters and valuable presents. The reception at Rome was magnificient, and their progress through Spain and Italy one continued ovation.

Three hundred years later we hear of similar joy and greeting, but the "brazen-tongued plaudits" come to us this time across the Atlantic. "A nation of thirty millions has been won," we are told, "to civilisation and the brotherhood of nations," instead of "from the heathen." The latter variation alone marks the difference ; perhaps in this nineteenth century we do not feel so sure about conquests from the heathen—perhaps also are more careless about them. Let us hope we shall not have cause, some fifty years hence, to doubt the value of these sudden conquests, and let us without misgiving welcome the news received by the last mail† of an edict repealing all prohibitions and penalties against the Christian religion, and proclaiming religious toleration in its widest sense. Among the many bewildering changes and reversals of national policy which the last few years have witnessed, this is the most unexpected. But what tends to throw doubt of the stability of such changes, if not on the sincerity of those who adopt the measures in Japan, is the apparent contradiction in the grounds assigned for the two measures. The disestablishment of the Buddhist religion, or church, had for its alleged ground the determination to return to the ancient faith of their ancestors—the Sinto religion derived from their own gods—whereas the Buddhist religion, borrowed from the Chinese, was essentially foreign, though it had been established in the country for more than twelve centuries. The Christian religion, on the other hand, is to be tolerated, though admittedly foreign. The first act appears to have been a concession to the national feeling of the old Nipon party, which is still strong, and hates all innovations and foreign inventions. The second must have been to conciliate the foreigner. How are these two opposite courses to be explained.

Mr. Lanman's book supplies a great deal of curious matter, but what the reader most desires is to separate the pure metal from the American gilding and varnish somewhat freely used by the compiler. The first part, or narrative of the progress of the Embassy through the United States, is avowedly composed by an American secretary. The second part is exclusively devoted to the reproduction of a series of themes or essays by Japanese students now in America, most of them of a very juvenile character.

The history of the Embassy opens in a very dramatic way with a banquetting scene in the palace of the Mikado, recently restored to active life and sovereign power from the depths of his monastic seclusion at Kioto, by the action of the chief Daimios and nobles of the Empire; weary, apparently, with the servitude imposed upon them and the tyranny of usurping Tycoons. On this occasion, in November last, his Majesty Montsohito, Emperor of Japan, declared that "after careful study and observation, he was deeply impressed with the belief that the most powerful and enlightened nations of the world are those who have made diligent efforts to cultivate their minds, and sought to develop their country in the fullest and most perfect manner ; and, thus convinced, it became his responsible duty as a sovereign to lead his people wisely in a way to attain for them results beneficial, and their duty was to assist diligently and unitedly in all efforts to attain these ends."

Ito, one of the vice-ambassadors, in a speech, completed what was here only shadowed out. "We come," said he, "to study your strength, that, by adopting wisely your better ways, we may hereafter be stronger ourselves. We shall labour to place Japan on an equal basis in the future with those countries whose modern civilisation is now our guide."

Such is the leading motive to possess railroads, telegraphs, steamships, improved armies, and for the education of their youth by hundreds. We are disposed to agree with the sentiments expressed by Mr. de Long, the United States Minister in Japan, when he said, "The present situation of Japan appeals strongly to all well-wishers to the race that no impediments nor difficulty, either social, moral, political, or religious, be placed in the way of her progress. We need only show her people the effects of Western civilisation in a kindly and courteous spirit, without needlessly exciting prejudices in so doing."

We wish that it may prove so, but we are not so well assured of it as Mr. de Long appears to be. The Japanese are the only nation in the history of the world that has ever taken five centuries at a stride. But it has been well observed that the elements of civilisation which are most readily assimilated are not always the most beneficial. A country situated as Japan was possesses, no doubt, exceptional facilities for effecting any changes in its political institutions. Whether it is ever wise or safe, however, to rush suddenly from one extreme to the other is a grave question.

In an article in the Edinburgh Review for January, 1871, on the "Foreign Relations of China," it was remarked that "progress and civilisation," so often invoked as a plea for a policy of compulsion and dictation in dealing with Eastern nations, are words of great potency sometimes and of very wide scope, but most frequently of evil omen when a superior power conceives the idea of grafting something new on an old civilisation, and imposing it by main strength on men of another race. And we adhere to this opinion as applied to Japan, a comparatively weak and insignificant State when pitted against the great Western Powers, but a people rarely gifted among Eastern races, of singular aptitude for receiving and acting on new ideas, full of courage and patriotism. It would be a political blunder of the first magnitude, fraught with indefinite mischief, for any Western Power to override a spirit of independence by thrusting upon them either men or measures for the sudden development of a nineteenth century civilisation, as it is worked in America or Europe at railroad speed by steam and electricity, and for which they are wholly unprepared, if not otherwise unfit. Yet we cannot help fearing that this is a danger actually menacing Japan. De Tocqueville in his correspondence has left us some observations on the evils of forced contact between a superior and inferior race, which have a direct bearing on the present aspect of affairs in Japan. In the first instance, at least, when Commander Perry made the American Treaty (1853) it was a forced relationship that was established between the Japanese and foreigners, and during the succeeding years, until the recent revolution, it continued to be forced on the rulers against their inclination. That relationship was established and maintained by at least the show of force, and, when it is alleged that the policy of the United States towards Japan has been exclusively pacific, the Americans must give the Japanese credit for very short memories.

Whether the Americans are "playing their cards" well with the Japanese, or otherwise, and what amount of reward they may look for in railway concessions, or mines, or Custom-house places "over the heads of any rivals for these good things" is, the reviewer proceeds, "worthy of very little attention, and quite beneath a great nation's care. It is more interesting, and infinitely more useful, to inquire what is the nature of the vast changes so rapidly being effected in Japan. Have they any element of stability, any promise of utility and permanence?"

* The reviewer passes over without notice, and, as it appears to us, somewhat unaccountably, the fact that the name of Ferdinand Mendez Pinto has long passed into a bye-word for a liar. It was said of him that his talent for lying "amounted to genius" There is no doubt that he visited the countries he professed to describe, but most of all his descriptions are idle and extravagant exaggerations, and many of them entirely imaginary —Ed. L. and C. T.

† Not quite the last ; but quarterly reviewers travel slowly. Our readers will remember that by the last mail we learned that a large meeting of Buddhist priests was to be convened at Yedo, and that the question of the toleration of Christianity would then be discussed.—Ed. L. and C. T.

The historical annals of Japan date from 660 B.C., and a regular succession of Mikados in lineal descent from the founders of their dynasty and race has since been carefully recorded. Uncommon respect, we are told, and more than human veneration is on this account paid to them.

We have so often in this journal given accounts of the improvements introduced into Japan that we need not follow the reviewer through the long list. Japan is to day admittedly the most progressive nation on the globe. We have seen how the lives of former Mikados were reduced to absolute inaction by the usurping power of the Tycoons, nominally only their lieutenants. Let us contrast with this the mode of life of the present Emperor, which the reviewer (with a gratuitous sneer at a deservedly esteemed contemporary) says that we owe to the "enterprise" of the Japan Herald.

It is reported that the Mikado rises at about seven o'clock, and commences the day by the study of the Japanese classics, under the tuition of the learned Mr. Fukuba. At ten his Majesty turns his attention to Western languages, literature &c., in which he is instructed by Mr. Katoh. Two of his Majesty's favourite subjects are geography and physiology. He perseveres in his studies until he is called upon by his ministers to preside at council, which he does with great application, so that it is difficult to tell at what hour his employment ceases. Such is the routine of the Tenno's daily life—studious, laborious, and simple.

When facts are looked at in connection with results, it seems clear that revolution of some kind must have taken place irrespective of any foreign intercourse. In such a crisis the Mikado proved the centre of unity and incontestible authority. This explains how a real and sweeping revolution came to be considered as a restoration. The very centre and basis of all administration was changed. It had become evident to all classes of a people with whom patriotism is a passion, that central government and powerful fiefs with feudal accessories could not go on together; and with this conviction had arisen a second, scarcely less potent, that Treaties could not be enforced if a Satsuma or a Chosiu could set them aside. The dual government collapsed with scarcely a struggle after the first brief outburst of armed resistance, and, in the first hour that the Mikado proclaimed his deposition, the reigning Tycoon recognised the sovereign power of dismissal, and released from their allegiance to him all his subordinate chiefs and holders of fiefs.

Japan has no doubt passed, and so far safely, through a great crisis in her existence. The only fear is that the pace of reform is too fast to be safe. The Japanese are exceedingly corrupt, and the greatest care is required in the administration of public works and finance. There is a great deal of reckless expenditure at present, which is pregnant with danger to the new order of things.

Nearly all the useful work hitherto done in Japan has been carried out with the assistance of Englishmen, and is mainly, if not exclusively, due to their aid. Railways, telegraphs, mint, light, and lighthouses, have all been the work of English hands, and, in great part, of English capital. We do not quarrel with the wish of the Americans to be regarded by the Japanese as their best friends. We may safely leave the Japanese to find out for themselves who are their best friends in the West. The great faults of the Japanese are conceit, flightiness, and want of perseverance. They are subject also to sudden fits of distrust and suspicion—all of which tends to a certain unreliability in everything they undertake.

The approaching revision of the Treaties will test the sincerity of the Mikado much better than ceremonial speeches. It is clear that what foreign countries want of Japan is something more than empty privileges. Liberty of travel will probably be no longer withheld, but there is more need of improved customs administration. Improved Courts of Justice are much wanted, a civil code seems not less required. A settled currency, free from all tampering, is a primary necessity. There is still a remnant of the old vexatious system of official surveillance and interference with foreigners to be got rid of; and greater encouragement or facilities for foreign enterprise, as in the working of mines, the production of tea, silk, &c., should be afforded.

The reviewer concludes: Of one thing we may be certain, that it is the interest of every Treaty Power to instruct their representatives at the Court of the Mikado to set before the Ministers of his Government the advantages of steady progress over undue speed. It should not be difficult for Sir Harry Parkes, on his return to his post, to convince them of the impossibility of adopting at once, in a country like Japan, the institutions of a foreign land, which have been evolved by a slow and natural process from European minds, and probably therefore are in no sense adapted, without great modification, to Japanese character and wants. Constitutions so created, or imposed by foreign influences, never take root in any soil.

MECHANICAL LABOUR IN THE FAR EAST.

(THE TIMES.)

It may be worth his while to call the attention of the British artisan to a cloud in the Eastern horizon. It has been several thousand years threatening, but it is coming at last, and has already come in many quarters where it was as little expected as here. It is that immense reservoir of human industry and skill which has accumulated for ages in China and Japan, and which has now burst its barriers and is flooding the earth. Forty years ago one of the questions sometimes asked by those sanguine and imaginative persons who were not afraid of hoping for impossibilities was whether we should ever break through the great wall of Chinese prejudice and get into that country. Perhaps we might in a thousand years. Little was it imagined that the year A.D. 1872 would see Chinese labourers working by thousands freely and well in the United States, both on the Pacific and the Atlantic coast, in the West Indies, and in the very heart of our Australian Colonies. At the present rate of progress, or rather of diffusion, there is not a spot in the whole world which can consider itself safe from the invasion of quiet, clever, active, and thrifty Chinamen, with their neat little ways, their quaint Josses, their queer ceremonials, and not irrational superstitions. Wherever their junks or the ill-found emigrant ship of the East can carry them, there they are doing all the hard work and all the petty trades of our thriving colonies, digging, hoeing, watering, and picking, growing vegetables, hawking them for sale, doing odd jobs of carpentering, and equal to building a wooden house of any scale, from a log hut to a Christian church, tabernacle, store, barrack, or theatre. Most hateful are they in the eyes of the European or American labourer or artisan, for they underbid him; they work long, they do not drink, and they make little fortunes, which they intend to carry back to the wife and children, present or to come, in the Flowery Land. There is nothing which is not said against them, but the only thing which can ever be ascertained is that they are industrious, peaceable, frugal, and generally honest. Now, perhaps, our people may think it will still be a long time before the Chinaman becomes a regular and important part of the English community, but it is not at all necessary to weigh the chances of a Chinese invasion. No great question is a local question in these days. England is the very last country which should think that here or there matters much now. She is doing the work of the whole world, and her competitors, as well as her customers, are everywhere. The Chinaman may beat us in the market of the world without leaving his own shores.

If our working men now on "strike" ever read anything but the Reports of Central Committees, Sub Committees, Vigilance Committees, and Meetings of Delegates, they may have noticed, under the head of City Intelligence, on Thursday, a few remarks upon what the Chinaman can be and do at home. A war steamer of 2,700 tons has just been constructed at Shanghai entirely by Chinese artificers, under the guidance of only four Europeans. The same can be done in Japan. Such is the natural docility and adroitness of the people in both those countries, and so steadily do they work, that there is no doubt they can compete with us successfully in many branches of manufacture so as to meet us in our own market as well as in theirs. They have coal and iron. Indeed, nothing whatever hinders them from becoming our most formidable rivals all over the East, the Southern hemisphere, and the shores of the Pacific. Nothing is now wanting but capital, enterprise, and skill; but these are things which in their very nature are bound to no spot and are jealous of restriction. Threaten the capitalist that you will divide his spoil among the many, and he will carry it off to a place of safety, however distant. Threaten the adventurer that, without sharing his risks, you will cry halves, and more than halves, on his find should he happen to succeed, and he will betake himself to some spot where he is safe. Threaten genius and attainment that it shall be simply the working slave of the multitude, and never have that which it can call its own, and it will take wings to the uttermost parts of the earth, if necessary, so as to escape a heartless servitude. Our industrial combinations wield a power beyond their conception. They can do for all England what combinations, before this, have done for many a district in England, changing it from a populous region into a desert, and from a garden into a ruinous heap. The working classes of this country have only to agree, and they can drive away all the elements of wealth and prosperity, except labour and manual skill, to remote regions, where labour and manual skill can be obtained in any quantity. There really is no reason whatever why any man should not sail to-morrow with a few skilled comrades, the proper tools, and the requisite capital, either to China or to Japan, and set up there any manufactory which, under more favourable circumstances, he would have preferred to try at home.

If matters go on as they have gone on lately, the question before us is simple enough. Either enterprise, capital, and skill will go where labour is to be found, or the superabundant labour of other countries will find its way here. Combination believes itself able to deal with the European form of this dilemma, but it can do nothing with a population computed at a third of that of the whole earth, and as new to us as if it had dropped from the moon. It now appears that we on this side of the world have been long under a curious error as to the true character of the Chinese and Japanese. The ethnologists of the last age dwelt much on the rigidity, obstinacy, and immutability of those races. They seemed the backbone and hard skeleton of an old world. They are found rather to have been arrested in the stage of childishness so as to retain the docility of children. It is even conjectured, not without reason, that, as the Japanese seem to have acquired their present civilisation by a great national effort all at once, though long ago, they may become all at once European, at least as regards manners, outward appearances, and mechanical progress. It may not be very pleasant to imagine a vast semi-barbaric imitation of European culture, associated, possibly, with degrading habits and ridiculous beliefs. The ape of a thing, be it ever so good, is always disagreeable. But there would be nothing to offend our taste in the products of Chinese and Japanese industry; and their new development might attain the most wonderful results, and change the face of the whole earth. Such immense and sudden developments are almost a law in the history of this globe. How have gunpowder, printing, coal, steam, iron, cotton, the railway, the electric wire, and now the gold discoveries, revolutionised the world! At the very nick of time, when the world seemed to be waiting for it, there comes a discovery or a supply. So just at the moment when all the earth is explored, opened, and united, suddenly there comes an immense number of chi dlike, tractable natures, equal to all the lower functions of industry, eager for them, and long trained to denial, endurance, submission and toil. If our own people do not see this, it is because they have been so engaged in their petty class struggles as to have their eyes shut to the grear current of human affairs. But that China, Japan, and perhaps India, too, have to play a very great part in the affairs of the world is a matter already understood in the United States and our own Colonies, and will soon be so at home.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY OF 1872.

(STANDARD.)

The embassy of Tomimi Iwakura is not the first mission of Japan to this country. We all recollect the embassy from Japan that visited London somewhat more than ten years since. That embassy, interesting as it was, partook far more of the ordinary characteristics of Oriental missions to the European nations than the present one. It was a consequence of that invasion of the sacred precincts of Japanese civilisation which Commodore Perry had accomplished in 1854. Lord Elgin had followed in the footsteps of the gallant American, and obtained the Treaty of Jeddo in 1858. The Japanese submitted with a certain grace to these strange intrusions of the white men from the East and from the West. The embassy of 1862 was the voice of men asking what it all meant. Since that date Japan has passed through a great crisis, more wonderful if we compare the currents of ideas involved than anything which Western history presents. It is the new Japan—the Japan of the revolution of 1868—that greets the world in the embassy of the great minister Iwakura, and the distinguishing characteristic of this new Japanese era is the marvellous avidity with which the ways and customs, the ideas and sciences of the West are being acquired by Japan. A nation that within the memory of us all had no intercourse with any other people in the world, lived as secluded within its own frontiers as the recluse in the ancient monastery, or the prisoners in solitary confinement, is devoting all its time, and wealth, and energies, to studying the customs and habits of thought of the nations of Europe and America, and introducing their customs and ideas into Japan. It is only a few years since the Japanese law existed which forbad a native of that group of islands to reside abroad. A native Japanese carried by tempest to a foreign coast had on his return to undergo a moral quarantine to purify himself from his contact with the foreigner. Now representatives of Japan meet us in every great city, at every college and university. The Japan of the future is abroad at Washington and Boston, at London, Berlin, and Paris, studying how to build up twenty years' hence the new civilisation that is taking the place of the tradition and culture of a thousand years past. Our knowledge of Japan until recently was derived from the glimpses got of it by the Jesuits, and since their expulsion, two hundred years ago, we knew nothing of it until the present, when we are rapidly becoming better acquainted with it than with any other country of the East.

When the Americans and the Western nations got access to Japan in 1853 they found it slumbering under a most curious feudal system. It boasted, as it boasts still, the most ancient dynasty in the world. The lineage of the Mikado runs back to six hundred years before the Christian Era, and for centuries past the representative of this ancient line had become to the people a mere shadow. He lived within the palace at Kiyoto, surrounded by his relatives and servants, but never seeing the light of day, much less the faces of his subjects. All the power of the State had passed on the Taikun or Tycoon, who—originally a sort of Maire du Palais—had become the real Sovereign, leaving the Mikado or Tenno his glorious traditions, a mystic splendour, and a small revenue. Not the least marvellous of the incidents in modern life in Japan is it that the leader who has come to consolidate and direct the revolutionising of Japanese institutions is the representative of this ancient line of Princes so long immured in an unnatural seclusion. The revolution of 1868 crushed the power of the Taikun and elevated the Mikado, withdrawn from the retirement of Kiyoto, to the position of real actual ruler of Japan. Foremost amongst the actors in that revolution was the chief of the present Embassy, Iwakura, who is described as junior Prime Minister of Japan. Hardly less active in the revolution was Kido, another member of the Embassy, who was for some time a fugative from Japan on account of an unsuccessful attempt at revolution previous to 1868.

The exact history of this extraordinary revolution is but little known. Next to the twofold Royalty, the first characteristic of the Japanese Government was the existence of a great body of nobles who represented authority in each locality. The Daimios were the lords of different provinces, and held sway to the number of 600 and odd. The general government of Japan practically rested with these Daimios or their representatives. This power seems, for the most part, to have undergone a process of transfer similar to that of the substitution of the Taikun for the Mikado, and the business man of each Daimio had come to wield the actual power of the district. How far this transfer of power from the Daimios to their agents aided the revolution of 1868 is not clear, but the formal authority of the Daimios was largely exercised on behalf of the Tycoon, and his fall curtailed very considerably the independent rights hitherto claimed for the Daimios, as it exalted the power of the new central Government that had sprung to life and action from the dreamland of Kiyoto. Equally uncertain is it how far the question of the admission of foreigners affected the struggle. The central Government of the Tycoon never directly opposed foreigners, though some of the Daimios and local parties, supposed to be incited by the Daimios, did, as our struggle with the Daimio Satsuma in 1863 proves. But the tendency to cultivate friendly relations with foreign nations seems to have been abroad in Japan, and common to all parties more or less. It was only incidentally that it became the rallying cry or the reproach of the various parties to the great internal struggle of 1868. Since the revolution the greatest impetus has been given to this tendency to remodel all the institutions of the country. Public works of every kind are undertaken, and European laws and customs introduced. The works undertaken by the Government are not like those of many Oriental Governments, for the increase of their own power—works carried out by Europeans, and designed as much against the independence of their subjects and the peace of their neighbours as for the good of the kingdom. The effort of the Japanese Government has been, whenever possible, to get Japanese themselves to enter into these undertakings. To the vast mineral resources of the country, and its advantages of soil and climate, must be added the important fact that it possesses large deposits of coal. When adequate machinery shall have been obtained for the working of these mines, the Japanese will be in a position to take an enormous position in the industrial development of the East. The numerous Japanese resident amongst us testify the quickness of apprehension of the race. They acquire the English language with remarkable fluency. A volume has recently appeared in America, and has been reprinted in this country, which is a strong testimony to the progress the Japanese have made in the study of the outer world. "The Japanese in America" is professedly an account of the Japanese Embassy, its objects and its character, but it gives little information as to Japan itself or its history. The value of the book is chiefly for this glimpse we get of the kind of persons whom this great Oriental population has sent out to learn the ways of the world. More than half the volume is made up of essays in English, written by Japanese students in America. If the English is not always perfect, their apprehension of the nature of American institutions is marvellously correct, and exhibits both study and thought; but the volume would be of more general interest did it give us some account of the Japanese themselves, such as we get from the European point of view in the interesting annual papers from our diplomatic agents in Japan. M. Kanda shows us how a native of Japan could discourse of the customs of his country. "The women always wear white socks, and the men purple ones. It is made so that the big toe is separated from the rest of the toes, in order to hold between them a thong by which the shoes are fastened to the feet." Not a little curious is M. Kanda's description of Japanese cloths, which he tells us are "beautifully dyed" if we compare it with the accounts given by the first European visitors in Japan. "Garish colours" was the European description of ten years since, but now we are more disposed to agree with the language of M. Kanda, and in this matter of colour Europe admits itself instructed by our newly discovered Eastern friends.

After the opening of the ports to foreign trade under the Treaties with England, America, and Prussia, great difficulties arose from the sudden effects produced upon the currency of Japan, and for some years past this has been the most pressing question that engrosses the attention of Japanese politicians. One of the members of this Embassy is specially employed in the study of the financial question, and on its prompt solution depends the commercial progress of the country. The accounts of our Consuls at the Japanese ports all detail the difficulties which beset trading operations both with Europeans and with the Chinese from the present state of the currency; but these difficulties are all attributed to the unusual circumstances in which the country has been placed, not to any want of good faith on the part of the Government. A sense of the importance of public credit, and a scrupulous desire to maintain it, appear to have always characterised the proceedings of the Ministry. Next to the settlement of finance, the extension of public works is the most pressing question, and another member of the Embassy, Hierobumi Ito, represents the Ministry of Public Works. Already we find docks in Japan and telegraphs at work, and some of the most recent news is the opening of a railway near Kanagawa, one of the first of the ports opened to foreigners. Waterworks, drainage, bridges, lighthouses, telegraphs, are some of the results of this Europeanising movement which our Consul at Kanagawa, Mr. Robertson, reports, and the Consuls at Hakodadi and Hiogo describe the same course of things. Mr. Gower tells us that the education efforts of the Government are not confined to the nobles and State officers that are sent abroad to foreign schools and universities. Writing from Hiogo and Osaka in the January of last year, he says, "Free Government schools, with foreign teachers for instruction in languages and natural sciences, are progressing very favourably." These institutions are practical results of that movement which is signalised so oddly by the sight of the present Mikado walking about the streets of his capital in European dress. The unseen of centuries appears before the world in the garb of a European gentleman, and his subjects seem to realise the significance of all this, and enter into his efforts. The one danger as regards the relations of Europeans and Americans with Japan is that of religion. Since the expulsion of the Jesuit missionaries there seems to linger antipathy to and suspicion of all European religions, and it has required some trouble already to obviate this difficulty, but with the progress of cultivation in the country this danger of disturbance may be overcome. It is established by students of Imperial history that the present civilisation of Japan was taken about one thousand years ago from China. It was not developed from the country itself, but imported, superadded upon that feudal system which has long survived, upon that charming art and poetry that still make this country and all its belongings so attractive. The tales of the Ronins, the colours of Japanese pictures, are native products, but the social organisation and the Buddhist and Confucian systems are Chinese. Now, again, Japan undertakes to remodel her whole life according to the experience of other people. If she only grasps Western civilisation with the same thoroughness, and pursues it with the same persistency, the more progressive spirit of that civilisation compared with the Chinese promises a great future to the country.

REFORM IN JAPAN.

UNDER the above title—which does not appear to us well chosen, because "Progress in Japan" would more accurately describe the subject—the new number of the Edinburgh Review contains a lengthy article, of which we give a résumé in another column. We must confess that the tone of this dissertation has taken us by surprise—especially when considered in connection with the time-honoured quarterly of the Scottish metropolis. It is enough to make one rub one's eyes to find a dreary piece of special pleading in favour of obstructiveness, not to say retrogression, enclosed in the glorious old "blue and yellow" covers that used to be filled with the earnest, progressive, candid, and truly liberal, essays of such men as BROUGHAM, SYDNEY SMITH, MACKINTOSH, and MACAULAY. Such, however, as our readers will perceive, is the melancholy fact; and we only hope that it has no political significance, as indicating the policy which our Government propose to adopt towards the Japanese Embassy—now hourly expected. Statesmen of every party are anxious to welcome it here with the same cordiality that has been extended to it in the United States, and ready to accept it as one of the most promising signs of the progress of civilisation, and the most encouraging fact of the day in reference to the development of our intercourse with the Far East. But—though it must not be forgotten that more than one member of the Cabinet are accustomed to exercise as much influence in the press as in Parliament, and that the Edinburgh has on more than one occasion foreshadowed their policy—our present concern is not with the minister but the reviewer. A very few lines will suffice to prove the fallacy of the arguments in the article under notice, to expose the bad taste of its general tone, and to put our readers on their guard against any proceedings that may be suspected to be presumably initiated in it.

The reviewer affects to consider that the Japanese are getting on too fast. He says they are the only nation in the history of the world that has taken five centuries at a stride—he charges them with corruption, insincerity, flightiness, and suspiciousness—he questions the stability of the recent reforms; and hopes "we shall not have cause, some fifty years "hence, to doubt their value." He hints at the possibility that the Americans may not be "playing their cards well," and suggests that they may be looking for some unknown "amount of reward in railway concessions, or mines, or "Custom-house places, over the heads of any rivals for these "good things." This last remark, which seems to us to convey a gratuitous and ungracious insinuation against our American cousins, is dragged in apropos of the sensible and genial observation of Mr. DE LONG, U.S. Minister in Japan, that "the present situation of Japan appeals strongly to all "well-wishers to the race; that no impediments nor difficulty, either social, moral, political, or religious, be placed "in the way of her progress. We need only show her people "the effects of Western civilisation in a kindly and courteous "spirit, without needlessly exciting prejudices in so doing." What is there to carp at in a sentiment like this, the justice and wisdom of which are as universally recognised in this country as in the United States?

But this is not the worst. The reviewer proceeds—inconsistently enough, after his admission of the Japanese "stride" over five centuries—to describe them as an "inferior" race, and to caution us against "forcing" our improvements on them—"thrusting upon them either men or measures "for the sudden development of a nineteenth century "civilisation, as it is worked in America or Europe; and "for which they are wholly unprepared—if not otherwise "unfit"—and so "over-riding their spirit of independence." This is the strangest reasoning we ever read. How can the Japanese be "wholly unprepared" for the civilisation which they are travelling round the globe expressly to study? How can we be said to "thrust" upon them inventions the value of which they perceived so readily that they engaged large numbers of our countrymen to introduce them in Japan, and now are coming to England to acquire more? And how can a people that clears five centuries at a "stride" have its "independence over-ridden" by a friendly Power, only anxious to impart its information and its attendant blessings to its welcome guests?

Thus far we drift through the Edinburgh article without perceiving what the writer is aiming at. We are conscious of a tedious course of false argument and ungracious reflections, but we are at a loss to understand what it is that our mentor would have us do. Just at the close he lets out his secret with much pomposity. "It is, 'he says,' the in-"terest of every Treaty Power to instruct their repre-"sentatives at the Court of the Mikado to set before "the Ministers of his Government the advantages of steady "progress over undue speed." That means that they had better put out their gas, pull up their rails, cut their telegraph wires, sink their steamers, lock up their young men, and, like MACBETH, "seek to know no more" until it pleases the Edinburgh to dole out a modicum of information. Evidently feeling satisfied that this reasonable proposal will be universally accepted by a grateful public, the reviewer proceeds:—"It should not be difficult for Sir HARRY "PARKES, on his return to his post, to convince them of the "impossibility of adopting at once in a country like Japan, "the institutions of a foreign land, which have been evolved, "by a slow and natural process, from European minds, &c." Whether it would, or would not, be "difficult" for Sir HARRY PARKES to accomplish this grateful task, we feel very sure that he is the last man who would consent to undertake it. Fancy what History would say in the year 2500 or thereabouts:—"Towards the close of the 19th century, a violent reaction "in favour of ignorance took place; and all British Ministers "abroad were instructed to check progress to the best of "their ability." This is the reductio ad absurdum, but it seems to us to represent the exact facts of the case. The Edinburgh reviewer would place us in the position of a schoolmaster who would prohibit the most promising boy in his school from learning anything more. It is really matter of regret that such antiquated twaddle should emanate from the "modern Athens." Our consolation is that it will do no harm—except to the important periodical in which it appears. It is impossible even for past prestige to check the rising tide of civilisation; and, as the Edinburgh reviewer has elected, on this occasion, to play the part of Mrs. PARTINGTON instead of that of CANUTE, he may rest assured that when his article finds its way to the Japanese Embassy, as it assuredly will—he will have succeeded only in stimulating the ardour he has endeavoured to repress. The Japanese will pursue their adoption of all that they discover valuable in Great Britain; and when periodical literature is introduced into Japan, it is certain that its style will not be copied from that of the Edinburgh reviewer.

OUR means of telegraphic communication with the United States will be increased in the course of next summer by the addition of a fourth Atlantic cable to those now in existence. The new cable is now being manufactured by the Telegraph Construction Company for the French Atlantic Telegraph Company, and will be laid by the Great Eastern between Falmouth and New York, via Halifax.

THE appointment of Don D. S. GILKISON as Spanish Consul at Galle has been approved of by the QUEEN.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

On the morning of the 15th January last the Pacific mail steamer America arrived at San Francisco, having on board 107 Japanese passengers, of whom forty-nine constituted the Embassy, while the remainder consisted of five young ladies and fifty-three young gentlemen and servants, who were accompanied by the Hon. Charles E. De Long, American Minister to Japan, and his family, and W. S. Rice, Esq., Interpreter of the United States Legation in Japan. The Ambassador, Terashima Muenori, accompanied by his private secretary, Kinso, and three of the secretaries to the Embassy, arrived in Liverpool by the Cunard steamer China on the 11th inst., and proceeded to London. On the following day the Minister, accompanied by Sir Harry Parkes and Mr. Aston, interpreter to the Embassy, proceeded to Osborne, and having been introduced to the Queen by Earl Granville, presented his credentials as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the Mikado, to which post he was recently appointed. He will remain as permanent Charge, d'Affaires in London. The main body of the Embassy, headed by Iwakura and Kido, arrived at Liverpool by the Cunard steamer Olympus on the 17th inst. On their arrival they were met by General Alexander, representing the Government, the Mayor of Liverpool, and the Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, who presented the following address to Iwakura :—

The Council of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce beg most respectfully to offer to yourself and the other members composing the Embassy a hearty welcome to the United Kingdom. The Council have reason for congratulating themselves and the commercial community they represent upon the arrival in this country of an Embassy consisting of ministers and nobles who are distinguished as the most eminent amongst the statesmen of the Japanese Empire. The Council hail with the utmost satisfaction a mission which has for its object the establishment of the most intimate and friendly relation, between the Japanese Empire and the United Kingdom, and the increase of the commerce between the two countries. It is also the good fortune of the Council to welcome to their shores the representatives of the most progressive nation on the globe—a nation strong in patriotic feeling, full of courage as well as devotion to their country, highly gifted among Eastern races, and of a natural intelligence which has no superior.

The Council of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, representing as they do the merchants of the greatest mercantile port of the United Kingdom, desirous of testifying in some measure to the high sense they entertain of the visit and the objects of the Embassy to the United Kingdom, most respectfully request the honour of his Excellency's company, and the company of the other members of the Embassy, at a banquet in Liverpool, whenever their engagements will allow of the invitation being accepted by them, the time being left to be fixed by the Embassy themselves.

The Embassy, of which the following is the official list, is now quartered at the Buckingham Palace Hotel :—

OUR CONSULAR SERVICE ABROAD.

(Pall Mall Gazette.)

Our Consuls abroad are appointed to protect a trade almost indefinite in extent, and with powers of development apparently unlimited, so that it cannot be urged that their office is unimportant or non-productive as regards the commercial power and prosperity of the Empire. Their case is a very simple one; it is only that of the Warwickshire labourers over again, minus some of the advantages possessed by the latter. It means that, whereas the price of rent, meat, milk, bread, clothes, and indeed all the necessaries of life have enormously increased, their wages have remained the same. The labourer, however, has power to strike; he is aided in this by trade unions already in flourishing existence, not only aided by money, but sustained by their sympathy and counsel; he has the parish to resort to if he fails; he has no obligation to keep up a position, to wear a costly uniform, or to entertain chance travellers, nor has he as yet to undergo an examination before he follows the plough; and even when the new school boards have worked their will and done their best or their worst for him, though he never obtains more than a certificate of final incompetency as a scholar, if he is a handy workman the farmer will employ him nevertheless. Lastly, he may migrate to another county and obtain better wages there without any injury to his prospects in life. In all these respects the Consul is at a disadvantage with the Warwickshire labourer. The price of everything has again risen, but his salary has not only not been raised, but has in the aggregate been distinctly lowered, and, if we take into consideration the fall in the value of gold, lowered enormously. Leaving out of the estimate the Consular expenses in China, we find that the cost of our Consular establishments, which was in 1860-61 £168,239, is calculated for 1872 at £172,913. Meanwhile the amount remitted in fees to Government has trebled, and our trade has increased steadily and largely. The cost from 1860 rose progressively up to 1868, and, as we think, very properly, since prosperous management should ensure liberal reward. It was then £171,178; since that date it declined, rose, fell again; and so it is that now we only pay our trade representatives about £4,000 more than we did ten years ago. "All Consuls are paid," says Mr. Hammond: "that is to say, there is a salary assigned to them, and they receive it; whether they are able to subsist on it is a very different thing. . . . . The pay allowed by the country is not adequate for the maintenance of persons as a general rule." And then follow some examples of stinginess which are really painful for an Englishman to read (vide question 1,569, second report). As being Her Majesty's commissioned servant, honour and esprit de corps forbid him to strike; and as to the question of forming a union, he has neither leisure nor opportunity of discussing the matter with his colleagues. For him there exist no Odgers or Archers to stump the world in his behalf. He has now to pass an examination in order to obtain even the chance of an appointment at all. He cannot migrate or exchange without permission. If he elects to strike or resign, it is final; he loses his employment at once and for ever, and he has in addition the unholy temptation to discontent, which, on the whole, the Warwickshire labourers have not. He sees, as plainly as figures can show him, that, whereas his wages are often actually less, but almost always less in proportion, his employers (the Government) are making from 30 to 50 per cent. profit on the trade that he is hired to superintend. The consequence of all this is that annoyance, grumbling, and discontent permeate the service. The Consuls have represented their grievance in a studiously respectful form, and only, so to speak, on invitation thereto, but we have seldom read more discreditable examples of unwise parsimony in all the long list of short-sighted economies effected by the present Government than those disclosed by the reports of the select committee recently engaged on the subject. These Blue-books are the stones dealt out to the unhappy Consuls instead of bread, for, so far as we can find, hardly one of the suggestions made by previous committees for the improvement of the service has been acted upon. We have before dealt with their grievances in these columns, therefore not to weary our readers we will briefly enumerate them in chief. Though representing one of the largest commercial nations in the world, they are formally advised in their instructions that they are distinct from and inferior to the diplomatic corps. "The Consular service is, in fact, strictly subordinate to the diplomatic service; . . . the diplomatic representatives are invested with full authority and control over Her Majesty's Consular officers." We quote from the general instructions issued to every English Consul, and we may add that he is in this respect at a great disadvantage in point of position power, and dignity with his colleagues of France, Austria, Italy, Germany, &c. Again, formerly the Consuls retained all fees instead of salaries, and were allowed to trade, and in this way realised good fortunes. For example, in 1858 the Consul at Bordeaux dealt in valuable wines, in which respect, no doubt, his official position would afford him great facilities, and he thereby doubled his official income, which was then £600, derived from fees. Since that time he is deprived of fees and power to trade, but has a salary of £700. Meanwhile prices have so risen that £1,200 now goes no further than £600 did in 1858. There are very few cases, indeed, now where Consuls are allowed to trade, but the salaries awarded to them in exchange are so low that in all the reports we cannot find anything to contradict the unanimous testimony that it is utterly impossible to subsist on them without private means. Promotion is quite a matter of chance, or, properly speaking, of interest, and there is in consequence no encouragement for zeal, emulation, and ability which exist in the Consular service of all other European countries—France, Germany, Italy, &c. No allowance is made, as in France and Spain, for service in unhealthy stations, and consequently a Consul without patronage and interest may stagnate in the swamps of South America or die of yellow fever on the coast of Africa long before he can acquire the right to a pension, or, as in other countries, a provision for his widow and child, with free passage home. In the Consular service in most other countries income and other taxes are paid for the Consul by his Government; but this is not the case in our own, and so many pence in the pound are duly deducted from already inadequate salaries. It is almost necessary for personal utility that a Consul should take in the leading journals of the place where he resides, and that he should at least see some of our own, say the Shipping Gazette and The Times. It is also advisable that he should maintain a fully-informed correspondence with this country. Facilities for the former have never, we believe, been granted, and latterly, by a singularly short-sighted economy, our Consuls are now compelled to pay full postage. Writing from Copenhagen, Mr. Crowe says:—"The abolition of the foreign agencies, and the withdrawal of the regular Queen's messenger, have, so far as this Consulate is concerned, resulted in a total deprivation of all postal facilities, or, in other words, to a reduction of income of between £20 and £30. The Times and Shipping Gazette alone cost, with postage to Copenhagen, £15 1s. 8d. per annum." Yet in other countries the Consuls are abonnés by their Governments for the principal journals, and their postage is always defrayed by the State. In only one case do we find that the allowance made for office expenses is sufficient to defray what is actually paid. "An unfurnished brick building, large enough for a married couple with two children, costs here £220," says the Consul at Savannah. "All contingent expenses are on the same scale, so that, as a house for me is out of the question, I am now living with my wife and one child in one room at the cheapest boarding-house I can find, and even with this economy it is difficult for me to pay my way." Not here lives, but here starves. Her Britannic Majesty's Consul, would seem to be the appropriate address beneath our flag if this is the treatment a great and wealthy nation accords to her servants. So far as the Consular Reports are as yet published, from all alike, from France, Italy, Greece, Denmark, Germany, Austria, Belgium, America come the same urgent complaints; the same griefs are formulated, the same discontent is expressed—the discontent of men who feel that, while faithfully discharging their duty, they are treated not only ungenerously, but unjustly in return for expenditure often far beyond their means and services not included in their contract, but given unsparingly for the honour of the national flag of which they are the representatives. This unanimity of complaint cannot be either accident, design, or coincidence. The solitary exception to which we have adverted—the one amazing Consul who has no complaint to make, and whose office-rent costs less than the Government allowance—is Vice-Consul Malcolm M'Gregor, presumable a Scotchman, and he has only been in the service about three years.

Monetary and Commercial.

The shipping community in the north anticipate that the Board of Trade will make further persistent efforts to induce some powerful interposition with the Suez Canal Company, with a view to obtain the abolition of the increased tariff recently imposed. The following resolution was passed by the Newcastle and Gateshead Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held last week:—

That, as this Chamber cannot concur in the opinion expressed in the House of Commons on the 5th inst. as to the meaning and effect of the concession to the Suez Canal Company, and its right to levy the proposed increase of dues, and having regard to the terms of the letter of the Foreign-office, dated 31st July, 1872, and the importance of the question, respectfully appeals to the Foreign-office to permit a deputation from the Chamber to wait upon their lordships at an early day; and that if possible the deputation should have an opportunity of meeting the law officers of the Crown.

The Chamber also passed the following resolution:—

That, as it appears from the letter received from the Foreign-office by the Newcastle and Gateshead Chamber of Commerce, that the law officers of the Crown are of opinion that the words tonneau de capacite des navires, in the Act of Concession to the Suez Canal Company, may be fairly construed to mean the gross tonnage of the vessel, after the deduction has been made of the space for the engines and coal bunkers, this association earnestly urges upon Her Majesty's Government the desirability, and the great importance to the shipping and commerce of this country, of their taking all possible measures to secure the adoption of that construction of the Act of Concession.

The London manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation has received a telegram from the head office at Hong Kong announcing that the half-yearly meeting of the shareholders was held there on the 14th inst., when the usual dividend of 12 per cent per annum was declared for the half year ended 30th June last, and the sum of $122,500 carried forward to the new profit and loss account.

The Secretary of the Colombo Gas and Water Company has received a telegram announcing that Colombo was successfully lighted with gas on the 10th inst.

Messrs. Schröder and Co. announce that they are prepared to deliver definite bonds in exchange for the fully paid Scrip of the Amoor River Navigation Company on and after the 19th inst.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—

There has been a steady market during the past week. Importers continue to hold firmly, whilst there have been a few speculative purchases of good medium black-leaf Congou, which has tended to strengthen the market for these descriptions, the trade also buying them with more confidence. Kaisow kinds have been more irregular; the brisk Saryune kinds have been in fair request, but the plain Kaisow kinds difficult of sale; fine to finest have been sold to a fair extent from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 4d. per lb. In old Teas business continues limited at about previous prices. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 3.765,151 lbs., against 2,496,732 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds show no change. Fair to good common have been in fair request for export at previous prices. Fair to good Kaisows from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. have been dull of sale. Saryune kinds have been inquired for with briskness from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. per lb.; fine Kaisows have sold from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 4d., being previous rates; a few packages extra choice have sold from 2s. 6d. to 2s. 8d. Pak Lin kinds show great depression, some fine realised, at public sale, only 1s. 8d. to 1s. 8½d. per lb., showing a further decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. Black-leaf kinds: Old season's show no change. Fair to good of new import have sold from 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 7d., fine from 1s. 8d. to 2s., finest 2s. 1d. to 2s. 7d. per lb., these latter showing a slight advance. New-make Congous: further sales, ex Diomed, have been made at 11½d. per lb., being fully last week's prices. Oolongs and Souchongs remain difficult of sale at about previous rates. Scented Teas: Canton Capers remain much as before, the finer kinds being still in fair request, but common to medium difficult of sale. Foochow kinds show no alteration. Canton Orange Pekoes remain much as last week, with a limited inquiry. Foochow kinds have been difficult of sale at about 1d. per lb. decline, the scent being indifferent. Uncoloured Japans: common to fair have been neglected; good to fine in moderate demand Green: There have been no fresh arrivals, and business consequently remains on a very retail scale. Canton kinds have sold to some extent at public sale from 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb., being rather lower; the finer kinds have, however, been better maintained.

SILK.

The market is still inactive, but there is some appearance of business close at hand, there having been rather more inquiry within the last day or two. The interval has been extremely quiet, the only actual business having been in good to best No. 4 Tsatlee at 27s. to 27s. 6d.; lower grades are without inquiry, but without alteration in quotations. Canton Silk is equally quiet, and there have been no transactions of moment as yet in new arrivals; 19s. to 19s. 6d. continues to be the quotation for market Tsatlee, but without actual sales. Japan is dull and uninquired for. Deliveries have been rather small this month, but it being partly a holiday season may account in some measure for the decline in figures. Deliveries, 1st to 14th August, China, 1,094; Canton, 244; Japan, 388; Bengal, 154. Total, 1,880 bales.

COFFEE.

Large supplies of Plantation Ceylon have been placed on offer during the week, and considerable transactions have been effected, but prices have been irregular, and at the close may be said to rule 6d. to 1s. per cwt. below those of last week, the last rates being—triage 73s. to 77s., small 77s. 6d to 80s., low middling 80s. to 81s. 6d., middling 82s. to 84s., good middling 85s. to 85s. 6d., good bold 87s. 6d. to 90s. 6d., pea-berry 93s. to 99s. 6d. No transactions are reported in Native Ceylon, Manila, Java, or Singapore.

The Dutch Trading Company announce their next public sale for the 28th inst., when 82,600 bags Java, &c., will be offered.

SUGAR.

Heavy landings at the four chief ports appear to have an unfavourable influence on the market on the spot, and the tone has become very quiet, sales on the spot being very moderate, and prices only just sustained. Steady rates are obtainable for floating cargoes, but no business has been reported. There have been no transactions in East India kinds; offers of 7,946 bags date Penang, per Hector, were all bought in at 23s. to 25s., also 175 bags low soft yellow (duty 4s. 9d.) at 30s.

China Preserved Ginger.—Of 50 cases Samshing offered 10 cases sold at 7½d., the remainder being bought in at 8d. per lb.

Cocoa-Nut Oil.—The market for Ceylon is firm at £36 for fine quality; of 216 casks offered by auction 151 casks sold, brown £34, brownish £34 5s., yellow to fine £34 10s. to £35 5s., one lot at £35 10s.

Cutch continues quiet; Lion brand Pegu has been bought in at 26s.

Gambier.—The market is very firm, and prices still show an upward tendency; for arrival sales to a large extent have been effected up to 23s. 9d. per cwt., and on the spot the quotation is 24s. 6d.

Hemp.—Market for Manila dull, and but little business done during the week.

Pepper.—Black: At the public sales Penang sold at easy rates, while Singapore was dull of sale and was bought in at 6¾d. to 7d.; West Coast Penang sold at 6¼d to 6⅜d, Trang at 6⅜d. to 6½d. White: In auction Singapore sold at easier prices, viz., mixed brownish to fair at 1s. 1¼d. to 1s. 1½d.

Rice.—Rather more demand has prevailed on the spot at steady rates, and for arrival further sales have been effected at firm prices. On the spot Askoolie has been sold at 10s. 3d. ex quay, Necransie at 9s. 1½d. quay terms, Ballam at 8s. 9d. The following floating cargoes have been sold:—The L. Semino 905 tons Rangoon arrived off coast at 9s. 10½d. Continental terms, the steamer Good Hope 1,500 tons Necransie at 9s. 7½d. Liverpool quay terms, the arrived cargo per Hercules 815 tons Bassein at 9s. 7½d. ex ship London, a cargo of 900 tons Rangoon, July shipment, at 9s. 10½d. ex ship London, two cargoes of about 800 tons each Rangoon, July-August shipment, at 10s. open charter, the Hudson 860 tons Bassein April sailing at 10s. 3d. Liverpool quay terms, the Petit Poucet 1,510 tons Necransie April sailing at 9s. 7½d. Liverpool quay terms, and two cargoes, together 4,000 tons Rangoon, sold in Liverpool, August-September shipment, at 10s. 4½d. quay terms for that port direct.

Spices.—A fair amount of business has been done at last quoted prices.

Tin.—Since our report of the 9th inst. Straits has receded to £142, but within the past few days the price has recovered, and the closing quotation is £147 per ton. Banca stands at £158, Billiton at £152.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

WEAKENING WEATHER.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and debilitated, and this state eventuates in diseases, unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives tone to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one, therefore, can overestimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, and the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness that were ever invented, and in consequence have attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our latest advices from this port extend to the 7th July: the French mail, with London dates to the 10th May, arrived out on 27th June, and the following P. and O. mail of May 17 on the 1st July. The following items of news are from the Japan Mail and Japan Herald:—

On the morning of the 28th June the Mikado left the castle of Yedo to embark on board the flagship of the Japanese Admiral, being conveyed on board in a small steam vessel provided for the purpose. Owing to the early hour of his departure, which the state of the tide necessitated, the offered assistance of the Corps Diplomatic was excused, and owing to the misty weather but little could be seen of the spectacle by the spectators on shore. His Majesty was saluted with twenty-one guns by H.M.'s steamer Rinaldo, which was "dressed," and which had her yards manned on the occasion. His Majesty will first put in at the port of Toba, in the province of Shima, whence he will visit the Shrines called Riô-Daijin-Gû, in the province of Isé. He will next call at the island of Oshima, at the southern extremity of Kishiu, probably for the purpose of inspecting the light-houses, proceeding afterwards to Kiôto, by way of Osaka and Fushimi, to pay his respects at the mausoleum of his father, the late Emperor Kômei. Re-embarking at Osaka, he will call at the port of Kôbe, and crossing thence to Tadotsu, in Sanuki, worship at the shrine of the god Kotohira. He will then take his way through the Inland Sea, passing by the island of Himéshima, off the province of Bungo, through the straits of Simonoseki, to Nagasaki, Kumamoto, in Higo, and Kagoshima. On his way back to Yedo he will call at Atami, in Idzu, so famous for its hot baths. He is expected to be absent about six weeks, and is to be accompanied by Saigô Kichinoské, the senior Councillor of State, but the administration will continue to be carried on without interruption from the Castle at Yedo. Seven or eight vessels of the Imperial navy accompany his Majesty. The Thabor left a day or two before the squadron, in order to make the necessary preparations for the reception of his Majesty at the various ports he will touch at.

A new form of national religion, on Shintoo principles, has been arranged by a committee of the Kiobusho. A newly organised body of priests will henceforward give instruction in the articles of faith, which are as follows:—Article the first: Thou shalt honour the gods and love thy country. Article the second: Thou shalt clearly understand the principles of heaven and the duty of man. Article the third: Thou shalt revere the Emperor as thy Sovereign and obey the will of his Court.

The point contended for by Mr. Watson, the British Charge d'Affaires—that the Mikado should give audience in the manner customary with other Sovereigns, by standing erect, instead of sitting as heretofore—has been conceded, and Mr. Watson has accordingly had his audience. The Marquis of Blandford, who is making a tour, has also been presented to the Mikado.

The post of Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, vacated by Terashima Munenori, consequent upon his translation to England, to fill the post of Ambassador there, has not yet been filled. Another officer, who occupied a high position in the service of the Tycoon, when that potentate was in power, has received an appointment in Yedo. Okubo Ichioo, lately an officer of the Educational Department in Yedo, has been appointed Chiji of the City of Yedo.

Great preparations are being made by the Government in order to have Japan fully represented at the forthcoming Vienna Exhibition. A commission, composed of the following Japanese gentlemen, nominated by the Mikado, is now taking active steps, assisted by the European commission for Japan, nominated by Mr. Calice, the Austrian Minister. Japanese Commission: Arisogawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial Army; Okuma, Prime Minister; Shibonsawa, Minister of Finance; Yamo, Minister of Public Works; Sano, Chief Secretary, and Matchida, Inspector of Schools. European Commission: President, H. E. Comte Fe d'Ostiani; Vice-President, M. Dohmen, Esq.; Secretary, M. P. Kemperman, Esq. Members: Dr. Wagner, Yedo, Professor of Mathematics; E. de Bavier, junr., Esq.; C. Kramer, Esq., Botanist; and H. de Siebold.

The railway is now practically nearly completed. Already an engine runs at various hours during the day into Yedo station itself, where the buildings are rapidly approaching completion. The bridges and the embankment are all completed, and the work appears thoroughly substantial and well finished. Various details have, of course, to be completed before the line is actually ready for traffic, but we may, at all events, look for its early opening. The fares charged by the railway authorities have been considerably reduced. The change was one much needed, and will, we feel well assured, be thankfully received by those who make frequent use of the line.

By a notification recently promulgated it appears that no bullion will be received at the Mint for coinage from the 15th July until further notice, in consequence of the officers of that establishment being engaged erecting new machinery and in repairing the old. Six Japanese have been arrested by the Yedo police for counterfeiting the silver coins of other countries (we suppose American dollars). They had also made a number of imitation silver cups and other goods meant to represent articles manufactured of silver. They have confessed, but state that they have issued very few of the counterfeit coins.

The time of H.B.M. Supreme Court has lately been taken up with trying an action brought by Messrs. Findlay, Richardson and Co. against Messrs. Pitman and Co. for breach of contract, damages being laid at $1,500. Judgment was given in favour of plaintiffs.

July 4, the anniversary of the Independence of the United States, was kept with all due solemnity. All the American houses were closed, and the United States Charge d'Affaires received his friends at the Legation. At noon the United States men-of-war in harbour fired a national salute, and the Benicia, which left in the morning, went out fully dressed, from deck to masthead. All the vessels in harbour were also dressed in honour of the occasion. During the day there was a constant firing of crackers, and in the evening several American houses were illuminated.

The want of an American gaol, which has been so long felt, is at last being remedied by the erection of a gaol on the lot in the rear of the American Consulate. It was commenced some time since, and is only now assuming definite proportions. It will be two stories high, and will contain fifteen cells, some eight feet high and about nine feet by seven in size. Beside these there will be the usual servants' offices and accommodation for the gaoler and post-office clerk. The walls are of stone, and, to all appearances, the building will be both strong and commodious.

Chang, the Chinese giant, has arrived, and has for some days been exhibiting at Kobe, Osaka, and Kioto, the latter place only two days, on account of the interference of the authorities. We understand he purposes holding levées here and at Yedo, and then proceeding to India.

Two entertainments have taken place in the Bluff Gardens—a flower show and a conjuring fête, the gardens being illuminated for the latter. Both the entertainments were successful and well attended. A very successful amateur dramatic performance has been given by the corps to a large house, the pieces performed being "Woodcock's Little Game," and "Two in the Morning."

The Iron Duke and the Salamis arrived on the 5th July. Salutes were first exchanged between the Colorado and the Iron Duke, and she was afterwards saluted by the other men-of-war in port.

Several persons have been attacked with choleraic diarrhœa in Yedo, some dying a few hours after being seized.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, June 28, 1872 (VIA SAN FRANCISCO).

Since the date of my last letter the 15th inst., the following mails have been received here, viz., 26th April, and the 3rd and 10th ult., the last-named yesterday morning, forty-eight days from London. The American mail leaving San Francisco on the 1st of June is not due here until the evening of the 30th idem. The Mikado is expected to arrive within a few days, an event so important that it is sure to be marked in some manner similar to the visit of the Duke of Edinburgh. No steps have been taken yet, but it is thought that an illumination will take place. The movements of the men-of-war have been the arrival from Shanghai, and the departure on a cruize, of H.B.M.S. Juno; the arrival from Australia of the Russian corvette Isamroud, and the departure of the Russian gunboat Tungus, for Vladiwostock. The only vessels of war remaining in port are the Isamroud (Russian), and Scorpion (French).* The wet season does not come; up to the present time, although we have had wet weather at intervals, we have had nothing approaching to the usual quantity of rain. To-day is the first threatening one, and it would not surprise me to find it is the commencement—it is required by the natives for their rice crops.

The enclosed slip respecting the Oregonian is one published by the Nagasaki Express as an extra, and is pretty correct.

The quotation for nebus is 3 per $100. For drafts on London the rate is something like 4s. 9d. to 4s. 10d., but nominal quite, owing to the absence of any large amount of business doing in exports to England. No vessel is loading for London or New York.

ACCIDENT TO THE "OREGONIAN."

The P.M.S. Oregonian, Captain Dearborn, while on her passage to this port from Yokohama on the 22nd instant, struck about noon of that day upon a reef of rocks situated between Yokosima and the north end of Hirado, and remained there for about seven hours. By throwing overboard about one hundred tons of copper and sixty tons of coals she was again floated, and the passengers, who had been landed at Yokosima by Japanese junks, were re-embarked at eleven P.M. the same night, and the vessel again started on her voyage to this place, where she arrived last Sunday morning in a leaky condition. The Company's agent has despatched persons to commence operations of recovering the jettissoned cargo, which has been left in charge of the Japanese pilot and one of the Company's storekeepers. The patent slip here appears to be unable to take the Oregonian upon it, and this will necessitate her being temporarily repaired to enable her to return to Yokohama, to which port we hear she proceeds in order to go into dock. Her passengers, treasure, and cargo will be transferred to the Costa Rica, expected to arrive here on the evening of the 30th instant from Yokohama.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The P. and O. mail brings dates to the 30th June, and the French mail to July 7. The outward French mail of May 10th was received on the 23rd, and the following P. and O. mail of May 17th on the 29th June; the French mail of 24th May was due the day this mail left. The Courier contains the following items of news:—

Some little misunderstanding has lately arisen at Tientsin with regard to the application of the French Missionaries to be allowed to build on the British concession. H.B.M. Consul demanded, as a condition of granting the permission, a guarantee that neither Orphanage nor Chinese Hospital should be established within the concession. These terms not proving acceptable to the Bishop, he declined to give the guarantee, and caused the application to be withdrawn. In connection with this affair it is rumoured that on the arrival of the French Minister the ground formerly granted to the French as a concession is to be taken possession of and laid out. The Priests will be prepared to build if they can find tenants.

the Chinese shows that Prince Kung's memorial on that subject has, in the interval since its publication in March, filtered down through official grades till it has at length been published by the local magistrates of Hankow and its vicinity, for the guidance of the people. It would be interesting to know whether a similar publication has taken place at a distance from treaty-ports—at Nanchang for instance.

A settlement of the old Nanzing claims has at last been arrived at, by negotiation between H.B.M. Acting Consul and the present Taoutai. The total amount of the claims originally was, we believe, Tls. 23,000; Tls. 6,000 of this sum has been already paid; the balance has been compromised for Tls. 10,000; and drawbacks to this amount have been handed to Mr. Alabaster. Of course, we know the Chinese ought to have paid the full amount, and ought to have paid it years ago; but they never could be persuaded to do so; and the claim had very nearly come to be looked on as hopeless. It is creditable to Mr. Alabaster's diplomacy, and to the right-mindedness of the present Taoutai, that a settlement has been arrived at, after so many years of failure.

The 4th July was observed with characteristic enthusiasm by the American community, and all over the harbour and at the Consulates there were courteous manifestations of sympathy. The Alaska, the Palos, the Linois, and the Curlew were resplendent with flags, as, indeed, were all the merchant steamers and ships in harbour that had any bunting to show. At noon the big guns of the Alaska thundered forth a national salute, which was responded to from the American Consulate-General. Immediately thereafter the sound of another salute was heard far down the harbour, the source of which became known when H.M.S. Cadmus, newly arrived from Hong Kong, steamed into the Upper Reach. As she passed the Alaska her band struck up "Yankee Doodle," and she dipped her flag, which was promptly responded to with "God Save the Queen" from the Alaska. A reception of all nationalities, and including several ladies, was given on board the Alaska, where the most graceful and cordial hospitality was exhibited. The settlement was alive in the evening with dinner parties and other festive gatherings.

Kiukiang is fast disappearing from human view. The Bund is already a foot or more underwater; and the rippling music of the wavelets, as they break upon the gravel, recalls to mind the murmurs of the many-sounding sea. Barriers had been erected, to protect the sacred precints of the Bund, but nature has asserted her supremacy, obliterated the invidious distinctions, and reduced all to the common level of humanity, and to dependence upon sampans. A serious accident has happened in consequence of the flood. The rising water had sapped the foundations of one of the native Tea Hongs, and walls and roof came tumbling down upon some 200 women and girls congregated in the upper story, and 100 coolies in the lower. Bruises, fractures, and wounds of every description were common, though no very serious injury is reported, and no deaths.

At a meeting of the Hankow land-renters on the 25th June the question of using the Bund frontage of the Concession for steamer wharves or pontoons was discussed, and it was decided to throw open the whole Bund to public competition. This action was taken on the motion of the agents for the New River Steamer Company, which is shortly expected to enter into the Yangtsze trade.

The steamer Sarpedon arrived on the 1st July, having made her outward voyage from London in fifty-three days, including all stoppages. She is now loading a cargo of tea for New York.

The remains of Captain Pendleton were buried in the new Cemetery on the 2nd instant. The impressive funeral ceremonial of the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a distinguished member, was added to the usual church service. There was a very large attendance.

We understand that orders have been issued for the gun-vessel Elk to be in readiness to proceed North. It is believed these instructions have been given in consequence of disquieting news from Soochow.

HONG KONG.

The English and French mails bring advices to the 6th and 13th July respectively; the French mail from London, May 24, arrived out on the 2nd, and the following P. and O. mail of May 31 on the 6th July. The following items of intelligence are from the China Mail and Daily Press:—

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on the 9th July The subjects dealt with were—the reading of a despatch from the Secretary of State, relative to a pension of £198 odd having been granted to the late Colonial Surgeon, Dr. Ivor Murray; the Acting Colonial Secretary then gave notice that he would, at the next meeting, introduce a motion for the establishment of a Finance Committee of the Council. Various votes for items in excess of the estimates for 1872 were then taken, including some back pay to Mr. Tonnochy, salary, &c., to Mr. Kidd, expenses in the Surveyor-General's Department, and a sum for cataloguing the books of and lighting the library of the City Hall. The following ordinances were then read a first time:—Authorising the disbursement of $99,000 supplementary estimates for 1872; an ordinance for registering births and deaths in the colony; an ordinance to further amend the law relating to criminal procedure; an ordinance for the prevention of the carriage of dangerous goods in the harbour without due notice, and another to regulate the manufacture and storage of dangerous goods; and an ordinance for the licencing and better regulation of the business of brokers. The Council then adjourned until the 23rd July. The chief provisions of the proposed brokers' Audience are as follows:—

From and after the passing and coming into operation of this ordinance, no person shall act as or carry on the trade or occupation of a broker (other than an emigration passage broker under ordinance No. 2 of 1857) within the colony of Hong Kong, unless such person shall have obtained a license as hereinafter provided, and unless such license shall be then in force.

It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to grant a license under his hand and seal of the colony, to any person applying for the same to carry on the trade or occupation of a broker, upon being satisfied:—(1) by the certificate of two householders, that the applicant is a fit and proper person to receive such license; (2) That the said applicant has paid into the Colonial Treasury an admission fee of dollars ; and (3) That the said applicant has made and signed before the Colonial Secretary a declaration that he will not directly or indirectly trade on his own account, benefit, or advantage, or make any gain or profit over and above the usual brokerage in buying or selling bills, shares, or stock, or opium, as the case may be.

The Colonial Secretary shall keep a list containing the names and addresses of all brokers who shall from time to time have taken out licences, and if any such broker shall be convicted in any criminal court of felony or fraud, or if a Judge of the Supreme Court, or a Judge in Bankruptcy, shall in any action, suit, or other proceeding prosecuted or defended before such Judge, and to which such broker shall be a party, certify (as he is hereby empowered to do) that such broker has been guilty of fraud, and that he ought to be disqualified as from the date of such conviction or certificate, and his name shall therefore be removed by the Colonial Secretary from the list of brokers either absolutely or for the time mentioned in such certificate.

A fire, which is believed to be the work of an incendiary, has occurred on board the American barque Benefactor, lying in the harbour, but was extinguished before any great damage was done. Captain Berry, the commander, writes to the Daily Press to publicly express his thanks to the officers and crews of the Princess Charlotte, Elk and Adventure, and of the British and French mail steamers, to Captain Thomsett, to the officers and men of the water police, and to the P. and O. Company, all of whom rendered prompt and efficient assistance. It is the intention of the authorities to thoroughly investigate the matter, and try if the incendiary cannot be discovered.

We much regret to learn that the Rev. Mr. McChesney, of Canton, met his death a few days since under the following circumstances:—He was proceeding up the West River, in company with the Rev. Mr. Noyes, and the boat conveying them had come to an anchor for the night near a mandarin junk. Some time after dark this latter was attacked by river pirates, and Mr. McChesney hearing the noise went on deck, or more properly on the roof of the cabin, to see what was the matter. Here, as is supposed, a chance ball from either the attacking party or the attacked, struck him, and he almost immediately expired. His body was taken back to Canton for interment. Much sympathy is felt for his wife and child in their sad and sudden bereavement.

Three Ambassadors, bearing tribute to the Emperor of China from the King of Annam, and one from Loochoo on a similar mission, arrived at Canton and had an interview with the Viceroy on the 6th July. The Viceroy, on behalf of the Emperor, as a matter of custom, formally refused the acceptance of the tribute. This is only a matter of form, as the tribute bearers will, as usual, convey the presents direct to Peking.

We are glad to learn that the directors of the Vienna Exhibition have allotted to China an unusually large space, much exceeding that allowed at the exhibitions of London or Paris. The Chinese Government will, we understand, in all probability authorise the Viceroy of Canton to send a large collection of interesting objects of considerable value. We further learn that the Ven. Archdeacon Gray, of Canton, has promised to send the whole of his interesting collection of models, curios, &c.

An Imperial edict of the 23rd June appointed Li Hung Chang to the vacancy in the Grand Council of State. H.E. was formerly only a junior member. Another edict of the same date conferred the unusual privilege of riding on horseback within the prohibited city in Peking, on Li Hok Nin, Viceroy of Chekiang and Fokien.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

HONG KONG, July 6, 1872.

Nothing very exciting is at present going on. The only political questions agitating the minds of—I will not say the public, but—the local editors, are the Kiung-chow fiasco, and the postponement of the Audience question. The real truth about the former is that the Viceroy made some not very obstructive propositions to Sir D. B. Robertson, who did not think himself justified in acceding to them. So the whole affair is referred again to Peking. As for the Audience question, there are so many rumours afloat that we have not the slightest idea as to which is true. M. Geofrey is said to "say little and tell less"—not a bad description of his reserved manner. The Catholic priests tried hard to pump him at Shanghai, but found it was no go, so they do not know what to make of him. He left for Peking with his mounted escort a few days since, some regarding him as the "coming man," to settle outstanding questions, and others pronouncing him a "dummy."

Our Chinese friends are doing a very knowing thing in carrying out the Regent's orders to publish Prince Kung's friendly manifesto issued some time since. If they did this at all, the Treaty ports, or other places whence foreigners are likely to get information simultaneously, foreigners would say they forget all about it in a week or two. So they issue the document every month at a different port. This, you will observe, spreads it over a twelvemonth, and apparently we are constantly getting fresh evidence of "friendly intentions." Not bad this for a native dodge, but unfortunately we see through it. The intention is of course to urge these repeated instances of favour to foreigners as a reason for delaying the Audience question.

Locally we are as dull as ditch-water. The Hon. W. Kiswick left last mail, and who is to succeed him is about the only topic of conversation barring, of course, opium and shirtings. I think Mr. Pyke, of Birley and Co., is the favourite; but Messrs. Gibb and Whittall have returned, and either of them may resume his old seat.

I must note one other matter in which a languid interest is taken by the community—the establishment of a middle-class school. The meeting held to discuss it was chiefly remarkable for a most narrow-minded sectarianism on the part of some of the speakers. Fancy the good taste of a man who told an audience of thirty, comprising Jews, Catholics, Parsees, Mahomedans, Nonconformists, and Churchmen, that he could not conscientiously abet any scheme that did not make Church of England teaching its basis! The way a Catholic gentleman here—a solicitor—walked into the neglect with which Protestants had treated school matters out here was refreshing to an outsider. I do not in the least agree with his views about secular education, in which we have done well. But still it is surprising that Churchmen should have made no provision for their children in the way of religious teaching.

The latest Macao sensation is the attempted drowning by Mr. Loire-Bueno, Peruvian Consul, of an engineer with whom he had a quarrel. You will get the leading details from the papers, but I may tell you what they of course dare not say, that he has been leading a life of such brutal, shameless, profligacy that how he has managed to keep clear of even Macao law so long is a wonder. He has fired at several parties, females included, on several occasions, and is undoubtedly the most debauched villain who has ever honoured this part of the world with his presence. He has been sentenced to fourteen years' transportation, but heavy bets are made that he will manage to bribe his captors and get off. He was an intimate friend of the Governor's (Jannarios) suite, and as he played heavily and generally lost, they mourn his seclusion as having been a valuable pigeon. Even they, however, (the Governor's secretary was his best friend) did not dare go further than try it on privately with the judge.

SINGAPORE.

A correspondent writes:—

The second act of the Salangore farce has just been closed. Rajah Mahdie, driven from that country after his piratical attack on the men of the Rinaldo, took final refuge at Johore, and sought the protection of the Maharajah. Sir Harry, desirous to put a stop to the disturbances in the peninsula, thought the chance had arrived, and sent for Tunko dia Oodin, who was at Klang, to come to Singapore. Negotiations were forthwith entered into, and various trips to Johore were organised whilst these were going on. Everything was agreed, the treaty was drawn up, and the day appointed for its ratification, when, at the last moment, Rajah Mahdie refused to sign, and said, in elegant wording, that he would see them all d———d first. So Tunko Oodin has returned to whence he came rather disgusted, whilst Madhie, enjoys the hospitality of our devoted friend the Maharajah, and the British lion is made to look foolish. Whether a man who instigates a treacherous attack on our sailors should be received and entertained by a prince who stands only by our support is very questionable, but whether our Government should make itself a party to negotiations with such a rascal does not admit of a doubt, and the result shows that it has got a slap in the face from a ruffian who is laughing at its simplicity. The worst is that the little influence we have with the Malay chiefs must be seriously damaged by such an unfortunate result. Rajah Mahdie should be demanded of the Maharajah of Johore, and when given up tried for piracy. This would have been done formerly, but in these days of telegraphy Governors are at most but chief clerks of the great men in Downing-street, and dare not take the very least responsibility. They are awfully dear at £5,000 a-year!

The third criminal session of the Supreme Court opened on the 8th inst., before his Honour the Chief Justice, and is already very nearly concluded, the calendar being a very light one. The only heavy case has been one for a murder committed some months ago; the prisoner, a Chinaman, has been some time in custody on a charge of strangling his wife, and would have been tried last session but for the absence of certain witnesses. He has been sentenced to death.

At the Legislative Council meeting on the 11th July a matter was debated of great local interest, being nothing less than a proposal to do away wholly with the Municipal Commission. We are not yet in possession of the shorthand reports of the proceedings, but it will be seen from the official minutes that the proposal came from and was strongly supported by the unofficial members, and that though his Excellency the Governor said he was wholly unprepared for the discussion, he stated he should at the next meeting be ready to submit to the Council a resolution on the subject.

The long-agitated question of immigration to the Straits Settlements from India has been at last settled by an Act of the Indian Council empowering the Governor-General to exempt the Straits from the operation of the Indian Emigration Act, which was supplemented by an order of the Governor-General in Council giving immediate effect to it. Planters in Penang and Province Wellesley will thus again be able to obtain coolies without difficulty, a result upon which we sincerely congratulate them, as well as upon the ease with which this Bill, so important to their interests, has been passed, and obstacles believed to be serious overcome without opposition.

The following is a copy of Mr. Read's letter to the Colonial Secretary, in reference to the despatch of Earl Kimberley noticed in our issue of the 6th inst.:—

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No.—, of the 29th ult., and beg to state in reply:—

1. That the meeting over which I had the honour to preside on the 23rd Feb. last did not discuss the peculiar advantages of either the long or the short line of proposed Railway, but protested against the interference of Government and the carrying out of any such scheme by means of the public funds of the Settlements. I do not therefore consider it any part of my duty as chairman of that meeting to ascertain whether any company can be or is formed to carry out either project.

2. At the same time I beg to observe that the company representing the New Harbour line throughout the discussion on the subject in Council, both through its advocate and its representative, declared that it had the necessary capital ready, provided a concession was granted to it, and so convinced was the Legislative Council that this was the fact, that it strongly recommended that a concession should be granted. The Colonial Office, however, decided that this should not be accorded, but that Government should construct the line, since when those interested in the long line appear to have adopted a negative policy, which is but the natural consequence of the unexpected course adopted by the Colonial Office, in direct contradiction to the opinion expressed by those who were appointed by it to examine into the subject.

3. I avail myself of this opportunity to express my deep regret that Lord Kimberley should have been misled by such statements as the following:—"That the chairman of the meeting, the proposers of the resolutions adopted, as well as the majority of those who voted for them, were directors or shareholders in the Tanjong Pagar Company." The real fact of the case is, that out of upwards of ninety persons present, fourteen represented the New Harbour Company, and fourteen the Tanjong Pagar. The others were independent. The chairman had and has no connection whatever with either undertaking.

4. In conclusion, I beg most respectfully to submit that the opinion of a large majority should command the attention and consideration of Government, in preference to that of a small minority, who so evidently seek to promote their private interests at the public expense, and who apparently do not hesitate to endeavour to attain their object by advancing statements which cannot bear the test of investigation.—I have the honour to remain, Sir, your most obedient servant, W. H. Read, chairman of the public meeting.

CEYLON.

The currency squabbles have subsided, and all parties have taken to counting in rupees and cents with the best grace they could. For a time the new system gives trouble, and it will continue to do so till the altered nomenclature is as ready in our minds, and consequently in our calculations, as the old. At the outset we have to think in two currencies—first calculating in pounds, shillings and pence—then reckoning up the amount in rupees and cents. But so soon as we shall be sufficiently expert at the new to discard entirely the old, the computation of any amount will become easier. After all, though there was a great outcry about the old rupee not being in reality 2s., but only 1s. 10½d., and great cause shown for altering the denomination of the currency, it is in name only that it is altered—for in Ceylon a rupee is still a rupee, or two shillings. When conveyed elsewhere, of course it has exactly the like value, minus or plus the exchange. The same is the case with a bank draft, or any other representative of value. As it is we are getting into the run of it, and no doubt by another year we shall be as expert at, and find the new currency as easily calculated as the old has been. Of course, so long as our principal transactions are with England, we cannot discard its ancient currency, and we shall have to render all accounts with it in sterling money. But in accounts and transactions in this country rupees and cents are now the rule. This was the last accomplished fact of our late Governor's rule. But Sir Hercules Robinson has left several legacies to his successor. Among these are the proposed new harbour for Colombo, the Paumben Passage, railway extension into Ouvah, tramways for Colombo, water supply for Colombo (gas having been already arranged for, and about this time, doubtless, Colombo is having more light), gas and water for Kandy, and sundry minor improvements—all of which will claim Mr. Gregory's early and very carful attention. And to them he is giving his earnest study before the meeting of Council. Already has Mr. Gregory visited the northern province, and inspected the proposed channel; he has visited Batticlava, and inspected the extensive waterworks there; has travelled up that great and important road—the masterpiece of his predecessor, Sir Hercules; has visited the important coffee districts of Madoolseline and Badulla; also those of Persilawa and Hewahette, and the important new district of Dickoya, which last took his Excellency's fancy amazingly; has travelled down the North Road, with a view of improving communications from the Matale side; and altogether has seen and done a great deal in the short time that has elapsed since he entered on his rule. In fact, he will have seen more of the country and learned more of its state and wants, and will therefore meet his Council with more self-acquired information than any Governor of Ceylon has ever yet done. This will be a great advantage, as he will not have to waste time asking or waiting for information which is now within his own grasp. Careful has he been, too, not to commit himself to any scheme till perfectly master of the position. For instance, to the Madoolseline people, whose road to Batticaloa was in suspense for want of bridges, he gave the assurance "that that want should be immediately supplied"—while he also told them that the subject of a harbour at or near Batticoloa was another matter requiring further information before he could say whether it was practicable or judicious at present. On this subject he awaited surveys and reports. To the Dickoya people he said "he so much admired the energy and enterprise which he saw displayed in their magnificent valley that he was determined to do all he could to assist them with necessary roads and bridges;" and to the deputation who waited on him urging the necessity of railway extension to Ouvah, he said that "while fully appreciating the value such means of communication would have, it was a large and a very important matter, and required a very careful consideration before he could give a decided answer. That he would first appoint a Commission to take evidence as to the nature and amount of the traffic there would be on that line. If it was satisfactory, then he would appoint engineers to inspect and survey the different routes proposed to him, to see if there were engineering difficulties in his way. And if that was also successful he would then consider the ways and means." In these, and all similar meetings with deputations and replies to memorials, he has carefully guarded himself against giving any unconditional promises, withholding his final decision till all the facts are before him. In this he has shown his wisdom; for with such heavy works likely to be on his hands presently as the Colombo harbour, and probably also the Paumben passage, it behoves him to walk warily, and not commit the colony to any project which might hamper its resources or limit its capabilities. One liberal move the new Governor has made, for which the public applaud him, is, that he has reverted to the good old system practised by the late Sir Henry Ward and Sir Charles McCarthy, of allowing public bodies to nominate the member they would wish to represent them in the Legislative Council. He has asked the Planters' Association to name a man to represent the planters, and they have nominated Mr. William Martin Searle, their chairman. It is believed he will also consult the Chamber of Commerce as regards a nominee for the merchants.

On general matters there is little to be said. Trade for some time has been rather dull, except in coffee, in which lately a brisk business has been done. Coffee planting has had a great resuscitation of late years. After the crisis of 1864 to 1866, which culminated in the fall of several banks and merchants here and at home, people went cautiously into the cultivation of the berry. But after that the enterprise took a fresh start, and inter alia the large and expanding districts of Dimboola and Dickoya, with their thousands and tens of thousands of acres of available forest land offering suitable opportunities, investors have readily availed of them. The roads now opened, and being continued through those very fine districts, with the railway extension which will next year come within an average of thirty miles of those clusters of now fine estates, will soon cause to show in all its glory an unbroken expanse of fifty square miles of cultivated coffee, and will form one of the most magnificent prospects that the eye can gaze upon. Not only prospect to please the eye, but a very satisfactory prospect financially, will those broad acres present when all beaming and laden with the fragrant berry. With Ceylon's great rivals, Brazil and Java, shortening their production, and with the consumption of the world increasing, with America and Canada abolishing their coffee import duties, and with England doing the same in a moderate way, the enterprise at the moment and for some time to come presents one of the most encouraging opportunities for the investment of capital in a country easily reached and comparatively healthy as a residence; nor need enterprise be checked by the idea that the land is exhausted. Besides the enormous quantities of land in the districts referred to, there is that great expanse of land between Dimboola and Happotella—all the land surrounding Horton's Plains and on to Ballangoode on the one side, and to Happotella on the other—large blocks in Marale, and at the back of the Knuckles, all suitable for coffee cultivation—while for tea and Chinchona there is the vast wilderness around Nuwara Eliya, mostly too high for coffee—and for maize and cotton the large tracts of fertile land in the country of Burtenne and in the Northern Province. In proof that attention is now being directed to other than the stereotyped coffee districts, a quantity (about forty lots) of Crown land put up for sale by auction the other day in the neighbourhood of the Horton Plains, an altitude of 7,000 feet above the level of the sea, was readily purchased at prices averaging from £2 to £3 per acre. And would but a company start there to cultivate tea no doubt a most valuable industry would soon be added to those now forming our staples. The same would happen should another company buy up a portion of the extensive forest of flat and beautiful land stretching along the Welasse country from the foot of the Madoolseline range all the way to Burtenne.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The demand for Cotton Yarn had been very active, and large sales of all counts, both on the spot and "to arrive," had been made at a considerable increase on last quotations. At the close, however, there was less inquiry, and prices showed a tendency to recede. Grey Shirtings had been in fair demand, and fully previous rates had been obtained. Scarcely anything had been done in Woollens and Fancy Goods beyond a few sales of Mousseline de Laine. Nail Rod and Bar Iron had been sold "to arrive," at quotations. G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.35 to 2.40 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.55 to 2.62½; 9 to 9¾ lbs., $2.90 to 3. G.E. White Shirtings, $2.40 to 2.85. T-Cloths, 6 to 8 lbs., $1.70 to 2.25. Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $47.50 to 48.50 per picul; 28 to 32, $50 to 51; 38 to 42, $50 to 53. Iron:—Nail Rod, $3 to 4.50; Bars, $3.80 to 4.30.

HANKOW.—Early in the interval the market was influenced by unfavourable news from Shanghai, causing a cessation of business, but with later improved advices confidence had been regained, leading to a fair business in Grey Cottons. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. had been in little request at a decline of 1 to 2 candareens; considerable business done in 8¼ lbs. at easier rates, but at the close prices tended upwards, and ruled at Tls. 1.86 to 1.94; 9¾ lbs. Tls. 2.55 to 2.70 per piece. White Shirtings: Unaltered. T-Cloths: 6 lbs. not in request; 7 lbs. more saleable, but rates low; 8 lbs. Tls. 1.70 to 1.78 per piece. Drills: The late advance had been more than lost, and business had been much curtailed in consequence. Fancy Cottons: All descriptions in most limited request. Woollens and Worsteds: No demand, and but few transactions. Metals: Lead saleable at a decline of 5 candareens per picul; Quicksilver receded to Tls. 68.00 per picul, and at that figure was not readily saleable.

SHANGHAI.—Manufactured Cotton Goods: There had been a speculative inquiry for Grey Shirtings, which, together with a fair trade demand, had resulted in considerable settlements; prices were, if anything, slightly easier, especially for 7 lbs., which were quoted Tls. 1.7 to 1.7.2. In White Shirtings only a moderate business had been done at about previous rates. In T-Cloths a fair inquiry had prevailed at Tls. 1.3.5 to 1.4 for common and Tls. 1.5 to 1.6 for Mexican qualities 7 lbs. The market for English and Dutch Drills had continued rather quiet, and only moderate transactions had been reported at Tls. 3 to 3.0.6 for the former, and Tls. 2.9.2 to 2.9.5 for the latter. A sale of 3,500 pieces of American Sheetings had been made at Tls. 3.9, but in other American fabrics no further business had transpired. Fancy Cottons continued dull of sale, and the same remark applied to Woollens, although some improvement in the latter manufactures was anticipated.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been, T-Cloths, 8 lb., 450 pieces at $2.75 to 2.80 per piece; 7 lb., 2,500 at $2.12½ to 2.40. Lead, 1,270 pigs at $7.00 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Large arrivals had added to stocks, but there had been a large business in all classes of goods. The demand commenced soon after the departure of the English mail of 22nd June, and continued very brisk for about ten days, when it in a great measure ceased. Business was likely to remain quiet for some little time until purchasers had been enabled to clear their stocks. Cotton Yarn: In 16/24s a large business, chiefly on speculation and for shipment to Japan; inquiry confined almost entirely to the common qualities, fine being in a great measure neglected; 28/32s in small stock; 38/42s common chops in large supply and difficult, best qualities in moderate demand and prices firm. Grey Shirtings: The dealers fairly supplied, and no great advance expected until their stocks are reduced. White Shirtings: Unsatisfactory. Grey T-Cloths: 6 lb. common chops taken to a large extent, prices rather better; 7 lb. common in large stock and difficult to move; 6 lb. Mexicans could not be sold; 7 lb. Mexicans of first-class marks quite neglected, demand confined to inferior at $2 to 2.05 per piece; 8 lb. Mexicans difficult to remove even at a reduction. Grey Drills: English 14 to 15 lbs. wanted at an advance. American up 10 cents, but not in stock. Dutch slightly improved. English Jeans, no buyers. Fancy goods neglected. Woollens and Worsteds: Broad Cloth, firm. Medium advanced about 5 cents. Habit neglected. Scarlet and Spanish Stripes improved 3 cents stocks light. Assorted showed a similar rise. Assorted Blankets in very limited stock, and an advance of 2½ cents noted. Long Ells not moved, holders very firm. Gentian and Scarlet Camlets in request at former quotations. Lastings: Common advanced 50 cents and good $1 per piece. Metals: Nail Rod Iron a little firmer. Sales of Bar established a rise of 5 cents per picul. Hoop not in stock. Quicksilver had a downward tendency, owing to large arrivals of English. Yellow Metal is held strongly, but averse to pay any advance. Lead improved in price, owing to a speculative demand.

SAIGON.—There was not much business doing, but at the following quotations sales could be effected:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.70 to 2.80 per piece; 7 lbs., $2.30. Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.80; No. 120, $1.75 to 1.65. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.78 to 1.80; 5 lbs., $1.46; 4½ lbs., $1.30; 4 lbs., $1.15.

Singapore.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—During the early part of the fortnight there was an active demand for most descriptions of Piece Goods, but latterly the enquiry has slackened, and advices of a decline in the Manchester market have made holders show more disposition to press sales. There is no change of importance in prices. 39-inch Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs.: Considereble clearances effected at $2.57½ to 2.60; 7 lb. quiet at $2.20; 6 lb. very dull at $1.97½ to 2; 45-inch, 8 lb., sales at $2.60; 9 lb. nominal at $2.85 to 2.95. 32-inch Grey T-Cloths: More enquiry for light weights at $1.7½ to 1.12½ for 4 lb. to 4¼ lb.; 5 lb. saleable at $1.37½ to 1.40; 6 lb. in fair enquiry at $1.70 to 1.72½; 7 lb. quiet at $1.87½ to 1.92½. EXPORTS.

TEA.

Yokohama.—The demand having been more general since the date of last report, a brisker business had been done, resulting in the settlement of about 8,000 piculs, a fair proportion of which had been of the fine grades; prices had ruled much the same as last quoted, except for the medium classes, which had advanced, and the market at the close for this (Pacific) mail was reported firm. Supplies had come in very freely, and stocks were slightly increased; further large arrivals were expected; the quality had improved, and was said to be very fair, and better than the average of former years at this period of the season. The only export had been that by the last P.M.S.S. steamer, viz., for New York 258,205 lbs., for San Francisco 95,894, for Chicago 20,477, for Boston 19,949. The Polly Lewis, 566 tons, was loading for New York, and the Clara Bell, 200 tons, and Charley, 359 tons, for San Francisco. Quotations: Common and good common nominal medium, $33 to 36 per picul; good medium, $37 to 40; fine, $41 to 44; finest, $46 to 50; choice, $52 and upwards.

Hankow.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report, dated 2nd July, says:—Since our report of 25th ult. some of the second crop Teas have been placed on the market, and after considerable competition the better parcels have been all bought up. The early arrivals were mostly from the Yong-low-Toong district, realising Tls. 20 to 23½, the greater portion being taken at Tls. 22½ to 23¾ per picul, or about the same price as last year. On the whole they compare very well with those of the previous season, being strong and flavoury in the cup and with fairly good leaf; still we do not think them quite equal in quality, which may be accounted for by the leaf being apparently a little older. Three or four Cheong-sow-kai Teas were shown yesterday, among them the favourite chops, "Chuen-kut" and "Ping-hing." The same eagerness was displayed to secure these, though at much higher prices, and we hear as high as Tls. 24½ proportion has been offered for the two parcels above-named. Last year, when they were in our opinion equally good, they realised only Tls. 21 per picul on this market. For two other parcels from this district Tls. 24 per picul has been offered. A few musters are down from the other districts, but the Teas can only be bought at high prices. We can hardly form an opinion of the bulk of the crop from so few samples, but these certainly give colour to the general impression that there is but a very limited quantity of good Tea to come. This will be due to the unfavourable weather that has prevailed in the Tea districts, in fact in the country all round. We are again threatened with a flood in Hankow, indeed many of the streets and houses in the native city are already flooded, while the water from the river is just beginning to come over the edge of the Bund in the British Concession. Settlements for the week are:—7,344 chests 4,056 half-chests 340 boxes at 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 8d. per lb.; 6,145 chests 3,619 half-chests 430 boxes at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 5½d. Of the above settlements 5,464 chests and 3,726 half-chests are second crop Tea, nearly all Yung-low-toongs, prices for which, as noted above, have ranged from Tls. 20 to 23½ per picul, the first settlements being the cheapest. Some eight or nine chops of Shuntam packed arrived yesterday and were at once taken by the Russian houses at Tls. 13.40 to 14 per picul. For other kinds, quotations are nominal. A few Oonfars have been sold at Tls. 17.50 to 21.80 per picul.

Shanghai.—Black: The transactions had been very large, settlements and reshipments aggregating 65,800 chests and 74,900 half-chests. Buying had gone on steadily, operators being by no means deterred by advices from Foochow reporting heavy early export and an unusually good crop. Early in the interval the fine teas remaining on offer were cleared off at Tls. 33.0.0 to 40.0.0 per picul, since when inquiry had been principally directed to medium, to on fine, grades, costing Tls. 25.0.0 to 30.0.0. Common to fair Hohows had also been in some request at Tls. 20.0.0 to 23.0.0. Shuntams and common Oonams had been in limited supply, and had found buyers at Tls. 17.7.5. to 23.0.0. One parcel of low Hohow reported settled at Tls. 16.0.0. per lb. Settlements showed great irregularity in prices, those made early in the period under notice give best value; the decline on previous rates then existing had been fully recovered by a gradual advance, closing rates being some Tls. 2.0.0 per picul over last quotations. This advance was mainly attributable to the impression, now in some measure confirmed, that the first crop would not exceed in quantity the yield of last season, also by a report current amongst native dealers that the second crop was not likely to be large, nor so good as last season; it is however too early to speak with any degree of confidence on this head. One or two musters had been shown, and one chop was reported settled at Tls. 28.2.5 "to arrive"—about Tls. 2.0.0 over opening rates of last year. Green: Settlements 11,428 half-chests and 30,000 boxes Pingsuey at Tls. 42.0.0 to 62.0.0 proportion—a range of prices lower than last year, and showing Tls. 2.0 0 to 3.0.0 reduction from opening rates. With the exception of a few parcels taken for the English market, business had been restricted to buyers for America. The quality of the crop was about the same as last year; the Teas were, however, too much faced and of less value in consequence. Fychow and Teenkai were expected in a few days.

Foochow.—Settlements of Congous had been considerable, and though there was little animation in the market yet prices remained unchanged. Second crop Congous were in pretty full supply, and amongst the musters offered were some possessing fair quality, which were desirable Teas, but for them the Teamen were asking high prices. Taken as a whole, this crop was not considered as equal in quality to last year's. Souchongs remained as before. Settlements of Oolong to date had been 19,330 half-chests, of which about 6,000 to 7,000 packages had been taken for shipment to the United States per steamship Sarpedon; the prices realised had been Tls. 29.3 to 30.8 o.b. for good cargo free from dust; the stock was 25,193 half-chests, including however no fine Teas. The Deerhound was still loading for New York, and the steamship Sarpedon was expected from Shanghai to take in cargo for the same destination. Scented Teas: 4,780 boxes purchased without change in prices. Stock 6,103 boxes. The Essex, Zenobia, Grenadier, and Maitland were on the berth for London, and the Prospero, Adelheid, Mary Blair, and Nil Desperandum for the Colonies.

Amoy.—Ooloong: Active business continued until near the close, when purchasers had satisfied their requirements for first cargoes; since then great quietness had prevailed, buyers generally holding off for a decline, which Teamen had not acquiesced in sufficently to induce business on any large scale, particularly as the pick of the first crop Teas had already been settled. The settlements made showed no decline upon the finest grades, which were getting scarce, but there was a marked fall in the lower qualities, and towards the close Teamen seemed anxious to sell, though they still asked rates which were above buyers' ideas for later shipments. The quality of the crop continued satisfactory, and the agreement to reject all chops with over 15 per cent. of dust had been rigidly adhered to, but even this maximum per centage had seldom been reached. The crop would be a full one, judging from present appearances, though it was too soon to give an approximate estimate, as any material fall in prices would greatly reduce receipts. The Douglas Castle and Glenartney left on the 6th July for New York, and the S.S. Craigforth was daily expected to load about half a cargo for the same destination. Formosa Teas had been very dear in price, and the spring crop was all bought up. Summer Teas were arriving, but the quantity would be extremely small, owing to the great absence of rain this season; and as the producing districts were quiet near the foreign settlements there seemed little reason to doubt the statements of the growers, everything tending to confirm them. Congou: Settlements had taken place to the extent of 1,211 half-chests on a basis of about $22 per picul for superior cargo. The quality was better than last year, but the quantity would be small, there being little demand for this description either for America or England. Quotations—Oolong: Common cargo, $21; fair, $24; good, $27 to 29; superior, $35 to 36; fine, $41 to 45; finest, $45 to 54; choice and choicest, $60 to 72 per picul. Congou: Superior cargo, $22 to 23 per picul.

Canton.—A fair amount of business had been done during the interval. The second crop had nearly all come to market, and was considered as a whole inferior to that of last year, in addition to which it had been further deteriorated by the admixture of dirt, congee, and spurious leaf. Fine to finest Scented Capers were very scarce, and any parcels approaching good quality had been readily sold at full prices. Medium kinds were in full supply, and the easier rates ruling in consequence had induced considerable purchases, the bulk of the settlements reported consisting of these kinds. Scented Orange Pekoes had been in less request, but there was no change to note in quotations, the light stocks keeping holders firm. Green Teas had been somewhat neglected, and Gunpowders showed a considerable decline. It is reported that about 500 piculs of almost entirely spurious leaf Gunpowder and Imperial had been settled for export to America, but details had not transpired. The settlement of Pouchong reported below was also for the American market. Settlements: Scented Orange Pekoe, 5,000 boxes at Tls. 18.00 to 29.00 per picul; Scented Caper, 27,000 do. at Tls. 16.00 to 30.00; Gunpowder, 3,000 do. at Tls. 19.00 to 28.00; Imperial, 500 do. at Tls. 20.00; Pouchong, 2,000 half-chests at Tls. 20.00,

SILK.

Yokohama.—The season 1871-2 closed on the 30th June with an export from Yokohama of 14,635 bales, and from Hiogo 650 bales, making a total of 15,285 bales. The French mail left on the 3rd July with 169 bales, since then the market had continued active, and about 180 bales had been purchased, making settlements since the 20th June about 350 bales. The quality of the new crop so far showed a decided improvement on last season's Silk, but there was still some complaint to make about the casing, mixing and foulness of the skeins, which was doubtless to some extent caused by its having been hurried into the market in an unprecedented manner.

Shanghai.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says:—Great excitement prevailed amongst buyers at the close of last English mail (June 22), and continued until the departure of the French mail, nearly 3,500 bales being settled during the interval of one week, prices in that period being run up Tls. 35.0.0 to 40.0.0 per picul over those ruling at the opening of the season; the demand has been principally for best Kahings, Chops, and best medium Tsatlees, on which Silks the dealers easily succeeded to establish the above advance. Since then, however, the market has been less active, and buyers have turned their attention to common Tsatlees, which up to the present have been somewhat neglected. Heavy and continued rains, together with the cold weather, are reported to have injured the second crop, notwithstanding which the probable export is still estimated at 55,000 to 60,000 bales.

Purchases have been mostly at 1s. to 2s. over last home telegraphic advices.

CANTON.—The market had again advanced for Tsatlee and Loongkong Silks, but re-reels were without change. A price as high as $625 had been paid for a parcel of Curio Tsatlee reported to be very fine. A pretty large business had been done during the fortnight, 560 bales going forward by the P. and O. mail. The settlements for America were not known, but were not expected to be large, the ruling rates being too high to offer much inducement to purchasers. Stock estimated at 800 bales of all descriptions. Tsatlee Reels were in very good demand, especially the high classes, as shown by the prices paid. Extra Loongkongs: There were none to be had, and the stock generally of Loongkong silk was not large. For re-reels there was not quite so much enquiry, and it was still almost impossible to obtain them clean; those offering on the market are also generally mixed. The third crop Silk may be expected in about a fortnight, and the yield was estimated at under 3,000 bales; the present weather was unfavourable for this crop.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The market is quiet, with but little demand from the trade. Green is in little more inquiry. Oolong is neglected, and Japan fairly steady, with a moderate call for invoices. The line trade is without change.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1872, were as follows:—Greens, 16,275,438 lbs.; Japans, 8,252,649 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,657,814 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,972,749 lbs.; other sorts, 83,397 lbs.; total, 38,242,047 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 19,708,564 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 57,950,611 lbs. as the total supply. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to July 1, 3,183,072 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 15,501,319 lbs., there remains a total of 39,266,220 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date.

SILK.

The market continues quiet, with a general disposition on the part of spinners to refrain from laying in large stocks at present high prices. There is some little demand for medium and fine Cantons, but there is a good supply here, and on the way, and this has a weakening effect upon the market.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil has relapsed into a quiet state again. Dealers and jobbers, though selling pretty freely at full prices, not having been in the market to any extent. Holders have remained firm, offering their stocks sparingly, and the market, though dull, may be called steady at previous valuations, operators looking with some anxiety for telegrams. The market for other kinds has been less active, advanced views of holders having had a tendency to check operations—the market closing quietly, and hardly so firm, at late valuations. There is a continued good inquiry from the interior trade. The sales include 655 bags Native Ceylon, 453 bags Government Java, and 400 bags do., to arrive, all on private terms.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. to 19c. gold in bond.

CHINA PRESERVED GINGER rules at $8.50 currency, duty (35 per cent. ad val.) paid.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2 gold, and Cassia $1.45 gold, duty (on Aniseed 50c., on Cassia 100c. per lb.) paid.

GAMBIER is quoted at 4½c. to 4⅝c. gold; market dull.

HEMP.—We notice sales of 2,800 bales Manila on terms not made public, and 1,600 do. to Government at a price equal to $11.45 gold, delivered in Boston. The market closes firmly at 11¼ to 11⅜ cents gold, 10⅞ to 11 being offered and refused.

INDIGO.—The demand for Manila continues fairly active at last quotations, viz., 90c. to $1.15 currency.

RICE.—Rangoon continues firm at previously ruling rates, viz., $7 to 7.37½ currency duty paid, and $3.12½ to 3.25 gold in bond. The sales of the week have reached 4,200 bags.

SUGAR.—The market presents a very dull appearance, especially for the good and better grades Cuba for refining purposes; and as holders offer their stocks sparingly, and the stock is on the decrease, full previous values are easily maintained. There have been no sales of East India descriptions.

SPICES.—In the absence of telegrams there has been no movement from first hands, but we note a continued good distributive trade at full and, in some instances, hardening prices. Of Nutmegs there have been sales at 95c. to 97½c., and some 40 casks at 95c. to 96c. Pepper at 17c. to 18c.; Mace at $1.15 to 1.22½; Cassia 27½c. to 28c.; White Pepper, 35c. to 35½c. all gold.

TIN is quiet, and if anything, a little easier, Straits having been sold at 35c. gold.

MECHANICAL LABOUR IN THE FAR EAST.

(Pall Mall Gazette.)

The fact that a large steamship has been built at Shanghai by Chinese workmen of Chinese iron is no doubt instructive and remarkable, but it hardly warrants some of the speculations which it has suggested to some of our contemporaries. It is little likely that we shall see Chinese labourers much nearer than Western America. There is some mysterious law which confines within certain limits the emigration of this ingenious and, on the whole, adventurous people, and so long as there is a mere handful of them in India they need not be expected in Great Britain. But ships are certainly very different in many material respects from all other manufactured goods, as, indeed, we know at this moment from the proceedings at Geneva. Since they possess the faculty of moving themselves it is immaterial in what part of the world they are constructed, so long as they are constructed at all under circumstances which admit of their being launched. It is really very far from impossible that the English settlements on the Chinese coast may become the seat of a great shipbuilding industry. Coal and iron are plentiful, and skilled labour of the best kind and in any quantity can be provided in a very short time for anybody who will be at the trouble to train his own workmen from among a population which is without a rival for industrial capacity. The fact that one single iron vessel has been built proves the probability, and, indeed, the certainty, that several more will be constructed.

The City correspondent of The Times, who first attempted to connect the building of this Shanghai vessel with the strikes of English workmen on the one hand, and with the influx of Chinese labour into the United States on the other, omitted to notice one very interesting aspect of the subject. Is it likely, in days of advancing democracy, that the interference of the Chinese with the labour market would be successfully resisted? The agitation against the admission of Chinese labourers threatened at one time to become extremely formidable in the United States, and is far from utterly dead at this moment. So far as it has failed, it has failed not because there was not abundant prejudice and abundant ignorance to appeal to in the American masses, but because the success of the movement was broadly and palpably against the interest of the vast majority of the population. The ultimate result of the protective system adopted in the United States is that a great majority engaged in agriculture are virtually dependent on a small minority engaged in manufactures for the comforts and conveniences of life. An artificial limitation of the manufacturing class by the exclusion of the Chinese was therefore seen at once by the great agricultural majority to be an operation which they would have to pay for in the diminished supply or enhanced price of manufactured commodities. It is true that precisely the same reasoning ought properly to have opened their eyes to the true consequences of their protective tariff. Whether the foreigner completes the wares in his own country or aids in producing them in yours, the principle which bids you to take advantage of his labour is precisely the same in both cases. Yet so plain a conclusion as this does not appear to be drawn by the population distinguished above all others by the high average of its intelligence. Nor can there be a more striking proof of the slender hold which the economical truths which are clearest to political economists have upon popular opinion. The fact is the more interesting to us because if building yards for iron ships are really established at the Anglo-Chinese ports, the trade which conceive themselves to be injured and which unquestionably owe much of their present prosperity to the great demand for iron ships occasioned by the Suez Canal, can only invoke legislative assistance in the form of protective duties on China-built vessels. Fifty years ago this protection would have been conceded without a moment's hesitation. What are the real securities against its being obtained even now The American farmer, who is assuredly no fool, can see the folly of preventing a Chinaman from making shoes in America, but not that of preventing English shoes from entering the United States under a moderate duty. What would it take to convince an English hammerer of iron plates that it is inexpedient to interfere with the construction of iron ships at Shanghai?

The following notification in the English and German languages with reference to M. Ernst Seyd, late of Yokohama, appears in the daily newspapers:—"A resolution having been passed by the undersigned Court to apprehend the merchant Ernst Seyd, born in Rheidt, in the Rhine province, district Gladbach, and lately residing in Yokohama, on the charge of fraudulent bankruptcy, and (his apprehension having so far been impossible) it is requested that the above-named E. Seyd should be arrested wherever he may make his appearance, and be delivered up to the Koenighche Kreisgericht, at Stettin. In the event of the identity of an individual thus arrested being doubtful, a photograph of the said E. Seyd will be furnished. Description:—Age 31 years; place of birth, Rheidt, district Gladbach, in Prussia; hair, dark blonde, parted on the left side, and smooth; eyes, blue; beard, thin, generally clean shaved; form of face, full and round; stature, middle height; special marks of identity, wears spectacles, and is slightly marked with small-pox.—Yokohama, den 18ten Juni, 1872. Kaiserlich Deutsches General Consulat, in Vertretung, Zappe."

A long pending lawsuit connected with the Suez Canal, between M. Ferdinand de Lesseps and M. Charles de Lesseps, his cousin, has been terminated by the Civil Tribunal of the Seine. F. de Lesseps, on behalf of the Canal Company, brought an action against Charles de Lesseps, claiming f.500,000 damages for libellous articles in a journal called the Canal des deux Mers, representing that the company had levied inequitable tonnage dues. The Court, while admitting that the articles complained of were violent, was of opinion that they had done no assignable damage to the company, and they therefore dismissed F. de Lesseps' suit with costs.

AMERICA AND JAPAN.

AT length the Japanese Ambassadors have exchanged the profuse hospitality of our American cousins for a less demonstrative, but in no wise less sincere, reception on our shores. The time chosen for their arrival is unfortunate. Six weeks ago they would have found London full of life, gaiety, and display; now it is a desert. The upper classes of society have one and all betaken themselves to the moors and streams; the pavements are empty; omnibuses, cabs, and vans are the sole remaining representatives of the countless carriages which but the other day crowded the streets, and the public offices are tenanted only by those unfortunate clerks whose juniority dooms them to work and toil in London during the months of August and September. The contrast thus afforded to the stirring bustle of New York will be striking but superficial, and by none will its true bearings be better understood than by the Japanese Ambassadors. In the East, where diplomacy is synonymous with cunning, and where, to a degree unknown to TALLEYRAND, words are valuable only so far as they effectually conceal the thoughts, the habit of observation is trained to the highest pitch of perfection. The eye usurps the place of the ear, and brings to the touchstone of truth the protestations and professions of all people, nations and languages alike. To this crucial test the gushing hospitality offered to the Japanese Ambassadors in America has, no doubt, been subjected. It has been tried in the balance, the wheat has been separated from the chaff, and it is safe to affirm that where private ends or political objects have been sought for in return for complimentary speeches and costly entertainments, a strictly just debtor and creditor account has been noted in the confidential despatches of his Excellency SIONII TOMOMI IWAKURA, to his supreme master, the MIKADO.

If report speaks truly, the lengthened stay of the Embassy in America is to be accounted for by other reasons than by a desire on the part of the Ambassadors to make themselves acquainted with the people and products of the United States. It is said that, unmindful of the fate which befel a similar attempt in the case of BURLINGAME'S Mission, General GRANT'S Government has sought to conclude a convention with the Ambassadors. If this be true nothing could be more ill-judged. In China and Japan, where so many foreign interests have to be consulted, and where in all Treaties the favoured-nation clause holds a prominent place, a convention separately concluded and without the concurrence of the other Treaty Powers, must fall to the ground—witness the still-born convention negotiated by Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK at Peking. In that case the tariffs agreed upon by the English Minister were objected to by the representatives of other States, and as it was plainly impossible to have a sliding-scale of duties suitable to the requirements of the different nationalities, the convention was not ratified. The same fate must inevitably await any Treaty which may have been separately concluded between the Governments of America and Japan. It is, at the present time, the fashion in America to represent the alliance between that country and Japan as being closer and of a more confidential character than that existing between Japan and the nations of Europe. This tone is to be deprecated in so far as it is likely to give rise to jealousy and suspicion among the Treaty Powers. The action of the Foreign Governments should be, in Japan, as identical as are foreign interests. We are quite willing to allow the Japanese Government to draw its own conclusions as to the relative friendly intentions felt towards it by the Americans and the Governments of Europe, but irritation is caused amongst the people of the countries concerned, when a distinction is set up between the action of Commodore PERRY in gaining his Treaty and that of those which followed after to the prejudice of the latter, and also in such statements as the one which has lately appeared to the effect that the MIKADO, by receiving the American Admiral standing, had offered him a compliment not previously paid to the representative of any other nation. The Japanese Government is perfectly well aware how baseless are these distinctions.

FROM BURMAH TO CHINA.

WE are glad to find that Captain SPRYE has received substantial assistance towards the accomplishment of his favorite scheme, to connect Burmah with Western China, by a short direct route for a rail or a tramway, from Rangoon to Kiang Hung, in the Burman Shan State of that name, situated contiguous to the Chinese city of Esmok, on the south-western frontier of that Empire. As we have not always been able to accept as entirely satisfactory Captain SPRYE'S policy with regard to the Burmese, it affords us the greater pleasure to bear witness to his enterprise as a traveller, and the perseverance with which he has never ceased to urge the value of the route he has marked out. Into the merits of that route, over any other scheme, we will not now enter. The immense value of connecting China with British possessions, taking Rangoon as our starting point, and, by a comparatively short line, striking 1,700 miles off the 2,000 that stand between Shanghai and the inland western frontier, is so apparent that it would be impertinent to enlarge upon its importance to our future interests in China. The route which Captain SPRYE traversed and marked out cannot fail—if its facilities be not over-rated—to be of infinitely greater value to the commercial world and the manufacturing interest—at least in the present generation—than any of the discoveries to which Dr. LIVINGSTONE has devoted so many years. Indeed, there is proof that Captain SPRYE'S scheme was encouraged by the Government of the late Lord DERBY, for his Indian Secretary—the present Marquis of SALISBURY, then Lord CRANBOURNE—directed the survey of the whole proposed line, and no less than 249 miles were actually surveyed and found to disclose no engineering difficulty of moment, and necessitating only a single tunnel of one mile long. On the retirement of the DERBY Ministry, however, it was found impossible to induce their successors to take any interest in the matter, and accordingly, notwithstanding repeated appeals from Commercial Chambers and Associations, the subject has been "put to sleep" from that day to this. The Halifax Chamber of Commerce, however, are not so easily lulled as Foreign Secretaries may desire—especially when they feel convinced that they are in the right. Accordingly, stung with the neglect they have had to endure from the present Government, the Halifax Chamber have passed a resolution which ought to make Earl GRANVILLE blush at Osborne, and even Mr. GLADSTONE'S ears tingle in far Hawarden. They have resolved "no further to address "Her Majesty's Ministers, but, instead thereof, to petition "the House of Commons," praying for a Committee to examine the whole question. And, accordingly, the petition, which was drawn up by the Council of the Chamber in favour of the scheme, was presented on the 4th instant by Lord FREDERICK C. CAVENDISH, member for the North Division of the West Riding of Yorkshire, and the private secretary to the Premier! With commendable energy, which we doubt not will find many imitators, the Halifax Chamber have adopted the further course of printing their petition, and forwarding copies of it to other Commercial Associations and the Press. It will be hard indeed if Ministers are not shamed into completing the remnant of the survey left unfinished by Lord CRANBOURNE. We think that Captain SPRYE has already made out a good prima facie case in favour of his line. And, as we firmly believe in the truth of the motto, which he extracts from MACAULAY, that "those projects which abridge "distance have done most for the civilisation and happiness "of mankind," we commend the Halifax petition to the perusal of our readers, and trust to see it followed up by similar action in other Chambers.

Some of the humorists, who delight in contrasting the peculiarities of men, are making merry over the circumstance of the First Commissioner of Works being brought in official contact with the Japanese Embassy last Monday at the Kensington Museum. The brusque and overbearing manner of the "genial" Ayrton was well-known before his recent rupture with Dr. Hooker. How he got on with the ultra-courteous representatives of the Mikado is not known; but two theories respecting the probable result of the interview have been propounded. One is that Iwakura, having already had the advantage of seeing in Earl Granville a fine example of an English gentleman, may possibly regard Mr. Ayrton as an exceptional curiosity on view at the Museum. The other is that the dignified courtesy of his visitors may convert the First Commissioner into a Chesterfield—but this opinion finds few supporters.

The Panthay Envoys and suite have visited the Observatory at Greenwich. Under the guidance of Sir George Airey, the Astronomer Royal, they inspected the various departments, and were much interested in the explanations afforded them of the scientific instruments and mechanical appliances employed. Mr. Douglas, of the British Museum, attended as Interpreter.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

The members of the Japanese Embassy were entertained at dinner by Lord and Lady Granville on the 19th inst., and afterwards visited the International Exhibition, which was brilliantly lighted up for the occasion. On the following day they proceeded to Brighton, were present at the reading of a paper before the Geographical Section of the British Association by Mr. Mossman, and were subsequently entertained at luncheon by Mr. Burrows, the Mayor of Brighton. There were no speeches, but the Mayor, in a few sentences assured Iwakura of the welcome Brighton gave him as chief Ambassador from Japan. Iwakura replied in his own language, with thanks to his host and hostess, and expressed on behalf of himself and colleagues their deep feeling at the warm reception they had experienced. The Ambassadors returned to London in the evening, and attended a concert held in the Albert Hall. On the 21st the Embassy paid a second visit to Brighton, and in company with Sir Harry Parkes they inspected the aquarium, which was opened last week. Their next provincial visit will be to Liverpool, where, as we have already stated, a banquet is to be given in their honour by the Chamber of Commerce of that town. We understand that Mr. Robert Sloan, surgeon to the Embassy, is engaged in writing a work descriptive of its establisment and objects, which is shortly to be published.

MR. MOSSMAN ON THE CITY OF YEDO.

On the 20th inst. a paper on "The City of Yedo" was read before the British Association at Brighton by Mr. Samuel Mossman (formerly of the North China Herald). During the reading the Japanese Ambassadors and their suite, accompanied by Sir Harry Parkes, occupied seats which had been reserved for them.

Mr. Mossman, referring frequently to a native plan of the city of Yedo, forty feet square, on a scale of eight inches to the mile, began by describing the position of the town. The name of the city signified "River's Door," derived from the entrance to the O-gava or "Great River," which divided it into two parts. In 1868 its title was altered by the Mikado to Taukei, or "Eastern Capital," on his taking up his residence there, after the expulsion and deposition of the Shiogoon, whose ancestors had ruled over its inhabitants for many centuries. According to the plan he now exhibited, prepared by native surveyors, the circumference of the city had been computed approximately at twenty-four miles, and its area at thirty-six square miles. Yedo proper was divided into three parts, called Siro, "The Castle;" Soto Siro, "Outside the Castle;" and Midzi, or town and suburbs. Siro, with a circumference of nearly five miles, and covering an area of nearly two square miles, contained the palaces of the late Shiogoon, now appropriated by the Mikado. These, surrounded by ramparts and a moat, formed a strong citadel. Outside these ramparts were a second and third line of defence, formed by high walls and several canals. In these quarters were the palaces of the great daimios, or nobles, the halls of the Legislature and Council of State, and the offices of the Administration. From the palace of the Mikado, which rose in the centre high above the others, rose a square tower of several stories, richly ornamented. The two Royal palaces had not, however, the character of magnificence which had been attributed to them; on the contrary, they exhibited that entire simplicity, both within and without, which distinguished all Japanese buildings except temples. Within the precincts of the Siro there was neither temple nor dwelling of any ordinary citizen; nobles and their retinues alone being privileged to reside in this Imperial quarter. Almost every residence was surrounded by a moat crossed by private bridges, leading into the main thoroughfares, where the canals were spanned by eighteen public bridges. By the side of the principal canal there was a beautiful promenade, and the public walks round the castle were picturesquely laid out and kept scrupulously clean. The palaces of the daimios were plain, even to a fault, and all the stories of the splendour of the palaces of Yedo were mere fictions. Across the outer canal was the celebrated "Bridge of Japan," built of cedarwood, with balustrades ornamented with designs in copper. It was situated in the grand street of Yedo, which was about fifty paces wide, and ran from north-east to west through the city for a distance of twelve miles. Beyond these points the thoroughfare was continued in a northerly direction through the island of Nip-pon to Hakodadi, in the Isle of Yesso, and in a south-west direction to Nagasaki, in the Isle of Kiu-siu, forming a continuous road that would compare favourably with our own turnpike roads, of not much less than 1,000 miles in length. From this bridge all distances in the realm were calculated. The Japanese had from an early period recognised the advantages to be derived from good roads and the means of rapid communication between the provinces and the capital. The barbarous customs which had caused several foreigners to be cut down for not prostrating themselves when the procession of some great daimio was passing along this road were happily being abolished by the enlightened progress made under the new Government of the Mikado. After describing the palaces of the daimios and the fifteen great temples in the outer circle of the capital, he remarked that the Soto Siro was laid out in regular streets, wide and narrow, nearly all at right angles and remarkably straight. After conflagrations, which were frequent and destructive, the authorities compelled the builders to conform to a plan by which streets of fifty or sixty yards in width would be formed, and to erect buildings of a more substantial kind than the present bamboo and paper houses. To the east of the Castle was the business quarter, inhabited by the trading classes. The quarter was divided into seventy-eight districts, which could be isolated by large wooden gates, always guarded by policemen. A great part of the remaining suburban district was inhabited by industrious agriculturists, neat little villages being dotted about among the rice fields, vegetable gardens, and orchards. There were also some extensive pleasure gardens. Here also were to be seen some of the most spacious domains and town residences of the great daimios, such as Mito, Ovari, and Kango. These covered a superficies of nearly three square miles, where formerly the retainers of each, about 10,000 in number, were quartered in barracks. Entering into a detailed description of the remaining divisions of the city, he described the great canal system of the country, and concluded by giving an approximate estimate of the population of the city. The class of retainers of the daimios had been reduced to a minimum, and this formidable body of armed men would no longer overawe the industrious and peaceful citizens. On the other hand, the Imperial soldiers of the garrison had been greatly augmented, and it was hoped that they would maintain law and order in the capital. There was also a prospect that the ecclesiastics and officials would be reduced in number, so that the population would probably show a diminution for some time to come; but the prospect of its prosperity under the legitimate rule of the Mikado and his new Government were most encouraging, and with a continued progress in its public works and the introduction of institutions on European models, Yedo bade fair to be, before long, the London of the Far East.

Sir Harry Parkes, at the conclusion of the paper, said he was glad to have an opportunity of supplementing, by a few remarks, the excellent paper which had just been read. In the last few paragraphs Mr. Mossman had justly described Yedo as being in a transition state, the city sharing, of course, with the whole of Japan the great changes occurring in that country. One of these changes which some might object to as interfering with the picturesque appearance of the capital, was the introduction of the railway. This, however, was but one of the many improvements introduced by the present Government. In order to understand the present position of Japan it was necessary to go back in the history of the country for some ten or twelve years, when our relations with Japan practically commenced. Our commercial relations with the country dated from the year 1858. Prior to that time Japan had followed a system of strict exclusion with respect to foreigners, and it would, therefore, be understood how difficult it was for the Japanese Government to accept a system of thoroughly free intercourse with other nations. The parties in that country were greatly divided, and political opposition among a population always armed was likely to take a much more incisive turn than among ourselves, and for some years the European residents in the country suffered considerable inconvenience. The difficulty was rendered greater by the peculiar condition of the country, which was divided and subdivided among a large number of powerful noblemen, each having his own laws, with power of life and death over his own people. It became evident very soon to some great men in Japan that this minute division of the country was no longer compatible with progress and the improvements to be gained by intercourse with the rest of the world. Politically they were but a rope of sand, and it was foreseen that it would be extremely difficult to carry on their relation with foreign Powers and to fulfil the obligations they had entered into without re-casting their institutions and combining the divisions of Japan into a whole. Solidarity, unity, and a central Government were necessary to enable Japan to carry out her engagements with the world. This involved nothing less than a surrender of the high privileges possessed by the eighteen great daimios and the 240 minor daimios. It was necessary that there should be a central Government, and the question was who should be the ruler. The Shiogoon was objected to on the ground that he was a subject and not a Sovereign, as we had for a long time erroneously believed. He was, in fact, intrusted with the administration of the Empire, but his powers were not Sovereign, and when it became desirable and necessary that Japan should be represented towards foreign Powers by a Sovereign, it was found necessary to restore the Mikado to the exercise of the functions of a sovereign. The surrender of the power of the great nobles had been made since 1868, very much to the benefit of Japan in general, and the country had now one united Government instead of a divided authority. This was a subject of congratulation for all foreign Powers, because the central Government had now the power of protecting them which the divided Government never possessed. Another immense advantage was the power the Japanese now had of concentration, the resources of the country and undertaking works of a general and public character, and since the change to which he had referred an astonishing advance had been made in this respect, although it should be remembered that the formation of the Government was not yet completed. During that time a railway system and a telegraph system had been introduced and the new currency given to the country —a good account to be rendered for two or three years of government. Coming to the point which more nearly concerned this section, he remarked that geographers might hope to share in the increasing toleration shown to foreigners. Under the Treaty, foreigners were not at liberty to go to any great distances from the port, but the Minister and Legation had a right to go through the country, and this privilege had been freely exercised. He had himself had opportunities of crossing the country in several directions, and he might mention that a lady who had been resident there had also travelled through the country and ascended the highest mountain peak in the island, about 14,400ft. above the sea, and wherever she had gone she had been treated as well as if she had been travelling in her own country. It might, therefore, be hoped that in future years those privileges now confined to the Legations would be extended to all foreigners. The Japanese Government had shown themselves very liberal in assisting our marine surveyors. The sea between the Japanese Islands and the main line had been thoroughly surveyed, and the officers making the survey had always met with a warm and cordial reception from the people. We now know pretty well the outline of the coast, and what was now wanted for the benefit of Japan, not less than for the benefit of other nations, was that the physical geography of the country should be studied. If they would make use of such knowledge as they bould obtain from us, they would be able to turn the undoubtedly large resources of the country to a good account. What had been done hitherto was a very good earnest of what would be accomplished. The very fact of these gentlemen from Japan being present justified him in saying this, seeing that the chief of these gentlemen had taken a part second to none in working out those great changes which had been spoken of, and had been ably supported in that great work by others present. These gentlemen had come with the professed object of finding out how far what they observed in this country was applicable to Japan, and in this fact he saw reason to hope that in future all the foreign relations of Japan would be conducted on as liberal a footing as we desired. It could not be supposed that they would go back and treat us in an illiberal spirit. Here they would have opportunities of observing that monarchical institutions, were consistent with the greatest freedom of the subject, and that the very best way of encouraging a people to develop the resources of a country and its commerce was to leave individual enterprise unfettered and unshackled by State interference. (Cheers.)

Sir John Bowring, as the first Minister to the Court of Yedo, expressed the great interest he felt in the welfare of the Japanese, and congratulated this country on having the services of Sir Harry Parkes, who had in every position of difficulty and danger—and no man had passed through more difficult or dangerous situations—worthily and well represented the great interests of his country. Sir John Bowring said he had been exceedingly interested and instructed in watching the capacities of the Japanese. The Chinese, on the other hand, were not willing to receive instruction. They said:—We have better philosophers and men of higher intelligence than any you have ever been able to produce; your language is not worth studying, and you tell us that the earth goes round the sun when we know by our senses that it does not. If you won't use your eyes and believe what you see, you must be deaf to all teaching and instruction, and we will have nothing to do with you. The spirit of the Japanese was a remarkable contrast to this. They came among us not only holding out the hand of friendship, but prepared to find and receive instruction. It was to him especially a source of the highest gratification to see a number of Japanese noblemen coming from their country, many thousand miles away, and interesting themselves in the proceedings of the British Association.

REFORM IN JAPAN.

In an age of wonders the thorough revolution which appears to be in progress in Japan is one of the most wonderful. The Japanese have sent commissioners to visit Europe and the United States, and there to notice whatever appears to them worth seeing. They have, though we believe that the fact is not generally known, retained a Scotch advocate to prepare for them a code of laws; the Mikado, who had hitherto, as it would seem, had almost a mythical existence in Japan itself, is, it appears, about to issue a new religion, after due consultation with the members of various sects, and so reasonable in itself that all persons will be expected to conform to it. We have reason to believe that the activity of the Government in every department of affairs is extraordinarily great. The administrative work of the country is now carried on by departments organised after European models. One of two inferences from the facts would appear to be inevitable; either the Japanese Government must have a degree both of power and enlightenment in comparison with the general body of the people of which we can hardly form an estimate, or the effect upon the people themselves of the admission of foreigners and foreign ways of thought must have been something which our experience hardly enables us to describe—it must have produced upon them an effect like the change from darkness to light. Probably each inference is something like the truth, but if this is so, the question naturally suggests itself, why was the old policy of entire seclusion persisted in so long, and why was it abandoned only in deference to virtual force? Perhaps it may be replied that this policy in itself, and the steadiness with which it was pursued, show great force and persistency in the Government; and it might be fairly argued that the policy in itself contained nothing which might not be plausibly defended. The establishment of the Dutch colonial empire, and of our own Indian empire, must have produced the most profound impression throughout every part of what we vaguely call the East, and the jealous restrictions under which the Chinese laid all foreigners till very lately indeed would naturally afford a strong precedent to Japan, to which China must have stood very much in the position in which Continental Europe stands to the British Islands. Of all these changes the most remarkable by far is the religious change which is said to be about to be made by the Mikado. The really extraordinary part of the story, the part which makes it difficult not to believe that there must be some mistake or overstatement in the accounts received of a matter of which we know so little, is that it ascribes a religious revolution to the established head of an existing religion. Whether the characteristically ingenious notion of the Spectator that the position of the Mikado gives him a distinct power over the minds and wills of mankind is true or false, and whatever may be the real nature of his position, it is obvious that he is at the very least a semi-sacred personage, and the very crown of the religious edifice of Japan. That such a person should be open to the influences of the age, that he should seek to act upon the hearts and consciences of his fellows, and especially that he should wish to act upon them in the direction in which they are already being pushed by the current of events, is in itself the strangest of all strange things. These considerations throw a good deal of doubt on the whole story in our minds. It is difficult to imagine a more singular problem than is conveyed by the question, What sort of religion would appear rational and self-evident to a Japanese Mikado suddenly brought into contact with the more energetic forms of modern European progress and civilisation?

(THE SPECTATOR.)

The arrival in England just now of foreign dignitaries is nothing uncommon; but the fact of such august personages as the Japanese Ambassadors being amongst us gives rise to the hope that a brighter future awaits their country. We hear that the Mikado of Japan has burst the fetters which have for thousands of years rendered that Sovereign and his predecessors invisible even to their own subjects, and is about to visit Europe and the United States. The inhabitants of the outer world were till recently termed barbarians; but now the Mikado intends travelling amongst them for the purpose of witnessing Western civilisation, and for his own benefit. There can be little doubt but that he will return a wiser man. The clouds seem parting which have so long hung over the Japanese, for as they become better acquainted with the habits and customs of other countries, a higher degree of civilisation will follow, and the power of the Christian faith be made more manifest. One who has thrown off the customs of centuries is not a reformer who will stop short of benefiting his subjects substantially, and a trip to Europe is calculated to give him the requisite insight.

(MORNING POST.)

The presence in this country of an Embassy from Japan is significant in the extreme. It testifies to the practical entry into the family of nations of a people in every way fitted to take their part in the civilised world, though until quite recently they have been isolated from that world. Thirteen years ago Japan was a country parcelled out under the rule of a great number of petty chiefs, without a central government of any power or influence; it was virtually a terra incognita to the outside world; and there were no signs of either social, political, or material progress in it. Now, all is changed. Japan has become acquainted with the most modern forms of civilisation in nearly all its phases, and it has exhibited an alacrity in entering into the spirit and practice of that civilisation alike unexpected and satisfactory. The Japanese Ambassadors have come some twelve thousand miles to observe what in Europe is "applicable to Japan." A considerable foreign trade has already been developed in that country, and internal improvements in the government, the communications, the commerce, and the social status of Japan have been made, or are in process of application. It may be doubted if the present condition and past progress of Japan are at all generally understood in this country. But the presence of the Embassy at the Brighton meeting, the paper read there by Mr. Mossman on the capital of the country, and the speeches delivered on the whole subject by Sir Harry Parkes and Sir John Bowring, ought to have the effect of making England know what has been and is really going on in that distant land. The statements of Sir Harry Parkes and Mr. Mossman will possibly have appeared to most people in England in the light of new revelations. The prevailing impression is probably that the Japanese as a nation are to be classed with the Chinese, and that their country will be barred to us by insurmountable prejudices against foreigners. If such impressions have obtained they ought to be dissipated for ever. It is, as we have been reminded, only some twelve years since we first entered into relations with the Japanese, and although we made what seemed at first an exceedingly bad and discouraging start, our progress in cultivating the friendship and gaining the esteem of this people has been of late rapid and encouraging. But a few years ago we heard of nothing from Japan but attacks on and murders of foreigners; of armed resistance to all entrance into the country; and of apparently rooted antipathy to us and our trade. Now, as we have seen, we have Japanese Ambassadors attending the meeting of the British Association, keen, clever, well-informed, and sagacious men, anxious to learn of the civilisation of the West. During all our long intercourse with China we have scarcely been able to bring them to adopt any of our well-known developments of civilised life. But already in Japan a short railway has been made, a telegraph line has been established, and other improvements of a material nature are being effected. There is, or at all events was, a strong party in Japan adverse to this policy. But the action of the Government and the influence of the more enlightened section of the nation are evidently too strong for the reactionary party. Even the Daimios, or nobles, themselves seem to have seen the necessity of conforming to the movement, and have become resigned to the loss of power and privilege. Japan has, as it were, been inoculated with a new and subtle influence that has fairly taken possession of her, and is now in process of pervading her whole system. We have here no dull and provokingly conservative people like the Chinese to deal with, if we are to accept the contrast between the two races so vividly drawn by Sir John Bowring at Brighton. We have had to force ourselves and our trade upon both these people. But whereas in the case of the Chinese we have been half a century striving to win our way, and have even now only succeeded in maintaining our position, half by force and half by abstaining from pushing our trade too strongly, we have in the other case, after the first inevitable misunderstandings were over, made such rapid progress as to promise a lasting, close, and extensive intercourse. The Japanese Government are gradually but firmly taking up the government of the country into their own hands, and are thus becoming able to keep the native Chiefs in control, and to protect the foreign traders, whom they have had the sense to see can enrich and benefit the country. Luckily, too, the ruler of Japan is a man of intelligence and energy. Japan is not to be classed with China any more. There has been bonâ fide progress and development in the newly-opened country. The presence, the aims, and the demeanour of the Japanese Ambassadors has testified to this. And even the presence amongst us of the Mikado himself could scarcely assure us more thoroughly of the fact.

OUR CONSULAR SERVICE ABROAD.

(SPECTATOR.)

The same problem ever recurs. How is the maximum of work and efficiency to be secured with the minimum of cost? But where the service to be rendered is so great, and the actual cost so infinitesimally small in comparison with the value of the trade and industrial interests at stake, we cannot help thinking it is possible to dwell too exclusively on the question of cost, and that a larger and broader view of the true interests of the country would rather indicate liberality than parsimony. Yet this spirit of saving and paring down to the barest limits all expenditure, seems to be the rock on which all the committees have struck, with great damage to the final result of their labours. Some timid suggestions are made, and improved salaries or retiring allowances are faintly indicated as desirable, but there is a halting and half hearted character in all these results of the collective wisdom of the Committee. They reflect very much the temper and the tendencies of the House, which, in the midst of great recklessness in voting public money, is nevertheless always striving after small economies. We are true to our old habit of spending a great deal of money, without spending quite enough to make any service thoroughly effective; and there cannot be a more false or pernicious economy. The small sums saved year by year in the Estimates are liable to be sacrificed in a lump by some critical error, due to a want of efficiency at some particular hour and to the employment of inferior men. The public service of a great country cannot be adequately provided for on the commercial principle of accepting the lowest tender. Efficiency must be the primary object, and the avoidance of superfluous expenditure may fitly be combined, but only with due regard to the first. In great public departments true economy is more generally to be secured by good organisation and the careful classification of men and work, than by any great reductions either in salaries or numbers, unless these have been allowed to assume extravagant proportions by long neglect and jobbery. What a Select Committee on the Consular Service had to do therefore was plain enough. They had to satisfy themselves whether the Establishment was unnecessarily large, too much divided and scattered, or too highly paid, and then distinctly specify in what directions improvement or reforms were needed. Something of this has been done, but in a strangely partial and imperfect way. Whether redundancies actually exist and where, whether any and what economy can be effected by better organisation and distribution, or by concentration in some countries, and by further extension in others, and where each is needed, are all points which, as we have said, are here and there touched upon in a cautious way; but the whole matter is left much as they found it, and referred to the wisdom and discretion of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, or the Foreign Office department in reality. For instance, in one section, referring to the service in China and Japan, they say:—"Some increase of expenditure may probably be required for more liberal outfits, which, in certain cases, appear to be required; also, by an allowance of a certain number of years in calculating pensions which should be granted in tropical or unhealthy climates, as well as in China and Japan. There also may be some cost entailed by more liberal leave of absence; but your committee desire to leave the responsibility of initiating and apportioning these things to the Executive Government. Abundant evidence is before them that such increased cost may be more than met—1. By reduction of redundant posts. 2. By the employment of young men as subordinate officers. 3. By the extended employment of residents, whether natives or English, as unpaid vice-consuls."

Or take, again, the mode in which they deal with a proposition of Mr. Christie for the amalgamation of the Consular and Diplomatic work in South America:—"There seems a reasonable prospect of expenditure being reduced by some further consolidation of the Consular and Diplomatic functions. An interesting paper by Mr. Christie, which will be found in the appendix, treats in detail on this subject, and without endorsing his views to their full extent, your committee recommend that they should be seriously considered, and that the experiment should be tried in South America, where well-founded complaints of the cost of living prevail, and where the diplomatic service is of a special character."

This is not materially to help on the work of reconstruction, if such be needed. We think with them that the evidence of competent witnesses plainly shows the Consular Service is still, and likely to continue, much "too varied in its character and arrangements to be th subject of such organisation and classification as is applicable to other branches of the Civil Service." But still they are disposed to insist that "the paid Consular officers should be separated by some definite mark or title from those whose unpaid services are accepted." We confess we do not in the least understand by what process of reasoning they arrive at the conclusion that "until this is done, it is impossible to make use of unpaid service to the extent which the interests of the country require, without opening the objection which arises very naturally from merchants who may be rivals in trade, that exceptional privileges and unfair advantages are thus conferred." Assuming this were secured, what possible difference would it make? As it is, and as a general rule, merchants and others know perfectly well which Consular officers are paid, and which are unpaid, at any port, but we never heard that the knowledge of the fact in any degree lessened the valid objections to the unpaid service. The chief objection to the unpaid is that they must of necessity be allowed to trade, and thus gain a certain advantage by their official privileges and position over the other traders. That objection, which is perfectly well founded, can in no degree be affected by the notoriety of the fact that such an official receives no salary.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, AUG. 20.

We are still in the midst of the dead season, politics are at a discount, and the editors of German newspapers are put to their wits' end to find matter wherewith to fill the columns, because the inevitable shower of frogs, the enormous gooseberry, and ice as thick as a shilling will not go down in this country. The approaching meeting of the three Emperors at Berlin is therefore hailed by them as a Godsend, and is commented on in different lights, according to their real or pretended opinions, and here they have discovered a wonderful mare's nest, which is that the meeting has no political importance, but is to decide a question of Court etiquette, and settle who is to take precedence, who is to follow, and who is to bring up the rear. It is amusing to read the different learned lucubrations on the subject, and the gravity with which they support their own views, and try to refute those of their rivals. Thus, for instance, one of them insists that the Emperor Alexander is entitled to take precedence of the others, because the Russian Empire is the oldest of the three; whilst another supports the claim of Austria to have the pas, as having been seven years longer on the throne, though they admit that personally the Emperor Franz-Joseph is twelve years younger than Alexander II.

'Tis sad there should such squabbles be,
'Twixt Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

But these gentlemen appear to have overlooked, or are most likely ignorant of the fact that the whole question of precedence now in dispute was settled nearly sixty years ago, at the Congress of Vienna, when it was arranged that States should take rank and precedence according to the position of the initial letter of their country (in French) in the alphabet; and that is the reason that in all International State Treaties, Austria (Autriche) always stands at the head of the signatures, whilst England, not as Angleterre, but as Grande Bretagne, takes her place lower down under the letter G, not only after France, but any smaller States, such as Belgium and Denmark. If this question of etiquette should really be revived, and Prince Metternich's proposal have to undergo the process of confirmation, it follows logically that the Emperor Wilhelm is entitled to precedence over everyone else, even Austria, because Allemagne comes undoubtedly before Austriche in a dictionary.

The Berlin papers state, as significant proof of the political calm that prevails at present in Germany, that there is not one single member of the Royal Family residing at this moment in the capital, and that all the Ministers are also absent.

In the obituary of the last fortnight are the names of several persons of note, among whom may be mentioned two of the oldest representatives of the drama in the persons of Carl and Emil Devrient, Count Eberhard von Stolberg—Wernigerode, President of the Prussian Herrenhaus, or House of Lords, and Civil Governor of the province of Silesia. The deceased Count, who died at the ripe old age of eighty-nine, was the territorial possessor of the Brocken mountains and nearly the whole of the Hartz mountains; in former times he was a reigning potentate under the Emperors of Germany. The death of Privy Councillor von Abeken is also reported, a man of great talents and learning, an intimate friend and right hand man of Prince Bismark, and a great favourite of the present Emperor and the late King Frederick William IV. He was educated for the Church, and was duly consecrated, after which he went to Egypt for some years, and was very successful in making archæological discoveries and interpreting the hieroglyphics of the country. On his return he was employed in the Foreign-office, and generally accompanied the King on his journeys.

At the last examination of the students of the School for Medicine at Berlin, out of thirteen only two passed as "good" in anatomy, one of whom was a young Japanese named Satoo. What a degree of intelligence and application this young man must have possessed is best shown by the fact that he was sent to Berlin by his father, and arrived there in November, 1869, quite alone, and without understanding a word of German, which language he had to learn before commencing his study of medicine. Fortunately he fell into the hands of a well-educated tutor, who took great interest in his intelligent pupil, and brought him on so rapidly that at the end of five months he was master of the German language, and in six months more had acquired a sufficient knowledge of other things—including Latin— to pass a little-go and be entered as a student of medicine. His father is said to be the Physician of the Mikado, and enjoys a great reputation in Japan as a clever surgeon and operator, he has founded a native clinical and medical school at Yedo that is much frequented by the Japanese youths, and where young Satoo no doubt saw and learned much of the practical part of the profession, but without acquiring the most distant knowledge of any of the auxiliary attainments and sciences. Satoo is the first that has distinguished himself abroad; but he has nearly seventy young fellow-countrymen, who are also studying at Berlin, and who are doing their utmost to emulate the success achieved by their friend, whilst they state that a fresh batch of young Japanese are now on their way to pursue their studies at the German metropolis.

The Russian Telegraph Department gives notice that the inundations caused by the overflowing of the Amoor and Schilka have done a deal of damage, and broken the telegraphic communication; however, a good deal has been repaired, but there is still a section of some twenty wersts where nothing can be done at present, as the country is still under water. In the meantime telegrams are sent over this gap by boats. In the Trans-Baikal province, too, the Selenga, Uda, Nertsha, and Kujunka have overflowed their banks, and destroyed the telegraph lines in several places.

The Golos states that a new company is in course of formation, with a capital of 2,400,000 roubles, in 2,400 shares, for the purpose of pro secuting the trade between Russia and Central Asia. The "Statutes" have already been sent to the Ministers for War and Finance for their approbation, after obtaining which they will be laid before the Emperor for his confirmation.

The Government of the Sandwich Islands having applied to Germany for an efficient musician as bandmaster and instructor of military music, a former bandsman of the second Regiment of Foot Guards, named Heinrich Berger, has been selected for the post, and is already on his way out. The terms of his engagement are very liberal, as he is to receive a salary of $3,600 per annum, with free quarters and board, enjoying, moreover, the rank of officer, and preserving during his absence (five years) his claim to promotion and pension in the German army.

COMMERCIAL.

The holders of new Teas are very reticent, and by no means inclined to sell at present rates, so that only 84/4 chests of fine Pekoe have changed hands. Cassia Lignea continues in demand at 9¾ to 10. Pepper is looking up, as the season for its largest consumption is approaching, and prices have already somewhat improved; Singapore sells at 7¼, Penang at 6½, and white 16 sch. bco. Of Spelter some small transactions are announced, amounting on the aggregate to 2,000 centners at about 15 mks. bco.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Nyphon, from Singapore; Lady Belleau, from Akyab; Claudia, from Bassein; Figaro, from Ilo Ilo; Pelicano, John Bertram, Manila II., Euterpe, and Dora, from Rangoon.

DEPARTURES.—F. H. Drews, to Hong Kong; Kuhlinghaus and Peter Godeffroy, to South Sea Islands; Hohenzollern and Martha, to Singapore.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 21.

The news brought here by the last mail from Java is most disappointing. The Java Courant publishes what the Java Bode calls "The Agrarian Inheritance of the Minister van Bosse," viz., two Roya decrees putting in operation the Agrarian Law—the "to be or not to be?" of the Dutch East Indies. You will remember that when this Bill was carried it was greeted as the first step in a right direction, which would lead to the general welfare of Java, and to the abolition of the squeezing "culture-system," and to the promotion of private industry. The Law, however, decided only the principle of the measure, leaving its execution, or, rather, the conditions of its execution, to be fixed by a special Royal decree. This was at last issued at the instigation of Mr. de Waal, the Liberal Minister, but the conditions were such as to reduce the Law to a dead letter. Further action was necessary, and another Liberal Minister, Mr. van Bosse, was charged with the task of applying the Law. But he has also been proved to have very strange ideas of Liberalism. There is in these decrees not the least sign of an attempt to solve the Colonial question, and to inaugurate a more promising future for the colony. Considering the magnitude of the interests involved, the prevailing apathy, the inaction of our Ministers in reference to the solution of questions affecting the well-being of our colonies is truly astounding. The manner in which we govern the millions of inhabitants which people our Indian possessions is shameful, and it seems that our Government has decided to wait until the discontent prevailing amongst the natives is actively manifested, and they utterly refuse to be squeezed for the benefit of the Dutch Treasury. It was more than time for the introduction of reforms, and the Agrarian Law offered the opportunity. A Liberal Ministry held the reins of the Government, but nevertheless we have again entered upon a period of repose, nay, of decay. The conditions which have been framed by Mr. van Bosse are the meanest and most unjust to which the law could be subjected, and will entirely prevent the introduction of European capital into Java, which was one of the chief objects of the Bill. Our Opposition papers will, of course, make a good deal of political capital out of these decrees, and indeed they are quite right to demonstrate that our Liberal Ministers have hitherto done more harm than good for our colonies. However, the best Liberal we have ever had now fills a Ministerial seat, and let us hope he will do all that is possible to promote the welfare of our Indian possessions. As Liberalism has proved to be for Java only a bare word, let him introduce purely Radical principles, and perhaps Mr. van Rees, "King Otto," will give him assistance in the good work. Our home politics are as dull as ever. The only news is old news of discussions upon the forthcoming meeting of the leaders of the Internationale. Some of them, Felix Pyat, General Cluseret, and others, have arrived in the Hague, which has caused already a storm of indignation in those papers which advocate the idea that the natural result of this meeting must be our destruction. We read every day such nonsense, even in the leading papers of the Conservative party, and I fear that we shall get nothing more interesting until the new Parliamentary Session is opened next month.

In commerce—especially here where we are in the midst of the annual fair—most complete dulness prevails. A quiet tone also pervades the Stock Exchange markets, securities generally showing a decline. The amount of business in progress is very small, and whenever an opportunity presents itself speculators realise and thus the market is rendered weak. The evenement of the week is the success of the subscription of the Amsterdam Bank, which even overshades that of the French loan. According to the prospectus (which was issued here by the Rotterdam Bank) 30,000 shares were placed at the disposal of the public. No less than 50,379 persons applied for them, and they subscribed for 4,768,647 shares, notwithstanding that the price of issue was 110¼ per cent. The present quotation is 114 per cent. This enormous success is to many persons a mystery; for my own part I think it safer to buy shares of established banks than to pay 10 per cent. premium for those which have yet to establish themselves. But perhaps I am wrong.

By the steamer Conrad there arrived here ten Chinese, who are to be sent by the Dutch Trading Company to Surinam, to be employed on the sugar plantations there. I hear that eleven others are to arrive by the steamer Prins van Oranje. With regard to the first named steamer I have to mention that Mr. Oort, its late commander, has been replaced by Mr. J. F. Graadt van Roggen, Mr. Oort being appointed general agent of the Company "Nederland" at Nieuwe Diep.

I regret to record the death of the pensioned Rear-Admiral J. E. de Man, who commanded the last expedition to Japan.

Belgian papers assert that the Sugar conference, which was held in London, has had no success, the several representatives having re-crossed the Channel without any result being obtained.

The weather has been uninterruptedly splendid, and the harvest, which is rapidly progressing, will be most abundant.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Hardly any change worth notice has occurred in our market for Colonial produce.

COFFEE.—In anticipation of the Trading Company's public sale, taking place to-day, buyers have kept on the reserve, but the article looks healthy. Sales have been closed of 1,400 bags Java, ex Kortenaar, 1,000 bags, ex Jacob Roggeveen at 46½c., 1,000 bags, ex Gesina Maria, at 46½c., and several small parcels imported by different vessels.

SUGAR is very quiet. A partial demand prevails for special numbers for export, but there is very little on offer in the market.

TEA offers nothing of moment to report.

TOBACCO.—The parcels of Java, amounting together to 9,372 bales, put up for sale by secret tender at Amsterdam, have all been quitted.

SPICES are without change to report. The announcement of the annual public sale for account of the Trading Company is looked for.

RICE.—I have to report the sale of 1,402 bags Java, ex Maria Eliza, on secret terms.

RATTANS keep firm, but no transactions are reported.

TIN.—A dull tone prevails for this article, and prices are unsettled.

SHIPPING.

Monetary and Commercial.

An announcement was made on Thursday of the stoppage of Messrs. Gledstanes and Co., in the India and China trade, of Austinfriars, and was received with much regret, the high position and integrity of the firm having commanded general respect. The house has been established upwards of fifty years. Continuous losses, however, have since been made, both on the transmission of Manchester goods to India and China, and the exportation of Eastern produce to this country. The liabilities will, it is thought, represent about £1,500,000; but as a large portion of this amount is in acceptances by other firms, the total will be very considerably reduced. As the remitted bills of the firm from various correspondents are all held by the principal banks and discount establishments, there will be no difficulty in their being promptly met. All the advances on produce, we are informed, have been in cash. As yet no idea can be formed of the assets, but a meeting of the creditors will, we understand, be held this week, when a statement of the position of affairs may be expected. It is rumoured that this suspension will involve the failure of other firms connected with the Far East. The majority of the Manchester and Liverpool houses are in for considerable sums, but it is believed these creditors are secured. This is not so, however, with the India and China Banks, the majority of which will, it is expected, be heavy sufferers. The following circular was issued on Thursday evening:—

26, Austin-friars, London, E.C., August 22, 1872.

We deeply regret to inform you that we have found it necessary to suspend our payments. We have placed our books in the hands of Messrs. Harding and Co., of the Old Jewry, accountants, and will submit a statement of our affairs to you at the earliest possible date.—We are, your obedient servants, Gledstanes and Co.

The following Post-office notification having reference to the despatch of the mails to China and Japan via San Francisco has been issued :—

Mails for Japan and China intended to be sent via San Francisco may now be despatched twice in each month, for conveyance by the United States mail steam packets, which leave San Francisco for Yokohama and Hong Kong on the 1st and 16th of each month. Correspondence intended to be sent by this route must be specially addressed "via San Francisco," and should be posted in time to reach New York not later than the 22nd of each month, to insure transmission by the packet of the 1st of the following month, and not later than the 7th to insure transmission by the packet of the 16th of the month.

Tenders for £650,000 in bills on India were received on the 21st inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £640,700; to Bombay, £1,000; and Madras, £8,300. The minimum was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10⅝d. will receive about 50 per cent., and on Bombay at that price in full. These results show no material alteration.

Bar Silver has become slightly firmer, and the rate may now be quoted as from 60d. to 60⅛d. per oz. standard. There are now scarcely any Mexican dollars held here, and the market may be considered quiet, without any variation in price, old coinage 62½d., new 60d. per oz.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Candia, which left Southampton on the 22nd inst., was, in gold —to Gibraltar, £700; to Malta, £40,000; total, £40,700.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Co.'s Circular is as follows :—

The market has been firm, importers giving support as regards black-leaf tea, but red-leaf (except Saynne at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.) has been difficult of sale, and it would seem the crop, generally, is not appreciated. The new season's Ping Sueys have been on offer during the past week, the quality, judging from the 5,000 packages to hand, the bulk of which sold on the 19th inst. at auction without reserve, is not equal to last season's, the teas being too much coloured. The continental demand has been chiefly for extra fine black-leaf, with few transactions, and business for New York and Canada has been confined to a few parcels of fine green. Deliveries for the week have amounted to 2,982,770 lbs., against 3,470,537 lbs. last year.

Black: Red-leaf from 1s. to 1s. 1d. has been in request for shipping, and at the moment is scarce, but at 1s. 1⅛d. to 1s. 4d. (chiefly Saynne kinds) the market is abundantly supplied, and there has been a fair quantity sold at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. for home use; Kaisow at 1s. 6d. upwards has been but little dealt in. Pakling: Prices have given way 2d. to 3d. per lb., at which there has been more doing, second quality at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 11d., finest and extra 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb. Tayshan leaf: The low range at which this class has been selling for some time past, and the moderate arrivals of late, has caused more inquiry, and led to an advance of ½d. to 1d. per lb., medium, strong burnt kinds, at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. per lb., being mostly asked for. Black-leaf: Low to ordinary common sells at 4½d. to 8d. per lb., good common to fair stands nominal at 11d. to 1s., and is in small stock; medium (old leaf) has been selling at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d., costing in February last 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; new, flavoury kinds (Hohow district), are selling ex late arrivals at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 4d.; Onahms at 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; strong Pekoe flavoured kinds of Ocanfa and Oopack district at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d., and finest, chiefly Ningchows, at 2s. to 2s. 5d. per lb. The late extreme prices paid by shippers are not obtainable at the moment. Souchong: Arrivals continue small, and late rates have been paid for extra fine. Oolong: Supplies have come in freely, a portion consisting of Formosa growth, which has sold from 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. for fine and best quality. Scented Tea: Canton Orange Pekoe, medium quality, sells at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d., fine 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d., finest 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. Caper has been in improved demand, and slightly better prices obtained for medium; quotations rule at 8½d. to 10d. for clean common, 11d. to 1s. 1d. for fair, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d. for medium, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. for fine, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d. per lb. for finest. Fayune district is of superior quality, being well made and strong scented, and readily saleable. Foochow Scented Orange Pekoe has been dull of sale at 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb., most parcels being wanting in scent. Green: The new Ping Sueys have been selling at reasonable rates, looking at the great scarcity, and we fully expect to see subsequent arrivals do better (as has been the case in Congou this season), when the fear of heavy imports is removed. No. 1 Gunpowder has sold at 3s. 4d.; No. 2, 2s. 10d. to 3s.; No. 3, 2s. 6d.; Imperial, 2s.; Young Hyson, 2s. 4d. to 2s. 7d.; the lower grades of the latter have not come forward. Canton kinds have been in large supply, and are only saleable at declining rates. Japan leaf: No change.

SILK.

There is rather more doing in some descriptions of Asiatic Silk, but there is no general activity in the market; prices on the whole are fairly maintained. In China Silk the demand runs chiefly on the better classes, for which very full prices are paid, but ordinary and common command little or no attention. In Japan Silk a few sales have been made, some at lower prices, but the demand is very limited. Canton Silk is not in much request, but there is no material alteration in prices. Deliveries, 1st to 21st inst. inclusive:—China, 1,719 bales; Canton, 382 bales; Japan, 583 bales; total, 2,684 bales.

CAMPHOR.—The market for China is very quiet, only a few parcels having been quitted at £4 per cwt. Of Japan there is scarcely any supply, and no transactions are reported.

CARDAMOMS.—No transactions in Ceylon.

CHINA PRESERVES.—An offer of 10 cases dry Ginger was sold at 8¾d. to 9½d. per lb.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Ceylon has been the subject of speculation, and the quotation on the spot has advanced to £35 10s. to £36 per ton, but at the close a quiet tone prevails, and there is but little business doing. Cochin rules at £38 10s. to £39 per ton.

COIR GOODS.—The quantities offered at public sales have been moderate; the bulk consisted of damaged Yarn, which brought about the value; the small proportion sound sold at previous prices. Fibre went off slowly at easier rates. 52 bales Ceylon Yarn sold, middling to good £31 5s. to £36 10s., fine £40; of 52 tons ditto 40 tons sold, very common to good common at £24 to £29, middling to good £29 10s. to £37 5s., fine £41 5s. Of Fibre 5½ tons Ceylon bristle sold at £37 15s. to £39, the remainder mattress bought in at £12 to £19. 9 tons Ceylon Rope chiefly sold, 1½ to 2 inch at £24 to £27 10s., 2 to 3 inch at £22 to £22 10s. per ton.

COPRA.—No movement reported in Penang.

CUBEBS continue very quiet; 12 bags offered in public sale were retired.

CUTCH remains dull of sale, and only a few small parcels of fine Pegu have changed hands at 24s. 9d. to 25s. per cwt. At auction 782 boxes Pegu were taken in at 26s., and 390 boxes Singapore at 24s. per cwt.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Market dull; 12 cases offered in public sale were retired.

EBONY.—Ceylon is scarce, and in request.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed: Shortly after our report of the 9th inst. business was effected at 9s. 3d. down to 8s. 9d. per lb., and some 80 cases were reported sold, this induced further sales for delivery later in the year; subsequently 99 cases were offered at auction, and price was forced up to 10s. 11d. to 11s., at which figures all was sold (except a single case at 9s. 11d. and another at 11s. 1d.). Some further business has been transacted privately at 11s., which is the closing nominal value. Cassia is very firmly held, but little has been done, few cases being quitted at 6s. 8d. Nutmeg is firm, but quiet. Cinnamon: Wanted, very little fine here. Citronelle: In better request; 8 cases sold at auction at 2½d. per oz.; but subsequently nearly 200 cases have changed hands at 2⅜d., with a few at 2½d. Lemon Grass is steady; a few cases reported sold at 5d.

Galls.—The market for China has been firm, and the quotation has advanced to £2 16s. 6d. per cwt., at which some 400 to 500 cases have been placed. At the close holders decline to quit their stocks except at an advance upon the above quotation. Japan: No business done.

Galangal Root.—Market quiet but steady.

Gambier.—There has again been a fair demand, and a further slight advance of 1s. per cwt. has been obtained on the spot, 24s. to 24s. 6d. being paid for block; 28s. 3d. has been realised for a small parcel of fine Cubes. For arrival, parcels of June-July shipment have been quitted at 22s. 4½d. to 23s., July-August 22s. to 22s. 6d., August 22s., and parcels nearly due at 23s. 7½d. to 23s. 9d. per cwt. At auction 975 packages Cubes partly sold at 27s. per cwt.

Gutta-percha.—Is 4d. to 6d. per lb. lower. Auctions have been very large, embracing 3,719 baskets, &c., and 925 blocks, barely one-fourth of which has been sold; fair to good genuine, part a little barky, at 2s. 0½d. to 2s. 6½d., white Borneo, good and re-boiled mixed close 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 7d.; ordinary to middling re-boiled 1s. to 1s. 4½d.; ordinary to fair white 11½d. to 1s. 4d.; inferior loose, weak, barky, and common re-boiled 9½d. to 11¾d., very low 6½d.

Gums.—Benjamin: Siam firm for good kinds, but supply of common large; 20 cases at auction retired. Sumatra steady, and of 70 cases offered one-half sold at £7 15s. to £8 10s. for middling to fair 2nds, and few cases 3rds 65s. to 72s. 6d. Copal: Quiet; of 557 cases at public sale, about one-fourth sold; hard small part good dark scraped, with some drossy and weak at 25s., being cheaper. Damar very dull, and 87 cases retired. Gamboge steady; of 19 cases at sale few only sold at £15 10s. for good bright pipe part run.

Hemp.—The market for Manila has been quiet, only small sales being effected, and last quoted rates barely maintained; of 402 bales offered in public sale Thursday, 209 bales good roping sold at £48 10s. to £48 15s. per ton, chiefly at the former price.

Hides.—The auctions of East India Kips held Thursday attracted a large attendance of buyers for both home use and export, and a good competition prevailed throughout. Nearly the whole of a large supply found buyers at ¼d. to ⅜d. advance. Batavia Buffalo met a good demand, but other sorts sold slowly at about late rates.

India-rubber.—Very dull; no transactions to report.

Isinglass.—The monthly auctions took place on the 13th instant, when only 34 packages were offered and sold; Leaf, middling small to fine bold bright 2s. 6d. to 4s. 1d.; Pipe, middling dark to good bright long pale 2s. 3d. to 3s. 6d.; Purse 1s. 10d.

Japan Wax.—The market is quiet, but prices are steadily maintained on a par with those ruling a fortnight since. Offers of about 177 cases have been made at the public sales, and of this quantity about one-fourth has been quitted at £4 6s. to £4 6s. 6d. for good thick and hard saucers.

Musk.—Fine pod is dearer; only 17 caddies Tonquin have been offered and sold; selected well shaped pods at 39s. 6d. to 40s.; rough and bally and wet pickings at 18s. to 19s. 6d.

Pepper.—Black has been rather inactive; about 1,000 bags have changed hands privately, Singapore and Penang at previous value, Rhio kind at 6 7-16d. Afloat about 2,000 bags West Coast at 6⅝d.; Penang 6¼d., June steamer shipments. Auctions have embraced 1,690 bags Singapore; very few sold at 6⅝d. for rather greyish; 1,485 bags Penang; two-thirds sold at 6¼d. to 6⅜d., with Trang at 6⅜d. to 6½d., and 530 bags Siam retired. White is rather easier, and about 300 bags are reported sold, spot and afloat, at 1s. 1d. per lb. for fair Singapore. At auction about two-thirds of 748 bags offered found buyers, fine bold at 1s. 2d. down to 1s. 1½d. for fair quality.

Plumbago.—There is a moderate demand, and 348 barrels Ceylon offered were partly sold at 21s. to 30s. for common to fair lump at 11s. to 11s. 6d. for dust.

Rhubarb.—The market for China is steady, of 106 cases offered at auction about half sold in the room and subsequently; bold medium, well trimmed, good pinky fracture at 2s. 6d. per lb.; pale grey even 1s. 11d. to 2s. 4d.; small rough coat 11d. to 1s. 6d.; inferior 2½d. to 5½d.

Rice.—The market has relapsed into extreme dulness, and the business done during the week has been very small both on the spot and afloat. Shells.—Mother o' Pearl: Both Singapore and Manila are firm, being in short supply. Tortoise: There has been no change since the periodical sales reported on in our last issue of the 12th inst.

Sticklac.—There have been considerable arrivals of Siam, and the recent active enquiry has to a great extent ceased. Holders, however, remain firm, and £4 8s. has been offered and refused for a lot of 210 cases.

Star Aniseeds are in somewhat better demand, and have slightly recovered from the recent decline; about 40 cases have been quitted at £5 5s. per cwt.

There is some little enquiry at the close. Mace remains quiet, but steady; of 24 cases offered, only a few were placed at 3s. 5d. to 3s. 8d. for broken dull to middling red.

Tin.—The fluctuations in prices lately apparent has given place to tolerable steadiness, the current quotations being—Straits on the spot, £147 to £147 10s.; afloat, £146 to £148; Banca, £158; Billiton, £152 per ton.

Tapioca.—The market has been rather firmer, and of 1,355 bags Singapore at auction, about half was placed at 2½d. to 2¾d. for fair to good, and 3d. for fine bright; 390 bags Penang were offered and retired.

Messrs. French and Sm th's Circular says:—Business the past week has been dull. Iron is rather easier. Copper: On the 16th and 17th inst. there was much excitement, and price advanced to £100 to £101 for bars; but the movement was temporary, and as sellers appeared, the price again receded, and closes quiet. Lead is much firmer. In other metals there is nothing to notice.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The market has continued in an inanimate condition, and the tendency of prices has been slightly in favour of buyers. Producers have, however, abstained from pressing sales, and there is no more depression than is usually experienced in a quiet market. The market closes with a dull feeling, without material change in prices.
